Flynn enters post with community orientation

By Jim Brogan

Thomas J. Flynn, recently appointed to the St. Paul City Council as an interim replacement for Bob Fletcher, is a believer in St. Paul’s community council system. For the past three years he has been active on the Merriam Park Council in District 13, serving for one year as chairman of its Issues and Legislation Committee, and more recently as council president. According to Molly O’Rourke, community organizer for Merriam Park, Flynn acquitted himself admirably in both offices, and was especially good at remaining neutral during public debates of controversial issues. He made sure, she says, that "everyone who came had an opportunity to speak."

"Tom never came on the community council to push any issues," O’Rourke said. "He was just concerned with making the community a nice place to live."

At the same time he attended to the concerns of residents in Merriam Park, however, Flynn also gave support to the business community. His last major project as council president was to oversee a large-scale community clean-up involving householders, Liberty State Bank, and the Selby-Snelling Business Association in a cooperative effort. O’Rourke estimates that at least 40 huge dumpsters were filled with refuse during that project and hauled away.

Flynn was born and raised in what is now Ward 4, the seventh in a family of eleven children. He met his wife, Diane, while a student at Gustavus Adolphus University in Spartanburg, Washington, where he received a law degree after completing a bachelor's degree in business administration.

He moved back to St. Paul to take a one-year position working for the Minnesota Supreme Court. The following year he began work as an attorney for Federal District Judge Edward Devitt, the man who administered the oath of Aug. 7, when Flynn was sworn in as a member of the St. Paul City Council.

Flynn considers the experience he gained working for Devitt as ideal training for a young lawyer. As an attorney to the judge he did research for the court, helped write opinions, observed trials, worked on motions and briefs and did litigation.

"Most lawyers don’t get that kind of experience coming out of law school,” Flynn pointed out, adding that it proves especially useful to someone like himself with an interest in trial law.

After two years with Devitt, Flynn took a position with the firm of Larkin, Hoffman, Daly and Lindgren, in Bloomington. There, he says, he has worked in a variety of areas, “primarily in trial law.” His firm has given him a leave of absence until November, when a replacement for Fletcher will be elected by the voters in Ward 4 for a full 2-year term. Flynn himself will not be a candidate.

He claims that working on the city council is not in line with how he imagined his career proceeding; rather, it is something that came up unexpectedly. Fletcher himself, familiar with Flynn through his work on the Merriam Park Community Council, suggested that he apply for the interim appointment. When other people also urged him to apply, he decided to go ahead.

Although Flynn could accurately be characterized as modest in his personal demeanor, or, he does not lack confidence in his abilities, and frankly believes himself to be a good man for the position. Four things, he says, argued in favor of his applying for the job. He likes them matter-of-factly: "One, I had a good grasp of community issues and problems. "Two, I believe my reputation is that I'm a thoughtful person with moderate views who can listen to all sides of an issue without taking sides. "Three, I think working on the council would be good for me. It would be a good learning experience in every sense. "And four, I thought I had something I could offer the city— in ability, training, and temperament. I thought I could do a good job."

As a self-described realist, Flynn knows that the political pressures will be greater in the city council chambers than they were in Merriam Park. "This is a political job," he says. "There is no question about it."

Asked whether he believes the unsavory aspects of political compromise may have contributed to Fletcher’s unexpected decision to resign, Flynn to 3

Regent approval clear way for controversial busway

By Kevin Reichard

The controversial University of Minnesota busway moved closer to reality as the Board of Regents approved $4.7 million in University funds Aug. 9 over the objections of area legislators and community organizers.

The money clears the way for the release of matching interstate substitution funds—$1.5 million worth—by the Metropolitan Council’s Transportation Advisory Board (TAB) at its September meeting.

The busway would connect the Minneapolis and St. Paul campuses with an exclusive-use, elevated roadway beside Burlington Northern’s main line. More than 2,000 new parking spots would be added through construction of two new parking lots and expand-
Major reconstruction design for the Ray- mond/Hampden intersection will be pre- sented for neighborhood review at the Sept. 12 meeting of District 12 Council. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the fellowship hall of St. Cecilia's Catholic Church, 2537 Bylles Place.

Traffic flow at the intersection can cur- rently best be described as chaotic be- cause of the wide-open design that con- fuses drivers both as to where to stop and where to turn. One Department of Public Works employee, who asked not to be named, said: "It's the intersection I know in St. Paul where there is a stop sign on the left side of the street and a yield sign on the right. Both of them are for traffic going in the same direction!"

Proposed design would channel traf- fic flow down Raymond from its pre-现有ly into Hampden Avenue. Vehi- cles wanting to continue down Raymond would have to stop before making a right turn. Design of islands in the intersection would help to direct traffic into the proper lane.

One-way traffic around Hampden Park has also been mentioned as a way to help solve some of the turning and sight prob- lems at Raymond/Hampden. Residents will be asked their opinions on having vehicles drive one-way toward Minnie Ray as well as Raymond along Hampden and go in the opposite direction from Marcel down Barley to Raymond.

Funding for the reconstruction work was originally approved in the 1984-85 City Capital Improvement Budget. It would have included work at Long/Bay- less/Raymond to improve that intersec- tion. The Department of Public Works asked for the project to be removed and resubmitted for 1986-87 funding to co- ordinate with the rehabilitation of the Ray- mond Avenue bridge.

District 12 Council adamantly opposed the removal of the grower's license, even though it was only intended to serve the best interest of the district for a number of years and had been approved for funding through the regular CIB process.

A compromise was reached that cut back the extent of the project to only the Raymond/Hampden intersection. This cut the cost of the work from the original $160,000 to $80,000 and allowed it to be funded from surplus contingency funds in 1985.

Representatives from the Department of Public Works have been asked to explain the proposed designs. Resi- dents with an interest in the project are encouraged to attend at 7:00 p.m. and the best opportunity for influencing the outcome of the design.

The official EPA hearing record on Worum Chemical's request for a hazardous waste storage permit will remain open until Oct. 4. Environmental Protection Agency officials granted the request from the Hazardous Waste Site A Monitoring Com- mittee and District 12 Council at the pub- lic hearing in Murray Junior High School on Aug. 26.

Eight people including two persons from the District 12 Council and a City of St. Paul staff were the only ones present at the hearing in addition to EPA and Worum representatives.

None of the three people testifying at the hearing protested the granting of the permit, but all had questions. Lillian Dague, the EPA hearing officer, directed the residents that all questions would be ad- dressed in the examiner's report.

A complete administrative record in the case is available at the St. Anthony Park Library. The District 12 Office also has a complete permit application.

"We are not opposed to Worum stor- ing. They have been good neighbors," said Alton Pouer-El, chair of the Monitoring Committee and a member of the District 12 Council. He did question the amount of waste, 300 barrels, that can be stored on the site and asked that it be reduced by half. He also expressed frus- tration that announcement of the hearing arrived too late for inclusion in the Augsburg Bugle so that the neighborhood could be better informed.

Sara Barel, graduate student in genetics living in North St. Anthony, asked, if any PCB's, solvents, chloroform, phenols, or residual radioactive wastes contained in solvents were included in the wastes Worum stores for its customers. At the meeting the Worum official assured her that none of the products are included. The company filed for the permit to allow it to store used solvents and other products it receives back from its customers and its own operations. The waste material is then sent away for recycling or disposal. No material will be processed at the Kanada plant.

Richard Perssont, solid waste manager for the St. Paul Department of Public Works, asked if the 300 barrels men- tioned was an average or maximum num- ber. He also wanted to know type of train- ing given to employees handling hazardous waste and the arrangements in place to work with local officials in case of disaster.

District 12 residents interested in en- tering comments into the Federal hearing record are urged to review the file at the library. Letters must arrive at the EPA office in Chicago by Oct. 4.

The District 12 Physical Committee reviewed the Worum application in its August meeting. Residents with com- ments or questions for the Council can attend the Physical Committee meeting on Sept. 6 in the District 12 Office or the regular Council meeting on Sept. 12.

All three of these meetings the Council will be reviewing a set of proposed ordi- nances on hazardous waste regulation that will go before the City Council in September. The ordinances resulted from efforts of the Hazardous Waste Site A Monitoring Com- mittee of representatives from District Councils 6, 11, 12, Merriam Park, and CONC.

Applying for new parking permits

Applications for new parking permits are in the mail to current permit holders in St. Anthony Park, according to Don Tuleh, chairman of the Department of Public Works. The permit applications must be installed on vehicles by Sept. 1.

Residents living within the boundaries of Como, Cleveland, and Hoyt Avenues who do not have permits can purchase them from the Public Works office at 899 N. Dale Street (near the Como and Dale intersection) or call the office on the sixth floor of City Hall Annex, 25 W. Fourth St.

Permits cost $40 per year and allow the vehicles to be parked on the street for 24 hours. Visitor permits are available for the same price.

Residents purchasing permits for the first time must bring with them proof of residence such as a driver's license, rent receipt, or letter from their landlords.

One-time parking permits for special events are available at the same office. Permits are only one-time permits and are available through the District 12 Office for greater conveni- ence. However, a change in this City ordi- nance is necessary before that will be possible.

Matters of trees and stumps

District 12 residents interested in either a stump removal program or having boule- vard trees replaced should call the office at 566-5159 at least 24 hours in advance.

A large number of elm trees are being cut this summer and the City no longer does stump removal on boulevards. Due to budget cuts, replanting of boulevard trees are now done on a 50/50 cost basis between the property owner and the City.

Other District Councils have sponsored removal programs for stumps on both public and private property. Because such efforts are a great deal of time and effort, the District 12 Council would like to have some indication of neighborhood interest in this undertaking.

Residents willing to donate $70 for a planted, 2½ inch balled and burlapped tree, $17 for a balled tree, or check payable to the District 12 Tree Fund. Trees ordered now will be planted in spring and fall of 1989.
Summer camp meant for Dahlins
By Teri Hedberg
Summer camp usually means swimming, hiking, mosquitoes and frolicking in the woods. Not so for Judy Dahlin.
This year summer camp for Dahlin meant a week's stay at the University of Wisconsin-Madison to study knitting. That shouldn't be a great surprise, as Dahlin is the owner of Dahlin's Yarn, Knitwear, Antiques at Milton Square.
Dahlin is the daughter of Elizabeth Zimmerman, a well-known knitter. This is the first year that Dahlin has attended the camp, although she has been a follower of Zimmermann's techniques for 20 years.
The daily sessions at the camp consisted of demonstrations of Zimmermann's techniques and question and answer sessions dealing with the participants' own knitting projects.
These sessions allowed participants to collaborate with each other, share new ideas and solve problems.
Dahlin is considered an advanced knitter, and for her according to Walden, didn't think much of the central delivery system. "We received a very negative response," he said.
"As a resident, the resident Romelyn Clarke was one resident who responded negatively to the central delivery system idea. "I think it would be impossible for many people to have to get out and go up and down steps in icy times," he said.
According to Walden, Park residents need not worry about that possibility. He said that no change in the mail delivery system for St. Anthony Park was planned. "We don't want to scare people. We will never change existing delivery nor do we intend to," he said.
Walden said that he thought most people didn't know what the central delivery system was. The central delivery system, now mandatory in most new housing developments, assigns curbside boxes in clusters of eight to twelve per delivery unit. Mail delivery is quicker and more economical for the Post Office to accomplish with the central delivery system, according to Walden, because mail can be delivered directly to the boxes from postal vehicles.
"It would cut down our delivery time by two-thirds," he said.
Postal union representatives, attending their national convention, were unavailable for their reaction or the reaction of the mail carriers to the inquiry letter or to the growing use of central delivery systems for distribution of the mail.
Flynn from 1 Flynn preferred not to speculate. "Bob Fletcher was a real hard worker," he said. "Maybe he expected too much too fast. In some instances you've got to be ready to compromise in order to be practical." "It was a tough job," he explained. "You've got to keep your constituents happy; you've got to keep your people happy; you've got to keep business and your neighbors happy.
To help him navigate through these diverse, and often conflicting interests, Flynn intends to rely on help from the county departments. "I think the county departments, if run properly, are the best system in the country," he said.
They can be abused, he con- ceded, especially if single-issue partisans seize control of them. "But if they're a good cross section, if one viewpoint doesn't dominate," he said, "they are excellent sounding boards, and an excellent catalyst for improvements." To an extent, Flynn expects the issues facing him on the City Council to resemble those he confronted in District 15. A typical issue at the community level would be when a business wants to move in to a neighborhood. "Business and neighborhood hosts best together," he said. "There's always a conflict. It's a delicate balance." Flynn noted that Mayor Lathi- mer is engaged with this problem constantly, and believes that the mayor's approach to it is similar to his own.
There is a balance to be achieved between revitalizing business and maintaining the good character of our neighbor- hoods," he explained. "Latimer tries to promote business and still keep our city a good place to live. That's kind of where I am.
As to the future, specifically the possibility of running for public office, Flynn displays the skill of a good politician by leaving the door open, if only a little. "I have no present political aspirations," is how he put it.

No ‘good faith’ in University busway discussions

"Good faith" is a term that is used repeatedly when opponents of the University of Minnesota Intercounty Busway discuss the University's dealings with St. Anthony and Falcon Heights. They see the "U" skeptic of the "good faith" in the negotiations with the neighboring considerations into account.

Their claim is valid, and action should be taken at some level to force the University into negotiation with the busway. The University first appeared as a major issue four years ago, when the University asked District 12 and the St. Paul City Council to approve a plan that was financing the busway along Kasota Avenue, without mention of expanding parking lots or elevated tracks. (The University didn't even have the courtesy to consult Falcon Heights. The scope was changed by expanding parking in Falcon Heights near the Fairgrounds and building a lot next to Highway 280.)

This was not the plan the neighborhoods and the City Council agreed to, of course, and support was withdrawn by District 12 two months ago. In addition, Councilman Thomas Flynn has introduced a resolution that would withdraw City Council support. Of course, the University does not need approval from District 12, St. Paul or Falcon Heights to go ahead with the project in legal terms. But this is where we get into good faith again.

Last month 'U' officials pressed the Board of Regents into allocating over $4 million to the project, which cleared the way for TAB approval of the federal money. This was just the latest instance where the University did not approach good faith in the neighborhoods in good faith. Specifically:

- The University has maintained that preluminary planning has been done with the cooperation of Burlington Northern. The busway would be built along BN's main line in St. Paul, and obviously a busway could affect safety standards along the line. In a few instances the "U" threw out alternatives sug-posed by local citizens because of BN's alleged wishes.

- However, a check by the Bugle revealed that BN has not been involved in the planning of the busway for over a year, and the BN employee who worked on the project has since retired. So somewhere the communications between the "U", the Minnesota Department of Transportation and BN were screwed up, to the point of being criminally negligent.

Eating no topic for Dist. 12

It warms my heart to discover that the District 12 Council is surveying the community to elicit responses as to community food habits. With a restaurant of the quality of the Muffuletta, a bakery on the order of Sherman's, and a community in which homes, on the average, sell for $500.00, I hardly imagine that our eating habits are as abysmal as this. I would rather be polled with regards to the 19-unit aluminumium project which is being built in my back yard, or the traffic on Luther Place with the additional housing, Murray Jr. High, Luthean seminary, Anthony Park Lutheran Church. I would rather be asked why site reviews for major building projects are passed without a blink of the eye by the council. Perhaps residents would rather be polled about the District Council's views on future building projects or the dwindling hours of our community library or Federal renewal projects, or access for the handicapped. These are issues the District Council would attend to. I'll manage my diet.

Teach peace

About three years ago I was feeling a sense of hopelessness, fear and powerlessness in the face of the nuclear arms race. Having three little ones, and now four, I was so concerned that they would have a world to grow up in and enjoy. I joined, along with my husband, a peace fellowship group, took classes in parenting for peace and justice, went to talks, films and conventions on peace making, wrote letters to policy makers and editors. This process was helpful in moving from reacting to acting, with hope and inner peace and power. Along with resisting what I saw as destructive, I began to focus on what I like about the world and how to help peace happen. As a teacher this took the form of peace education, to help children and families gain tools to solve problems nonviolently out of a sense of love and trust, not fear and hate.

I've developed a curriculum called "Little Friends for Peace" for preschool up to fourth grade. I have resources for fifth through eighth grade, and would like to share these with parents, teachers and children.

Little Friends for Peace includes:
1. get to know some peace makers,
2. play new games—cooperative, not competitive,
3. learn problem-solving skills,
4. be aware of self and others as positive, gifted people,
5. appreciate other cultures.

Interested people may call me at 644-8144.

Dr. Bill Schrandler has been transferred to St. Anthony Park Elementary from East Consolidated. One of his first projects will be supervising the accreditation process with the North Central Association, having had that experience at East. Enrollment at the grade school is expected to be close to 400. School hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 3:40 p.m. Kindergarten classes will begin on Sept. 6, after registration the two days prior by appointment. Parents who have not been contacted about appointments should please make the arrangements.

Former St. Anthony Park Principal Dr. Charles Welden is now assistant to the director of elementary education for the district. He will work with Ray Firthait on coordinating desegregation in the grade schools of St. Paul. At Murray Magnet Junior High, new Principal John McNamara expects about 525 students in addition to the 73 in the Program for Social Development housed in the lower level of the building. Seventh-graders and other new students are to report to the auditorium. Murray Magnet School begins at 7:55 a.m. and ends at 2:25 p.m.

Four new teachers will be assigned to Murray, and Counselor Diana Towill will transfer from Highland Park to replace Neil Kaiser, who is on sabattical. Nancy Niessen, a former Murray teacher in the Challenge Program, has been named assistant principal at Highland Junior-Senior High. Larry Gallatin will stay on as assistant principal. Murray McNamara comes to Murray after two years at Central High School. Prior to that, he spent 24 years at Washington High School, which is now a junior high. He taught social studies, coached athletics and eventually became principal. In addition, he began a senior citizens' center and a clinic at the school. The father of seven and the grandfather of five, he heads an active family, all of whom live in St. Paul.

Keith Bergstrom, principal at Murray for the past two-and-a-half years, is now at Como Park Senior High. He will know many of the ninth-graders there who made the move with him. Assistant principals Anna Marie Erbes and Dean Sausele will remain at Como.

Approximately 1,500 students are expected to report to Como at 7:50 a.m. on Sept. 4. School closes at 2:20 p.m. New students will be encouraged to get involved in extracurricular activities and athletics. Individual pictures for the yearbook, The Puma, will be taken Sept. 19.

Vern Kenyon, former principal of Como and before that at Murray, will be "principal on special assignment" at the district office, where he will assist Dr. David Frye, director of secondary education. Kenyon will work on student transfers between buildings.

New principal at Central Senior High is Don Assewem, formerly at Harding. Aussen is a native of St. Anthony Park and a Murray graduate.

Registration for Community Education starts Sept. 4 and runs through Sept. 11. The two-day period is from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the school. Classes begin the week of Sept. 17, and a catalog of class listings will be mailed to every home.

The Extended Day Program for children of working parents begins Sept. 4. Children are cared for during non-school hours from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the school. For registration or more information, contact Julie Erlich or Bernice Lancette at 645-2456.

Two welcoming celebrations are planned for teachers by parents at Murray Magnet Junior High and Como Senior High. A brunch will be held in the commons area at Como Senior High at 8 a.m. on Aug. 30. Later that same day a brown bag lunch will take place in the cafeteria at Murray Magnet Junior High. Parents are asked to bring a lunch; coffee will be provided. Parents and community people are invited to both events.

St. Anthony Park Association Officers 1984-85
President - Nancy Haley; 2nd Vice-President, Mary Walrath, Verna Murphy; Secretary, Marilyn Treff; Treasurer, Dale Tenemalm; Directors - Mary Warspecha, Tim Wallinga, Verna Murphy; Committee Chairs: Anderson, Peterson, Arrangements, Bob Beck, Commercial, Nancy Wagner; Community Information, Catherine Frye; Education, Gail Dennis, Historical, Gerald Quady, July 1st, Charlie Tommerson; Membership, Andy Klima; Program, Nancy Brennan; Public Affairs, Dave Allen.

St. Anthony Park resident Kate Bulger will present a recital Sept. 15, 7 p.m., at St. Anthony Park Community Church, Como and Luther Place. The recital will feature selections from Puccini, 13. Bach, Sondheim, Bizet and Gilbert and Sullivan. There is no admission charge.

Docent training
The Como Zoo Docents will start their annual training classes with an orientation and registration night on Sept. 4 at 7 p.m. in the New Cat Exhibit at Como Zoo. Como Zoo Docents are a volunteer, educational and community service organization comprised of people of all ages and women throughout the metropolitan area. Docents give tours of the zoo educational outreach programs to interested groups.

You must be age 16 or older to take the training classes, which are being held through Nov. 20 on Tuesday evenings. There is a cost of $20, which covers training materials and a membership.

For more information call Sue Blackbird (656-0340) or Violanta Cunemann (646-0009).

Library free delivery
If you like to read but are unable to travel to the St. Anthony Park Branch Library because of illness or disability, the St. Paul Public Library's homebound program can help. In this program, homebound people are paired with volunteers who deliver and pick up library materials every three weeks. The service is free, and all of the lending materials at the library are available to homebound customers.

For more information about this service, or if you would like to be a homebound volunteer, call George Lauch at 292-6939.

Townhouses planned for Baker Court
By Robin Nelson
Thanks to the Minneapolis/St. Paul Housing Fund, St. Anthony Park is going to have a few new townhouses. By November 1, seven new townhouses will be built at the Baker Square West housing location on Raymond Avenue. This is the first of a two phase development project. The first phase features a two-bedroom townhouse with a potential for a third bedroom on the lower level. The price has been set at $77,500 with a mortgage rate at 9% percent. Four of the units have already been spoken for.

Prime-Time Education

Busway from 1

University officials overestimated the importance of immediate approval. "The TAB had set a tentative vice- president for physical planning, told the Regents that the University was under pressure from the TAB to make a commitment for matching local funds since the legislature had failed to come through with the funds in the past session." "The TAB set as a formality, sometime in the past year, inquiring about the source and commitment of matching funds," said Hewitt. "We had indicated that the University would commit to internal sources. "I want to emphasize that the TAB had not committed to definite sources."

right then and there about the funding," said Munson, who testified at the meeting. Minneapolis attorney David Greenwalt, TAB chair since 1977, said that the University had to decide if they wanted to go ahead with the project, since there was a deadline of 1986 for using the federal money. "The question was if the University was going to do what it said it would all along," he said. "We told them they couldn't hold out much longer." Under pressure from St. Paul Mayor George Latimer, four conditions were added to plans for the busway: 1. To initiate a feasibility study of alternatives such as trolley buses and all-electric dual-mode buses. 2. To reduce the capacity of the proposed Kwata park and ride lot by as much as 25 percent, and minimize the impact of that area on landscaping. 3. To provide landscaping and noise walls to reduce the visual and noise impact of the busway in the Langford Park area. 4. To establish a Design Review Committee made up of residents and St. Paul city staff members to monitor the project.

According to Pegge Rei-"chert of the City Planning and Economic Development office, the mayor's list of conditions grew out of discussions with neighborhood residents living near the busway. "I think the establishment of these conditions was a positive sign," said Munson. "It was the resistance that we noted the opposition to the project."

Graven said the TAB had no objections to satisfying the conditions. But he also warned that the conditions might be an effort to kill the project. "If they were to say to me, 'Well, you haven't looked at light rail transit,' I would say to them, 'You're a phony.'" he said. "People like that are just trying to kill the project and are working in an uncostructive way."

He added that it was too late in the process for more studies, that planning had advanced too far. Munson says the opposition is trying to "Busway to 11"

Next step for busway is TAB approval

By Kevin Reichard

The Regent decision cleared the way for the release of federal funds to construct the busway. However, release of that money is not certain. The TAB has been a priority of the Transportation Advisory Board (TAB) for many years and the TAB Chairman David Greenwalt. The TAB enjoys a unique role in regional government, according to Graven. As a part of the Metropolitan Council, the TAB's policy recommendations to the full council on all transit issues. But in one specific area, the TAB's recommendations—the TAB cannot be overridden by the Met Council. The TAB is made up of 30 representatives from the metro area, including 11 elected officials (including St. Paul City Council member Jim Schiebel), as well as the chair of the subcommittee that has a representative. It is, according to Graven, intended to be the "collective transit voice." However, because of some quirks in the federal legislation establishing the interstate substation program, the TAB is the metropolitan agency in charge of these funds. The law allows states to trade in freeway allocations and use the money for other transportation matters. Since Minnesota decided not to build proposed Interstate 555, as proposed by the federal government, that money was at the discretion of the TAB. This is because the law stipulates that the money be distributed through a regional board made up of elected officials. Since Metropolitan Council members are appointed by the governor, the TAB was designated as the regional agency in charge of disbursement.

Graven said that the TAB has until 1986 to disburse the funds, and that it was imperative for the University to make a commitment.

The TAB's main concern is to spend the public's money on a worthwhile projects," said Graven. "And we've always felt that the transitway was a worthy project." This is because it would be the first exclusive busway in the Twin Cities, and could set a precedent for similar projects in the region.

Graven seemed a bit surprised that there was opposition to the project. "It's not the first time people have disagreed with the University," he said. "You can't do a project for the general good without affecting a few people."

Some facts about the University transitway:

By Kevin Reichard

Some facts about the proposed University of Minnesota busway:

- The total cost will be $18.2 million: $4.7 million from the University, and $13.5 million in federal and interstate substitution funds.
- The University's part of the total $18.2 will be financed by the University's parking reserve fund ($5 million) and borrowing bonds.
- The transitway will start at the University of Minneapolis St. Paul Campus and end up near Williams Arena in Minneapolis.
- Current plans do not call for any sound barriers along the transitway.
- An expansion of current lots at the Fairgrounds and construction of new ones will increase possible parking for University students by 2,000.
- Two lots toward Minneapolis, there is only one spot where emergency vehicles have access to the busway in case of an accident. However, this access is currently situated as coming from the proposed Kwata route, not the current street.
- The busway will run alongside Burlington Northern's main line through most of St. Anthony Park. It is estimated that it will cost $10 million just to acquire this right-of-way from BN.
- It is expected that the same number of busses running now between campuses of new ones will increase possible parking for University students by 2,000.
- Travel time between campuses would be cut from 16 minutes to 18.
- Classes at the University run every three months.
- Students would have to pay about $70 to park in this "bus lane" of the bus ride would be free.

"They keep telling us they can't do this or that, but when pressed they won't tell us why," she said. "I haven't felt that we have been dealt with by the University in good faith."

According to Reichert, the University is still working from preliminary plans and the alignment of the route must be set before final plans can be presented.

She also said that the city was under the impression that the University has been working all along on the design with the Minnesota Department of Transportation (MnDOT) and Burlington Northern.

However, a spokesman for MnDOT said that no one from MnDOT had approached IN in over a year about the transitway, a fact confirmed by Dick Luhse of MnDOT. Inc. in fact, the employee handling the case then for IN had since retired.

Because of situations like this, Munson maintains that the University has not been negotiating in good faith and that the conditions set by Lutiner are too vague to be effective. "I guess we're not too trusting anymore."

Wynia also pointed out some broader implications for the University with the regents' decision.

The University was planning to fund the project with money obtained from the Legislature last session, but never specified the project in a proposal. Instead, the money would have come from a capital request fund, to which Wynia added a rider specifically prohibiting the University from using that money for a busway.

She hinted that the issue could affect University Legislature relationships in the future. Sen. Neil Dieterich's written testimony to the Regents was more direct.

After pointing out that the Legislature had specifically prohibited the use of state money for a busway, and that using federal funds for improving parking would be a major policy shift, since parking is usually supported by user fees, he concluded with:

"I raise the foregoing issues not only to support the position of my constituents, but from a genuine concern that the proposed action will be seen by many of my colleagues as a somewhat high-handed action on the part of the University."

I would have to see this decision made as it is during the recess of the Legislature, and from the priorities of the University in other areas which I consider to be more important."

In addition, the St. Paul City Council is considering a withdrawal of support for the project, which was granted in 1981.

Councilman Tom Flynn (4th Ward), after meeting with Munson and District 12 officials his first day on the job, introduced the measure.

"I'm a little bothered about the cost, and I'm not sure that it justifies the benefits," he said.

Graven was unsure how the City Council action would affect the TAB decision in September.
Voters in Falcon Heights, Lauderdale, St. Anthony Park and Energy Park will have the chance to exercise a constitutional right in the Sept. 11 primary. A party primary will take place among preferences for U.S. Senator, U.S. Representative, and State Representative. In addition, there will be non-partisan listings for Ramsey County Municipal Court Judge, while St. Paul's Ward 4 voters will be asked to whittle down a list of candidates competing for the seat vacated by Robert Fletcher. Here’s a rundown of candidates on the Sept. 11 ballot in each category:

State Representative: In the 6th District, Brian "K" KG Grant, Mary Jane Rachm.

District 66B: Greg Steinberg, Bruce Vento (endorsed, incumbent) and Daniel Volk.

State Representative: In the 6th District, Brian "K" KG Grant, Mary Jane Rachm.

In addition, candidates—Dietrich and Rask—are from St. Anthony Park (see sidebar). Registered voters should receive postcards with information on polling places and voting places. Unregistered voters can register for the day of the election. St. Anthony Park has the distinction of being the home of the DFL nominee and the sole IR running in the race. Here’s a look at each of them.

IR Rask brings varied experience to council race

By Kevin Reichard

Kelly Rask, 756 N. Raymond, 53, may come to the election with the most experience in national politics. He had the opportunity to work on President Ronald Reagan’s transition team in 1980 and 1981 in the area of foreign aid after graduating from Macalester College.

"I was looking for the opportunity," he said. "My political science professor knew the man who was heading the transition team and recommended me. A few days later I got a phone call, asking me to come to Washington."

After returning to Minnesota, Rask attended the University of Minnesota Law School and was recently admitted to the bar. He is currently working as supervisor of guards at the Griggs-Midway Building.

He has also been active in local politics, serving as vice chairman of the District 66B IR organization, and was active in Fletcher’s last campaign. He is also the only IR running for Fletcher’s seat, and was endorsed by city-independent Republicans Aug. 25. As a potential councilman, Rask said the most important issues facing Ward 4 and St. Anthony Park in particular are in the University of Minnesota intercampus busway, liquor licensing and liquor patrol limits and upgrading St. Paul’s sewage treatment system.

"These are all very tough issues," he said. "The busway is going to offend some people no matter what happens, and I don’t think the city can end the patrol limits without an uprising."

"But upgrading the sewer system may be a Pandora’s Box. It’s going to cost $5.7 million to meet the guidelines negotiated by the Peppich administration. It hasn’t been said whether that money will come from the hides of St. Paul taxpayers or not."

(As the threat of a federal law may by Wisconsin, Gov. Rudy Perpich negotiated an agreement with Wisconsin Gov. Tony Earl that will curtail the use of the Mississippi River as a dumping ground for Twin Cities sewage, which means local municipalities will have to upgrade their processing systems.

In addition, he echoed two stands held by Fletcher: distrust of the political arm of the City Council and the lack of endorsement of Mayor George Latimer.

"We could do far worse than George Latimer," he said. "But he runs the risk of shrinking the tax base and everything it depends on in downtown development."

"And that extends to the Port Authority. What they’re doing is encouraging private profit with public risk, which is certainly something to look into."

Rask has lived at his present address for four years. He is single.

DFL'er Dieterich stresses local participation

By Nancy Haley

Janet Dieterich, 43, of 2171 Knapp St., is the DFL endorsed candidate for the City Council seat formerly held by Bob Fischer who resigned in mid-July.

Surprised by the sudden resignation of Fletcher, Dieterich sought endorsement from DFLers in St. Paul's 4th Ward when they met on July 30. She defeated the four other candidates including JoAnn Enos, who ran unsuccessfully against Fletcher last year. St. Paul attorney Mark Vandalst, Hamline University student William W. Roach, and Ron Sadowski of Carroll Ave.

"I decided to run because I want to help shape what the future of this city is going to look like," said Dieterich, a party activist since the 60s when she became involved in politics as a student at the University of Minnesota.

"I care about St. Paul and I want to make sure that the city's focus is not just on the downtown area but also on our area of the city as well as other neighborhoods," said Dieterich, a resident of St. Anthony Park since 1965, where she lives with her husband, State Senator Neil Dieterich and their two children. "I think that the future of St. Paul really lies in the strength of our neighborhoods."

Dieterich began her political activism in the League of Women Voters in the late 60s and has continued her involvement in political and civic affairs throughout the years. She was founder of the Minnesota Women's Political Caucus and a long time DFL party worker. She has helped manage her husband's five campaigns for state Senator and served as associate chair of the 4th Congressional District DFL.

For the last six years Dieterich has been on the Metropolitan Health Board. She was on one of the first boards of directors of the Minnesota Children's Lobby and the Ramsey County Child Care Council.

Dieterich's community neighborhood activities include Meals on Wheels, Langford Park Booster's Club and the St. Anthony Park Association.

If elected, Dieterich would focus on two major areas the financial health of the city, and more emphasis on the neighborhoods.

"In the area of financing city government, I'm concerned that we use our development tools such as tax increment financing very judiciously," said Dieterich, who is concerned about the Port Authority's pull out of the World Trade Center, for example.

"Financially, one of the things we're going to have to concern ourselves with in the future is the clean up of the Mississippi River and the current tax burden that that's going to inflict on the residents of this city."

"The program I have for controlling taxes is that we have to look at our city services and make sure they're just as effi-

Woron applies for permit

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) Region V, is hereby giving notice of its intent to issue a Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) permit for Woron Chemical Company to store hazardous waste at 2130 Kaota Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota, in accordance with Section 7004 of the RCRA and 40 CFR Section 124.11. Woron Chemical has been legally storing hazardous wastes under "Interim status," as provided for in Section 3001(c) of RCRA. The U.S. EPA is inviting public comments on the application and on the terms and conditions of the proposed draft permit.

Woron Chemical is a wholesaler of industrial solvents, ketones, alcohols, and allied products. Wastes are accumulated from the cleaning of trucks and drums. Off-site wastes are received from customers to whom products are supplied. This permit would authorize Woron Chemical to store 16,500 gallons of spent industrial solvents, ketones, alcohols, and allied products in containers.

The Woron Chemical application, U.S. EPA's draft permit, and the Statement of Basis are available for public inspection and copying at the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, 2245 Como Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota (contact Barbara McGowan at 612/292-6655). These materials and other supporting documents are also available in the administrative record at the U.S. EPA, Region V Waste Management Branch, 250 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois 60604 from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays (contact Barbara Russell at 312/866-0940).

Comments on the application and draft permit will be accepted by U.S. EPA during the Public Comment Period, which commenced on July 20, 1984 and ends on September 4, 1984. All comments must be postmarked by September 4, 1984. Persons wishing to present comments at the public hearing may preregister with the U.S. EPA beginning on July 20, 1984. Comments should be sent to Barbara Russell, U.S. EPA, Region V, 230 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois 60604, 5th Floor.

After the close of the public comment period, September 4, 1984, U.S. EPA will evaluate all comments received before issuing a final permit decision. Notification of the final permit decision will be provided to each person who submitted written comments, or requested notice of the decision. Under 40 CFR Section 124.17, U.S. EPA will respond to all significant comments on the draft permit, specify which provisions of the permit were changed and indicate whether additional documents have been included in the administrative record.

The U.S. EPA response regarding a decision to issue or deny a permit will include a reference to the procedures for appealing the decision (40 CFR Section 124.19). U.S. EPA's procedures for public comment and hearings are found in 40 CFR Sections 124.11 through 124.13.
IN MINNESOTA, YOUR CAR DESERVES A ROOF OVER ITS HEAD, TOO.

Up here in the north country, winter becomes a continuous battle against the elements. So you’ve probably invested a lot of money into keeping your home warm and energy efficient. But consider your poor car. Left out on its own, night after night, to face the snow and sub-zero temperatures. And every morning, you’re faced with another frozen windshield to scrape.

With an easy payment home improvement loan from the First Banks, you could build a garage for your car. And a new garage makes a lot of sense. It will prolong the life of your car. Increase the value of your home. And save you the anxiety of whether your car will start in the morning.

Stop in your First Bank today to arrange an easy payment home improvement loan. It’s the easiest way to keep your car—and your finances—out of the deep freeze.
Governor Rudy Perpich appointed St. Anthony Park resident Ted Bowman to the Governor's Council on Families and Children.

The 15-member council will advise the Governor on matters of public policy that affect Minnesota families. The group continues efforts of the Governor's Task Force on Families, which Perpich established in 1977, to examine state programs and policies which might strengthen family lifestyles.

St. Anthony Park Bank announced the addition of a new officer to the bank's lending department. Craig W. Shirm joined the bank as senior mortgage loan officer. Mr. Shirm is a native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where he graduated from Coe College with a bachelor's degree in accounting.

Steven Ward of St. Anthony Park has been accepted for admission to Hamline University in St. Paul. The student will join other incoming students for New Student Days, September 3-5.

St. Anthony Park resident Georgette Pfannkuch will be hosting a program on KFAL-FM (90.3) called Vive La Chanson. She will play chansons from France and Canada and announce French events in the Twin Cities. It will be broadcast every other Tuesday from 9-11 a.m.

Ruth C. Wirt, St. Anthony Park, has been named to serve a three-year term on the Home Economics Alumni Society Board at the University of Minnesota College of Home Economics.

Linda Sorensen, a Falcon Heights resident, is listed in the 1985 edition of Outstanding Young Women in America. She is listed because of her work experience and community work, including environmental activities and work on the Minnesota Regional Environmental Education Council.

Charles S. Anderson, a St. Anthony Park resident, has been elected chairman of the Minnesota Private College Council's (MPC) board of directors effective July 1, 1984. He is president of Augsburg College in Minneapolis.

St. Anthony Park resident Glen Skovholth, director of federal governmental relations policy and program at Honeywell Inc., has accepted a volunteer position with the United Way of Minneapolis Area and will serve on the Government Relations Committee during 1984.

The committee works with federal, state and local governments to monitor changes in public funding, government regulations and public planning efforts.
