Falcon Heights shows its stuff

By Kathy Makochow

How much do you know about the City of Falcon Heights' City officials hope it's more than you did a few years ago.

Falcon Heights was one of many Minnesota cities participating in "City's Week" May 1-7, an event intended to recognize cities for their services and provide interesting and entertaining ways for residents to learn more about their own city and its functions. Falcon Heights scheduled several events during the week including a spring cleanup in the park, a kids essay and poster contest and a city hall open house on May 4. At the open house several residents and visitors saw a demonstration from the Ramsey County Sheriff's Department Canine Division on its "search and science" operations aided by German Shepherds, were shown a demonstration of the Fire Department apparatus, met their commission members and saw a CPR demonstration and film.

Mayor Tom Baldwin joined in the festivities with a discussion of Falcon Heights' past, present and future. Did you know, for example, that of the 1500 acres in Falcon Heights, only 500 are privately owned? Think about it: the University of Minnesota's campus, family housing cooperative, golf course and test fields, the State Fairgrounds and Gibbs Farm Museum are all in Falcon Heights! Did you know that the naming of the city had nothing to do with Falcons at all? It was named in the 1930's after a real estate agent, Mr. Faulkner, who planted the area. (These days, though, there are some real falcons residing temporarily at the University's Raptor Rehabilitation Center.)

As for the future of Falcon Heights, Mayor Baldwin said he believes the survival of smaller U.S. cities is a "government crisis of the 21st century. We have to find a way to make it economically viable for the smaller cities to exist alongside the larger ones." A major concern within Falcon Heights, however, will still be to balance the needs of businesses with those of residents.

As part of the celebration, nine elementary school youngsters were awarded prizes for drawing posters depicting their favorite places in Falcon Heights. (Kids liked the fairgrounds, the parks and even the sidewalks in front of their own houses!) "City's Week" was sponsored by the League of Minnesota Cities to help celebrate its 5th anniversary. Falcon Heights hopes to get more people involved in community activities by making "City's Week" an annual affair.

At last! At last! The St. Anthony Park Branch Library is set to reopen in June, just in time to get in gear for the annual summer reading program for children. According to librarian Kathy Heiderich, she and other library staff will swing open the new front door on Mon., June 6 at 12:30 p.m.

The lower level will be ready for the book sale during the Arts & Crafts Fair and Festival on Sat., June 4. An official "grand reopening" party is being planned for September.

It's Park Festival time!

By Mary Mergenthaler

It's more than a rose of spring. It's more than an it's-almost-summer hiatus. It's the St. Anthony Park Festival and Arts and Crafts Fair. Both events have become an annual tradition marking the beginning of June in a way which brings neighbors together, welcomes people from all over the city to St. Anthony Park, and gives all a chance to demonstrate their support of local businesses.

There will be lots of familiar options: musicians, jugglers, fencing, art and dancers. There will be some new twists as well: quilting, peace posters and more.

Pie & ice cream & Sousa music

The kick-off event Fri., June 3 is one which was begun several years ago by the Northern Lights 4-H Club. The club wanted to recapture some of the neighborhood fun that "they experienced in the old days" when there'd been dancing on the parking lot when the Phillips 66 station was cleared to make room for the Drive-In Bank.

The dancing now is mainly done by young children but everyone's toes will tap to the energetic tunes played by the St. Anthony Park Community Band. Toes will tap as Sousa fills with 44 home-baked pies. This all happens in the Drive-In Bank parking lot, 7:30 p.m.

Pancakes for breakfast

Another traditional part of the annual weekend is eating hearty pancakes at the Methodist Church. Show up at 7 a.m. for a pancake from the first batch off the griddle, or consider lining up before dawn the morning until 11 a.m. to get a "stick-to-your-ribs" breakfast under your belt before you start shopping, watching, listening... and eating again... in the Como business area.

In the library at last!

Books withdrawn from St. Paul libraries will be sold in the St. Anthony Park Branch Library again, starting at 9 a.m. That's a regular feature but the unique feature this year will be that last Park residents and friends will get inside the "new" library. After more than six months in exile because of library renovation, area book lovers are "chomping at the bit" to get inside. Granted, it's not likely those bibliophiles will get upstairs (although that's close) but they will see the new auditorium on the lower level. That, in itself, would be worth the visit. Add the attraction of thousands of used books and it's sure to be a sale not to be missed! Look for adult and children's books, both fiction and non-fiction at these prices: hardcovers, 50¢ each or free for $2; paperbacks, 30¢ each or eight for $2.

Arts & crafts on the lawn

Just as buying books inside the library has been a "regular," so has buying maps and paintings and bracelets on the library lawn. This year, though, the traditional Arts and Crafts Fair has faced new challenges.

"We've been on teeterboards about where to do it," says chairperson Lindy Westgard. "Necessity is the mother of invention. The changes on the library lawn have certainly necessitated our reevaluation of the space and possibilities."

By mid-May there were 63 exhibitors signed-up to display their wares. They'll be on the lawn in front of the library and all across Carter Ave. (which will be closed at both ends this year). Artists will extend, then, all the way to the sidewalk on the bank side of Carter.

Westgard and Flo McNemey Gerber have assembled an interesting array of painters, woodblock artists, weavers, photographers, batique artisans and more. There'll be a lot of old favorites and some "new blood" as well. Selling begins at 9 a.m.

Draw and paint... for yourself & for peace

The Arts Forum will also have a drawing and painting project for children in the afternoon near the Drive-In Bank.

St. Anthony Park Neighbors for Peace, an ad hoc group of community residents, is encouraging adults and children to ask themselves, "What can I do?" and then to depict their peace efforts or their favorite peace cause on a poster. Individuals and families are asked, then, to display their peace posters in home windows between June 4 and July 4. On July 4, artists are invited to walk with their posters under the St. Anthony Park Neighbors for Peace banner in the 4th of July parade to Langford Park, where the posters will again be displayed.

Block Club organizer hired

St. Anthony Park resident, Nona Navarz, has been hired as Block Club Organizer to work jointly with the St. Anthony Park Community Council and the St. Anthony Park Association. She will establish contact with community organizations and resources, hold block worker training sessions, publish a neighborhood newsletter, and establish block clubs in the first year of the program, which is funded by a grant from the McKnight Neighborhood Self-Help Initiatives Program.

Ms. Navarz, a 26-year resident of St. Anthony Park and has experience in the field of public relations. Recently she has held a staff position at the Minneoka Daily. "I consider this my home and want to be more active in my neighborhood," Ms. Navarz commented.

St. Anthony Park Community Council

ANNUAL REPORT 1992-93

The District 12 Planning Council will look upon this past year with considerable pride and with a genuine sense of accomplishment. Activities which we proposed last year have been achieved totally or substantially progress has been made to implement long-term objectives.

Last October the Council received a grant from Ramsey Action Programs to establish a Neighborhood Senior Chore Service Program for Districts 10, 11, 12, and 13. A coordinator was hired in January and to date we have responded to requests by 47 seniors, developed a skills bank of 29 workers, and conducted recruitment sessions for 100 potential workers.

Our needs assessment has been completed and copies of the report have been printed and mailed to participants. The results are due to be published by the MNSHP grant for an Outreach Organizer who has recently been hired.

The Council has adopted the Bookstart Project and provided assistance to its organizer so it can continue to serve the residents of St. Anthony Park.

Through the cooperation of the St. Anthony Park Association and the Community Council, a neighborhood handbook was printed and distributed to members of the association and other community groups. Plans are under way for annual updating of the information and wider distribution of the final product.

The Better Neighborhood Program has provided us with valuable assistance from city departments to address top priorities selected by the Council and which we are continuing to address. Programming for the S. St. Anthony Rec Center, housing issues and deterioration, Cora/Carter parking problems, and buffering along T.H. 280 and the Burlington Northern tracks are receptive attention through this program.

Environmental concerns continue as priority issues for the Council. We are working with the Neighborhood Energy Consortium to establish organized trash collection in the neighborhood and hopefully in the entire city. A contract has already been signed which will allow twice-monthly recycling pick-ups.

These activities have been facilitated by the Council while it continued to monitor the Adult Entertainment Ordinance, Light Rail Transit, University of Minnesota Busway, University Avenue redevelopment, Crimewatch and other issues which affect the quality of life in St. Anthony Park.

St. Anthony Park (District 12) Community Council is a group of 21 citizens elected to serve the District 12 area of St. Paul, including residents of St. Anthony Park and neighborhoods of other commerce and industry. It is one of 17 citizen participation councils in the city.

The council meets the second Wednesday of every month. All meetings are open to the public. Check for location.

Michael Baker, William Baker, Marvin Chappe, Jesus Donaldson, David Fox, Steve Garfield, Dan Goodwin, Gertrude Gordanier, John Grahnem, Ken Holdsworth, Joan Hurley-Clemens, Sandy Jacobs, Andrew Jenkins, Diane Kiel, Alice Magnussen, Ian Meyer, Carol Oeps, Paul Savage, Steven Saxe, Robert Sengena

Office hours 9 a.m.-3 p.m., M-F.

June Festival

Residents are invited to stop by the Community Council table during the Festival on June 4 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Free literature describing the programs and activities of the Council will be available. Recycling bags will be distributed as well.

Council members will be available to answer questions about current neighborhood projects and activities. Plans showing the UMTI Busway, Westway Office and Industrial Park, and zoning map showing allowable location of Adult Uses under the comparable ordinance will be on display.

Plan to pick up a few extra copies of St. Anthony Park—Portrait of a Community ($12.95 each) for gift giving or just to enjoy yourself.

"I love kids' & kids' books...I'm addicted!"

By Mary Mergenthaler

It would be easy to say that Mary Ann Peterson missed her calling. She should have been a librarian. But that assumption would miss the fact that she IS a librarian, just without a capital "L." At St. Anthony Park Elementary School there have been a number of librarians since Mary Ann started volunteering there 13 years ago. The "official" librarians have changed but one thing hasn't changed. That's Mary Ann's interest in kids and kids' books. She's not a volunteer at the school's library because she feels responsible or guilty. That wasn't even her impetus when her three boys were students there (they're now in high school and college). She's a library volunteer and contributor because she says, "I'm in love with kids and I love kids' books. I'm addicted!"

But the kids and teachers at St. Anthony Park School know they're the ones who benefit. They know how much they appreciate Peterson's time. They know what a difference it makes to have their library enriched with the thousands of dollars of books Peterson has donated over the years. They know how much they enjoy the books and they had a party recently to tell Peterson about it. Over the years, Peterson has been a regular contributor to the library. Regular contributor doesn't mean a book or two now and then. It means boxes and bags of books regularly. "I usually get the kids' books at garage sales," she says, "because those books aren't as likely to be worn. At library sales they often are. I hit the benefit sales and watch for sales in stores. It's important for me to be there to hear what kids want to read and to see what's getting worn or is in short supply. Then I watch for those titles."

"I did miss a year when we moved out of St. Anthony Park," she says. "But I couldn't take it. I can't read to my own kids anymore. I missed those kids. I missed those books and I missed St. Anthony Park and the teachers I've known for so long."

Peterson can probably comment as well as anyone on changes in the library. "There used to be a full-time librarian. There was time for the librarian to read to kids. Now the librarian has to spend much of her time teaching classes. It's important to have someone on hand in the library to help students find a special book or to encourage them or to talk to them about something they're reading. Those are things I can do and they're things the librarian simply doesn't have enough time to do anymore."

The present librarian, Mary Woodward, knows how valuable Peterson's service is. "The library simply couldn't run without her," she insists. "She's the patron of this library. I've talked with each age level about what a patron is. A patron is someone who gives financially and with time, consistently and on a long-term basis. Peterson gives and she loves. It shows and it makes a big difference!"

How big is "our" world?

It's a strange juxtaposition. On the one hand, this paper's policy is to restrict its coverage to events that happen within its distribution area and to people who live there. On the other hand, during the past year it has seemed right and appropriate to hear from locals about points far away. We've heard from visitors to China and the Soviet Union, from people who have lived in the Philippines. This month we hear about local connections with South Africa and China and Central America.

Is there inconsistency here? Is the paper trying to fulfill a different mission than the usual mission of a community newspaper?

It seems to me that, in a strange way, the jugglers at the Park Festival, the soccer games in Falcon Heights and the peace conference in Moscow and the teachers in China are connected.

When a scientist focuses on a magnified image, she has even more awareness of the importance of that tiny element in the larger creature or creation. When a teacher at Falcon Heights Elementary helps a third grader express thoughts and feelings on paper, he has more appreciation of great literature and great writers.

When we take a photo of young kids playing in water from a sprinkler on the sidewalk this summer, it forces our attention to turn to the kids in Lawa'aikamp, South Africa, who can hardly get water. When we see that a local resident has, through the democratic process, been chosen to run for national office, it helps us reflect on the chaotic and troubled election process in the Philippines.

So we don't, to some people's dismay, publish news of church suppers in Minneapolis or events in nursing homes in other parts of St. Paul. We have to stop somewhere, we defend ourselves, and we choose to stop at the boundaries of our every-home distribution area.

Still, having said that, it still makes sense to report and reflect on the larger world-view of people who live next door. It makes sense because it keeps us from being parochial at the same time as it allows us to delight in the intimacy and safety we enjoy.

The ongoing battle of residents (and would-be resident) vs city

By Mary Mergenthal

Douglas Doty, who's trying to build a house at 2108 Hoyt and his neighbors on Hoyt and Dudley, and the city of St. Paul have been embroiled in a triangular clash for many months. More and more the clash has become not one triangular clash but two duals—neighbors against City and Doty against City. The Bugle commented in the April editorial, about the City's clear errors which led to the problems and about the City's inexcuse and confusing attempts to rectify those problems.

During the last month the battle swords have been sharpened. While the plot may not exactly be thickening, its initial murkiness is becoming more visible. An abbreviated chronology of the situation may give readers some sense of the hopelessess of the chaotic clash between neighbors who don't want to look at a fortress in their back yard but do want to be able to will their homes or lots someday and a man who wants to build his dream home on a lot he bought and a city that seems locked in its own battle between Board of Zoning Appeals, City Council and Mayor.

March 1987 - Douglas Doty's plan reviewed by city zoning department - city inspector (no longer with the city) fails to note that Doty's house is out of compliance with three zoning codes

March 1987 - building permit granted

Spring 1987 - construction begins - Doty applies for zoning variances for diminished front setback, height above street line and coverage of more than the allowable surface area of lot

Fall 1987 - 46 neighbors sign petition objecting to variance

Oct. 27, 1987 - regardless of expressed neighborhood concern, city grants all three variances

Nov. 1987 - Elizabeth Solen, on behalf of neighbors on Hoyt and Dudley, files appeal

Dec. 1987 - District 12 Community Council supports neighbors' appeal

Dec. 22, 1987 - City Council revokes all three variances

Winter 1988 - Mayor urges neighbors and Doty to come up with compromise. Doty agrees to remove rear deck and make some changes in roof and promises to do what rear landscaping he can afford.

March 20, 1988 - City Attorney and Jan Gasterman, Board of Zoning Appeals, meet with neighbors and Doty.

May 4, 1988 - City Council votes 4-3 to allow the Doty house to remain out of conformity

May 11, 1988 - Mayor Laitinen vetoes council action and says city must pay for changes to house apparently because he feels certain that without such action city will incur far higher costs in litigation with either Doty or neighbors or both.

May 17, 1988 - City Council votes to reconsider previous action at May 24 meeting

Tom Dimond of the City Council urged the council to override the mayor's veto at its May 17 meeting, saying, "The owner was damaged by a city mistake. Why should the owner now be hurt again [by being forced to lower his roof]?"

Following that same vein, it would seem clear that the neighbors were also damaged by the city's mistake. They have lost considerable time and energy, they fear that they stand to lose considerable money. To echo Dimond's question, why should the neighbors continue to be hurt by city error which should have been noted, and rectified, a year ago?

Post No Bills

It was a remarkable day in the neighborhood. In fact, it was probably one of the most remarkable days in the history of St. Anthony Park. But no one even realized it.

The sun was bright, but the air was cool and comfortable. As Frank and his family walked along the sidewalk, Frank shone his leg on the street, and the sunlight reflected off his sunglasses. His bakery delivered the mail to him, and the mailman cancelled his big leather bag to begin his round of the neighborhood. It was Saturday, so most of the houses were empty, and the mailman was able to deliver the mail without a lot of noise or activity. Delivering the Saturday mail was a completely different job from delivering during the week, when kids were in school and adults at work and everything was quiet. On Saturdays, the job was made longer but more pleasurable by the people who stopped him to chat.

Peter Man was painting his front porch as the mailman passed by. This sidewalk, he thought, perhaps, the mailman shouldered his big leather bag to begin his round of the neighborhood. It was a Saturday, so most of the houses were empty, and the mailman was able to deliver the mail without a lot of noise or activity. Delivering the Saturday mail was a completely different job from delivering during the week, when kids were in school and adults at work and everything was quiet. Delivering the Saturday mail was a completely different job from delivering during the week, when kids were in school and adults at work and everything was quiet. On Saturdays, the job was made longer but more pleasurable by the people who stopped him to chat.

The mailman reached into his bag and flipped through several odd-sized envelopes before he found the one piece of mail addressed to the Christmas's that day, a small, light blue envelope with the characteristic red and blue stripes of international airmail around its border. Marie took the letter from the mailman's hand. "Oh, thank you," she said, to the mailman and to Anne and to God at all the same time. Marie and Cliff went in and sat down on the porch furniture, and Marie read the letter out loud while Cliff looked through the latest batch of pictures of little Julia, the granddaughter who was growing so fast somewhere on the other side of the world.

As the mail came through the slot in the door at the Cain house, the two youngest boys raced each other to grab it and ended up in a fight. Rich, their dad, put a stop to it just as quickly as he could, but not before the mail had been mangled by four small fists and spread all over the floor.

The day before had been payday, but Rich was a realist and didn't allow himself to get too excited about his paycheck anymore. Back when the five boys came along, payday usually meant that he and Barb would go out to eat or buy something frivolous. But now the checks were hardly deposited in the bank before the money evaporated into allowances and school canteen deposits. So when Rich looked through the mail and saw that no bills had come, he felt like a wealthy man. Yes, he was right. He knew that Monday's mail would probably bring a double dose, but for the weekend the pressure was off. His paycheck would stay safely deposited in the bank without being disturbed for two whole days.

Dear Editor:
I am an 8th grader at Murray Jr. High. I have noticed that Murray Jr. High has a reputation around the St. Anthony Park area, especially with speedy Market and soliciting around there. I am extremely upset that there are only three students allowed in there at any time. Speedy Market is not the only business to have this policy.

I must admit it is some people who spoil it for everyone else, which is not good. One of my best friends was refused service in St. Anthony Park because he looked like a Jr. High student. He couldn't help feeling like a thief or being looked at one whenever I walk in a store just because of how young I may be.

I am suggesting a change of some kind involving this problem so it can be different for the students next year. I try to believe we're not all the same! Sincerely,

Dear Editor:
I am an 8th grader at Murray Jr. High. I have noticed that Murray Jr. High has a reputation around the St. Anthony Park area, especially with speedy Market and soliciting around there. I am extremely upset that there are only three students allowed in there at any time. Speedy Market is not the only business to have this policy.

I must admit it is some people who spoil it for everyone else, which is not good. One of my best friends was refused service in St. Anthony Park because he looked like a Jr. High student. He couldn't help feeling like a thief or being looked at one whenever I walk in a store just because of how young I may be.

I am suggesting a change of some kind involving this problem so it can be different for the students next year. I try to believe we're not all the same! Sincerely,

Julie A. MacGregor

Joons the Juggler calls himself a "unique combination of circus juggler, proud Norwegian and village idiot." See him at the Park Festival June 4.

Festival from 1
The Neighborhoods for Peace Table at the Festival will provide poster material and peace literature. Members will be on hand to answer questions. Posters can be made from 1-2 p.m., Sun., June 4 during the Festival.

The Centennial's Not Over
The St. Anthony Park Arts Forum will be hand quilting the centennial quilt in front of St. Anthony Park Bank. Ruth Doehme and Suzanne Zander have been putting pieces together in anticipation of the day. In addition to their own handwriting, they have squares from Dorothy Bremec, Susan Broaddb, Linda Nelson Bryan, Carol Faust, Gail Flickinger, Karen Hanna, C. Hady, Theresa Hunkel, Robin Lindquist, Mary Mantis, Linda Maschitz, Pat O'Connor, Corine Peterson, Willa Pettigrew, Regula Russelle, Sue Stein, Molla Sundberg and Alcmenay Watson. There are still one or two squares to be completed, but watch for the quilters plying their needles in front of the bank.

More posters, and maybe a Car
Winners of the St. Anthony Park Festival poster contest for junior and senior high students were Zena Shuster from Murray and Thai Lee from Como High School.
The Arts Forum is hoping to have an antique car on hand for special rides around the Park, for a modest fee of course.

Workers, workers and more workers
No event worth doing happens without lots of work. The Park Festival is no exception. Some of the many who have been and will be working are: co-chairpersons Robin Lindquist and Elizabeth Shippee, Mary Lee Blid-Obson, Lia Gore, Paula Arnold, Cindy Smith, Mary Scanlan, Bill Sletten, Sue Townley, Patty Priel, Katie Bulger, Northern Lights-4-H Club members and leaders, Sheila Boos, Wendy Hanson, Mary Ann Milton and Mike Busch.

Con Overgard Award winners recognized

Pang Thao
A very special feature of the season-end meeting of St. Anthony Park Association May 10 was the recognition of Pang Thao and Murray Blackmore, winners of the Con Overgard Award which is given annually by the Association to two students from Murray Junior High School. It is in memory of Con Overgard, who was an active member of the Association who died in an accident in 1971 while working as a parent volunteer at the St. Paul Open School. Thao, who received the Social Studies Award, is a straight A student at Murray. She is studying Challenge English, French, English, Science, Algebra, Physical Education, as well as Social Studies.

Pang came to the United States from Laos when she was five years old and has completed four different grade schools in St. Paul. She is the second oldest of four children — the only daughter of Yona Yee Thao and Tong Chau.

She has not become involved in after-school activities because of the difficulty of three bus transfers to get home. She spends much of her time helping her parents at home where they see she sings as she works.

Murray, who received the English Award, is also a straight A student. He is studying Challenge English, Physical Education, Challenge Social Studies, Advanced Math, Advanced Science and German. His 5th grade teachers at Webster Magnet Elementary School prophetically noted that "his written work is of superior quality due to his extensive reading and industrious nature."

His teachers at Murray say he is an all-around fine student showing an exceptional use of the English language, insightful and critical thinking.

Murray is considering a future major in biology and enjoys reading, travel and his guitar. For this summer he is planning a three-week canoe trip in the Boundary Waters east of Camp Widjwagan. He is the son of Ronald Blackmore and Bonnie Marsh.

Memoriam
As it does each year SAPA also honored the memory of members who have died during the past year. They are:

Robert Brasted, Frank Paskewitz, William Baron, Albert Calcagno, Stanley Dagley, Clifford Wall, Russell Cunningham, Rhea Wright and Marion Quayle. They have made many contributions through their work and in their neighborhood. The Association is making a contribution of $150 to the St. Anthony Park Library for books in their memory.

June Festival
June 6th—The SAPA will have a booth on the Avenue where information will be available about its activities and projects, as well as raffle tickets—the proceeds of which support the 4th of July Celebration.

Fourth of July
Watch for the whole program in the July Bugle. Starting at 8:30 a.m. will be a jam-packed day and evening for the whole family of races, contests, a parade, ball games, concerts, historical display, petting zoo, eating, APB/Isabella BBQ. Sandy McClure, 644-0651 and Bob Beck, 644-2816 are co-chairs. Call them if you can help in any way.

A notice is an extremely careful and effective tool in estate planning and probate. The final paper you sign is the final word in your estate planning, but the process of the first one is sometimes a time-consuming and often frustrating process for probate. The dollars saved in a well-crafted notice can easily pay for the cost of preparing the trust and in most cases gross most or all of your estate's value.

In short, it is not enough simply to know about the asset transfer trusts that relate to your decedent's property to ignore the process of probate. The dollars saved in a well-crafted notice can easily pay for the cost of preparing the trust and in most cases gross most or all of your estate's value.

Ecuador in Bandana Square

By Colette Snyder

A shop that is more than a shop. That's Roxanne and Jim Sullivan's American Trading of St. Paul, located in Bandana Square. The pictures on the wall give a small hint about the uniqueness of the venture. They are large color photos of Ecuadoran people pursuing their daily life: herding alpacas (llama look-a-likes), shearing the wool, washing it and dying the fibers. Roxanne Sullivan says that the shop she opened in Oct. 1987 is for these people and for others like them. The name was chosen because she intends to give natives of underdeveloped communities of all the Americas—North, Central and South—a way to build a stronger economic base through the sale of their native arts and crafts. "What to us is a small difference can make a large difference to them," she says.

Sullivan has appreciated handicrafts as long as she can remember. "My mother was an excellent seamstress. I developed an eye for detail early," she says. But how does one get from home in Blue Earth, Minn. all the way to Ecuador?

Sullivan and her husband, Jim, shared an interest in geology in grade school. She studied geology, geophysics and art. They went to Ecuador in 1976 to participate in a mapping project and Roxanne became fascinated by the quality of the work done by native artists and craftpeople. She was impressed by what they produced from limited materials. During a six-month return trip in 1983, Sullivan decided to start work with the Ecuadoran people in earnest, to make her idea into a reality.

But isn't geology a "hard" science—rocks, strata, soil samples and surveying? Not according to Sullivan. She not only has an eye for detail. She sees the big picture as well. According to her, geology is working with both land and people. It has to do with people working the land and how the land responds to that work. Those interrelationships influence the way economies develop.

Says Sullivan, "I can earn the money I earn and the exercise keeps me in shape. Plus with my busy schedule, I need the flexibility that only a newspaper route can offer."

Coyne's cane is in control

By Jeri Glick

Tim Coyne had to get the technique down. The Central High School senior, shooting through rapids along the St. Croix River one recent weekend, paddled intently to help keep his canoe in control.

This time, he could afford to make mistakes—overturn the canoe and end up in the water. He was just a short drive from home.

But this summer, Coyne, of St. Anthony Park will be in the Canadian wilderness, miles from civilization, and he won't have the luxury of putting on dry clothes and returning to a warm house if his canoe swamps and the supplies get wet.

He will be traveling down the Gods River in northeastern Manitoba for 35 days with three other campers and two counselors from Camp Widjiwagan, a wilderness camp operated by the YMCA of greater St. Paul. Their canoes and paddles will be their transportation. Their tents will serve as home. And everything they need to survive—food, clothes, first aid gear, cooking utensils and more—will be stuffed into several packs.

For Coyne, this summer's trip will be his fourth in the northern wilderness and the most challenging yet.

Camp Widjiwagan, based 15 miles northwest of Ely, takes youth ages 12 to 18, teaches them outdoor travel and survival skills, then sends them on a week-long trip with experienced counselors for six or more days. The camp's aim is to help youth gain a sense of self-reliance, self-esteem, teamwork and maturity through wilderness experiences said Bob Rick, camp director.

First-time campers usually have few outdoor skills when they arrive at Widjiwagan. They have to learn to paddle, carry and care for canoes, use a map and compass, carry packs, build fires, cook outdoors and put up tents. After several days of training in camp, they spend six to 11 days canoeing and camping in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area.

"This is where the real training begins," Rogers said. "You learn by experience.

Many campers return year after year, progressing through an ever more challenging program as their skills, knowledge and maturity develop. The advanced trips are longer and more difficult, with campers traveling to increasingly remote areas as far north as the Northwest Territories of Canada and the Arctic Ocean. Routes are chosen by the advanced campers but must be approved by a committee of former campers, staff and parents, Rogers said.

Coyne is working at the Camp Widjiwagan office in St. Paul to help pay for his trip. His determination to go has an almost spiritual quality. "I can't imagine myself without Widji. It has affected the friends that I have, the way I dress, the way I look at things," he said.

The first summer Coyne went to Widjiwagan, he already was an experienced canoeist. On the trail he took on the role of leader, making decisions and exerting control over plans. The next year other camper's skills and confidence had caught up to his own, and suddenly he found he was no longer the only one with an opinion on how things should be done.

"Everyone was as good as me. I had to adapt to other people taking control," Coyne said. "Widji is so much relationships—how you deal with yourself and how you deal with everyone else and the counselors."

The trips also have taught him to take things in stride, he said.

"On one trip a bear put its paw through a wooden canoe while Coyne and his fellow campers watched from their tents. "After the bear left, we just taped up the canoe and kept going. It was part of the adventure."

"The trips teach you how to adapt to problem situations, and they teach you how to adapt to stressful situations. If something goes wrong, it doesn't stop your life. You just deal with it and keep going."

J. J. Hill

On May 29 Hill had a wonderful experience: the governor of Kronberg, Sweden, Britt Mogard, came and talked in connection with New Sweden (a Swedish-American celebration) and also to visit an American school. Emma and Kerstin Beyer made a speech in Swedish and presented flowers to the Swedish governor.

The children of Kronberg composed a beautiful book of pictures and information of Kronberg. Each classroom received a copy of the book. Students of Minnesota are encouraged to compose a similar book.

The weekend of May 13-15 a group of 5th and 6th graders went to Concordia Language Village’s language camp. Two St. Anthony Park residents participated in this event, Cody Hanson and Kerstin Beyer.

Murray Junior High

With the school year coming to a close, Murray is very busy. On May 30 students will not have school because of the Memorial Day holiday.

We are starting off June with a Spring Concert on the 2nd at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium. On the 6th, students who ordered yearbooks will receive them.

The 8th graders will take a trip to Valleyfair on June 7th. On June 8 and 9 the students will have final exams. This year on both days, students will be dismissed at 12:25 p.m. Lunch will not be served, but there will be a snack time.

Como Park Senior High is one of two St. Paul locations for a special tuition-free summer school program offering, for the first time in St. Paul, a course designed to help students who will be taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT).

The course, which runs June 29-July 9, will include English and writing skills review, mathematics and test taking practice and strategies. Any senior high student who is resident of St. Paul is eligible. The course is particularly designed for students entering grades 10 and 11. Students will receive one credit if they satisfactorily complete the course.

Central High School

The Central blood drive held on April 29 was a smashing success. The Red Cross collected 110 pints of blood which is the most blood ever donated at a Central drive.

The 1988 Central prom, held on May 13 at the Landmark Center, was an elegant evening for everyone in attendance. The music of the Seville’s filled the Landmark Center while the students danced the night away.

Important end of the year dates to remember: May 27, Friday Night Live Dance; June 2, performing arts banquet, 6 p.m. at Central; June 8 & 9; final tests, June 9, graduation at 8 p.m. at the Civic Center and June 10, last day of school. June 11-Sept. 5—have a great summer!

Undergraduate students from the St. Anthony Park area who received awards were: Laird McLean & John Schomburg—World Languages, Regis Fan, Tom Laird, Kelly MacGregor, Laird Mclean, Caitlin Murdock, Jennifer Neckel & John Schomburg—Science, Tasha Baizerman, Tom Laird, Amy Linda, Kelly MacGregor, Caitlin Murdock, Kari Nebes킥en, Susan Schumpert & Jennifer Serfass—English; BenjamkIard— Performing Arts, James Cooper, Elizabeth Krick, Tom Laird & John Schomburg—Math, Aaron Namie—Guidance; Rebekah Gude—Art, Kelly MacGregor; Dorothy Book Club, Tasha Baizerman & Sari Campbell—Speech Team.

Seniors from St. Anthony Park who placed in the top ten of the graduating class included Tim Couty, Derek Hoitaw, Rebekah Mengertahl & Alex Neckel.

Other senior honors included: Honors students—James Cade Bodley; Greg Davenson; Charles Kersey (also Presidential Academic Fitness Award); Jan Mat Kinke (also Central Foundation Scholarship & CMEP Award); Katrin Laird (also Art Award); Martin Rudy (also Presidential Academic Fitness Award); Sara Skrbolt (also Presidential Academic Fitness Award); Eileen Snyder (also Stanley Scholarship, Industrial Arts Award & Presidential Academic Fitness Award); & Tone Stockenstrom (also National Journalism Scholarship).

Those students graduating with honor with distinction included Timothy Couty (also National Merit Finalist, National Merit Scholarship Science Award; Computer Science Award, Presidential Academic Fitness Award & Channel 5— "Best of the Class"). Peter Pavilla (also National Merit Commended Student, UNICO Scholarship, Presidential Academic Fitness Award, National Merit Commended Student & AHSM Honor Roll); Rebekah Mengertahl (Prent Award, Presidential Academic Fitness Award & Central Foundation Scholarship); Alok Pareek (also Math—Best in Class Award & Presidential Academic Fitness Award).

Roseville High School

Honor graduates at Roseville include Karen Brown and Marla Brown, Falcon Heights, and Molly Robinson, Lauderdale.

St. Anthony Park Elementary

Five hundred fifty students from St. Anthony Park School had the unique experience of involvement in a performance by Young Audiences of Minnesota May 16. They saw and heard the Barnett Jazz Ensemble. The Barnett Quintet introduced a jazz ensemble to children while exploring one of the key ingredients of jazz, improvised melodies.

The concert was made possible through the support of School District 625 and the Davis Foundation.
Local Church helps Central
On May 18 and 19 Central High School students performed Quilters, a theatre piece that addresses the issues of contemporary women and their own writings and music. The cast included three Park residents: Katharine Gaiser, Rebekah Mengenthal and Caitlin Murdock. But the "Park connection" was seen in a different way as well. Women from St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church constructed the dresses the actresses wore. At the end of the play, actresses and staff recognized with gratitude the contribution of Florence Holmsten, Marian Glew, Jill Brooks, Anne Moser, Louise Kalthurn, Eunice Peterson, Mary Martin, Glenda Martin and Evelyn Hame.

Fencers: Locals head for nationals
Local fencers from Minnesota Excubilur led the way to a Minnesota victory in both the Junior and Senior divisions at the Midwest Fencing Championship held in Madison, Wisconsin April 30 and May 1. Minnesota Jr. fencers dominated the under-19 events, winning 5 of 5 first places. Lauderdale resident Melissa Cutler won the Junior women's epee event. St. Anthony Park resident who produced strong finishes included Jennifer Prifeld, 2nd in under-19 women's foil; Elizabeth Krick, 2nd in under-19 women's epee and Chris Swope, 2nd in under-19 men's epee. Matt Cutler from Lauderdale placed 4th in under-19 men's epee while St. Anthony Park's Andrew Buchanan took 7th in under-19 men's saber.

The Midwest Section of the U.S. Fencing Association is made up of five member divisions: Illinois, Wisconsin, St. Louis, Iowa and Minnesota. These sectional championships were a qualifying event for the U.S. Fencing Championship scheduled for June 17-27 in Chicago, Minnesota Excubilur will have 11 fencers in 20 events at the U.S. Nationals. Because of the success of junior fencing in Minnesota, St. Paul has been chosen as one of four national host sites for regional junior development camps sponsored by the U.S. Fencing Association. The other sites are Portland, Oregon; Austin, Texas and Indianapolis, Indiana. According to Sherry Posthumus, chairperson for the U.S. Fencing Association's Junior Development Program, "these sites will host this country's hope for the 1992 Olympic Games and beyond."

The St. Paul camp will be coordinated by St. Anthony Park resident Bob van der Wege and will feature Yves Auriol as head coach. Auriol was the U.S. Olympic fencing coach in 1980, 1984 and will be again in 1988. He is presently the head fencing coach for Notre Dame University. The camp will be held from June 29 through July 9 at Concordia College. According to van der Wege, "The kids in the camp will get a day's rest midway through the 10-day intensive. We plan on bringing them to the St. Anthony Park Fourth of July Celebration to have some fun and take it easy. We may even ask them to march in the parade. "The kids who are fencing are very special because fencing is not a popular sport in this country and no American has ever won an Olympic gold medal in fencing," van der Wege continued. "We hope that when Park residents see these young people on the 4th they will take the time to make them welcome and encourage them. There's no telling, one of them could someday claim this country's first Olympic fencing gold."

Ethnic costumes for rent

By Dubravka Kolumbic

Carol Friedl knows how to dress for any occasion—any ethnic occasion that is.

Friedl is costume consultant for the International Institute of Minnesota, a major supplier of costumes for ethnic events such as the Festival of Nations, held this year from April 29 to May 1. The Institute, 1604 Como Ave., has a collection of rental ethnic costumes representing 50 countries and flags of over 100 countries. “As far as I know, we’re one of the only places around that has authentic costumes and rentals this close to authentic,” Friedl said in a recent interview.

Friedl has been a volunteer at the Institute since the early ’70s and became consultant in 1976. “It gets in your blood,” she said. “You absorb this stuff.”

One room at the Institute is the home of the collection and Friedl’s workshop. Patterns, sewing supplies and flags are organized in large wooden file cabinets. The costumes hang on racks sorted by country.

No one else [but I] knows where things are,” Friedl jokes.

Six wardrobe closets contain a museum quality collection of originals. Museum pieces aid in design reproduction and are used in the Institute’s ethnic events. Most of the costumes are donations from private collections.

“We do them regularly in the showcases [at the Institute],” Friedl said. “It’s a shame that the only time people can see them. I wish we had more room and better facilities. You can’t appreciate the costumes until you get up close and see them. Even in showcases you can’t really appreciate it.”

Friedl’s only help is two volunteer seamstresses who come every Wednesday. The three of them identify, index, preserve, and duplicate the over 700 costumes and over 100 flags in the collection.

Frances Long, 88, “comes faithfully every Wednesday,” Friedl said. And Caroline Olsen, in her 70s, “is so active, she barely has time to come!” Friedl said. Volunteers are always needed for re-inventory, and general upkeep of the costumes, Friedl said.

Girl Scouts, high school drama clubs, and Oktoberfest are regular customers of Friedl. Recently, costumes were used for events related to the visit by the king and queen of Sweden.

“We even had a couple get married in our Swedish costumes,” she said. Prices for a week’s rental range from $5 for group rentals to $30.

“We do discourage Halloween,” Friedl said. “Some people are very proud of their heritage and if the costumes are not worn for a specific event, it may be considered a slur on them.”

“A lot of the [costumes] we have can’t be duplicated. We’re always looking for more...you never know what you can find at garage sales.”

“Our big thing is that we don’t have many African or Near Eastern [costumes],” Friedl said. Scandinavian events are prominent at the Institute.

Friedl enjoys showing the costumes and pointing out fine craftsmanship on the originals. “I can’t imagine anyone wearing them,” Friedl said of two handmade Turkish robes in the museum collection. “They weigh a ton. They’re very old. You don’t see that [quality] much anymore. They’re just gorgeous.”

Some of the Oriental costumes at the Institute are at least 100 years old and probably more, she said. “A catalog file has them coded so we know where they come from. Some are so old, we don’t know where they’re from.”

“But being old isn’t the most important thing,” Friedl said. Some [costumes] have quality material that makes them valuable.

The Institute uses no advertising to promote its costume rentals. “It’s strictly word of mouth,” Friedl said. “We’re a good source for people who need a costume quick.”

And Carol Friedl knows her costumes.
Gems
The fourth annual Gem Fair will be held at the Minnesota State Fair, Education Building, June 24-26. This is the largest gem, mineral, jewelry and collectible show in the state. There will be displays of precious rubies, sapphires, emeralds, tourmaline, fire opals, jade, lapis, turquoise as well as crystals, minerals, agates, fossils, meteorites and jewelry supplies, tools and equipment.

Air Fair '88
Air Fair is a day-long celebration of programs and demonstrations at the the Children's Museum, Bandana Square, Sat., June 25. All events relate to air. Area science teachers will demonstrate air science experiments on the half hour, beginning at 11 a.m. Demonstrations are free with museum admission. For those who buy $2, all-day program passes in addition to museum admission, programs such as bubble magic, hot-air balloon making, paper airplane folding and kite making will be available. The Air Fair will run from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Homemakers “on their own”

By Michelle Christianson

They were all seated at the table when Florence led me to my spot—a special stool. (The table seats just eight.) I was dieting, but no one could have resisted that delightful concoction of cake, nuts, caramel and whipped cream. When I finished, I sat staring at the elegant crystal and china as the eight women stared expectantly at me, and I wondered, “How do I begin to interview a group of women, most of whom I’ve known for almost 15 years, one of whom is my mother-in-law?”

The occasion was a Homemaker’s meeting, although they haven’t been following that Ramsey County Extension program for about two years. The Home Study program, which used to be called the Homemaker’s program, was originally begun to help farm women get a night out with their friends as they developed homemaking skills. Every group in the statewide program sends a representative each month to the county headquarters to learn the month’s lesson, which she in turn teaches to the rest of the group at their monthly meeting.

But the women at this table are in their 60’s and 70’s and have learned all they care to learn about child-rearing, cooking, cleaning, sewing, crafts, financial planning etc., so they’re been “on their own” for the last couple of years, although they still call it their Homemaker’s group.

They wanted to make sure I knew everybody so they went around the table and introduced themselves, even though I knew them all. The “surviving members” are Florence Peuser, Elvira Skovholt, Pansy Peterson (who sold us our house), Emma May Haugan, Elaine Frost, Janet Christianson (my mother-in-law), Edna Pankonin, and Priscilla Throw. They insisted that I also include former members who have either moved away or died—Francine Johnson, Marvel Wagener, Gladys Turnquist, Estelle Arneson, Coll Ruudal, and Martha Kortemaki.

It was Martha who organized the group in about 1966 (no one was quite sure what the year was and a long discussion ensued to no avail), choosing those of her friends and acquaintances from the Lutheran church that she knew were interested in crafts. They were young mothers then with small children. Now they are grandparents and great-grandmothers—and grand friends. Martha chose well for they have supported one another through births, deaths, illnesses and great joys with love and good humor. They cherish one another’s uniqueness as well as the trove of shared experiences.

The following poem was written by Martha Kortemaki in 1984 before her death.

Projecting

Me thinks that I shall never see,
A group like the Homemakers from St. Anthony P.
Shirley Barber is kept on the run,
Trying to find lessons that they haven’t done.
One day she said, “I’m all through looking,
I think I’ve found it—linear cooking.”

“But wait—what’s that I heard Dan Rather say?
They’ve put some women in orbit today?
Who is the world volunteered to go?”
He said, “Edna, Pussy, Emma May and Flo,
Pansy Elaine, Priscilla, Elvera and Jan.
This time all women—nary a man!”

“Why it’s those girls from St. Anthony Park!
This time they’ve really hit the mark!
Shirley, there goes your lesson planning,
Cuz they’ve jumped the gun with this linear landing.
Well, I suppose at their age, it’s now or never,
But you’ve got to admit, they’re as young as ever!”

Orange or Spicy Tomato Juice • Homemade Muffins & Caramel Nut Rolls • Fresh, Fresh Fruit • Eggs Benedict • Eggs Florentine Carbonara • Crispy Vegetables & Homemade Dressings • Shredded Mushroom Bisque • Pasta Salads • Pan-roasted Chicken with Wild Mushrooms • Pacific Salmon, Poached in White Wine Served with Dill Sauce • Fettuccine Alfredo • Homemade Sweet and Tangy Lemon Sherbet

All that served in an elegant setting and for only $10.95.
Your little folk, $5.95! Isn’t that a terrific story? No villain, not a lot to think about, happy ending. Good family entertainment.
Brunch at Muffuletta: 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sundays
They did many activities under the Homemaker's banner—cooking parties, Christmas crafts, gardening—but by far those lessons involving food were their favorites. They've made fondué; leche; German, Greek, Italian, American Indian meals and even a Hawaiian dinner complete with a hula performed in costume by Esther Cunningham. The recipes weren't always successful, but the women always had fun. Elvera showed me a picture from a dinner many years ago—a picture of smiling young women radiating companionship and warmth. And now? Each person has a month and decides what the group will do at that meeting. Because their tastes are eclectic, they have done a wide variety of activities: visiting the Arboaretum, art galleries, the Swedish Institute, Murphy's Landing, an architecture class and the Ramsey House among others. They've done their Christmas shopping together in Lindenwood, and of course, each meeting begins or ends with lunch or coffee.

Thus the interview ended and it was time for all of us to go home, but they asked if I would play something on the old Steinway in the living room. I looked through the music on the rack and chose "Tenderly," a 1946 tune. As Puccini and Verdi and the others sang along it struck me again that old songs are the best.

Commonwealth salutes nurses

In recognition of National Nurses Day on May 6th, the American Hospital Association and the American Organization of Nurse Executives sponsored a national campaign to salute nurses. Patients or family members around the country who know of a nurse they feel gave exceptional care during the past year were asked to submit a one-page essay explaining why they believe that nurse should be considered as a 'Nurse Who Made A Difference.' Two residents and one family member submitted an essay about nurses from Commonwealth Healthcare Center. Dorothy Staloch wrote about Elaine Ball, who had been at the facility 11 years, left for Kansas for one-half year and is now back working at Commonwealth again. Dorothy said, "Elaine always has a smile on her face when I see her and she made me feel special by giving me this picture before she left for Kansas. I'm glad she's back." Commonwealth resident Pat Brooker and family member Irene Boyum both wrote about Barbara Clemenski who has been a nurse at Commonwealth for 12 years. Pat stated, "Barbara is a very special person, she's doing a great job. I'm feeling down she can really cheer me up by talking to me, laughing, smiling, and giving me a hug." Irene Boyum is the wife of resident Bob Boyum. The following is the essay which she wrote.

"It was a big decision to select a care center for my husband who became ill last year with a stroke, which paralyzed his throat, consequently enabling him to swallow. We chose Commonwealth Healthcare Center and we feel we made a wise decision. He needs constant skilled nursing. My first impression was the friendly atmosphere and the happy smiles of all the nurses especially one, Barbara Clemenski. She greeted us with a happy face and I knew then we were in the right place. Her compassion and service showed in her manner. Her soft voice and lovely smile will never be forgotten. Her kindness shown to all the residents and families of loved ones has made many dark moments more bearable. She worked so diligently with my husband, encouraging him to swallow, she succeeded the first part of the year, she had him swallowing a few teaspoons of pureed foods with her gentle persuasions. She has won him over, but in February he had a set-back again. Barbara is truly a dedicated nurse and has a special talent to work with the elderly. With God's blessing, she richly deserves a reward. As my husband quoted, 'She is the life of the party.'"

Heliport proposed

By Ken Holdeman
The Condor Corp. wants to install a heliport at University and Cleveland. On the evening of May 24 between 6-7 p.m., they ran helicopters over the planned flight paths. This test was made to show St. Anthony Park residents how much noise they could expect if the planned heliport is installed. If they have questions about the test or questions about the heliport, you should contact the Chirpinek Community Council, 646-8884 or Council member Kiki Scaggs, 356-5737.

The Condor Corp. is planning to use the old Dart building as corporate headquarters for Life Link which transfers critical care patients between hospitals. Currently, Dart operates 150 semi-trailer trucks from the site. They like this location because it is centrally located and has easy access to University Ave. and I-94. Life Link serves several hospitals providing mainly ambulances, but also helicopters. The hospitals they serve are of M. St. Paul, Ramsey and Abbott North western. They expect to employ up to 140 people at this site. KITP would also use the new heliport for its traffic and news helicopters. Life Link is expecting four or five flights a day (1 flight = 1 takeoff and 1 landing) with 80% during the daytime. Takeoffs and landings take 20 seconds. The traffic pattern will not be over residential areas and the closest residents are 1800 ft. away. The helicopters start their descent 1500 ft. away from the landing site.

There will be approximately 1100 ground ambulance trips annually (average 4 per day), 40-50% of these will be with lights and sirens from University via Van Hornes and 5-94. A major goal for the St. Anthony Park Community Council is to reduce noise in the neighborhood. Traffic on busy streets and highways and the railroad are currently our main noise contributors. The Dayton's bluff and West Side neighborhoods are currently concerned about the helicopter noise from the downtown St. Paul airport.
Mayor David Nelson and the Lauderdale City Council erected a sign for the Lauderdale Community Park before the council meeting on May 10.

Homdruds help Lawaikkamp

A St. Anthony Park couple has been deeply involved in that choice. They hope intensely that our choice will make a difference for the residents of Lawaikkamp. They hope that the choice will make a difference for residents of St. Paul, too.

Ted and Betty Homdrud worked in South Africa for 35 years as Lutheran missionaries. Ted began as a district missionary, moved into administrative posts and ended as treasurer of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Southern Africa. Betty did a number of things, too, ending as a lay seminary teacher and editor of church publications in six languages.

"I was in Johannesurg just before the riots in Soweto in 1976," she recalls. "It was impossible to overlook the unrest and anger of the black people at the injustices they experienced daily. I visited places where people, like those in Lawaikkamp, were threatened with removal or where people had been moved. When they were told they were moving, their community is destroyed. They know and trust each other. They work together and play games. They build churches and share gardens. When they are moved, it is all destroyed."

Earlier this year St. Paul City Council member Bill Wilson brought a resolution suggesting that St. Paul become a sister community of Lawaikkamp. Mayor Latimer urged the council to adopt the resolution and thereby to stand against apartheid.

The resolution passed unanimously Feb. 23, making St. Paul a bit of a pioneer. Berkeley, Calif., is the only other city to have made such a decision and it made its decision only a month ahead of us. The goal is to link 12 U.S. and South African communities during the next year.

"We're aiming for publicity, advocacy and solidarity," says Ted Homdrud. "After the council vote we went into the mayor's office and called a Lawaikkamp leader. When we asked, 'How do you feel about the new relationship we've forged?' he replied, 'We're grateful. We're desperate and we want and need support.' Mayor Latimer then assured him, 'We're with you and we will do our best.'

Since that February decision, the Homdruds and other city volunteers have launched a massive letter-writing campaign to tell the Pretorian government that many people across the ocean are in support of the simple request of blacks in Lawaikkamp to be allowed to stay in their homes.

Lawaikkamp is a black settlement about five miles from the white town of George, the borough town of State President F.W. Botha and the town where he still maintains a residence. The people have already been moved at least once. When they were moved into the Lawaikkamp area in the late '40s and early '50s they were promised that they'd never be moved again. Over the years they've settled in and developed a community life. Now the white government has decided they must move again, to a supposedly better black township, Sandrift, three miles away. Living conditions in Sandrift, the people insist, are worse than in Lawaikkamp and they'll have to take transport to jobs in George to which they now walk.
Midwest China Center instrumental in St. Paul/Changsha connection

By Mary Mergenthaler

The city of St. Paul “adopts” sister cities around the globe, people and organizations in St. Anthony Park play a major role. Individuals with a long-time love for South Africa were involved in the initiation of a relationship with Lawaikamp. A nonprofit organization housed in St. Anthony Park was the key initiator in the recent development of a sister city relationship between St. Paul and Changsha, China, as well.

The Midwest China Center, whose office is at Luther Northwestern Seminary, was founded in 1975 as a catalyst to develop relationships between China—defined as the People’s Republic of China, Hong Kong and Taiwan—and the Midwest. That effort has taken many forms over the years and recently has resulted in the organization’s deep involvement in setting up a mutually-supportive relationship between Changsha and St. Paul. A number of members of the board have been working on this project for several years. Cathy Chen Ron Bryant, honorary chairperson of the board, was in Hunan Province recently with the Lark String Quartet. She delivered a letter to the mayor of Changsha. Earlier this month the mayor, Mr. Wang Keying, came to St. Paul with five government officials from Changsha, three from the Hunan Economic and Construction Promoting Committee and the Chicago Chinese Consulate General.

“The China Center is acting as the facilitator to put together special exchanges,” says William O’Brien, director of the organization. “We essentially administer, the cities maintain official contact. We organized their trip here for the city of St. Paul and, admittely, we raised the funds to make it possible.”

There’s a long list of goals for the relationship. The few related here give an idea of the breadth of the hopes and possibilities. Changsha University is now a sister school with Hamline University. They exchange students and faculty and they plan a faculty seminar in Changsha in 1989. There are great possibilities for cultural exchange. They’ll send the Hunan Province Flower Dance Troupe and hopefully we’ll send a major group over during the next two years. In addition, Hunan Province has a wealth of artifacts from the pre-modern period so an enlightening exchange of cultural artifacts and visual arts is possible. A middle school in Changsha has entered into a sister school relationship with Highland High School. Fifteen students from Highland will go to China this summer and teachers from China may come to take in Highland’s China Studies program.

In addition, there are a host of trade-related issues, on which some progress was made while the delegation was here. There’s need for loans for economic development projects in the Hunan Province and a mutual interest in looking for technological exchange possibilities. O’Brien says, “Until the past year, when China thought of coming to the U.S. for trade or cultural contact, they saw only the two coasts. Now they’re seeing the Midwest as well, with St. Paul at the center.” That same problem of coastal prominence has hurt Hunan Province too. The cities on the eastern coast of China are the ones which have gained international prominence and hence have developed. Hunan is a more backward, inland province, isolated from international trade until now.

It’s an area rich in mineral resources but because of its isolation geographically and politically it has remained relatively poor. “There’s tremendous potential there, though,” insists O’Brien. “Their mineral resources are vast and they have a major computer/ electronic industry of their own.”

Clearly the work of the Midwest China Center is not over in this new exchange of information, ideas and materials. Clearly, too, the Changsha-St. Paul relationship is exactly the sort of relationship the Center exists to promote.
Home equity loans are not just for home improvements anymore

Not only that, they can save you money. Tax laws still allow you to deduct interest on home equity loans, based on the increase in market value of your home and the amount of mortgage you have already paid off. Better still, that amount is easier to calculate because of recent changes in the tax law.

Home equity loans come in two forms: A home equity secured installment loan for a specific amount of money paid off in fixed monthly payments over a set period of time; and a home equity secured First Line for the amount you need, when you need it and paid back as you want to repay it. In either case, the application is easier — and less costly — than applying for a second mortgage, and home equity financing may be 100 percent tax deductible.

What else can you do with a home equity loan? You can help your child through college, take advantage of a great investment opportunity or even head to Europe for that once-in-a-lifetime vacation — as well as landscape your yard or finally build a deck on your home.

Stop in to see your personal banker today about a home equity loan.

"First Banking is easier than ever"

Remember, no matter where you opened your First Bank account, you can now make checking and savings deposits, withdrawals and transfers at any First Bank Office in the Twin Cities area.*

Your First Bank Card gives you the same privileges — 24-hours a day — at FASTBANK automated teller machines (ATM) throughout Minnesota. First Bank Card customers have 24-hour access to cash at FASTBANK ATMs throughout the Upper Midwest and at the international network of PLUS/SYSTEM cash machines. First Bank Cards are also accepted at Instant Cash, Express Teller and TYME locations.

* Except First Bank Bloomington, a new member of First Bank System, which will have the same capabilities in late summer 1988.

President Reagan honors First Bank volunteers

First Bank System is proud to have been awarded the 1988 President's Volunteer Action Award for its corporate volunteer program, "Community First."

We were selected as one of two national winners from 125 nominations. The award recognizes outstanding corporate involvement in community volunteer activities.

services because the government has allowed no electricity in Lawaiakamp and uses a primitive bucket sewage system, but doesn't collect the refuse weekly as it is supposed to.

As those people in South Africa struggle and beg simply for the chance to choose where they live, Ted and Betty Homdrom and others in St. Paul tell their story here. The Homdroms speak at schools and at social justice events. Their goal has been to get many letters to South African government officials and U.S. officials in order to stop the proposed removal of Lawaiakamp residents on May 31. By Bugle press time, over 1000 letters had been delivered to the South African ambassador in Washington. Whatever happens next in Lawaiakamp, the Homdroms know their work is not done. If their letter-writing effort is as successful as they hope, they know there will continue to be blacks in South Africa who need the support and help of people abroad. If the homes are destroyed, Betty Homdrom hopes that they can still maintain contact with those hurting people. And both Ted and Betty Homdrom know that there is much work to be done to make Americans aware of the injustice and suffering in the land in which they lived and worked for so much of their lives.

Women inventors

"Her Works Praise Her: Inventions by Women" opens at the Goldstein Gallery with a reception on Sunday, June 12, 5 p.m., and runs through Dec. 16. Only about two percent of U.S. patents have been granted to American women and the display will honor over 80 women inventors and highlight their special contributions to technology. It will show how women have left their mark from the kitchen to high tech, from fashion to space travel.

Hooray for Library Kids!

Don't be surprised if the noise you hear coming from the St. Anthony Park Library this summer sounds less like construction and more like someone shouting, "Hooray for Library Kids!" the theme for the 1988 Summer Reading Program.

Beginning Mon., June 13 and continuing through the summer, all children who read or are read to are encouraged to stop by the library and become Library Kids. Just for registering, all children will receive a colorful bookmark and reading record folder to help them keep track of the books they read. A special "Hooray for Library Kids!" button featuring the Library Bear will be given to all children who enjoy ten books during the summer. The Library Bear and other characters featured in this year's artwork were designed by Minnesota author and illustrator Stephen Gammell.

Magicians, musicians, puppeteers, storytellers and live animals will once again invade the library this summer to add to our celebration of Library Kids. St. Anthony Park Library will offer two identical programs each week so that all can enjoy a less-crowded, more relaxed library visit that will be convenient for everyone.

Tuesday morning programs will begin at 10:30 a.m. Late sleepers, meanwhile, can enjoy the Wednesday afternoon performances at 4 p.m.

June 14 & 15: Zorlloff and Marco

The Nieniec brothers return to St. Anthony with an all-new magical show for 1988, complete with rabbits and doves.

June 21 & 22: The Flyers

The special sparkle of Rio and Marnie Flyer will quickly encourage the entire audience to join in and sing along during these high energy concerts.

June 28 & 29: The Puppet Playhouse

Join Sammy the Shark on an incredible undersea voyage to rescue a deep sea diver. Plus, a lively spoof of "Putting on the Hits" with our host, Alphonso the Puppet.

July 5 & 6: Venturoliquem with James Wedgewood Venturoliquem James Wedgewood and his little drinking companion named Patricia McGinnis, will captivate the audience with comedy and a wee bit of Irish magic.

All programs are free to parents, children and child care providers with no registration required. Funding is provided by the Friends of the St. Paul Public Library. Please call the library, 292-6655, for more information.

Obituaries

Marie Reusse

A former resident of St. Anthony Park, Marie Reusse, died at 74 years in Sun City West, Arizona, on April 26, after suffering a series of strokes. Never married, Miss Reusse had lived on Keston Street with her sister and brother-in-law, Dorothy and Hal Curley, for over 25 years.

A longtime employee of the old Gately’s Store in downtown St. Paul, Marie Reusse was a member of Corpus Christi Catholic Church. She was a native of Fulda, Minnesota.

Survivors include her sister, Dorothy Curley, Sun City West, Arizona; many nieces and nephews; several great-nieces and nephews. Patrick Reusse, sports columnist for the St. Paul Dispatch, is a nephew, as is Thomas Curley, owner of Curley’s Furniture Library in Mendota.

Isabel Dowell

Isabel Dyer Dowell died of Alzheimer's disease on May 2 in Nevada, Iowa, just nine days before her 96th birthday. Mrs. Dowell and her family had formerly lived on Grantham Street for over 50 years.

She was the widow of Austin Dowell, former professor in Agricultural Economics at the University of Minnesota. Her brother, Winthrop Dyer, and his family also lived in St. Anthony Park for many years.

Isabel Dowell was born in Nevada, Iowa, in 1892, and was graduated from the high school there. She later received a degree from Iowa State College. She was a member of the University of Minnesota Faculty Wife’s Club and the St. Anthony Park Methodist Church.

Mrs. Dowell is survived by her four daughters, three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

“Give me more,” the little robin seems to be saying. Too bad he couldn’t say that to the folks in the St. Anthony from the porch, in fact. He must have gotten enough to eat, though, for he flew away just
