Victory House staff upheaval causes continuing turmoil

By Joel Schurke

Victory House is a board and lodging facility for chronic alcoholics. It is not a treatment center for chemical dependency and sobriety is not a requirement for residency.

Communicating these messages to the surrounding community of South St. Anthony Park is one continuing problem for Victory House. Caring for the 58 residents is another.

The hasty resignation of the executive director and turnover in Victory House staff have left the future of Victory House in a precarious situation. Lyle Tollefson, who helped found Victory House more than a decade ago, resigned as executive director under pressure from Ramsey County. Allegations of "grossly unethical" conduct behind him, Tollefson was reached recently by phone at home enjoying an afternoon matinee.

"It's a bad time [to talk] right now. Plus I'm not really out there any more," Tollefson said. Questioned about the timing of his departure Tollefson stated, "I'm 58 years old and I'm tired of running around with drunks and bureaucrats and people who complain about trying to solve a social problem."

Complaints abound. Victory House board and staff have, with limited success, been attempting to resolve a number of community complaints over the past few years. The lack of problem-solving success led a chemical dependency planning team of Ramsey County to recommend that the county stop referring eligible individuals to Victory House. The discontinuance of referrals to Victory House by the county has not been effected.

For the county the Victory House option is a money-saver. The $15.19 per diem paid by the county for residents they refer to Victory House is a bargain compared to the $85.00 per day cost of the county's detoxification program.

During Tollefson's tenure, Victory House established strong ties with Ramsey County—bonds that are not easily broken.

Tom Fashingbauer, director of Community Human Services Department for Ramsey County, described the county's relationship with Victory House in a letter to 4th Ward Councilmember Kiki Sonnen.

"Ramsey County Human Services annually negotiates a per diem rate for residents of this facility who are eligible for public assistance, usually General Assistance. Our department neither has a contractual arrangement with Victory House nor do we subsidize the facility....staff from the referring agencies have made on-site visits...and have expressed some

Rosehill Service a Lauderdale tradition

By Truman Olson

Gas at 18.9¢ per gallon, working from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week and friendly caring neighbors are a few of the things Art Peterson Sr. remembers from his almost 38 years of owning and operating Rose Hill Service, 2430 Larpenteur Ave. in Lauderdale.

One of the few owner-operated stations around, Rose Hill Service still pumps gas, and checks oil, fan belts, tires and washes windows all the time, not just when you drive up to a full service pump. They also have a mechanic on duty, something to be thankful for in these days when many stations seem more intent on selling bread than gas. Being small and privately owned makes things difficult at times. In 1951 the gas wars began and prices fell as low as 18.9 per gal. The gas wars continued until 1972. In 1954, Larpenteur Avenue was closed while Highway 280 and the bridges were being built.

"Business was slim," said Art,

Festivities bring summer smiles

By Mary Mergenthal

The weather says it's time to invite the neighbors to the back yard. The season says it's time to invite friends over to barbeque and play ball. The end of the school year makes it time for lots of family invitations for events of record. The weather and the season are clear reminders that it's time for yet another family invitation, one for family and friends of all ages who live in the area or who like to visit the area. That's because it's time for two special annual events which have been part of the St. Anthony Park neighborhood's June invitations for a number of years—the Arts and Crafts Fair on the library lawn and the St. Anthony Park Festival throughout the business area on Como Avenue.

Saturday, June 7, is the big day with entertainment, things for sale and visiting available throughout the day up and down the avenue. There'll be 80-100 artists selling their wares varying from sculpture to painting to Hmong handwork to pottery to basketry to stained glass and more. The artists at the Arts and Crafts Fair sponsored by the St. Anthony Park Library Association will fill the library lawn and spill over onto Carter Avenue near the library. Many have come before. They're looking forward to being back at a fair they describe as "friendly with a nice atmosphere." Some will be participating for the first time this year. They'll soon discover why so many artists describe the day as a happy one. The fair is 17 years old, one of the oldest art fairs in the Twin Cities. Even though last year the event was made more challenging by rain, the spirits of artists and organizers were hardly dampened. They're planning for sun and for a good time this year. They're counting on a big crowd of shoppers and watchers.

The Park Festival, which is in its 12th year, is sponsored by the St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals Association. It will include special sales by area merchants, sidewalk shops by area organizations and all-day entertainment at a stage on Carter Avenue on the other side of Como Avenue from the Arts and Crafts Fair. A complete listing of Festival entertainment is included in this issue. There will also be a huge attic sale in Milton Square.

The Saturday events promise to be great and grand with food and fun and new and old things to buy for all ages. But area residents and interested friends are invited to the festivities not just once but twice. On Friday evening, June 6, the fun on Como Avenue will begin with an ice cream social sponsored by the Northern Lights 4-H Club in the drive-in area of ParkBank. The event, which begins at 7 p.m., will feature the St. Anthony Park Community Band as well as

St. Paul Today and tomorrow

What kind of community can and should St. Paul strive to become in the next 15 years?

In a major effort to plan for and to respond to many societal changes that are affecting St. Paul, the planning commission is about to complete the initial step in collecting information. "St. Paul Today: A Statistical Profile of the City" and a series of planning district data profiles have provided basic demographic data about the city and its neighborhoods.

The next steps in the year-long process will include development of issue papers and sponsoring a community discussion of the issues covering lifestyle and population, the economy, disadvantaged populations, housing and neighborhoods, and organization resources—the role of public sector involvement.

Since the first of the year the District 12 Council has been reviewing and discussing the data contained in the profile of our district with the help of Marvin Bunnell, PED planner. The profile provides some basic data of interest to the community. Identified trends for District 12 show that population has declined at a slower rate than the rest of the city. There has been an increase of female heads of households and a loss of middle income families with children. The community has the highest level of high school and college educated population in the city and the lowest level of elementary and high school students attending private schools. The profile shows a loss of single family and duplex housing units and an increase in multiple dwelling units. District 12 has a lower unemployment rate and a higher female employment rate than the rest of the city. The data shows an increase in manager/administration occupations and a loss of occupations in labor, crafts and transportation. The crime rate is lower in District 12 than in the rest of the city and the rates of residential burglaries are dropping.

Copies of the profile are available in the District 12 office, the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, or from PED by calling 292-1577.

Free blood pressure check

To receive a free blood pressure check, stop by the District 12 table in front of ParkBank during the June Festival.

Block Nurse representatives will check blood pressure and also be available to explain the Block Nurse program and referral process for potential clients in the community.

People are urged to stop by the table on June 7 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. to pick up free literature about energy conservation and other neighborhood programs.

Plans showing the UMIT Busway, Kasota realignment, and the new Raymond Avenue bridge will be on display.

District Council members will also be present to answer questions about Council projects and operations.

Festival showmobile Donation made

The cost of renting the Showmobile unit from the city of St. Paul for use during the 1986 St. Anthony Park Festival has been donated by the Board of Directors of Group Health, Inc. The residents of District 12 extend a vote of appreciation to a good corporate neighbor which demonstrated its public spirit when the need was apparent.

Thanks to volunteers

The second annual spring elmwood survey held during the first two weeks of March resulted in 152 woodpiles being located throughout the city. City personnel have inspected the woodpiles and the city has notified the homeowners to remove all elmwood found.

This survey has been beneficial in terms of number of woodpiles located. Areas covered by volunteers have been surveyed more intensively than the Forestry Section could have done without help, and public awareness of how elm firewood contributes to the spread of Dutch Elm disease has been increased. Volunteers who participated in the survey from District 12 are: Bill Cecchi, Gail Dennis, Miriam Horneff, Diane Schmidt, Mark Hansen, Gerald McKay, Howard Mielke, Arnold Lindquist, and Jack Pearson.

Publications available

Citizens for Excellence in Education (CEE) is making available to the public a newly published Citizens Handbook to the St. Paul Public Elementary Schools. Free copies are available at the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, the St. Anthony Park Elementary School or by calling CEE at 293-3962.

To help older Americans avoid medical treatment difficulties and protect their rights to quality care, the American Association of Retired Persons has just published a booklet called "Knowing Your Rights." Copies of this booklet are now available at the District 12 office or you can pick one up at the Festival on June 7.

The District 12 Community Council is a group of 21 citizens elected to serve the District 12 area of St. Paul, including residents of north and south St. Anthony Park, commerce and industry. It is one of 17 citizen participation councils in the city.

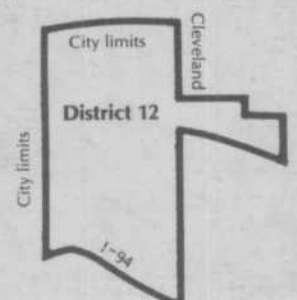

The council meets the second Wednesday of every month. All meetings are open to the public. Check for location.

Arts Forum holds last season concert

On June 8 at 7 p.m., the St. Anthony Park Arts Forum will present the final concert of its 1985-86 concert season. The concert is likely to delight music lovers of all ages. The Dolce Trio, Eau Claire, Wisconsin, will perform the music of Bach, Handel, Beethoven and the premiere of a new work by Randall Davidson composed especially for them. The trio consists of cellists Paula Kosower, Mark Kosower and cello professor Paul Kosower. Among other awards, the group received national recognition for their performance at the Second American Cello Congress.

Julie Himmelstrup, coordinator of the Music in the Park series of the St. Anthony Park Arts Forum, describes the upcoming concert as a bit of a "birthday bash" for her and her husband, Anders, because they have commissioned a work (through the Schubert Club) from Minnesota composer Davidson in honor of their summer birthdays. An earlier work of Davidson, "The Land Where One Never Dies," was commissioned by the Composers Commissioning Program and premiered in the St. Anthony Park Music Series in 1982. Davidson is part of the Minnesota Composers Forum.

The 1985-86 Music in the Park series is made possible, in part, by grants from the Northwest Area Foundation and from the Metropolitan Council/Regional Arts Council with funds appropriated by the Minnesota State Legislature.

The concert will be held at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2129 Commonwealth Ave.

Block nurse program praised

The St. Anthony Park Block Nurse program received an award from Governor Perpich May 14 at an open hearing on issues of aging at Martin Luther King Center in St. Paul. The award "commended and applauded" the program "in recognition of outstanding contribution to improving the quality of life of older Minnesotans."

Norwegian choir to sing in area

SKRUK, Sunnmore Kristeleg Ungdomskor, will sing a concert at the Chapel of the Incarnation in St. Anthony Park June 27 at 8 p.m. The chapel is located on the campus of Luther Northwestern Seminary at the corner of Fulham St. and Hendon Ave. The choir, composed of singers ages 18-35 years, is a popular concert hall and television group in Norway. Their American tour is assisted by Norsemen's Federation. They will arrive in St. Paul from a concert in New York and will leave this area for concerts in Houston, Texas, and New Orleans, Louisiana.

The choir's concert in St. Anthony Park is sponsored by St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church. Arranging for the American tour is a singer in the group, the Rev. Oystein Bjordal who is a pastor in the Church of Norway and was a recent resident of St. Anthony Park while doing graduate work at Luther Northwestern Seminary.

Rose named environmentalist of year

State Representative John Rose, IR-Roseville, was named Environmentalist of the Year by the North Star Chapter of the Sierra Club. He was lauded for his leadership in the field and for three major pieces of legislation he sponsored (the Solid Waste Management Bill in 1985, and both the Hazardous Waste Management Bill and the Reinvest in Minnesota Bill in 1986). Sierra Club representatives cited his ongoing efforts to direct public policy toward responsible management of the environment as a major factor in his selection.

Marty opens campaign for senate seat

John Marty, DFL candidate for the District 63 senate seat, has opened his campaign with a pledge to run a positive, issue-oriented race. Marty, an administrator at the Lutheran Brotherhood Foundation, served the Minnesota House of Representatives for over four years as a research consultant and committee administrator of the Criminal Justice Committee.

Marty received the DFL party endorsement over two other contenders. District 63 includes portions of St. Paul and Roseville, as well as all of Falcon Heights, Lauderdale and St. Anthony. "I look forward to hearing concerns and exchanging ideas with the voters in our communities," he said.

Christenson announces candidacy for senate

Michael D. Christensen, St. Anthony Park, has announced his candidacy for the District 63 senate seat. He is currently an attorney in Minneapolis.

His past work experience includes serving as an aide to St. Paul Mayor George Latimer. He was instrumental in establishing the Minnesota Justice Foundation, a nonprofit legal foundation which offers services to public interest and legal aid organizations. "I have talked to many community leaders and have been impressed with their knowledge of the issues and commitment to making government work in Minnesota," he said. "I welcome the opportunity to participate in that progress."

Fletcher receives I-R endorsement in District 63

Bob Fletcher received endorsement for the District 63 senate seat by the I-R convention this spring. Fletcher, a St. Paul police sergeant and two-term City Council member, said he would wage another positive "grass roots" campaign, emphasizing the importance of citizen participation in government and his accomplishments while in office.

I-94 to be resurfaced

Local commuters may find weekday travel uninterrupted this summer but on weekends they can expect delays on I-94 between the Mississippi River and Snelling Ave. The $2.4 million resurfacing project will affect all lanes as the road is prepared to serve the public adequately until it is rebuilt in 1989.

Neighbors

The Alliance Francaise of the Twin Cities held a luncheon at the Minnesota Club May 9 to honor St. Anthony Park resident Marian Raup. Recognition was given to her for the many years of service which she had given to the Alliance Francaise (French Alliance) fostering cultural interchange between the French and Americans and developing a French Language School. The Alliance is located in Baker Court in South St. Anthony Park.

Dr. Melva Lind, past president of the Alliance Francaise (left) and Anne Hoffman, French Cultural Attache (center) joined in honoring Park resident Marian Raup, past vice president for education of the Alliance Francaise.

Melissa Cutler of Lauderdale received the Girl Scout Silver Award, the organization's highest award. Cutler's volunteer contributions include being an interpretive volunteer at Gibb's Farm, a swim aide at Fairview Community Center, a gardener at St. Anthony Park Foods Co-op, a math tutor and a KTCA membership drive pledge volunteer. Cutler is a member of St. Anthony Park Girl Scout Troop 502. Carol Upham of St. Anthony Park is her troop leader.

Nikki McCormick, St. Anthony Park, was one of six semi-finalists in the youth category of Cablevision's talent contest. McCormick's piano performance of Hungary by Carl Coelling was judged by Cablevision subscribers as they watched at home and called in their votes. McCormick is a student of Park resident Jean Krinke.

Dr. Timothy Bertsch has been appointed to a committee to conduct in-depth clinical study on personal injury (whiplash) in St. Paul. As a result of advance work in personal injury which he has completed, Bertsch was chosen for the committee while attending a symposium in Atlanta, Georgia.

Bright colors and popular styles were featured at the recent Ramsey County 4-H spring fashion revue. 4-H members were evaluated on the garments they had constructed or purchased. Five St. Paul youth were among 14 of the 58 participants selected for the Court of Honor for outstanding work and presentation. The group included Kari Nelsestuen, Northern Lights 4-H Club, St. Anthony Park. She was also selected as an alternate representative to the state 4-H fashion revue held during the State Fair.

The Dolce Trio (Paul, Mark and Paula Kosower) will be featured at Music in the Park June 8.

It's your turn

"Batter up!" seems to be a typical Minnesota summer statement of group effort which is made possible by individual effort towards a collective goal and by individuals taking turns as part of a common cause.

Every backyard baseball game in our communities this summer will require people who are willing and able to bat and run and catch and pitch and cheer and make lemonade. Every game will succeed or fail not on the basis of the score but on the basis of the commitment, energy and skill of a variety of folks.

It's great to live in well-defined and warm-hearted communities such as Falcon Heights, Lauderdale, St. Anthony Park or Energy Park. It's great to know that the Fourth of July will be celebrated at Langford Park and that summer will bring an ice cream social at the Falcon Heights recreation area. It's nice to know that there will be block parties and larger community events at which people will eat and smile and visit and feel good about one another. But none of our communities can have any of their events without a lot of us taking time and energy to make them happen. At some time we all have to be willing to take our turn.

In communities composed of organizational wizards such as these sometimes seem to be, it would seem unnecessary to comment on the importance and necessity of community involvement. Yet there always seem to be plenty of folks around who are looking for help, encouragement, audience or ideas. No community event happens without publicity, planning, participation and usually a bit of protest. In addition, every community seems to have plenty of people who feel that they're not included or don't count. It's the joyous and challenging task of our community organizations to match the folks who need help and support with the souls who need to serve and to sweat.

No baseball team, back alley or professional, gets far with a complete population of would-be stars. Every team effort needs people who shine at doing routine work as well as people who can bat the ball. Every community event needs folks who cheer and celebrate as well as folks who get up early or stay up late to stir the kool-aid, set up the tables, call the workers or sweep the sidewalks.

Lots of people have worked in myriads of ways to make the St. Anthony Park Festival and Arts and Crafts Fair possible. But lots more people will be needed to attend to cheer and to buy and to celebrate and to clean up. The same is true for every community event or organization, big or small, in the Park, in Lauderdale, in Falcon Heights or in Energy Park. There's a chance for lots of people to take turns.

How lucky we are to live in places where people can have turns and will take them. How important that we make sure we're on the list of people willing to take our turn. How vital that we encourage our friends and neighbors to take their turns, too.

World War I nurses

Dear Editor:

My brother James T. Bull, from San Antonio, Texas has kindly sent me the May 1986 copy of your most interesting paper, at least to one who was born in St. Anthony Park in 1907 in the home of Mae T. and Coates P. Bull across the street from the Congregational Church on the corner of Commonwealth and Chelmsford the number of which is 2137 and which my father built in 1904, the year my parents were married.

You have asked for identification of the "nurses" pictured on the back of the cover page, and I think that I may be of some help. It has been a long time since WW I, but some faces do come back to my childhood memory.

Definitely, my mother, Mae T. Bull stands at the extreme right of the back row, and on her right stands Mrs. James Drew whose house stands on the S.W. corner of Commonwealth and Chelmsford. Miss Ruth Hall, aunt of Jean Stewart Curtis whose name was mentioned in the article "Trees" [sic] is the second lady from the left in the second row, and on her right in the second row is Mrs. J.A. Hummel who lived in the house on Commonwealth next to the Bull house at 2143. I am quite sure that the lady number three from the left in the first row is Mrs. Simmons (sp.?) pronounced with a long "E" who lived in the house located at the N.W. corner of College Park where there were some tennis courts at one time. This was on Raymond Ave. The Simmonds had one son, Roger who attended the Congregational church with many of us during high school and college age. I am quite sure that my aunt Lydia (Lee) Bull is the second from the left in the front row. She lived at 2148 Carter Ave., directly behind my parents, and my uncle was A.M. Bull.

One might ask what these ladies did to help "win the war". As I recall, they ripped up sheets into strips three inches wide, and rolled them to be used as bandages; some knit sweaters, some wool "helmets" which covered the head and face and left an opening for the mouth, and others, like myself knit wool squares about eight inches to be later sewed into a blanket. All children gathered any aluminum paper like the lining in gum wrappers and made into balls to be given, for what use we had no idea.

Another picture of great interest to me is of the Congregational church on page 6, for before the present church was built our mother and I walked to church on many a Sunday morning, and I recall reciting some poem or prose during the Christmas season.

Many thanks to you and your staff for bringing the past to the present and with it many happy memories.

Coates P. Bull Jr.

Congrats

Dear Editor:

The awards to the Bugle made by the Neighborhood Press Association help focus our attention on its high quality. We congratulate those individuals whose excellence was recognized.

At one level, we share in their recognition. For in the case of the Bugle, the whole is larger than the individuals contributing to it. The Bugle reflects our neighborhoods. When it wins, we also win.

Many elements contribute to our good fortune to have strong neighborhoods; we feel the Park Bugle is one of them. We are pleased with the editors, writers, and advertising representatives. Their work makes us feel better about the place we call home. We are also pleased that others agree with us.

Memorial Day

Dear Editor:

I must take exception to Joel Schurke's column regarding Memorial Day. The only deaths even remotely connected with the war in Vietnam that should be remembered occurred at Kent State University May 4, 1970 when Allison B. Krause (19), Jeffrey Glenn Miller (20), William K. Schroeder (19), and Sandra Lee Scheuer (20) were murdered in cold blood by the National Guard—when I was a freshman at the University of Minnesota.

If one wants to talk about the Vietnam era,

The wonder wire

The circus came to town this spring. The circus comes to town every spring. The circus is very reliable.

You can rely on the circus to have the same music, the same costumes, the same low humor and the same glitzy acts whenever you see it. But somehow we never get tired of it. In fact, it just wouldn't be the circus if it didn't have the same music, the same costumes, the same low humor and the same glitzy acts.

One of the staples of any circus, of course, is the high wire act. It never changes. We see an entire family, the Flying Fettucines, up there in glittery costumes defying death as the crowd gasps in amazement. They ride a bicycle, then a unicycle, across that little wire, suspended a hundred feet in the air. They do somersaults over each other. They ride on each other's shoulders. They almost fall to their certain doom, but catch themselves just in time. And we sit down below, getting stiff necks and loving every minute of it.

There are two distinctly different attitudes about watching the high wire act, that of enjoyment and that of terror. The enjoyment attitude says, "Wow, this is great! Look what they're doing up there now, I can't believe it! How can they do all those amazing things?" The terror attitude, on the other hand, says, "Oh, no, I can't watch. A whole Italian family is going to perish in the sawdust right in front of me. How can they do all those terrible things?"

Well, for those of you who missed the circus this spring, fear not. We are going to get our own high wire act in this neighborhood real soon. You can see the wire already, suspended above our sidewalks and alleys, glistening white in the sunlight high overhead. And very soon the performance will begin. St. Anthony Park is finally getting cable TV!

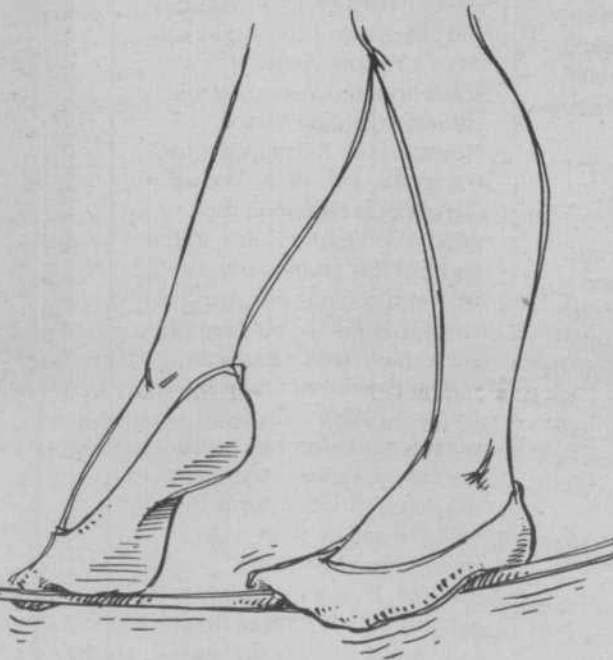

There are two distinctly different attitudes about cable TV, that of enjoyment and that of terror. The enjoyment attitude says, "Wow, this is great! Look at all the stuff we have to choose from now, I can't

"Who needs better reception when there's nothing worth receiving? The kids have already seen Chip 'n' Dale get the best of Donald Duck a million times. And you've already got a window and a watch that work just fine."

One day real soon a man will come to the door to ask if we would like him to install the cable in our home. I imagine that he will look like Alistair Cook. He will speak in a deep, mellifluous voice, and he will ask very courteously if we would like to enjoy any of the premium channels, such as Arts & Literature or Home Archaeological Showcase. I'll smile and sign up for everything.

My wife imagines it differently. A surly man with a cigar will come to the door with a work order. He will make holes in our walls and not vacuum up the mess, use the bathroom and leave the lid up, and as he leaves will say, "I had to disable the on-off switch and channel selector on your set. So it's tuned to MTV and you can't turn it off or change channels 'til I come back with parts. It'll be about six weeks." My wife will burst into tears.

Actually, the truth must lie somewhere between these two attitudes. After all, most of the rest of the country has had cable TV for quite a while now, and they don't seem to have suffered too greatly from it.

On the other hand, I don't see that the human race has benefitted much from it either. I have yet to see a headline in the newspaper that says, "SAT scores double in communities with cable TV." But maybe those are the kind of news stories that are only featured on cable TV news programs, which I haven't been able to watch yet.

So now that cable TV is bringing its high wire act to the neighborhood, what kinds of programs can we expect? Well, cable television is just more television, and television is very reliable.

You can rely on television to have the same music, the same costumes, the same low humor and the same glitzy acts whenever you see it. But somehow we never get tired of it. In fact, it just wouldn't be television if it didn't have the same music, the same costumes, the same junk food and the same glitzy acts.

believe it! How can they show all those amazing things?" The terror attitude, on the other hand, says, "Oh, no, I can't watch. My whole family is going to be ruined in the living room right in front of me. How can they do this terrible thing?"

I am familiar with these two disparate attitudes because they exist in my own home. I am Mr. Enjoyment. My wife is Mrs. Terror.

"Gosh, Honey, just think...our reception will be so much better than it is now. And the kids can watch all those great Disney shows we used to love. And we can turn on the TV at any time of the day or night and find out what the weather is like and what time it is!"

concern relating to the supervision of the residents and some management practices at the facilities...our inter-departmental Chemical Dependency Planning Team recently recommended to our department that we cease referrals until such a time that these problematic areas are resolved. We have met with the Victory House board of Directors but have not yet implemented the Planning Team's recommendation."

"We believe that the Victory House Board is committed to making the necessary changes and, in fact, have made a great deal of progress to resolve the issues raised by the referring agencies and the neighborhood council," Fashingbauer wrote in his letter dated April 23, 1986.

David Berres, planner/coordinator of Chemical Dependency Services, serves on the planning team that drafted the recommendation to discontinue referrals. In a memorandum dated April 11 Berres specified the problems. "Specific concerns are lack of staff stability, lack of adequate supervision of residents, lack of response to neighborhood complaints, lack of consistent log, a monthly service report, etc. Given the ongoing instability of the facility and the lack of administrative attention to these concerns the C.D. Team recommends that the department cease referring to Victory House..." Berres wrote.

Bailing out

The identified problems are well known to the Victory House board — or what's left of it. In the wake of the chemical dependency planning team's recommendation are a number of resignations. The board of directors for Victory House numbered six last fall. By May of this year four of the members resigned including the board president.

John Kaul, former president of the board for Victory House cited "differences with the director (Tollefson)" as his reason for resigning. Kaul worked diligently at resolving problems for Victory House for the past eight months, but succumbed to frustration over the lack of results.

"I didn't think that those problems should still have existed at this stage of the game," Kaul said. "The simple fact was that the board was not getting straight answers. We went to other (than Tollefson) sources to get collaboration on the answers."

Scott Jefferson is half of the Victory House board, but remains less than optimistic regarding the future of Victory House.

"I believe in the place and want to see it go, but if Ramsey County is going to stop referring we have a real problem. It's a problem that I'm not sure we are going to survive," Jefferson said. "I feel like we are doing all that the county has asked us to do, and they recommend no referrals. I'm wondering why I'm doing this. My business has become my part-time job. I'm hurt and discouraged because I don't know what to do."

Wayne Goethe's recent resignation as assistant director of Victory House preceeded Tollefson's departure.

"The board (of Victory House) asked me to go into what amounts to collusion with them. Of course then it was a matter of time. My days were numbered. It became a really uncomfortable situation with him [Tollefson] knowing I was looking over his shoulder. They [the board] asked me questions that they had asked Lyle [Tollefson] and weren't getting the straight story. They (the board) didn't know enough about the operation to know what to ask," Goethe said.

"Lyle [Tollefson] went out and invited all sorts of good stories (newspaper coverage) and got himself a high profile. There's the other side of the story, too. I had hoped this thing could be handled quietly and let the problem work itself out. Hopefully, it is resolved," Kaul said.

"It's kind of a bloody story. In this operation you have options as to how you can spend the money. That was a lot of the problem," Goethe commented.

Goethe isn't pointing fingers at any one person. He questioned the management of funds received by Victory House from the county.

"Number one was the $14.77 [per diem from the county prior to April 1, 1986] being spent? Or how was it being spent? There was some negligence on the county, in part, for not looking more carefully at how the money was spent. You're talking about a lot of things that are grossly unethical," Goethe said.

Molly O'Rourke, legislative aide to Kiki Sonnen, obtained access to Ramsey County's file on Victory House. For O'Rourke perusing the county's file was an eye-opening experience.

"There are months that food stamps are not returned to the county. I find that very unusual," O'Rourke commented.

In addition to the county's per diem payment some Victory House residents receive food stamps. According to Harry Oquist, resident manager of Victory House, the food stamps are received with the name of the resident and the name of a Victory House staff member as an alternate buyer. Oquist demonstrated the manner in which he presently logged food purchases made with food stamps and stated that now it is not possible for the food stamps to be misused.

No secrets

"It was no secret," Goethe said, "While the exact numbers weren't known by the board, the audit that was sent to the county was in black and white. There was no attempt to deceive. Nobody ever bothered to look."

It is clear that no one looked; perhaps they looked the other way. I received a call from a Victory House staff person who listed a series of allegations regarding Victory House and its former director, but spoke only off the record.

Tollefson captained the good-ship Victory House to the end of a few rainbows before he was thrown overboard. Tollefson's $40,000+ per year job was replete with a pension plan and deferred salary payments. In 1983, a financial statement was sent to Ramsey County by Victory House listing deferred salary payments of $29,474 and pension retirement plan payments of $18,960. It is unclear as to who actually received these funds, but Oquist and Goethe said that in the time they have worked at Victory House they did not receive a deferred payment. Tollefson chose not to clarify his salary for 1985. He said "You print your salary and I'll print mine."

The six-digit mind-set of the city and county government would hardly relate to the small numbers involved with Victory House. Whether the alleged mishandling of Victory House funds amounts to more than mismanagement is to many a mute point. To them Tollefson's departure signals the end of Victory House management problems.

Con Overgard award winners

The Con Overgard award is given annually by the St. Anthony Park Association to the outstanding students at Murray Junior High in the fields of English and social studies. The award is in memory of Con Overgard who was killed when he fell from a ladder while working as a volunteer parent to ready the St. Paul Open School for the beginning of the school year.

This year's winners are Amber Swanson in social studies and Michal Lavee in English. Swanson lives on Grand Avenue. Her parents are Ben and Claudia Swanson. She attended St. Anthony Park Elementary School as well as the Extended Day program there. In recent years she has been a volunteer helper with the younger children at that latchkey center.

At Murray, Swanson has been on the A honor roll and the executive board of the student council. She was a student leader on the Isabella retreat in March. She played on the basketball team in both seventh and eighth grade and plays tennis and swims for recreation.

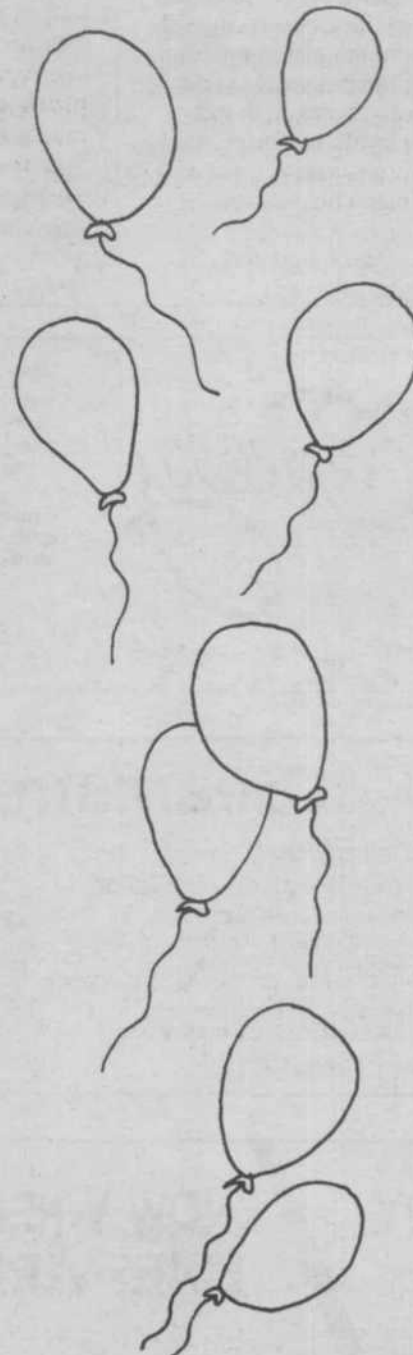

Swanson is in the Challenge classes at Murray as well as the chess club and the debate team. In theatre arts she performed in "Oliver" at the school and had a role in "Fiddler on the Roof" last year.

Congratulations to Amber Swanson for her award in social studies!

Michal Lavee lives in that small corner of Commonwealth Terrace which belongs to St. Anthony Park. Her parents are Ydan and Yael Lavee.

Lavee came to St. Anthony Park Elementary in the upper grades. She is also in the Challenge classes and on the A honor roll at Murray. She plays on the basketball team and participates in chess and debate. She, too, was a student leader at the Isabella multicultural retreat in March.

Lavee performed in the musical "Oliver" at Murray. She is on the teen committee for Commonwealth Terrace and does babysitting for her neighbors there. Congratulations to Michal Lavee for her award in English!

Falcon Heights' building boom

By Barbara Thoemke

Replacing fields of dandelions, new buildings are popping up in all directions of the Falcon Heights City Hall at 2077 West Larpenteur. Construction on the Stratford Investment Limited, a $4 million building project, began May 15.

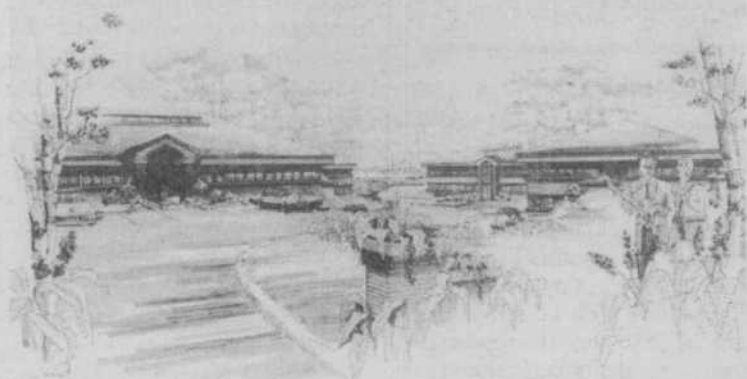

The five-acre project includes six buildings which will provide 54,000 square feet of office space to be sold or rented to businesses. The location is convenient for administrators of St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota which will rent some of the offices. The location is also in close proximity to both city centers—only 15 minutes from St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Businesses can rent or buy one office or entire buildings, said Dewan Barnes, clerk administrator for Falcon Heights.

The completion dates set for the six buildings are staggered. The first, a two-story building, should be finished by January 1987. The last two buildings should be completed by January 1989. The Stratford Investment Limited is funded by the developer, Stratford Investment Incorporated and the tax increment bond issue the city council sold.

"Falcon Heights is being aggressive in its development, especially in the Larpenteur area," said Barnes.

Barnes explained that the project is really an investment. Falcon Heights measures 2.28 square miles. Two-thirds of this area, the Minnesota State Fairgrounds and the University of Minnesota, are non-taxable entities.

The taxes paid by renters and buyers of the Stratford Investment Limited will help alleviate tax burdens for Falcon Heights homeowners. Barnes said homeowners can expect to pay lower taxes in 10 or 12 years. This will in turn encourage more people to move into the community and to remain there.

Barnes said the design of the buildings should not obstruct the view of neighboring properties. He said one requirement he made of the plan last December, when the council decided to build the project, was that it be compatible with the surrounding buildings.

Residents living near city hall vary on their opinions of the project. Jean Coon, who has lived one block from city hall for two years, said she wishes Falcon Heights would make the area into a park so kids could play there. She pointed out that it is a residential area and she and her husband, Craig, enjoy walking there. She concluded, though, that, "if there's not too much traffic, I don't mind it."

Lil Evanson, whose home overlooks the area, said she and her husband, Bob, think the building project is a "neat idea" because it will blend well with other buildings near it. She said they have no negative feelings about the building plans.

The backyard of city hall is not the only place for new developments in Falcon Heights. In front of city hall, the Prepare and Enrich Company will build a $700,000 building. This building will provide a training center to "prepare and enrich" members of the clergy who help couples prepare for marriage and to counsel married couples.

Nearby city hall, on the southwest corner at Larpenteur and Cleveland Avenues are the almost-completed 101 unit condominiums, known as 1666 Coffman. Tenants who reside there must be over 55 years old and must be affiliated with the University of Minnesota. Barnes said almost all the units have already been sold.

Saint Anthony Park Centennial 1887-1987

By Alice Duggan

One hundred years ago, give or take a year, St. Anthony Park was annexed into the City of St. Paul. Perhaps some hard-nosed researcher, with plenty of time on his hands, can discover why Saint Paul Architecture lists 1887 as "year one", while the Ramsey County Historical Society, in an article by St. Anthony Park resident Fredric Steinhauer, gives the date as 1886. But whatever the final verdict, a centennial celebration is on its way, and it's scheduled for 1987—only seven months away. Planners are already hoping for a celebration as rich and diverse as the neighborhood itself.

Planning so far has been collective, without a chairperson, but with many suggested projects and contact people. Readers can look through the projects and choose what appeals to them or propose other ideas. Since everything is still in the dreaming and imagining stage, there's ample time and room for many more people to help shape this event. Here are some of the suggested projects and contact people:

- Help is needed to expand the St. Anthony Park photo display, currently hanging in the basement of the library. Help search for, copy and mount older pictures that illustrate community life. Contact person: Gale Frost, 646-3413.

This detail from the iron railing of the Raymond Avenue bridge is symbolic of the link between both St. Anthony Park neighborhoods and of the history they share. The design was done by Peggy Margosian, a St. Anthony Park resident and a landscape architecture student at the University of Minnesota.

- Curious people are needed to do historical research. Contact people: David Liset, 644-8098; Art Helland, 483-1904; and Bob Herbst, 631-1483.

- Organizers will be needed to plan a grand community progressive dinner. The emphasis here is on food and a bringing together of the community. Contact people: Ann Copeland, 645-1160 and Joan Styve, 641-0161.

- Help is needed to put on a community play. Contact person: Judy Schumacher, 644-6322.

- More voices are needed to swell the St. Anthony Park Choir, which may be doing a commissioned piece for the centennial. The choir together with a composer (yet to be chosen) from the Minnesota Composers' Forum will apply to the forum for a grant. Contact person: Mary Jane Munson, 644-2321.

- "Needlepeople" and weavers are needed for a variety of fiber projects, possibly a centennial quilt. Contact person: Linda Maschwitz, 646-8530.

- House tours will be offered, sponsored by District 12. These will emphasize architecture, both old and new. Architectural and historical consultants are needed.

Contact people: Barbara Swadburg, 645-4246 and Judy Flinn, 646-0439.

- Classes could be offered in community history, in Victorian crafts, in genealogy or ---? Planners and teachers will be needed. Contact person: Joanne Martin, 645-6985.

- Self-guided neighborhood walking tours will be mapped out—history and exercise combined. Help is needed here too. Contact person: Sherm Eagles, 646-6667.

- If you'd like to pursue one of these "leaderless" projects, or if you have other ideas, please call Bobbi Megard at the District 12 Office, 646-8884. If you're a writer, photographer, artist, architect, or have skills in public relations or marketing, your help is particularly needed. So—if reading about these projects excites you, hang on to that excitement. Call someone and pursue an interest, something to share with the community in 1987—our centennial year.

The St. Anthony Park Community Chorus will sing its inaugural concert June 6 at 8:15 p.m. at the Chapel of the Incarnation, Fulham St. and Hendon Ave., Luther Northwestern Seminary campus. The chorus is shown here at a performance at St. Anthony Park Branch Library in April. The chorus was founded in January 1986 and is composed of neighborhood residents. The group is conducted by Lizette Larson-Miller, accompanied by Ann Voglewede and sponsored by the St. Anthony Park Arts Forum. The concert, which is free and open to the public, will also feature guest organist, David Trygestad, the upcoming seminary organist. A reception will follow the concert.

Briefly from 7 Library kids

"Be a Library Kid" is the theme for the St. Paul Public Library summer reading program June 9 through August 1. Children who read or are read to can sign up at the St. Anthony Park Library and receive materials designed by local author, Nancy Carlson, play the giant board game, come to weekly programs or try for prize drawings at the last program.

In St. Anthony Park weekly programs will be on Wednesdays at 4 p.m.; June 11 the Schiffelly Puppets will perform an updated version of Cinderella; on June 18 the Climb storytellers will tell the story "The Enchanted Fish" with lots of audience participation; and on June 25 the Teddy Bear Band will be present singing traditional children's songs with audience participation. Bring your own teddy bear to the June 25 program.

Gymnastics in the summer

St. Anthony Park/Groveland Gymnastics summer gymnastics program will begin June 16 and continue through July 24 at St. Anthony Park and Groveland Park schools. Classes will be available for children ages 3-12. For more information and registration materials, call Joanne Martin, 645-0600.

During the summer, the Great Books Club of Falcon Heights will meet at 7:30 p.m. on the third Thursday of each month. The selection for June 19 is Kant's Conscience. The club meets at Falcon Heights United Church of Christ, 1795 Holton in Falcon Heights. Newcomers are welcome. For more information, call 646-2681.

—RALPH WALDO EMERSON

When Providence Realty buys or sells a home for you, it's easy to accept what they find.

Sharon Bassett and Nancy Lorimer understand why someone would want to buy a home in this neighborhood, because they both live here themselves. They know what it means to choose a home for your family, or to sell a house full of memories.

So they stay in touch, listening to how you feel about a house, giving weekly updates on marketing activity, and staying with you from beginning to end, personally.

That's why many of the people who are moving to 1666 Coffman have put their trust in Providence Realty to purchase their new homes and sell their present ones.

Ralph Waldo Emerson never lived here. But if he had, he would have heeded his own advice and called on Providence Realty to find a house he could call home.

Area residents Courtney Olien, Wendy Verthein, Roxanne Walsh, Barbara Brooten and Joan Dow-Styve are just a few of the artists who will be displaying their wares at the June 7 Arts and Craft Fair at the St. Anthony Park Branch Library. They gathered on the library steps recently to compare notes on how to prepare for the fun. Their stitchery, pottery, weaving and painting will make it worthwhile to spend time at the corner shopping that day.

other entertainment and the opportunity for group singing. Of course, there will also be plenty of food and plenty of opportunity for meeting new friends and visiting with old ones—the very stuff for which the Festival is loved and is famous.

That same evening, the St. Anthony Park Community Chorus will give its inaugural concert at 8:15 p.m. at Chapel of the Incarnation on the campus of Luther Northwestern Theological Seminary. The chapel is located at the corner of Hendon Ave. and Fulham St.

So the invitation is out to everyone who enjoys neighborhood friendship, good laughs, interesting art and delicious food. The invitation is out for family and friends of all ages who want to celebrate the coming of summer in the community setting of St. Anthony Park. The invitation is out. Hopefully everyone who lives in the areas served by the Bugle will be on hand and will pass the invitation on to more friends.

Rose Hill from 1

"but a detour along Eustis helped some."

Again in 1960 Larpenteur Avenue was closed and widened to four lanes which took about a year.

"Our means of survival at this time was mechanical and odd handi-man work, including painting fire hydrants for the city of Lauderdale."

All was not hardship says Art with a smile, "When I had surgery in 1966, my son Art Jr., who was 14 at the time, started part time with another employee, Howard Jensen. John Lindquist, my competitor at the Standard Station across the street, helped Art Jr. with any problems that arose". Art Jr. continued part time until he graduated from St. Paul Vocational when he became full time and now does the mechanical work.

Art Sr. and his wife,

LaVanche who works for the city of Lauderdale were married in 1951. The ground for their first house was broken on the day of Art Jr.'s birthday in 1952.

After the death of Lavanche's mother, Alice Paulbitske, her home was razed, the property divided, and construction begun on their new house in 1984. Art Jr. and his wife Charlene bought the old house which is next door, "The family home of the Paulbitske clan is behind our house and my wife's Uncle Harry and Aunt Helen live there".

Since Art bought the station in 1948 from his uncles George Sventek and Rueben Starr, there is at least a three generation connection with Rose Hill/Lauderdale both in business and home ownership.

This is apparent when Art talks of Lauderdale, "We feel Lauderdale is a great place to live because of the people and the way we all care for each other; it's a small town atmosphere in a metropolitan area. It is always nice to continue friendships with former residents as well as meeting new ones. My son and I enjoy our work very much. I enjoy having a small business, as I feel I can give more time to my customers and they seem to appreciate this service".

At age 59, Art Sr. is nearing retirement but has not made a decision as to when his son will fully take over the business. But it looks as though there will be an Art Peterson selling Phillips Gas in Lauderdale for quite some time.

Borrowing an education

High school graduation marks the end of one career and the beginning of another. If that new chapter in life includes higher education, both students and parents are also now getting an education in college costs — tuition, fees, books and living expenses.

If the price tags look ominous to you and if you want more information about financing choices, come to the First Banks. We offer a variety of student loan financing programs, including the government-backed Guaranteed Student Loans.

But more than a source of cash, we can explain how the programs work, how they compare to conventional loans, how to save money through credit lines, home equity or secured financing, even how to defer payback until graduation. So come in and get the answers you need.

Materials are available in the bank or can be mailed to you by calling First Financial Line, 370-3900, extension 10.

There's something different going on

In an effort to provide faster, more efficient service, we have made some changes in the way our bank looks and the way we handle your business in the bank. We have separated routine consumer banking transactions from those that require more time or information and divided the banking areas into express teller services, convenience banking and personal banking.

We have people who can help direct you to the services you need and, in the long run, we think you'll like the access and convenience of our changes.

Victory House from 6

County) told the Victory House that the problem was Lyle [Tollefson]. They said in so many words that the solution would be to get rid of Lyle. I was amazed at how adamant they were," O'Rourke said.

Marsha Anderson supported O'Rourke's comments. Anderson was an alternate to the District 12 community council for the past year and as a resident of Hampden Square, a housing development adjacent to Victory House, is very familiar with the problems relating to Victory house.

"They [members of the board of Victory House] resigned because of Lyle Tollefson. Now Lyle has resigned, hallelujah!" Anderson said.

Eugene Klee is another former Victory House staff member and was willing to talk. When asked if Tollefson was the source of many of Victory House problems, Klee said, "Yeah, on the record I'd agree with that."

Klee is grim about the present situation at Victory House, but harbors hope for its future.

"It's become a graveyard. They [the residents] become cut-off from the community. Ninety-nine per cent of the "treatment" program is just being on the outside. These men have gone through treatment, but when they're finished they are still broke and still have the same problems," Klee said. "If the county did stop referring clientele to Victory House, the place would close down by sheer starvation." Klee suspects, however, that the county will continue referring clients and Victory House will be back on its feet this summer.

Future hope

There is an admirable sense of hope in Klee's voice as he discusses Victory House and the need for its existence. It serves a population that few bother worry about. But Victory House's effort to serve this need has been met with problems other than management.

The wisdom of locating a facility like Victory House near a bar and residential area was questioned by District 12 Community Organizer Bobbi Megard. "You've got to ask yourself when you're talking about rights — what are we doing putting these people three blocks from the nearest bar? Some of these people have been through detox 150 times! I feel this is enabling," Megard said.

These bottles are part of a vast collection found strewn on a hill near Raymond and Territorial Avenues.

Megard is anxious for Victory House to find solutions to their longer-range problems and sees the neighborhood's concern for safety as a priority.

"You know the neighborhood needs to be commended for this. It [Victory House] is not something that enhances a neighborhood. It is a real social decision. You should be able to walk through your neighborhood without fear, but the older people of Seal high-rise are scared to death," Megard claimed.

Kiki Sonnen is familiar with the Victory House saga. Sonnen finds the problems associated with Victory House to be especially disturbing and feels that they are a violation of the community's trust. She outlined suggestions for solving some of Victory House's most pressing problems.

"I really believe that there is a need for community members to serve on Victory House's board — to create a two-way street of communication. What Victory House definitely needs is 24 hour, good, competent staff to handle anything and everything. Not just a night watchman. Some kind of recreational or social program for the residents. You can imagine that if you were stuck in a cubicle looking at four walls you would think of drinking," Sonnen said. "And they need some form of transportation to and from their destinations. The staff, recreation and transportation, though, is going to cost money."

As summer begins the census at Victory House drops. The lower the census the lower the operating revenue. Victory House has made efforts to correct their problems and to initiate new programs for the residents.

Presently the board of Victory House is seeking new members. Jefferson said that he hopes to recruit a resident and a business representative from the community to serve on the board. The board is also seeking an interim director for Victory House.

The key to the success of Victory House is in its management. It would be unfair to withhold credit from Lyle Tollefson. Tollefson was with Victory House when it began and the social need that it fulfills is part of his dream. "It doesn't matter who is managing the Victory House to me. It's whether the problems are solved. Some people are starters, some people are finishers," O'Rourke said.

The slate is somewhat cleaner and the solutions to their problems somewhat closer for Victory House.

"What should have been done, has been done. And that's what matters in the final analysis," Goethe summarized.

Awards night & election at Murray

Parents and community residents are invited to the annual awards night at Murray Magnet Junior High June 2 in the school auditorium. Preceding the awarding of school honors, two elections will take place. Officers will be chosen for the Murray School Association, and two members of the Murray Site Council will be selected. John Zupfer has been nominated as president of the MSA, while Joanne Laird and Marge Grahn-Bowman are running for the open slots on the Site Council. Zupfer is the parent of Jeff, who will be in the eighth grade next year, as will Tom Laird, son of Joanne Laird. Grahn-Bowman's son, Brian Maddock, will be an incoming seventh grader. Parents continuing on the Site Council are Peggy Jones, Betty Bush and John Zupfer. Other members represent faculty, administration and students. The Site Council will meet at 7:00 p.m. on June 5.

On June 3, the eighth grade will go to ValleyFair, while the seventh grade has an activity day at Murray. The last two days of school will be for final exams, with the first three periods holding tests on Thursday, June 5, and the last three on Friday, June 6. For the first time in many years, Friday will be an entire school day, and teachers will return on June 9 to grade report cards. Summer school will run from June 16 to July 24.

The Murray band will perform at the St. Anthony Park Festival on June 7.

Grade school to have track & field days

Track and field days will be held at the St. Anthony Park Elementary School during the afternoons of May 29 and 30. In case of rain, the events will be postponed one week. All children in the school will be participating both days. Parents and neighbors are invited to attend.

Children will attend full days of classes through Friday, June 6. This is a change from previous years when the last day of classes was on a Thursday. Teachers will have a record day on Monday, June 9.

Summer school for elementary students will run from June 16 through July 24. Classes will be held in the mornings four days a week, from Mondays through Thursdays. Chelsea Heights will be the closest school for this area. For further information, parents may contact their school office.

Como student wins merit scholarship

Hieu Nguyen, a senior at Como Park High School, was named as a National Merit Scholarship winner for four years, full tuition, at the University of Minnesota. Hieu was one of 5,800 Merit Scholarship winners from the more than one million who entered from across the nation. He was the only winner at Como this year. He has had outstanding academic achievement at the school, been a member of the math team and the AFS Club, as well as a letter winner in tennis.

Como seniors will graduate on June 4 at 6 p.m. at Aldrich Arena. The celebration will continue all night at a party at the school sponsored by parents of graduating seniors.

Friday, June 6, is the last day of school at Como, with a full day of classes this year.

Murray students win prizes at state science fair

All five Murray students who advanced from the Regional Science Fair to the state competition came home with awards. Over 400 entrants from junior and senior high schools throughout the state stayed at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel on April 20 and 21. Entrants were required to explain their projects or papers to the judges, but also had a chance to socialize at a luncheon, a dinner and a dance. There were five to ten judges for each project.

"It was a total blast!" said Nate Eklund, a seventh grader. "But it was also a good learning experience," he added. "I wasn't as nervous at the state competition," claimed Jeff Zupfer. "I had good practice at the school fair and at the regional."

Seventh grader Heather Brasel won a blue ribbon in the category of engineering for her project, "Heat Conduction of Different Materials". Nate Eklund won a purple ribbon and a chemical School to 16

Mannings in the Park to open soon

By Dave Merk

A few months ago Bridgeman's restaurant, on the corner of Como and Carter Avenues, closed their doors for good. No more coffee, no more hamburgers, no more ice cream. The popular meeting spot for many people in the community was no longer there. That's all going to change this month.

Larry Manning, owner of Manning's Cafe in Minneapolis, is opening a new restaurant at the old Bridgeman's location. Hoping to have the doors open by early June, Manning's in the Park will continue the malt shop tradition that Bridgeman's established, but with a little more.

"We're going to continue the malt shop idea," Manning said, "but with a larger selection of food and a good evening menu. That's something we felt was lacking before."

Manning said the menu will include barbecued ribs, fried chicken and broiled pike to name a few. Along with a full lunch and dinner menu, Manning's will be offering a larger breakfast selection.

"We're going to open early for breakfast," Manning said, "because that's a necessity for people who work." The restaurant will be open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Sunday, he said.

Manning also said that the restaurant will not serve liquor. "People enjoyed the Bridgeman's concept," he said, "and I see no reason to disrupt that idea on this corner. We feel that it should be a family-style restaurant."

John McDonald, general manager of Muffuletta in the Park restaurant, thinks that Manning's will enhance the community. "I think it was a blow to the community to see Bridgeman's go," he said. "I think the addition of Manning's is great."

Jean Carlson, manager of Speedy Market, said that the absence of Bridgeman's left a real void on the corner. "We needed something up there," she said, "and I know Manning's food is fantastic. I'm anxious to see them in there."

Manning's in the Park will cater to young and old alike, Manning said. And although the restaurant will not have a delivery service, the entire menu will be available at a discounted rate for take-out.

So with some support and a little luck, St. Anthony Park will soon have a malt shop back on the corner of Carter and Como. Once again there will be a place to stop for a casual cup of coffee or even a full-course meal. And best of all, a new business will be entering St. Anthony Park.

Jeff Zupfer, also in seventh grade, was a champion with his project, "How Does the Shape and Angle of an Airplane Wing Affect Its Lift?" He was awarded a purple ribbon in the category of engineering, an award from NASA and a gold medal for the best seventh grade science project at the fair.

Three other Murray students attended as observers and cheerleaders for their schoolmates. They are Robert Williams, James Cooper and Andy McGrath. Art Payne, science teacher, chaperoned the group.

Registration for summer school at Central High School and other St. Paul secondary schools is now in progress. The six-week session begins June 16. Students can sign up the first day of school if they have not registered in their home schools.

Registration open at Corpus Christi

Registration for the 1986-87 school year is now open at Corpus Christi Catholic School in Roseville. The school is located at County Road 'B' and Fairview Avenue in Roseville and is administered by the School Sisters of Notre Dame. Corpus Christi offers a kindergarten and grades one through eight.
