

Enrollment Low

By Mollie Hoben

Enrollment in St. Anthony Park Community Education classes is lower than expected this fall. This situation is creating some financial pressures for the program and concerns about long range planning.

According to Cathy Hare, Community Education Coordinator, enrollment in fall classes is "quite a bit" lower than last year. About 125 persons are currently participating in classes. Of 19 courses offered for fall quarter, only five had sufficient enrollment to be conducted.

The reduced enrollment meant that Community Education has had to subsidize some of the classes, despite an earlier decision not to offer classes that could not support themselves financially.

Community Education is operating with a $16,000 budget this year, $9000 of which is projected income. Because of the decreased enrollment, income this fall has been less than anticipated.

The potential impact of reduced income is illustrated by the children's chorus. The chorus, an established Community Education program, faces the possibility of receiving no community Education funding during the winter and spring quarters. This fall it received a $900 special activity allocation, in addition to the $10 tuition fee paid by each child. Without allocations in winter and spring, it would have to operate solely from tuition payments.

Originally, no tuition was charged for the chorus, and about 120 children participated. When a fee was imposed, enrollment dropped; last year 46 children were involved. This year enrollment is down to about 40.

At its October meeting, the Community Education Advisory Council approved several suggestions from Hare aimed at increasing winter enrollment. These included mailing program information to all homes, allowing pre-registration, and creating several options for instructor's salaries.

Hare is examining course offerings and is open to suggestions. "If people want a certain course offered, I wish they would get their suggestions to me, and I'll see what I can do. Maybe we're not offering the courses people really want."

Concern about limited community response to fall class offerings is fueling the Advisory Council's examination of long-range direction and purpose. Pat Copa, Advisory Council co-chairperson, believes that community education must involve more than classes. "Community education is a process," she says. "It should be concerned with community development and community service."

At its next meeting the council will address the topic of improving community education effectiveness.

Portable Studied for Latch Key

By Mollie Hoben and Peggy Mann Rinehart

At the October 17 St. Paul School Board Meeting, the Board unanimously voted that its administrator's explore the possibility of moving a portable classroom, presently located at Harding High School, to SAP Elementary School to be used to house the Latch Key program.

They asked Dr. Weldin, principal; Dr. Kenneth Berg, Deputy Superintendent; Dr. Irma McGuire, Director of Elementary Education; and Gene Siegfredson, Director of Plant Planning and Maintenance, to draw up and submit bid specifications for the cost of moving the portable. The estimated cost is presently $8,500.00. They have been charged with the task of evaluating a suitable location at the school for the structure and with the help of Jerome Hughes, Director of Community Education, have been asked to find appropriate Community Education funds to finance the project.

Dr. Young, Superintendent, stressed that the decision to use a portable classroom is "simply a proposal." There has been no definite Board decision to move a portable to St. Anthony Park.

According to Eleanor Weber, School Board Member, "I think everyone is to be congratulated for their hard work in seeking a solution. I expect a solution can be found quickly."

Dianna Diers, Latch Key coordinator explains, "I hope that there is some equitable way to bring a portable room to the school. Right now, it appears the most viable alternative we've discussed."

The portable classroom would provide a permanent solution to the space problems that resulted in the Latch Key programs's recent move from a kindergarten room in SAP Elementary to a variety of spaces within the school.

"My position has to be that of giving school programs priority over other activities," Weldin explained to Greg Haley, President of the SAP Association, in a letter.

The School Board initially responded to concerned parents at its October 3 meeting.

Sharon Stewart, Chairperson of the Latch Key parent group, explained Latch Key's two requests: "We insist that the participants in the administration clarify their relationship and their commitment to the Latch Key Program. We request that appropriate administrative participants join with us—the parents of children in the Latch Key program—to allocate space that is appropriate to our needs."

School Board members agreed that the parents and the Board must, "Turn to the school administration to find the best solution possible."

The Board moved that the parents return to the school and try to work out communications and space problems with Weldin and return to the October 17 meeting to report their progress.

Visit Murray

An open house for parents, students and friends in the community will be held at Murray Junior and Senior High School on Thursday evening, November 2, from 7:00 - 10:00 p.m.

The evening will begin with a general "homeroom" gathering in the Auditorium with words of welcome and general orientation from Murray Principal Vern Kenyon and Assistant Principal Joe Nathan. Then parents and friends will have the opportunity of "walking through" a day at Murray with students.

Each of the six regular daily class periods will meet for 15 minutes with a 5 minute break between classes. Murray teachers will present a short summary of their classes so that parents and friends may gain some insight into the

DISTRICT 12
COMMUNITY COUNCIL NOV., 1978

N ★ E ★ W ★ S

2380 Hampden Avenue • Edited by Jerry Jenkins

★ Mayor's Information and Complaint Office

If you need information about the City or have a complaint feel free to call 298-4747. The office is set up to assist citizens in gaining access to the proper city employees when a valid complaint is reported.

Recent examples of the types of calls from District 12 citizens are as follows: mid-block lighting desired, a stop sign wanted at an intersection used by children, a neighbor's yard was being used as a parking lot, a large hole in a vacant lot appeared after a rain, a tree was resting on a wire and causing sparks. The information and complaint office staff contacted the appropriate City department to correct the problem or gave information regarding City regulations regarding the question asked.

People who call in should be able to give the exact address of the problem they are reporting. Anonymous complaints are taken but usually it is necessary for the caller to give name, address and phone number so that a call-back report can be made.

★ Petition Supported

Dayton's Bluff (District 4) has petitioned the City to refine its ordinance relating to halfway houses. District 12 Community Council members have sent a letter in support of their petition.

★ Como Zoo Concern

A letter has been sent to John Heggarty, Chairman of the Como Park Planning Committee requesting that all district representatives serving on the committee be allowed to vote. Districts 6 and 10 which are adjacent to Como Park vote. District 12 Community Council has invited representatives of 6 and 10 to come to the Nov. 8 Community Council meeting to discuss this matter. Bernice Strane is a voting representative on the Como Zoo Design Committee and has been attending the Como Park Planning Committee but has not had a vote. District 12 has requested that Ms. Strane be a voting representative.

Mixed Reaction to District Plan

In the last issue of the Bugle this page listed recommendations from the first draft of the General District Plan (GDP) for North and South St. Anthony Park and University Avenue/West Midway. Reactions are generally favorable, but there are some conflicts and disagreements.

"How can you object to motherhood, apple pie and the American flag?" commented Bill Huestis, chairperson of the Midway Civic and Commerce Association delegation. Members of Midway Civic and Commerce pointed out that the recommendations in the commerce and industry section are non-controversial and can best be summarized by saying "Who can object to that?"

In contrast, the initial response from the City Planning division staff member, Larry Soderholm, was "I'm skeptical!" He was referring to the Physical Development section of the GDP which recommends housing between Highway 280 and Raymond. "On the face of it, it sounds like a bad idea!" He added that he would not totally discredit the idea, however, because "I believe in the quality of the people who have been working on this committee." Soderholm questions whether a stable neighborhood could be located along a new truck route (extended Kasota), between two mainline railroad tracks and in a busway corridor (proposed University of Minnesota intercampus link). "The other people in our office in Economic Development think it's a good location for industrialization," Soderholm added.

Review of the GDP by St. Anthony Park Association resulted in approval of the first draft by the association at its October meeting.

Representatives of the South St. Anthony Park Association have done some "fine tuning", according to Dennis Ferche, 963 1/2 Bayless, but have "no major conflicts or disagreements" with the first draft.

A few individuals called in comments to Dave Black, City Planning division, and the District 12 Community Council office. Dennis Grebner, 85 Langford Park, declared his opposition to sound barriers along 280 because they are aesthetically unacceptable. "One gets used to the sound—it's like being next to the ocean." Grebner added that his chief concern about the land between 280 and Eustis was keeping the trees, shrubs and foliage and repairing the damage done by the recent sewer work.

One resident south of Como and east of Raymond objected to the proposed development of vacant property on Fifield Street. "The apartments on Brewster have led to a decline of the neighborhood and more development would add to that decline."

The Human Service Committee of District 12 Community Council asked for additions to the Human Services section including a request for space for a Senior Citizen Center and the Latch Key program. The committee agreed that the final report on the Needs Assessments survey promised by Anderson & Berdie Associates by the end of October would possibly produce additional data upon which other recommendations could be added in the Human Services section.

Final approval of the GDP by the community awaits further review, amendments and revisions. At this writing it is anticipated that the neighborhood approval process will be completed by the November 8 Community Council meeting. Review by various City departments, other District Councils, and the Small Area Committee of the Planning Commission is in progress. Final adoption of a completed GDP will extend into 1979.

The relation of the General District Plans to the City's Comprehensive Plan, which is required by state legislation (Metro Land Planning Act), has not been clearly defined. If the City's land-use planners' recommendation for the land use between 280 and Raymond is in conflict with District 12's GDP, the implementation of the plan's recommendation for linking the two residential communities with housing will be "an interesting study in conflict resolution," according to one neighborhood observer.

★ The Twins Compared

In September, 1976, the Legislative Advisory Commission approved a $133,700 appropriation to finance an intensive study of local governance in Minneapolis and St. Paul. The State Planning Agency's Office of Local and Urban Affairs was responsible for the study. Many interesting comparisons were drawn between the two cities.

Minneapolis spends $1.30 per capita for operation and maintenance expenses for every $1 per capita spent in St. Paul.

City wages are slightly higher in Minneapolis for most job categories.

Expenditures per capita and expenditures per household are higher in Minneapolis. Minneapolis spends $334 per/capita and St. Paul spends $251.

Minneapolis spends $60 more per acre for parks maintenance than St. Paul.

St. Paul and Minneapolis residents have a lower median family income than residents of other metro area communities: St. Paul-$13,572; Minneapolis-$13,734. The average of the metropolitan communities includes the two cities, so communities outside of the Twin Cities actually have a higher family income than $17,300.

On a per capita basis, St. Paul maintains a larger Fire Department, while Minneapolis has a larger Police Department and a larger Housing & Building Inspection Department.

PARK PEOPLE

by Dee Perry Kidder

"Dear Editor," wrote a Bugle correspondent, "I notice that you are interested in interviewing 'Park People' for your paper. We have thoroughly enjoyed these writeups. A while ago, I stopped to see the Cunninghams at 1465 Cleveland Avenue and was impressed by Mrs. Cunningham's hobby of pressed flowers, so I asked if she would mind being interviewed by the Bugle. The Cunninghams' house is sandwiched between Corpus Christi church and a fraternity house on a very busy street, but they had many kinds of birds in the bird-bath and a lovely garden in full bloom. I wished I had the time to do the assignment myself but, lacking that, I hope that someone else will be able to do it."

With our correspondent's note in hand, I knocked at the door of a gray-and-white house set amidst (in October yet) a riot of blooms. Russell and Esther Cunningham graciously welcomed me into their parlor. The pleasant decor included an Oriental area rug before the fireplace. "We do enjoy our home," said Mrs. Cunningham, "and we enjoy our music."

The Cunninghams' lives are almost inextricably connected with the local music scene. Esther has been a member of the Thursday Musicales in Minneapolis and the Schubert Club in St. Paul throughout her adult life. A resident of St. Anthony Park since 1926, she has long been active in WAMSO and other musical activities. Currently she serves on the board of the Friends of the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra and on the WAMSO board as an advisor (she was the winner of WAMSO contests for selling symphony tickets for 23 consecutive years, and one year sold about $25,000 worth.)

"Since I retired from school teaching, I have been able to do the fun things I wanted to do. I've always been interested in art and music, but when I retired I got active with the symphony and had the pleasure of working with some very wonderful managers, Boris Sokoloff and Richard Cisek. Fortunately, my husband also is interested in music and is a cellist—"

"Amateur cellist," interjected Russell.

"He plays every Wednesday night with a string quartet group," Esther explained.

Russell, who also is retired, worked with the Forest Service experiment station on the St. Paul campus from 1930 to 1957. He was in charge of forest surveys and economics for the North Central or Lake States station. In addition to music, he lists his interests as reading and gardening and says he has "a dilettante interest in history."

Esther frequently arranges her petunias and other blossoms for the church. Both Cunninghams are members of St. Anthony Park Lutheran church. They also take part in such Park activities as the St. Anthony Park Association and the American Legion. To aide the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, Mrs. Cunningham is donating a pair of arrangements of dried pansies which she is making up for a silent auction benefit to be held in February. The picture frames will be donated by the Carter Avenue Frame Shop.

Her dried-flower pictures, which Esther sometimes calls "permanent bouquets," use flowers from her garden, dried by a process that preserves the natural color. (Esther employs the same process when drying materials which she mounts between tissue and waxed paper for greeting cards and notepaper.) She exhibited a group of three of her permanent bouquets made from a friend's bridal flowers at the August Women's Club flower show. They fit right in with this year's theme, "Flowers now and forever."

"Once you get started, there's no end to crafts," Esther observed that day, as she allowed me to tour the house. I paused before an amusing picture created by attaching white spray-painted safety pins, paperclips, hairpins and washers—in a flower design—to rust-red burlap backing. On another wall I noted a small cone wreath with matching rust-red ribbon.

She also showed me enclosures and place cards made with a variety of materials ranging from split peas, corn and other grains to pussy willows and pistachio nut hulls. One attractive variation was a miniature composed of wildrice grains coated with colorless nail polish and glued to a placecard in a cattail design.

We went on into the kitchen where Esther showed me several of her handpainted wooden plates. Like many other Park residents, she learned rosemaking from Hans Berg, who taught classes at the St. Anthony Park library in the 1950's. We said goodbye there in the kitchen. Just before I left I noticed, above the kitchen air conditioner, another glass panel of pressed flowers—the first flowers of spring, in this case—brightening that corner and perhaps spirits too.

Dee Kidder is a freelance editor/writer and a Park resident. A recent recruit to the Bugle staff, she has worked on several area daily and weekly newspapers, including the Pierre Capitol Journal, Hibbing Tribune and Bloomington Sun. She recently was nominated to the National League of American Pen Women, Letters division.

From the Board

We had quite a board meeting last month. Scarcely had the ink dried on our operating procedures, when we had to pull them out and put them to the test.

Readers' reactions to the "Latch Key Locked Out" story in last month's Bugle were quite varied. Some felt the paper had overstepped its boundaries and needlessly antagonized and alienated many of the people involved. Some found the issue of interest to the community but did not feel it had been handled accurately or well. Others expressed support for the coverage, encouraging the Bugle to continue to involve itself in community issues. Still others, removed from the situation, did not perceive the article to be controversial.

For the board, the issue boiled down to two things really: 1) Can the Bugle or any monthly paper which needs broad-based community support, cover stories which might be controversial within the community? 2) What sort of treatment constitutes responsible coverage of potentially controversial issues?

Throughout discussion, board members focused on one particular paragraph in the editorial section of its operating procedures: "The Board neither seeks nor avoids controversial subjects; rather, it endeavors to provide a medium for the free expression of ideas in our diverse community with the intention of promoting mutual understanding and respect."

The board found itself in agreement with regard to the first point. The Latch Key story was news, and the Bugle had a responsibility to cover it.

On the second point, board members were not in agreement. Some found the coverage inflammatory and opinionated. Others found it commendable. Board members raised the following questions when they met with the Bugle's staff: Should the editor of the paper write the lead news story? Should an editorial on the same topic appear in the same issue as the news story? In attempting to cover two sides of an issue, were differing views exaggerated or distorted? Was the language in the news story or the editorial biased or prejudicial?

We concurred that a news story and an editorial in the same issue by the same writer are not advisable. We reached no overwhelming consensus on the remaining questions. We became quite conscious, however, that we are a representative body, as diverse and heterogeneous as the Bugle's readership. Our own "mutual understanding and respect" took a step forward. It was a good meeting.

Appropriate Space?

As parents of Latch Key children, we have come to recognize ourselves as very much a part of a neighborhood composed of intelligent, energetic and concerned families. We have come to clearly know that this is a community that has a strong and vital interest in its children.

After policy and circumstances were explained, parents of children enrolled in the Latch Key program accepted the decision to re-allocate our former space to a kindergarten class. We worked quickly and directly to explore space alternatives and were willing to move graciously. However, when the practical difficulties of re-location were fully recognized, the seemingly non-negotiable time frame imposed upon us became impossible. We felt ourselves at an impasse of understanding and sought further clarification from the St. Paul School Board.

The School Board and Latch Key parents are in agreement that Latch Key issues seem to need our community's perspective and involvement in order to see a quality resolution. We have no definite solution thus far. We, therefore, issue an invitation—an invitation to the community as a whole—to help us as we struggle with our very real need to find appropriate space.

We need to know if the currently proposed provision of a portable classroom for the extended day program is the most viable alternative. We need to know how it would affect other Community Education projects. We, too, want to address the priorities for use of monies. We want to anticipate long range effects upon the community's needs and our neighbors' needs.

Already Latch Key staff have reached out to help in everyday situations that arise within the school. We have provided service to families during St. Anthony Park Association programs and have a sincere desire to share our resources with as many families and children in our community as possible. But, in order to expand our outreach, we need a home—a secure foundation. To remain a positive, integrated part of the school environment, we are willing to stretch and bend as we review the alternatives and ask others to join us in this effort. Our common concern is our children...all of them.

Shari Stewart, Keith and Karen Hovland, Jeanine Kilijer, Pat and George Copa, Joan and John Buchanan, Mike and Sue Baizerman, Susan and John Molstad, Tom and Louise Lopez, Barb and John Sheldon, Warren Scamp, Peter and Mary Mentelbano, James Cooper, Ernesto and Marlena Guevara, Michelle and Don Svendsen, Don and Sharon Vego, Mary and Charles McJilton, Francisco and Rhonda Vasquez, Steve and Darlene Lindholm, Shari Laver, Bill and Mary Bremmer, John and Ellen Healy, Steve and Karen Flink, Linda Kajer, Doug Bardie, Gwen Monson, Sandy Prastein, Don and Ardis Rowe, Jean and Barb Dalutri, Terry and Gary Berggren and Claudia Swanson.

Reporting Questionable?

I would like to respond to Latch Key Out and the October editorial. The issues are more complex than the editor would have us believe. Working mother versus non-working mother may be an underlying cause, but in and of itself that is a simplistic assessment of the realities of the situation. For example, a bit of homework on the part of the editor into school board policy on room and school program priority, would have been desirable.

Most bothersome to me, however, were the quotes that appeared in the Bugle front page story. Those of us who were in attendance at three meetings concerning this problem wonder how the editor, who was not at any of the meetings, could report those quotes in good conscience.

Sensationalism in newspaper reporting, in my opinion, is never in good taste. Indeed, in a community newspaper, it is detrimental. Pitting "Latch Key" parents against "kindergarten" parents can do nothing but foster divisiveness in the community. We have much to be proud of in our elementary school. I would like to see the Bugle give coverage to happenings, like the trip to Isabella, or the coming Open House in November, complete with pictures. Or, how about a column devoted to the children's creative writing?

Mrs. Terence Fretheim

Talk is Cheap

The controversy concerning the BWCA is interesting. I believe in wilderness. I abhor pollution and I back up these beliefs by going without car, power mower and boat motor. The only bit of nature that my family and I can get to easily is Breck Woods and, from Lars Harrisville's articles in the Bugle, I understand that Breck Woods is in danger. I wonder what the people of Ely would say if they knew that St. Anthony Park is standing idly by while these few trees, our neighborhood's "shelter belt," go down before the bulldozer.

Breck Woods used to be a game refuge. Like the BWCA, it is a special place. Surely there are people here who could take steps to save Breck Woods if they wanted to. All the talk about the BWCA is fine, but, as a gesture to show where we stand, a little action to save Breck Woods would be more impressive.

Yours faithfully,
E. Orly

Our neighborhood has changed greatly since 1897 when this photograph was taken at Raymond and Robins shortly after Adolph and Charles Allen opened their grocery store.

There are some 5,000 homes in our neighborhood, and we would like to take a picture of many of the people occupying those homes!

So, come to Milton Square, meet in front of the Four Seasons on Saturday, November 18, 10:30 a.m. and be part of our neighborhood picture, be a part of our history. All you have to do is say "Cheese."

250 guests who registered for door prizes, ate 30 dozen doughnuts, and drank gallons of coffee. The kids were well represented too! Over 100 helium filled balloons were handed out.

Some of the people were concerned about moving station 13 into the new building with station 23 and paramedic 23. They felt they would lose their fire station. My feelings are more optimistic! You now have "your fire station" with two engine companies and the newest paramedic ambulance in St. Paul.

If you missed the "open house" you can always stop in for a tour of the station.

For the members of Station 23 I thank you.

Tribute

I have just received a letter from California telling me of the death of Alice Todd Tisdale, one of our very old-time SAP residents who within a few weeks would have reached her 99th birthday.

I thought that you would be interested in knowing of this and perhaps something of her Todd and Tisdale families.

The Todd family evidently came to the Park in the early 1890's when Alice was in her early teens. She was the oldest in a family of four children. The family lived in a house facing Langford Park, near to the Northern Pacific tracks.

The Tisdale family came to the Park somewhat later, probably in the early 1900's. They lived in the newly opened South St. Anthony Park area, on Bayless Avenue. There were five children in the family; Frank was the oldest child.

Both families were active together in their school life, their home live and especially in the SAP Congregational Church. We, the Hall family of three girls and one boy were all busy and active growing up.

Alice Todd and Frank Tisdale married, lived in the St. Paul area, busy and happy, never, however, having any children.

Then Frank died suddenly, Alice moved to California to be with her younger sister, Florence. When Florence died, she moved again to be with Florence's daughter, Sheila, who was also in California. She had lived with her ever since.

Alice and I, as old, old time friends and associates have always kept in touch by letter.

Her mind had remained amazingly clear and keen and her letters had been a delight.

Alice asked that her ashes be sent back to St. Paul and be buried beside her husband's grave. So, she is in spirit once again with us all, and we can so rejoice with her over her wonderful, long life beginning so long ago in our much loved St. Anthony Park.

Very sincerely yours,
Ruth Hall

One of several unseen talents behind the production of the Bugle is Pat Olson. For the past four years, Olson has been responsible for the good design sense of the Bugle: the neat, crisp appearance of the paper and the charming display ads. Pat oversees the format of the paper, "how it hangs together," and does the pasteup.

Olson, 27, artist and printmaker, owns her own graphics arts business called "Cats' Pajamas." The whimsical name comes from Olson's childhood when her mother used the term to refer to something very, very special. "Which is what I want to do for my clients," Pat says emphatically.

Her studio in downtown St. Paul is a pleasant jumble of artistic paraphernalia—proof press, drying racks, drafting table, a large desk, wicker chairs, shelves of bright paints, papers, walls covered with prints and photos, plants here and there.

"I've always been good at art," Olson says in a matter-of-fact tone of voice. "I've always enjoyed art. I went to Macalester to give myself exposure to other things I enjoyed, and I got to meet and know art people in the Twin Cities."

Olson was encouraged to think about earning a living through her art. "I began my own business feeling the graphic design would support my fine art," she says. "I knew it would be a challenge, risky. I was somewhat worried about the finances, but I knew I could tighten my belt," she says. Olson was also encouraged by her family who had assumed up to this time that she would become a teacher.

"I had no design or business contacts. The Bugle provided my first regular income," she continues. "It led me to believe I could pick up one or two other jobs." Olson is quick to acknowledge the support she has received from her husband, Mike Hazard, former Bugle editor. "Michael has been a big help, both in terms of the nitty-gritty details and as a sounding board for ideas," she says.

Working with Hazard, Olson has done art work for video and films, mainly for the University Community Video.

Olson designed a cover for the magazine section of the Minneapolis Sunday paper in August, 1977. Several of her friends saw the cover and exclaimed "Somebody's ripped off Pat Olson!" Pat says with amusement.

Pat has also done programs and posters for the Illusion Theater, a professional touring company based in Minneapolis.

Olson is very active in a group called Women's Art Registry of Minnesota. WARM is a support group of professional women artists. Two years ago the group opened a gallery, the Women's Collective Art Space, in downtown Minneapolis. Some 35 women, all professional artists, run this cooperative gallery, one of the largest in the country. "Being a member of WARM has been a major point in my development," Olson says, "by getting to know other women artists, by showing my work and thereby becoming more professional. And our group shows give members a real sense of accomplishment."

Through her WARM activities, Olson earned a contract with Ellerbe Architects to provide a mural for the employees' lunchroom of an Ellerbe designed building for the Caterpillar Company in Peoria, Illinois.

Twelve panels, each four feet high and seven feet wide, will be painted in autumnal shades of yellow, yellow ochre, pumpkin orange, rust, warm gray and white. The huge mural will show a series of figures moving rhythmically across the panels. Olson considers it a very significant piece of work, a major step in her career.

Thus, unlike some people who think about owning their own business... someday... Pat Olson is doing it right now, and doing quite nicely, thank you.

Julie Allyn Stars

By Jerry Rinehart

Julie Allyn, 9-year old daughter of Richard and Clare Allyn, 2368 Bourne Avenue, has been selected to play the role of Gretel in the Children's Theater Company's production of Hansel and Gretel. Julie will alternate in the role with Rana Haugen of Minneapolis in the 35 performances of the play scheduled between October 14 and February 17.

With little previous acting experience other than her skit in the St. Anthony Park Elementary School's talent show last year, Julie and her parents were hoping that she might get a small part, perhaps as a ginger bread girl, in the production. Yet, when the ten rigorous days of auditions were over, Julie had come out ahead of 110 other girls hoping to land the role of Gretel.

There were more surprises in the days ahead: between rehearsals, costume fittings, wig-fittings and photo calls, Julie and the cast have been involved in practices for at least three hours every night (including weekends) since September 17.

The Allyns feel, however, that the time has been well spent. Julie has become more aware of her speech patterns, Clare says, and she has learned a lot about theatrical productions in general, from creating costumes to putting on make-up. And, "she's not watching T.V.," grins her mom.

Julie's first performance will be in the November 8 matinee. Tickets and information about the schedule of performances may be obtained at the Children's Theatre Company, 2400 Third Avenue South, Minneapolis, and at all Dayton's and Donaldson's ticket outlets.

Christmas Carol

The Saturday, November 25, 1978 performance of Children's Theatre Company's "A Christmas Carol" will be a benefit for the Children's Home Society of Minnesota. The performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Children's Theatre, 2400 Third Avenue South, Minneapolis with a complimentary reception for audience and cast to follow in the theatre lobby. Proceeds from this benefit will be used by Children's Home Society to provide more service to children with special needs.

Ticket prices for "A Christmas Carol" are set at $8.00 per child age 12 and under and $10.00 per adult. Tickets or ticket information can be obtained by calling Children's Home Society of Minnesota, 646-6393, Ext. 206.

They're Expeditious!

The Sierra Club will present a Boundary Waters benefit with Garrison Keillor, the Powdermill Biscuit Band, Jeff Wittig & David Berry, and Jaques DeSeve - voyageur at 8:00 p.m. Friday, November 17, at The World Theater in downtown St. Paul. Tickets are available in advance by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nelson French, 1355 Eustis St., St. Paul, MN 55108, or can be purchased at Coffman Union, U of M for $5.00/person, $10.00/family. Checks should be made out to Sierra Club. For information call 332-7884 days, 644-8453 evenings.

Going Baroque

The Camerata Consort will present a concert Sunday, November 12, at 8:00 p.m. at the St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church, Como at Hillside. The group performs baroque music of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and is composed of Reid Blickenstaff, baroque violin and viola; Jim Hart, harpsichord; Mary Jane Munson, soprano; Susanne Petermann, baroque flute; and Beverly White, viola da gamba and recorder.

Jim Reilly, composer and pianist, will be guest artist for the evening. Ms. Munson will sing a set of five of his compositions set to Ariel's songs from The Tempest.

The concert is free and open to the public due to the generosity of an anonymous donor.

HOW CAN KNUDSEN REALTY DO A GOOD JOB

...charging only 3½ % commission?

In every good residential neighborhood there are some folks actively looking for a home to buy. Many of these are the best and most qualified buyers. Whenever a real estate company sells to one of these buyers, it is the easiest sale with the lowest cost.

Our 3½ % plan gives the seller the opportunity to make that saving himself instead of the real estate company. If he (or she) can show the property, by appointments made by us, and pass out the information sheet provided by us, it saves us paying a sales commission to an associate, and that savings plus a lower company cost, is passed on to the seller. We do all the other work, like writing the best offer possible, arranging financing with the lowest cost, preparing all documents needed and closing the sale. And the advertising is paid 100% by us.

Our minimum listing period with this program is 90 days. The best selling time, the first 30 days, is at 3½ %. If needed, the next 60 days are at our comparatively low 6% commission where we also show the property. Most of our sales are in the first 30 days.

This is our answer to the big companies and franchises with their big advertising budgets. We would rather give our customers the savings.

If the past 18 years are any indication...you'll enjoy our way of doing business.

CHSM

By Peggy Mann Rinehart

The Children's Home Society of Minnesota and their many friends took time on Sunday, September 24, to celebrate the new addition to their building on 2230 Como Avenue. Edwin F. Watson, Executive Director of the Child Welfare League of America and keynote speaker, faced the 150 happy faces.

"How are we doing with our children?" Watson asked, and he cited the answer.

- One fourth to one third of all children in the U.S are born into poverty.
- Forty percent of all children in the U.S will be reared by one parent.
- Since 1900 divorce has increased 700 percent.
- Of the 54 percent of American women who have school-aged children and who are employed outside the home, only 24 percent have adequate daycare.
- Although estimates run from 350,000 to 700,000, nobody knows how many children live apart from their biological parents; nobody knows how many children are in foster care throughout the U.S.
- Presently 100,000 special needs children are waiting for adoption.

Watson did not have to elaborate. The 150-plus employees and the many friends of CHSM face even grimmer realities everyday: the poor nutrition and the lack of basic health care for children; delinquency, child abuse, runaways, black market adoptions and one million teenage pregnancies annually.

Still, the audience, the employees and Director Roger Toogood did not reveal signs of discouragement. They struggle to deal with unlimited problems; they struggle with limited funds.

Dick Plufka says, "The program and staff made fundraising easy to do." Photo by Peggy Mann Rinehart.

On September 24, they shared the enthusiasm expressed by Richard Plufka, Volunteer Campaign Chairman. Plufka's deep optimism comes from the intimate knowledge that CHSM and similar agencies make a difference. Plufka is the father of an adopted daughter; his wife, too, came from an adoptive family. In less than a year, Plufka led CHSM to a successful $800,000 fund drive. "The Program and staff made fundraising easy to do," beamed Plufka.

In 1889, the year CHSM began as the Children's Aide Society, adoption took the form of an auction. According to CHSM history: "The children arrived at about half-past three and were taken directly from the train to the court house, where a large crowd was gathered. One by one the children were set before the company and in his stentorian voice, the superintendent gave a brief account of each. Applicants for children were then admitted in order behind the railing, and rapidly made their selections. Then, if the child gave assent, the bargain was concluded on the spot. It was a pathetic sight, not soon to be forgotten, to see those children, tired young people, weary and travel-strained, confused by the excitement and the unwanted surroundings, peering into those strange faces, and trying to choose wisely for themselves. In a little more than three hours, nearly all of those forty children were disposed of."

The adoptive family would sign a statement "agreeing to keep the child until he was 18 years of age, and at that time,—provide him with a Bible, two complete suits of clothing and $50 in cash."

The services offered by CHSM have multiplied 20 times in 90 years. "We're the largest adoption agency in the country," Toogood explains.

Licensed by the State Department of Public Welfare, CHSM receives money from the United Ways, membership bequests, purchase of service contracts, and its own fundraising program, "The Little Red Stocking Drive." Toogood, voted Alumnus of the Year by the University of Minnesota, smiles, "Volunteerism is alive, well and growing." The six programs provided by CHSM suggest he is right.

The Adoption Program, still best known of CHSM's programs, found permanent families in Minnesota for 368 children last year. Twenty-three of these children came with developmental problems or were permanently handicapped. CHSM respects the needs of the Adoptive Triad—the adoptive family, the genetic parents and the adopted person—and provides extensive counseling for each.

l-n-d-s

Post Legal Adoption Services are extended to the adoptive triad, regardless of which agency served during the initial adoption. CHSM agrees to search out the histories of each member of the triad at the request of the genetic parents or adopted parent, respecting the private rights of each. CHSM can unite genetic parents with the grown adoptive person if that is desired. The society keeps in mind recent state legislation which makes a clear distinction between secrecy in service and confidentiality in service.

In May, 1973, CHSM formally began its Family Life Education program. Family counseling is available through CHSM on a sliding scale.

Pregnancy Counseling Services offers basic counseling and treatment services for men and women who need help in coping with an unplanned pregnancy, planning for an unborn child or in planning for parenting or not parenting a child. Most of this service is designed to help cope with the epidemic of adolescent pregnancies.

According to Toogood, "Seventy-five percent of the adolescent women who use the service elect to keep and to parent the child." Not only does CHSM guide teenagers through their pregnancies, but, through its Lincoln House Services, it makes special housing available for some. Lincoln House residences are for single mothers and their children. Lincoln House works with each family unit to provide the skills necessary for independent living. Counseling, family life education—including budgeting, consumer education and nutrition—and quality child day care are offered each family.

In addition to Day Care and Foster Home Services (see close-up below), CHSM provides Medical Services which encompass all the programs of the agency. June Wheeler, CHSM's public health nurse, provides prenatal classes, organized the Tuesday morning pediatric clinic, supervises the Foster Care Program, visits the children in Lincoln House and acts as a medical consultant for the Adoption program. Bob Lundstrom, Director of Communication, stated CHSM's goals succinctly by saying, "The reason we exist is to reach out and help people who are hurting in some way."

Be a Child Care Provider

CHSM feels indebted to St. Anthony Park. With the help and consultation of the SAP Day Care Committee, CHSM acquired its first Child Care Center in March, 1972. Since then, CHSM has added nine centers to the fledgling Roseville I site. The society operates a center at Cedar-Riverside in Minneapolis and others in Roseville, St. Paul and Rochester.

CHSM also operates several satellite family day care homes for children under 2½ years of age. In 1976, CHSM received a grant to expand the satellite home program.

"But we need our neighbors help again," says Pat Gurska, Day Care coordinator. "We need people who are interested in becoming family day care providers."

As CHSM providers, day care moms and dads are eligible for a myriad of services. CHSM provides daycare homes with parent education sessions, on-going training and support services; it also does all bookkeeping and accounting, handles advertising and referrals of children, provides full insurance coverage and facilitates the USDA food program. All interested persons should call Pat Gurska, 646-6393

Foster Families Needed

Foster Care takes on a special meaning at CHSM. Foster families provide care for children who are under the agency's supervision.

Foster families care for children who are awaiting adoption and add a significant dimension to each child's life. In some cases, the foster family provides children from other countries with their first American family-life experience.

CHSM is also in need of people who would be willing to be foster parents. Should you wish more information, call June Wheeler, 646-6393.

Bazaar Season Begins

By Martha Saul

The ninth Clovia Bazaar will be held at a new location this year, in the new Livestock Arena, located between Randall and Commonwealth avenues, on the east end of the St. Paul campus. The hours are Friday, November 3, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday, November 4, 9 a.m. to noon.

Local members have met every other week since June to create toys, dolls, games, travel garment bags, vests, aprons, pillows, baby sweaters, mittens and a huge selection of Christmas centerpieces, decorations and ornaments.

A greenery booth will have plants, pots, hangers and a vast selection of dried weeds.

There will be a free nursery for children and parking will be available in the fairgrounds.

United Church of Christ

The Women's Fellowship of the United Church of Christ (Congregational) is having its Annual Bazaar on November 9, with longer hours this year, opening at 10:30 a.m. and closing at 4:00 p.m.

The noon luncheon (served from 11:30 until 1:30) has always attracted business people from the St. Anthony Park area. This year the menu will be new and different, including homemade vegetable soup, a variety of sandwiches—turkey, ham, and egg salad—dessert and coffee, tea, and milk.

For a great many years, Dr. Sheldon Reed has grown African violets especially for the UCC Bazaar. We have been assured that this year the plant table will be well stocked with his beautiful plants in almost every variety and color. We are surely fortunate to have such a contribution. He starts cuttings in the spring and transplants the plants four times before bringing them to the sale in full bloom.

Pecans, a national service project of the United Church of Christ, have attracted customers to our bazaar for many years. Mary Kwong and Nancy Fruen, the pecan ladies, assure us the pecans will be at the sale this year.

Regular attractions include the food table, Christmas novelties, gift ideas, knitted items, bibs and other children's items, and the old and always interesting "attic treasures."

LATCHKEY, Continued from page 1

On Wednesday, October 4, Latch Key moved its belongings from the kindergarten room a move which has necessitated the creation of a schedule that moves Latch Key kids through a variety of rooms each day. Half of the kids' equipment is currently stored in the Langford Park building. On Monday, when the space available to Latch Key allows only quiet play, "We try to schedule field trips," explains Diers.

"This conflicts with program effectiveness," explains John Sheldon, Latch Key parent. "The shifting from place to place also disallows the Latch Key personnel to establish permanent displays, activity areas and a club house for the kids."

On Thursday, October 5, at a meeting with Berg, McGuire, Hughes, Weldin, Diers, Stewart and Claudia Swanson, Don Rowe and Doug Berde (Latch Key parents), the extended day program was offered enough money to hire an aide on a short term basis to help manage the Latch Key children while they are in the various locations.

According to Diers, "Berg recommended that a portable structure could be the best solution to the school's and Latch Key's space problem."

At least one kindergarten parent concurs. "I think it's a good solution. I don't know if it's adequate for the Latch Key program, but if the Latch Key coordinator and parents agree, that's all that matters."

CATHY HEALY

for State Representative 62A

It's a Question of Trust!

Who can you trust to work for meaningful tax reform?

You might want to consider that the incumbent:

- Said she favored inflation-proofing the income tax in 1976, but voted against this idea in 1977 and '78.
- Refused to support Gov. Perpich's tax-cut plan in 1978—voting only for minor relief.

Paid for by the Cathy Healy Volunteer Committee, Jim Reid, Chr., 335 N. Wilder, St. Paul.

Reward Offer Extended

On September 25, the City Council of Lauderdale was requested by the Board of Directors of the North Suburban Area Crime Prevention Fund to extend to November 1, 1978, the $500 reward for information on the vandalism and damage to seven cars at the Chinese Christian Church last April. The fund's 24-hour answering system has generated numerous leads relating to this offense. By unanimous vote, the Council approved extension of the reward offer. Private donors have also concurred in this action.

Any witness to or person possessing useful information about this crime is urged to call the North Suburban Crime Prevention Fund at 484-4644.

A $500 reward fund has been established for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons committing the CCF vandalism on Wednesday, April 26, 1978.

Protection of identity is guaranteed. The caller will receive a code number to be produced if a conviction results.

If information is given and it leads to an arrest or conviction, the person giving it must call the North Suburban Area Crime Prevention Fund at 484-4644 to arrange for monies to be picked up. The code number will be publicized. The dollars amount of the reward is not a per informant amount. It is the total amount being offered for all information.

The North Suburban Crime Prevention Fund will have sole discretion in determining how the reward will be apportioned in the event that information from multiple sources is of assistance in obtaining the convictions.

The reward offer shall terminate November 1, 1978.

Enough's Enough with the oppressive tax burden, runaway inflation and wasteful government spending. John Berg is concerned about rising inflation and taxes here in Minnesota but the real problem lies in Washington. That's why he wants to go to Congress to vote for a 30% across-the-board tax reduction, graduated over three years.

Let the people know this year we have a candidate willing to listen to the voice of the grassroots; one who is concerned about neighborhood problems too. And that this year, their vote will count. Let them also know that on the moral issues, John Berg stands for what is right!

Winterize your home.

You winterize your car. Why not your home? It's simple enough that you can do some of it yourself. And winterizing prevents heat loss, so you'll save yourself some energy.

Lets start at the top.

Your attic. Maybe it needs insulation. If your ceiling joists are showing, you need more insulation. (NSP recommends a total R-value of 38.) Once you've checked your insulation, you can do one of two things: Call a qualified contractor in to do the job for you. Or do the job yourself. In either case, call NSP and we'll give you the answers or the help you need.

Now, about your windows and doors...

Even the most inexperienced do-it-yourselfer can reduce heat loss around windows and doors by weatherstripping and caulking up drafty leaks. All you need are some relatively inexpensive materials (available at your hardware store or building supply dealer), some tools you probably already have, and a little time.

Tune-up your furnace.

No kidding. You can cut 5% off your heat use by having your furnace tuned-up at least every two years by a qualified heating contractor.

And you can keep it running efficiently by checking the filter each month and cleaning or changing it when necessary.

Two more quick suggestions.

Keep your thermostat as low as is comfortable this winter. But remember: the lower you set it, the more energy you save. Turn it down 5 to 8 degrees when you're sleeping or away from the house for even greater savings. You can even buy an automatic clock thermostat for convenience.

And lower the thermostat on your water heater to medium setting or 140°.

Any questions? Just ASK NSP.

There are other things you can do to winterize your home. And there are specific things you should know before you tackle any of the projects you've just read about. So if you need more information...or if you have any questions...just call 330-6000 and ASK NSP. (If you live outside the Twin Cities area, call collect 0-612-330-6000.) We'll be glad to help you make your home warmer and more comfortable this winter...while you're saving energy.

Flicks Add Reel Life to Midway

By John Currie

Since September, 1970, residents of the Twin Cities have had a unique opportunity to sample and discover an education few others have. Now in its ninth year, Film in the Cities continues to offer the most comprehensive study in the art of cinema found in Minnesota.

Begun as an alternative education program working with exceptional children in the Minneapolis and St. Paul Public Schools, Film in the Cities offered courses in filmmaking and photography. Students responded enthusiastically to the challenge of creating images of themselves and their world.

In 1975, the school was threatened by the financial crisis that faced the urban school systems. Through the assistance of the Bush and Dayton Hudson corporations and the National Endowment for the Arts, it was able to continue, expand and redefine its role.

Sheryl Mousley, a SAP resident and the manager of the Media Resource Center, is proud of the expansion. "We are primarily an educational vehicle. Our main program is a two-year Associate Degree in filmmaking. Classes are conducted here at 2388 University and accredited through Inver Hills Community College. Our main goal is to teach filmmaking to teach awareness of the arts, to teach awareness of film history.

Accredited classes in photography and a community extension program provide education and production assistance to organizations serving low-income people. The Center runs a print shop, sponsors visiting film artists, has an archive of adolescent films, and rents studio and film storage space.

Steve Larson, assistant director, emphasizes the teaching program. "Education is the number one function of Film in the Cities. Our students have ranged in age from 14 to 75, so it's not just like any other school. We feel that the variety brings something special to our classes.

"The most important thing is that we have been able to keep our costs down. This is a public school, and someone who isn't rich or can't get financial aid can still come here."

The program is interested in receiving input from the community, and encourages all inquiries. The group feels that the continuing involvement of the public in its programs promises Film in the Cities further development, development which will make it an even greater contributor to the Twin Cities' cultural community.
