Fun on the Fourth...close to home

By Mary Mergenthal

It's the assumption of local planners that not all urban dwellers head for the North Woods on the Fourth of July. There's lots to do right here and plenty of folks with whom to enjoy it.

Start the weekend listening to traditional brass favorites by the Philip Brunelle Brass Ensemble at Bandana Square's outdoor concert Fri., July 1 at 7:30 p.m. Bring a blanket or lawn chair and plan to enjoy Sousa and more as well as all sorts of food served by Bandana Square restaurants and eateries.

The St. Anthony Park Association welcomes everyone to the traditional Fourth of July celebration at Langford Park.

The day begins with distance races at 8:30 a.m. For those who want to move a bit more slowly (or simply watch the action) there's the grand parade at 11:30 a.m. The parade assembles at 11 a.m. at Como and Luther Place (except for bikes and buggies which assemble in front of the Unocal station).

The rest of the day will be spent at Langford with a concert by the St. Anthony Park Community Band, volleyball and horseshoe tournaments, animals, food, races and historical displays. Check p. 3 for the full day's schedule.

Igor Razskozoff's band will play during the A.F.S./Isabella chicken barbeque supper and the Convertibles will play at 7 p.m.

At 10 p.m. over three tons of aerial fireworks totaling nearly 2,000 shells will be launched from the Minnesota State Fairgrounds Grandstand infield. The fireworks will be choreographed to a special musical tribute to Irving Berlin. General admission seating in the grandstand is available for $2.50 for those 13 and over and $1.50 for children (or $2 and $1 if purchased in advance at any Twin Cities Midwest Federal). Of course, most of the aerial glory can also be seen from a variety of St. Anthony Park and Falcon Heights locations...one of the advantages of living right here!

Riding the rails—LRT decisions due

By Kathy Malchow

Ramsey County will probably decide on its preferred route for light rail transit before it's sure it even wants light rail transit (LRT).

In 1987 the Minnesota Legislature voted to fund LRT studies, giving county regional railroad authorities permission to plan LRT systems. And so the Ramsey County Regional Railroad Authority (RCRRA) was formed, made up of the seven County Commissioners. The Authority has been working with the Regional Transit Board, studying various corridor locations which would best connect downtown Minneapolis with St. Paul and the University of Minnesota. The RCRRA and the University of Minnesota are also working together to coordinate LRT with the U of M busway, or transitway, which has been on the burner for several years now. Identified as the top priority for LRT by the RCRRA is the Midway Corridor.

Perhaps thinking Hennepin County is in the forefront in its planning for LRT, Ramsey County feels justified in putting the cart before the horse, and has gone ahead with studies of corridor alternatives and soliciting opinions on "which corridor is best" from the Metropolitan Council (regional coordinating organization), the city, district councils, the Midway Civic & Commerce Association and other neighborhood groups.

In March of this year the Regional Transit Board and RCRRA jointly published a summary of LRT corridor possibilities based on consultants' studies. Six possible routes were studied: University Ave., I-94, two routes along Burlington Northern (BN) tracks, Marshall Avenue and the Short Line. Evaluation criteria included right-of-way availability from BN or Soo Line railroads, connection to other LRT lines, traffic impacts, development potential, numbers of potential LRT riders, land use compatibility, environmental impacts and costs for construction and operation.

Based on this summary report, the various organizations made their recommendations. It appears the choice has narrowed now to two: University Avenue or the BN Southern Route.

The Metropolitan Council, the St. Paul Planning Commission, Mayor Latimer and the Midway Corridor Task Force all have come down on the side of University Ave. as the preferred route. They reason that University Ave. will best attract and serve the most riders, will get built at the most reasonable cost and will provide the most direct access for riders from the Midway to downtown and the Capitol area. The Metropolitan Council adds that LRT on University Ave. would best serve the needs of low income families near the Avenue who don't have cars.

The St. Anthony Park Community Council doesn't agree. It supports the BN Southern route with the addition of bus feeder lines into the Midway, but stresses that this position could change after further study. This route runs under the Raymond Ave. bridge near Pierce Butler Route and would require permission from BN for a right-of-way on tracks already in use by the railroad. The Council's recommendation seems to be more a decision to keep LRT off University than a strong recommendation for the BN route. Mike Baker of the Council has said LRT is ugly, would limit future expansion of University Ave., destroy parking, limit access across University as well as access to businesses.

John Finley, Chair of the RCRRA, agrees with the St. Anthony Park Community Council. "University seems impractical," he said. "The more we look into it, the more problems we have with University Ave. — problems with congestion and pollution." Finley said BN has stated it is willing to negotiate the right-of-way to the tracks. "When the consultants' study was published it seemed to state that BN was not willing to negotiate that right-of-way, and I think the Planning Commission and other organizations made their recommendations in favor of University Avenue with that in mind," he continued. He's taken a tour on the tracks and likes what he sees.

With this additional information now before the public, the timetable for public input to the RCRRA has been extended to July 22. The St. Paul City Council will take up a resolution that favors University Ave. in late June or early July.

concert of the Roseville Community Band.

Children's games and adult athletic events — softball, volleyball, horseshoe pitching — will be organized beginning at 3:30 p.m. Potluck picnic supper will begin at 5 p.m. Participants are asked to bring their own picnic baskets with service for their families (plates, cups, utensils, beverage) and a main dish or salad for sharing. Bring blankets and/or lawn chairs as well. Flies will be supplied by the park.

Ice cream, cake and coffee will be sold from the warming house beginning at 6 p.m. and continuing through the band concert.

In Falcon Heights the annual ice cream social will be held Thurs., July 28 at 5 p.m. at the Falcon Heights Community Park on Roselawn.

Besides ice cream and entertainment for all there will be medals for top finishers in each event of the first Olympiad of the City of Falcon Heights.

Falcon Heights residents can get warmed up for that event at the ice cream social at Falcon Heights United Church of Christ, 1795 Holton St., on Thurs., July 21 at 6 p.m. That social features homemade ice cream and cake and recreational activities for the whole family.

Senior Chore Service

How does it work?

Workers of all ages (12 yrs. & up) join the Neighborhood Senior Chore Service and are matched with Seniors over age 60 in their neighborhoods.

Ramsey Action Programs, Inc.

Seniors contribute only what they can afford.

Services include:

Housekeeping/heavy lifting
Minor home repair
Seasonal yard and garden work
Snow removal (No food preparation, personal care, or mobility assistance will be provided)

If you would like to be a worker (paid or volunteer) or if you are a Senior who is interested in using this service, call Joan Norris at 646-8884.

Council actions at a glance

Actions taken by the Community Council at its June 8 meeting included:

- Voted not to support the proposal for a heliport at University and Cleveland, not because of noise, but because it is not the best use of that land, and it is incompatible with the long-range goals and objectives for University Avenue Redevelopment.
- Voted to oppose the Jobs Impact Statement policy now pending before the City Council because it is too expensive, too specific to a small group, and will make it more difficult for the city to do business.

- Communication with Ramsey County Commissioners commending effort to notify neighborhoods when a community residential facility is to be located there, but asking for clarification as to timing so that 60 days notice be given to allow for community input, investigation, and recommendation.
- Set the date for a neighborhood clean-up to be scheduled for Saturday,

September 24 from 11 a.m.
to 6 p.m.

- Extended an invitation to the St. Paul City Council to hold a meeting in the neighborhood to discuss neighborhood empowerment and to share the dreams for the future.
Date to be determined.

Twice monthly recycling

The St. Paul Neighborhood Energy Consortium announced this week that there will be twice monthly pickup of recycling materials in the District 12 area beginning in July.

Mary T'Kach, Recycling program coordinator for the Neighborhood Energy Consortium said "the time has come to increase our service level. Even though many local residents have been participating in the program over the past year and a half to two years, we need to make the program more convenient for people if we're going to grow and increase our participation rates. The number one comment we get from the public is that they would recycle at their curb if their materials were picked up more frequently. So we're offering twice a month pickup to half of St. Paul's residents. When funds become available we will expand twice a month pickup city-wide."

Materials collected at the curb will also be expanded to include miscellaneous non-motorized metals no larger than 3'x3' and no heavier than 15 pounds. Coat hangers will not be collected at this time.

Currently 723 households participate in curbside recycling in our area, but T'Kach says that number will easily double as more people realize the need for recycling and see how easy it is. "I think if people just recycled one item — like newspaper, they would see how easy recycling really is.
I think after a short time they'd be recycling glass, cans, metal and cardboard," T'Kach said.

Rick Hlavka of Ramsey County supports St. Paul's recycling efforts. "The Resource Recovery Plant in Newport was not designed to process all of the waste generated by Washington and Ramsey Counties. It was designed for the volume of waste remaining after recycling and composting programs remove certain materials from the waste stream."

St. Paul's Solid Waste Project Manager Rick Person agrees and says, "St. Paul needs to move forward in its efforts to recycle. Twice a month pickup will be more convenient for residents and should encourage better participation."

Recycling days will be the 2nd and 4th Wednesday of each month in our area. T'Kach cautioned people that this is not always every other week.

Our next recycling days will be July 13 and 27. If you have questions, would like to put up a lawnsign for the program or get involved in some other way please call the N.E.C. at 644-SORT, or call our office at 646-8884.

Sessions for block- workers

Beginning in July, information sessions on a variety of topics will be held for Blockworkers, coordinators and interested neighbors.

Crimewatch will be the focus of the first session, to be held at 4 p.m. July 18 in the community room of the recently renovated St. Anthony Park Library (on the corner of Como Avenue and Carter Avenue). A speaker from the St.
Paul Police Department will discuss personal safety measures and neighborhood crime prevention.

Community and household recycling will be the topic of the July 26 session at 12 noon, also to be held in the community room of the library.
A representative from the St.
Paul Neighborhood Energy Consortium will be available to answer questions.

Pam Sherman bakery will provide a door prize for both sessions.

All Blockworkers are encouraged to attend, and community residents are also welcome to participate.

Future session topics, locations, and times will be announced in the next Bugle.

Raymond/ Energy Park Drive

Residents of St. Anthony Park can expect to see construction work on the realignment of Raymond Avenue and Energy Park Drive within the next two weeks. Dan Haak, Department of Public Works (DPW) Project Engineer, has informed the Community Council office that the contractor, Total Asphalt Company, has been hired to begin work on the intersection in early July.

Realignment and installation of a semaphore will coincide with the sewer separation work to be done on Everett Court.
Both projects are part of DPW work scheduled as part of the activities to tie in the new Raymond Avenue bridge.
Bridge construction is scheduled to begin late this summer with completion set for spring of 1989.

The St. Anthony Park (District 12) Community Council is a group of 21 citizens elected to serve the District 12 area of St. Paul, including residents of St. Anthony Park, and representatives of commerce and industry. It is one of 17 citizen participation councils in the city.

The council meets the second Wednesday of every month. All meetings are open to the public. Check for location.

LRT from 1

Cooperation between counties (Hennepin, Ramsey and Anoka are all planning LRT routes) and the University seems to be most important to a regional LRT system. The Metropolitan Council acts as that coordinator. It will issue a revised regional transportation plan this year, which will include regional LRT recommendations.

How LRT will connect or be compatible with the proposed U of M busway is being explored by all sides, but not much has been done in this area yet since the busway is "on hold" because of financial considerations.

With construction costs of approximately $130 million being considered here, who would pay for LRT? That, too, will be discussed after the RCRRRA makes its recommendation for a preferred alignment. A combination of private, local, state and federal funds would likely be used. Steve Grochala of the City's Planning Department said that in the long run, LRT may not be built through the County Board at all, but may be considered only on a more metropolitan regional basis.

Finley stated that the RCRRRA will most likely make a recommendation for LRT alignment sometime this fall. Then the design and engineering studies will begin — to determine whether LRT is a real possibility.

Walk for Peace July 4

St. Anthony Park Neighbors for Peace invites area residents to make posters depicting things one can or will do to help promote peace in the world and to carry their posters under the Neighbors for Peace banner in the St. Anthony Park July 4th parade. Children are invited to "cycle for peace" by carrying their posters on trikes or bikes in the parade. Posters made by children at the June Park Festival are now on display in the lobby of ParkBank at Como & Carter.

For poster materials and/or information, call 341-9875 or 645-6294 (day or evening) and leave a message. Posters will be displayed at Langford Park following the parade.

Following the 4th of July speeches from the podium, Neighbors for Peace will have a brief circle of peace ceremony and will be available to answer questions.

Senior picnic

The Falconeers Senior Club picnic will be July 11 at noon at Roseville Central Park, Dale St. entrance.

Community picnic

"Old Tyme Family Fun: Celebrating 101 years of St. Anthony Park" is the theme for a community picnic to be held on Thurs., July 28 from 5:30-9 p.m. at the South St. Anthony Recreation Center.

Food will be served from 5:30-8:30. On the menu are brats, hot dogs, baked beans, potato salad, marinated cucumbers and tomatoes, watermelon, lemonade and coffee. Cost is $3 for adults; $1.50 for children. Bocce ball, badminton and croquet can be played between 5:30 & 8 p.m., a children's performance will take place at 6:30 and the Leon Bonrud Band will perform old time music from 7-9 p.m.

Water the trees

St. Paul Mayor George Latimer has announced that many young boulevard trees are dying due to lack of water. "Some trees planted six or seven years ago have died on Summit Avenue so we are very concerned about the newer plantings," he said.

According to city arborist, Tom Karl, the City has planted over 7,000 trees the past five years. "These young trees are the most in need of water, — especially with the dry spring and fall we had in 1987. Two stressful years is hard even on older healthy trees so the younger ones are really in trouble," Karl said. To help, residents are asked to place their garden hoses at the base of the boulevard trees and let the water trickle out for four hours. Repeat this every week to ten days until the problem eases.

According to Tom Mogren, the general manager of the Saint Paul Water Utility, the City has an adequate water supply so residents can water their trees without worry about a water shortage.

① A trust is an extraordinarily efficient and cost-effective estate planning tool. The trust serves the function of a will in that it directs the distribution of property after death, but the passage of the trust assets is accomplished without the delay and expense of probate. The dollars saved in avoiding probate at the very least pay for the cost of preparing the trust and in most cases greatly exceed the cost of the trust. Financial considerations aside, distribution of the assets from the trust relieves the executor, usually a daughter or son, from the burdens of probating an estate. In this way, the trust serves to satisfy the client's basic concerns — the appropriate, least expensive, and most convenient distribution of his/her estate after death.

Empower District Councils

We don't need "Neighborhood Empowerment"—a new project designed by the St. Paul City Council—because we're already empowered.

The City has agreed to pay a consultant $30,000 to coordinate a new project called Neighborhood Empowerment. In February, when the City Council identified its goals for the year, it wondered, "is the City's 'neighborhood system' working as well as it might in enabling neighborhood residents and business owners to solve neighborhood problems?" From these and other questions evolved Neighborhood Empowerment, a new project in which the city council will schedule neighborhood meetings in each of the 17 citizen participation districts over the next year and then draft recommendations on what actions it can take "on the policy and legislative level to foster neighborhood empowerment." (Quotes taken from a news release from Councilmember Kiki Sonnen.)

The project is a waste of time.

Hasn't the City Council heard that the District Councils are supposed to be the catalysts for empowering the neighborhoods? Doesn't the City Council remember that just last year Mayor Latimer, with his trusty aide Bob Kessler, visited each neighborhood under the auspices of the "Better Neighborhoods Program" to elicit hopes and dreams? Doesn't the City Council remember that every year each neighborhood gets to submit its top three project requests for Capital Improvement Budget (CIB) funds?

In other words, there are already plenty of opportunities for citizens and neighborhoods to be heard. Another "Neighborhood Empowerment" program is redundant. St. Anthony Park's District Council, one of the city's best, has monthly meetings open to everyone. It also has a Crimewatch Network, a Chore Service for Seniors, and is now organizing Block Clubs, to name a few of its programs. Last year it, in cooperation with the St. Anthony Park Association (another long-time neighborhood empowering group), trained Focus Group leaders to meet with neighbors to determine what the community wants; the result was the recently published Neighborhood Needs Assessment.

We already know what we want and where to turn for help. If the city wants to truly empower neighborhoods it should give that consultant's fee of $30,000—plus more—to the district councils, who have the programs, but need more money to make them work well.

City Council votes for compromise on house

What did we gain?

By Ann Bulger

Doug Doty's house will be allowed to stay where it is on Hoyt Avenue, but five conditions will have to be met, in exchange for granting the variance allowing the house to be only 13 feet from the street. The City Council voted 5 to 0 for this 5-point compromise on May 24, after Mayor George Latimer vetoed an earlier Council vote granting more variances on the house. The five points are: 1) Approximately seven feet will be taken from the top of the roof. 2) The chimney will be lowered accordingly. These two alterations must be completed before occupancy. 3) The second-floor patio door may have access to a landing and stairway no more than 54 inches wide. 4) The rear deck shall be on ground level. 5) An approved landscape plan will be implemented to soften the impact of the building. The last three conditions shall be completed within one year of occupancy.

The June Bugle contained a timeline of events surrounding the controversy over this house, beginning in March of 1987. As an involved neighbor, I've often been asked, "What did we gain?" Was it worth the hours of time that went into two Board of Zoning Appeals hearings, six meetings of the City Council, 14 meetings in homes of neighbors, two meetings with the mayor, and two with District 12?

Although the end results were far from what we had hoped for, there is a sense of accomplishment. We gave it our best shot and did all that could have been done. Had we done nothing, we would always have regretted our inactivity. We learned a great deal about zoning regulations and procedures and feel that there will be closer looks at inspections in the future. Some procedures may undergo changes as a result of this. We had the satisfaction of hearing City Council President Jim Scheibel say that the December 22 presentation by Liz Solem, George Howatt, Bill Bulger, David Fan, and Barbara Shiels was the "best-researched presentation ever given before the City Council."

The best part of this experience was getting to know our neighbors much more closely. Not since the tornado ripped across Dudley Avenue seven years ago have our neighbors pulled together in a common cause. Wayne Durham, who moved here from Atlanta a year ago commented that people there would never have put in such time and effort for a cause they believed was right. There were 46 people who signed the petition in September. Some were cheering from the sidelines, but 17 families were actively involved in the case. These people will always feel a common bond.

The challenge ahead lies in welcoming Doug and Debbie Doty to the neighborhood.

Letters

Young people ARE welcome

Dear editor,

In response to the letter published May 26, titled "Merchants take note," Speedy Market has always welcomed customers of all ages into our store. The product selection at our store shows that we cater to adults as well as young people. However, we think we echo the concerns of other businesses in our community who are experiencing the same problems with a few unruly young students.

Some of these young customers are behaving in a manner which is contrary to acceptable public behavior both inside and outside our store. They have upset other customers enough to keep them from enjoying the benefits of our store. So, we currently limit the number of young students who can enter the store to three at a time. We wish we did not have to make such a request of any of our customers. However, this is, as we see it, the fairest solution to the problems all of us have been having.

We are very willing to change our policy, but not as the situation currently stands.

The best way to resolve this disturbing problem is for everyone, especially the young students (good or bad), to be part of the solution. It is up to all of us to become involved and recognize that this is a serious problem. A few offenders are hurting all of us.

Sincerely,
Speedy Market

Readers reflect....

We asked some St. Anthony Park neighbors for their reactions to the "new" St. Anthony Park Library. Here are their comments:

"I never minded the older furniture, the cracked ceilings or the heat in summer. My only concern was the books. Now that the friendly old library has had a facelift and a bodylift, it is not only wonderful, it is beautiful!"

Annis Kellogg

"I like everything, especially the books."

Jeremy Behrens, age 9

"It has always been a pleasure to visit the St. Anthony Park Library. Now that its renovation is finally complete, the emotion evoked is closer to sheer delight. The elegant proportions and high arched windows of the exterior, which have long made the building a beautiful focal point for our neighborhood, are matched by a sumptuous interior—a perfect blend of good taste, elegance, restful colors, luxurious air conditioning and all the books one's heart could desire. The staff, as always, are pleasantly helpful. I even found myself smiling contentedly when check-out was delayed by a computer malfunction!"

Joanna Foslien

"You should go to the library to check out some kids' books. The library has a new rug in the kids' section. It's green. The checkout desk is in a new place, in front of the door. The girls' room has a new kids' toilet. They have some new books for kids and a new doll. They've got a new door and stairs in the basement. Go see it!"

Contraband

By Warren Hanson

On a steamy summer night, lying almost naked on an upper bunk bed with the covers all thrown off while the humid air hangs motionless in the room, staring up at the darkened ceiling as the crickets trill outside the wide-open window and everyone else is asleep, it's easy for a ten-year-old boy to believe in the kind of magic that adults no longer choose to recall.

He had an uncle in South Dakota. The boy and his family had climbed into the station wagon on the very first morning after school let out to go and visit the uncle on their way to the Black Hills on vacation. He was the best kind of uncle a boy could have, one who could talk about taxes and the weather with the adults when he had to, but who couldn't wait to talk about fishin' or show you the very best climbing tree in the state, maybe even in the whole world.

There was a spirit between the uncle and the boy that no one else would ever understand. They were more than relatives. More than friends. One was the boy the uncle used to be, the other the man the boy would become. They were one with each other.

The visit, as always, was over much too soon for the boy. But as his family was loading up the car, the uncle came quietly up to him with a magical twinkle in his eye and, putting his arm around the boy's shoulders, led him silently into the garage, where he reached into the tool cupboard and brought out a brown paper bag. The uncle hesitated for a moment, with both hands gripped around the top of the bag and a wry, knowing smile on his lips, then slowly presented it for the taking. Filled with wonder and without a word, the boy received the bag and opened it to discover what it contained. Fireworks!

That bag rode to the Black Hills and back stuffed beneath the back seat of the car so no one would know. The trappings of the Old West turned the family station wagon into a Wells Fargo stage coach, with the boy riding shotgun as they transported the precious load of gold dredged up from the bottom of French Creek. But the real treasure under the back seat was far more precious than mere gold, which sparkled only with second-hand bits of reflected sunlight. The treasure in the brown paper bag contained enough glistening magic to light up the entire sky.

As they crossed the South Dakota-Minnesota state line on the way home, the magic subtly changed. Now that they were on home territory, the treasure in the bag was against the law. The boy became uneasy, cautious. He was sure that the two or three state troopers they saw along the highway knew what he was sitting on and were watching him. He shot upright out of a drowse at the sound of an ambulance's siren. He would be found out. He was sure.

As they arrived at their home in St. Anthony Park and pulled into their driveway, the boy took the house keys from his father's hand and spirited his contraband up into his room before anyone could see. He stuffed it behind an old guitar in his closet, tingling with the thrill of having something he shouldn't have, of knowing something he couldn't tell.

He helped the family unpack the car and was awfully quiet during supper.

So there he lay on top of his sheets, the July heat relentless even in the middle of the night. He had already gotten quietly out of bed twice to check the contents of the bag in the closet, just to be sure it was real, that it wasn't just a nagging dream brought on by the heat.

Tomorrow was the 4th of July. Wouldn't it be great to light up the whole neighborhood with his uncle's gift! But his parents would ask questions. Where did the fireworks come from? Your irresponsible uncle. The one who refused to really grow up. No, he couldn't get his uncle into trouble. And besides, there were the police. But wouldn't it be great...?

Heat and excitement dripped from his forehead and soaked his pillow. And the first rays of Independence Day sunlight found him asleep at last.

"Come up and help me clean this attic!" I hollered down at my son. It was a miserable thing to ask him to do on a sweltering summer Saturday. But we had put it off too long, and besides, he had promised his help when we got him the new bike. So reluctantly he climbed the ladder into the oven of an attic, dishearteningly packed with relics of years gone by.

My back was turned to him as he emerged from the trap door and asked, "What do you want me to do?"

Dusty sunlight filtered in through tiny openings around the roof. I felt a wicked, warm, wonderful smile bloom across my lips as I turned toward him. I hesitated for a moment, with both hands gripped around the top of the brown paper bag that had been waiting all those years, then slowly presented it for the taking.

Two observations from one observer:

"The downtown St. Paul Public Library is nice, but you have to pay for parking. The Ramsey County library is nice, but it's out of the way and you have to put up with computerized card files which can cause an ulcer in a computer illiterate like myself. The Minneapolis Public Library is nice, but it's a long way and you have to pay for parking. The St. Anthony Park Library is GREAT. It is close, parking is free and best of all you don't feel like a stranger."

"The dictionary defines a compulsion as an irresistible impulse to act, regardless of the rationality of the motivation. As a compulsive reader I find myself reading everything that comes my way. When books are not available I read cereal cartons, milk bottles, soup cans, etc. I am very glad that the St. Anthony Park Library is open again so I can stop reading those darn cereal cartons."

Truman Olson

"Two words describe the St. Anthony Park Library — stately and striking! It strikes a chord of beauty, gives a sense of warmth and offers the promise of ongoing service to a community of readers."

Janie Schomberg

"If ever there was a living correlation between the symbolism of light and knowledge it now exists in the recently renovated St. Anthony Park Library, complemented aptly by Kathy Heiderich, the head librarian, as she greets and guides the merely curious and the seeking, young and old alike, with a genuine and ever-present smile—indeed, this woman never appears to frown.

"The library itself stands now as a kind of Pantheon in the Park — a beacon of light, as it were, to all and sundry, with its lovely heaven scented ceiling and shafts of light flowing inwards from every direction, beckoning to every Park resident and passer-by: 'Come, and come again, wherever you are.'"

The St. Anthony Park Library is done at last. It looks a lot different and better than it ever did...and yet more like it did in the beginning.

We end with the reactions of the president of the board of the St. Anthony Park Library Association.

Have you seen the library yet? No, no — I mean — really been inside and looked at what all those people were working on for the past six months?

Well, it was worth the wait. Our St. Anthony Park Branch Library is a thing of beauty, of restfulness, of aesthetic harmony, and again of purposeful service to all who are hooked on reading. The beauty begins by walking up the steps — all the cast iron spindles in the ballustrade are intact, no longer rusted out. All of the window boxes arrayed in full bloom, thanks to the ministrations of Bob Harvey and Janet Quale, and also of Dave Patsche the Como Conservatory gardener, who donated the dirt and the flowers.

Walk inside the front door. The little receiving hallway chamber seems the same. Two more steps and a marvellous aura begins. First, the desk: it's been moved to directly in front of us. Its impact is of light honey-colored beech with a broad band of shining

Falcon Heights computer kids are world whizzes

Joel Nordell, left, and Bryan Dodds have found that a computer, or at least computer knowledge, can make them winners.

By Jeri Glick

Two world computer programming champions graduated from Falcon Heights Elementary School last month.

Bryan Dodds, 12, and Joel Nordell, 11, learned just a few weeks before they graduated that they had placed second in international competition in computer programming.

The Falcon Heights sixth-graders, who will be attending Roseville Area Middle School next year, competed against teams from throughout the United States and as far away as Ireland, Australia, Spain and Canada. They placed second behind the Irish team.

The competition they entered, called the International Computer Problem Solving Contest, was sponsored by the University of Wisconsin-Parkside. It called for teams to solve five computer problems in two hours. Since most computer problems can be solved in a variety of ways, judges looked for solutions that were simple, concise and creative, said Rita Christenson, computer instructional aide at Falcon Heights Elementary School.

The road to Dodds' and Nordell's success began more than six months ago.

At that time, Christenson learned about a statewide computer programming competition sponsored by the Minnesota Educators of the Gifted and Talented. The contest, which would be held April 29, would allow teams to test their computer programming knowledge and abilities.

Christenson chose two teams for the competition — fifth-graders Ted Goldberg and Jay Springer, and sixth-graders Dodds and Nordell. Team members were chosen for their abilities to work cooperatively, and their math, logic and problem-solving skills.

Once the competitors were chosen, the work began.

From January through April, the students met after school for two hours a week of practice. Using a computer programming language called Logowriter, they worked on solving problems that had been contest questions the previous year and others that Christenson designed herself or found in various books.

In the early sessions, the students learned various computer commands and solved relatively simple problems such as finding a way to program the computer to draw a triangle of a particular shape and size, Nordell said.

Later, they tackled more complicated tasks such as programming the computer to draw a star with 100 radiating points, Dodds said.

By April 29, Dodds and Nordell were feeling pretty confident about their skills. At about 7:30 that morning they left for Spring Lake Park High School, where the contest was being held, with Christenson and the other Falcon Heights competitors. There they set up their computers alongside those of the other competitors in their division, which included teams of fourth, fifth and sixth-graders solving contest questions using the Logowriter computer language. At 10 a.m., the contest began.

"The first three problems were really easy," Nordell said. "It took us about 15 minutes to do them because they were graphics problems and we're good at graphics."

For instance, the first problem had the team program the computer to draw two squares, one inside the other, with the inside square half as large as the outer. A drawing of a turtle, which was already on the computer screen, had to be centered in the middle.

Dodds and Nordell had practiced doing this sort of exercise many times so it took almost no time at all, they said.

The real challenge came when they began to tackle the last two problems. These were word problems, for which the team felt less well prepared. In addition, Dodds and Nordell had taken a Logowriter instructional manual to the contest for assistance but were barred from using it by contest rules. The rules only allowed manuals published by Apple Computer Company. This one was not.

But to their relief, a competing group lent the team a sanctioned manual, Nordell said. "Without that manual we probably couldn't have solved the last two problems."

Problem No. 4 asked for a program that would tell the computer to randomly select a name from a list of several names. Then the computer had to print the sentence "The winner is ..., and fill the chosen name in the blank.

Problem No. 5 had the team write a program to reverse the order of the words in a sentence. Specifically, the program was supposed to take the sentence "This is it," and convert it to "It is this."

To solve these two problems, Dodds and Nordell patterned their solutions after examples in the borrowed manual. They also had to look up several computer commands with which they were unfamiliar.

After an hour-and-a-half of teamwork and trial-and-error, they were done. And they still had several minutes to spare.

By this time, Dodds and Nordell knew they had done pretty well. First, they were one of only two teams to solve all five problems. Second, they had solved the problems before the two-hour limit was up. And third, their answers were concise. They solved the first problem, for instance, in only six lines of computer commands; some other teams had pages and pages of commands, Dodds said.

Christenson knew they also had another thing going for them.

"People really noticed how well they worked together, which was one of the things they were judged on and which was really important to me, whether they won or lost," she said.

Several hours after the contest ended, the judges finished reviewing the contest entries and announced the results. Dodds and Nordell had placed second in their division statewide.

The competitors then packed up and went home, putting the contest out of their minds for several weeks.

Meanwhile Dodds' and Nordell's solutions were sent on the the international competition, along with those of other teams that had successfully completed the five problems. Several weeks later the results came in: the Falcon Heights team had placed second in the world in their division.

They heard of their success over the loudspeaker at school. But it didn't really sink in until Christenson announced the results in their classroom — and all of their classmates stopped what they were doing to clap.

School News

Murray Junior High

Many students from St. Anthony Park and Energy Park were awarded honors at Murray Junior High School on May 24, Honors Night. The following eighth-graders were on the academic honor roll: (Highest honors) Cedric Fan, Beatrice Foster, Elizabeth Kramer, Anne Nakanishi, Kent Nelsestuen, Michael Tressel, Noah Wagener, Ellen Wu; (Honors) Rachel Allyn, Erin Cooper, Andrew Davis, Kevin Dragseth, Peter Duggan, Andrew Favilla, Colleen Healy, Nicholas Holdeman, Robert Jens, Asma Khatoon, Rebecca Landa, Amy Lopez, Julie MacGregor, Brian Maddock, Laura Malchow, Stephen Mann, Nicolette McCormick, Cynthia McLean, Antonio Miller, Naomi Schumann, Brad Sperbeck, Renee Ward.

Seventh-graders on the honor roll included: (Highest honors) Naomi Davis, Michael Dennis, Michelle Friesen, Bjorn Monson, Wendy Peterson; (Honors) Arek Baizerman, Gwen Berggren, Naomi Dahlberg, Aaron Elefson, Allan Flinn, Justin Gagnelius, Clayton Howatt, Devon Leppink, Eric Maschwitz, Brian McLean, Sarah Nobles, Benjamin Nysse, Danielle Olson, Laura Prifrel, Evan Ruotsinoja, Janel Scholl, Zena Shuster.

Young people receiving departmental awards were: Challenge English 7, Evan Ruotsinoja; Challenge English 8, Mike Tressel and Elizabeth Kramer; Challenge Social Studies 7, Bjorn Monson; Mathematics, Algebra, Michelle Friesen; Spanish I, Zena Shuster and Devon Leppink; Spanish II, Elizabeth Kramer; German I, Wendy Peterson and Bjorn Monson; German II, Cedric Fan and Anne Nakanishi; Science Magnet 7, Michelle Friesen; Science Magnet 8, Anne Nakanishi, Mike Tressel, Kent Nelsestuen, Cedric Fan, and Robert Jens; Life Science 7, Arek Baizerman; Physical Education 7, Justin Gagnelius and Naomi Davis; Physical Education 8, Julie MacGregor.

Academic Improvement Awards were given to Justin Gagnelius and Eric Maschwitz. Erin Cooper and Devon

Leppink were named outstanding in Debate. Plaques for competition in Math were awarded to Kent Nelsestuen and Ellen Wu. Michelle Friesen was the winner of the Naomi Mergenthal Award.

Perfect Attendance certificates were presented to: (seventh grade) Naomi Davis, Brian McLean, Wendy Peterson; (eighth grade) Colleen Healy, Chris Purcell, Ellen Wu; (two years) Peter Duggan.

Como High School

Andy Karvonen and Ray Berdie, from St. Anthony Park, were Boys' State representatives in June. Their names were inadvertently omitted last month as was that of Jennifer Mayer, also from St. Anthony Park, who should have been included in the list of National Honor Society members from Como.

Senior awards not listed last month included: Adrienne Conner and Ray Poor, National Scholar Athletes; Jonathan Nysse, industrial technology; Neza Shuster, photography; and Jonathan Imbertson, who won the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution Good Citizenship Award, the computer award and shared math and social studies awards.

Undergraduates who received special awards at Hamline University this spring included St. Anthony Park residents Jason Denholm, son of Barbara Danley, and Trina Smith, daughter of Florence Smith. Denholm, a high school student from St. Paul Open School, received the Eliza A. Drew Prize in Art for Painting. Smith, a Hamline senior, received the Raygor Award for an outstanding student majoring in elementary education.

Jason Megard, son of Robert and Roberta Megard, was named to the University of Minnesota's College of Liberal Arts dean's list winter quarter. He is majoring in genetic engineering.

Arts Forum update

The St. Anthony Park Arts Forum has elected new officers for the coming year. Lindy Westgard will serve as president; Michelle Christianson, vice-president; Elizabeth Shippee, secretary and Bob Michaels, treasurer. Other new board members include Betty Ellis, Linda Maschwitz, Bob Munson and Mary Scanlon. They join incumbent board members Lise Christianson, Jim Christenson, Cathy Daly, Lambert Krinke, Steve McCormick, Louis Safer, Arla Savage and Tim Smith.

Lena Rothman's Thursday morning sketching class for adults at the St. Anthony Park Library has already begun, as has Karlyn Eckman's art class for young children at the South St. Anthony Park Rec Center. For more information, call Rothman at 645-3062 or Eckman at 649-1606.

Luther Place has kindly agreed to let the Forum set up the quilting frame for the centennial quilt in its craft area. People who are interested in working on this project Tues. or Thurs. afternoons from 2-4 p.m. should call Bernadine Dow (644-9642), Nora Johnson (646-2160) or Carol Faust (644-3430). Ruth Donhowe hopes this project will be completed by September. If you've always been curious about quilting, here's an opportunity to try your hand.

Ready to take the plunge?

You've looked around for months, checked the Sunday papers, chatted with dozens of realtors and finally found a house that you'd like to call home. Now what about financing?

You'll need a lender that offers a full range of mortgage options and alternatives — and the expertise to help you make the best decision. FBS Mortgage, a member of First Bank System, has helped more than 42,000 people finance their homes with more than $2 billion in home mortgages.

FBS Mortgage offers the flexibility and variety you need, including our new "Lock and Roll" program. "Lock and Roll" allows you to "lock" into today's rates on an adjustable rate mortgage and later, if interest rates change or if you change your mind, "roll" over into a fixed rate mortgage any time before closing.

FBS Mortgage can help calm the waves when you plunge into home buying, so call in Minneapolis, 370-4461, or in St. Paul, 291-5281.

We're committed to our communities

First Bank believes that the communities we serve should be better off for our presence.

That's why First Bank System and Minneapolis and St. Paul city officials recently developed a joint statement of partnership to help improve neighborhood communities. We've promised to assist the cities in reaching their $94.5 million goal to address neighborhood capital needs. Our financial expertise allows us to work closely with the cities, providing innovative solutions to financing needs.

Through this joint statement of partnership, we've said publicly, "Let's work together to make city programs work for the community."

Loan varieties offer many routes to a purchase

Just as there are many routes from one city to another, there are many routes to financing your purchases. A variety of loans available through First Bank can help you on your way.

- First Line™ offers a flexible line of credit that you can use for whatever you choose. Apply only once and funds are ready as you need them.

- Checking Plus is a revolving line of credit available on your First Bank checking account, combining the benefits of a loan with the convenience of your checking account.

- A First Bank installment loan is available with either a fixed or variable interest rate as well as a variety of repayment terms.

- A First Bank customer VISA® and MasterCard® credit card gives you a 16.8%* annual percentage rate (APR) on day-to-day purchases and a 14.4%* APR installment line for purchases of $250 or more, in addition to other convenient features.

See your personal banker about which "route" is right for you.

First Banks sponsors "Oklahoma"

The Minnesota Opera brings us back to pioneer days with its presentation of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma," a musical set in the Oklahoma territory around 1907. Sponsored by the First Banks, the show opens at St. Paul's Ordway Theater on Friday, July 8, and runs through Saturday, August 16.

As part of the sponsorship, free noon hour public performances will take place June 28 at First Bank Plaza in Minneapolis and July 12 at Rice Park in St. Paul. Come join us for highlights from the show.

Ticket information is available by calling the Ordway ticket office at 224-4222.

What's there to do?

By Mary Mergenthal

There's little need for kids in Lauderdale, Falcon Heights, St. Anthony Park or Energy Park to wonder what to do on long July days (or for their parents or babysitters, for that matter). The options are many and varied for activities and learning close to home. Here's a list of some of the possibilities.

Fishing

The Department of Natural Resources, Fisheries Division, keeps a number of urban lakes and ponds stocked with edible pan fish so there's no need to drive for hours to northern lakes in order to learn to fish.

Bridal Veil Pond on Kasota Ave. just west of Hwy. 280 is stocked with blue gills and crappies. Given the size of the lake, fishing is likely to be slow after the beginning of the season but it's a place to start, and it's close by.

Como Lake is another possibility, certainly, though there are a few more special restrictions there in terms of size of boat and size of fish which can be kept. Check the signs at the lake for information.

Bennett Lake in Roseville's Central Park is stocked with blue gills, crappies, Northern pike and large mouth bass as is Silver Lake in the St. Anthony Village/Columbia Heights area.

Volunteer teacher Harlan Seyfer shows Gibbs Farm student Katie Baer-Truer a thing or two about geography.

Access to Silver Lake is off Stinson Blvd.

You'll find blue gills, walleye, large mouth bass and channel catfish at Moore Lake off Hwy 65 and large mouth bass, blue gills, crappies, Northern pike and walleye at Long Lake just off Hwy 694 and Long Lake Road.

Gibbs to Goldstein

The Science Museum of Minnesota is offering a class for kids right in our own backyard, taught by a local resident.

"From Sheep to Shape: Inventing with Fiber," offers young people an opportunity to observe and create. Teacher is St. Anthony Park resident Catherine Daly. Classes for 4 to 5 year olds are offered Mon., Wed., Fri., July 25, 27, 29 and classes for 6-8 year olds are offered Mon., Wed., Fri., Aug. 1, 3 and 5. All classes run from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

At Monday classes students will visit Gibbs Farm and meet wool givers and wool gatherers. On Wed. they'll visit the Goldstein Gallery on the University of Minnesota St. Paul Campus. There they'll see "Her Works Praise Her," an exhibit featuring women inventors and their special contribution to technology. That day students will begin their own inventions, works which they'll complete at Friday class.

Cost is $24 for Science Museum members, $26 for nonmembers. Registrations must be mailed to Science Museum of Minnesota, Education Division, 30 E. 10th St., St. Paul, MN 55101 or delivered to the museum. No phone reservations.

Church School in Lauderdale

Peace Lutheran Church in Lauderdale is offering Church Summer School Aug. 8-12. The sessions, open to all in the community, will be held Mon.-Fri., 9-11 a.m. at the church, 1744 Walnut at Ione.

Bible lessons, music, refreshments, crafts and games will be offered for children three years through 6th grade. Older children are encouraged to volunteer as teacher assistants.

A $5 fee will be charged with a $10 family limit. Advance

Reading in Roseville

The summer reading program at the Ramsey County Public Library is already in full swing. Two July features at the Roseville Library are visits from reptiles and puppets. Terry Odegaard's World of Reptiles is coming Mon., July 11, 1:30 p.m. He'll introduce kids to a variety of reptiles both colorful and touchable. He also provides interesting and educational facts about the care, feeding and habits of each specimen he brings.

With Alphonso the Puppet as host, the Puppet Playhouse will do a lively musical spoof of "Puttin' on the Hits" when they perform Mon., July 18, 3:30 p.m. Puppeteers Fran Rosen and Renee Seal will take children 13,000 feet under the sea with Sammy the Shark to save a deep sea diver. This will be a good show for elementary school age children as well as preschoolers.

Bon jour, Buenos dias, Guten tag

Games, songs and activities will be used to teach French, German, Spanish and Japanese to children from 5-12 years old this summer at the International Institute of Minnesota, 1694 Como Ave. Two sessions are planned for Mon.-Thurs. mornings or afternoons from July 18-28 (for 5, 6, and 7 year olds) and from Aug. 1-11 (for 7-12 year olds). Call 647-0191 for more information.

Olympic games

The first Olympiad of the City of Falcon Heights will be held July 25-28. This special week will feature individual and team competitions for youth in such events as freethrow shooting, checkers, mini-soccer, 50 yard dash, baseball throw, gunny sack race, bike decorating, T-ball, near ball, tennis and bowling.

Opening Ceremonies will be marked by a decorated bike parade at the Community Park on Mon. evening, July 25. Closing Ceremonies will take place at the Falcon Heights Ice Cream Social on Thurs., July 28.

Bible School in the Park

Vacation Bible School is being held at St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church, 2323 Como, July 11-15, 9:30-11:45 a.m. All children are welcome. There's a $5 registration fee. Call the church office, 645-0371;

Movies, music, songs & stories

The Children's Museum at Bandana Square has plenty to offer anytime and summer is no exception. Friday night specials are an old time radio band concert 7 p.m., July 8; the movie of Maurice Sendak's Really Rosie on July 15; old time family radio hour with the amazing adventures of "Superman" July 22 and a movie of all-time favorite Winnie the Pooh and a Day for Eeyore on July 29. Those programs are all at 7 p.m. and are free with admission (which is at the special Fri. night rate of $1).

During the day there are all sorts of learning opportunities including: storytelling Sun., July 3, 1 p.m.; And to Think I Saw It on Mulberry Street at 1:30 Wed., July 6; and the Twin City Institute Jazz Band at 11 a.m. the same day.

There will be a chance to meet live musicians and live instruments at 1 p.m. Sun., July 10. Kids can get their faces painted at 1:30 Wed., July 13 or ride in a firetruck Sat., July 30, 1-2 p.m. There will be original plays by the Museum's C.M.

SUMMERTIME SUNDAY SUPPER

Muffuletta's answer to that nagging Sunday night question:
What's open?

Well—we are—and we will be all summer long. Relax on our patio with a crisp garden salad, some fresh seafood off the grill, a cool drink—or our special "Louisiana Shrimp Boil."

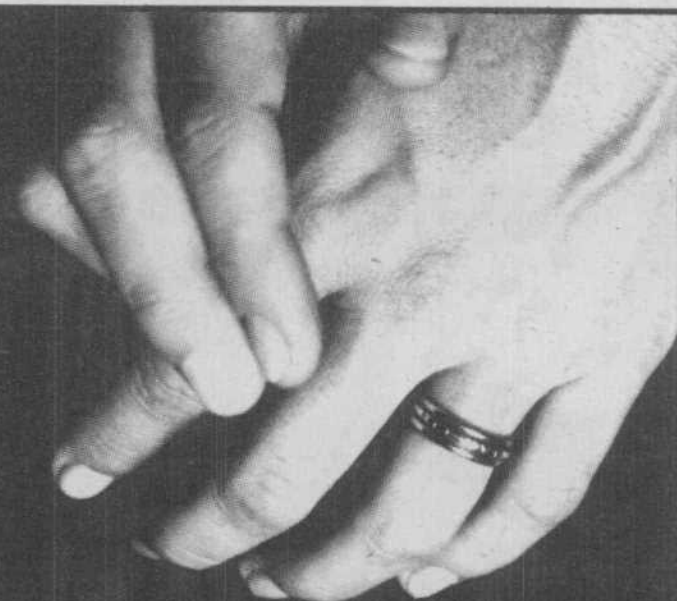

Now there is more to Sundays at Muffuletta than our "award winning" Sunday Brunch.

Sunday dinner served from 5 to 9 pm through the summer of 1988.

brass. The desk contains all operations and machines, the returned books area, computer check-out, smiling Kathy Heiderich and her hard working helpful crew.

Then the eyes move upward — the windows are still beautiful arcs of glass, but different. Thermal panes, we are told. And the lovely plaster filigree work, an enchanting eye-trail around the whole room, which seems larger somehow. It's not been increased in size, has it? No, it's just lighter, more airy and open, a gift of new dimension from the elegant, stately, distinctive chandeliers, goblets of light which bestow a spaciousness we didn't realize before. The old false ceiling used to cover this splendid serenity. Everything seems to be seen in a different light. It is simply beautiful.

The green-slate tile under one's feet at entry gives way to a quiet green carpet, almost a meadow, as one moves toward the new beech shelves with their thin patrician brass strip across the top. The record collection is to the left, and the magazine reading area is just beyond.

The downstairs steps pull us from this new beauty and we descend to the old assembly room area, which has been transformed. Gone are the tangle of metal entrails overhead, plumbing pipes of every size and water purpose — they've all vanished. Instead, a quiet, acoustic ceiling with recessed lighting casts a pleasant, efficient light around the areas.

To the east side of the room, one's left after stepping down the two steps, is a new stairway up to the emergency exit door, a safety factor that scarcely intrudes the space. The good old piano is adjacent. Diagonally across the room are two new dark wooden cabinets that will contain a new color TV set, a VCR, and audio components for special program needs.

Everything is so somehow clean, compact, neat and tucked into place. The recessed windows, also thermal, invite passers-by to look in and see all that's going on. And the plain yellow scuffed tile floor, about the only old thing that remains down here, will soon be covered with new carpeting ready to be challenged by the many needs of myriad children and adults. It will be a newer cozy beehive for all of our buzzing activities for St. Anthony Park. Down the hall are refurbished "facilities," and a meeting room still occupied with, Kathy laughs, "...loads of boxes till we get all unpacked."

How to describe it all? Could you say cool? Well, yes; it's now air conditioned — delightfully cool despite the June/July heat wave. And there's a brand new furnace, also.

But, to return upstairs and its quiet elegance broken by the babble of children's inquiries, and the friendly, smiling faces of our librarians, one is pleased and reassured, rewarded and very grateful. It's functional, it's beautiful, it's been worth the wait. Some things turn out really all right.

coming?

By Kathy Malchow

Where's the new Raymond Ave. bridge? That question was posed to the City's chief bridge engineer, Art Werthausen. He says the project has been delayed primarily because of paperwork. The red tape is extensive, since approval and coordination have to be worked out between the city, county (Raymond Ave. is a county-owned road), and the Burlington Northern Railroad. "We're moving as fast as we can," he contends. "I am personally running around getting signatures on these papers."

The latest projection, according to Werthausen, is for the city to "let bids" (begin the bidding process) on July 20. That will take about three weeks. Then construction is expected to begin in early fall (read State Fair time) with completion scheduled for spring. Werthausen says no disruption of traffic should occur, since the old bridge will be in use until the new one is finished.

And yes, the old bridge is still considered safe.

Speaking Briefly

At the Farm

The Sunday schedule in July at Gibbs Farm Museum is as full of interesting features as are other Sundays throughout the Gibbs' season. On July 10, an afternoon of turn-of-the-century immigrant experiences will be offered. At 2 p.m. singer and storyteller, Karen Lee, will both sing the songs and tell of the fears and hopes of the immigrant. She will be followed by a moving presentation by Darel Leipold at 3 p.m. on the sinking of the Titanic. Representing the glorious promise of America's "Streets of Gold," the Titanic's demise also represented a grim reality of the immigrant experience. Locked in steerage, prevented from reaching the few life-boats on board, they died in larger numbers than any other class of passengers.

On July 24 the annual Country Festival will return. Games, food, an auction and live entertainment will provide a rich and varied summertime experience for all ages.

Gibbs Farm Museum is located at the corner of Cleveland and Larpentur Avenues in Falcon Heights. Hours are 10-4 Tues.-Fri. and noon-4 Sundays. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $2 for seniors and $1 for children ages 2-18. For more information, call 646-8629.

Music outdoors

Friday nights through Aug. 12 Bandana Square will feature a variety of musical groups on the courtyard. July 1 hear the Philip Brunelle Brass Ensemble; July 8 the Whitesidewalls will play rock-n-roll of the 50's and 60's; and July 15 the Minneapolis Pops Orchestra will play light classics, marches, operas and show tunes. The Rockin' Hollywoods play July 22; the Minneapolis Chamber Symphony plays light classics on July 29; the Minnesota Brassworks plays classical, ragtime and swing on Aug. 5 and there will be dixieland jazz by the Mouldy Figs on Aug. 12. Box suppers are available from a variety of eateries and restaurants. Concert goers are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets.

Exercise in Falcon Heights

Karate, cheerleading, aerobics and bowling classes have already begun but it's still possible to join in. Tae Kwon Do, the art of hand and foot fighting, teaches self-defense skills as well as increasing physical fitness, flexibility, concentration and self-discipline. The class meets Tues. and Thurs. afternoons and is open to youngsters entering grade 3 or higher.

Cheerleading meets on Wed. from 11 a.m.-noon. Cheerleaders must be entering grade 4 or more. Junior aerobics is for kids entering grades 3-6 and meets Mon. and Wed. mornings. All of these classes meet at Falcon Heights School.

Bowling classes are held Tues. mornings at Falcon Lanes, 1550 Larpenteur, for students entering grade 4 or more.

Younger kids can get in on Session II of Discovery (Mon. and Wed. mornings for three and four year olds) or Kid's Stuff (Tues. and Thurs. mornings for ages 5 and 6).

Call Falcon Heights City Hall, 644-5050, for information on any of these classes, or stop in to register at the City Hall, 2077 W. Larpenteur.

Enjoy the "new" library

Children who read on their own, or are read to, may join the Summer Reading Club all through July at the St. Anthony Park Library. Upon joining, all Library Kids receive a bookmark and a reading record. Club members are also invited to play the Summer Reading Club Game and to receive a "Hooray for Library Kids" after they enjoy ten books.

Each Tues. at 10:30 a.m. and each Wed. at 4 p.m. identical programs are presented. On July 12 and 13 Mary Lou Martin's Animal Adventures will present ferrets, snakes, owls and a friendly tarantula who'll crawl up your arm. There's also a parrot who sings "Happy Birthday" just slightly off-key.

July 19 and 20 the Climb Theatre troupe, well-known in the Twin Cities for their adaptations of both famous and less familiar folk and fairy tales will be present.

The Sunshine Band will offer songs and smiles during their interactive musical concert July 26 and 27. The trio incorporates guitar, flute, trumpet and a variety of percussion instruments in their performance of both familiar songs and original compositions.

All programs are free to parents, children and child care providers with no registration required. Funding is provided by the Friends of the St. Paul Library and MELSA. Call 292-6635 for more information.

Big Wheel Rally

The St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation invites youngsters to participate in a Big Wheel Rally on Thurs., July 14, 6:30 p.m. at the Bandana Square Parking Lot, in front of the Children's Museum. Children will participate in three different age groups from pre-school to 2nd grade. The event is non-competitive and is meant to be a fun experience with little emphasis on winning. Scheduled events include drag races, an obstacle course, a slalom run, a circular ride, the snake and as a finale the "Le Mans 500."

The event is free. Children must furnish their own big wheel, reasonable facsimile or tricycle. Registration will take place just prior to the event. For more information, call 292-7400.

Wonderful Wacky Wednesday

A program of weekly field trips for children in kindergarten - grade 6 is continued by Falcon Heights United Church of Christ, 1795 Holton St., in July. July 6 children will visit the Falcon Heights Fire Station and a miniature golf course. On July 13, they'll go to Children's Day at Fort Snelling. On July 19 (a Tues., not Wed.) they'll see the Tamarac Nature Center (or the Science Museum of Minnesota if it rains). They'll stay in Falcon Heights and visit Gibbs Farm on Wed., July 27. Cost varies from $2-$4 and permission slips are necessary. Call 646-2681 for information and registration materials.

Trips leaving St. Anthony Park

Two July field trips are being offered for kids of all ages. Children grades 3 and younger must be accompanied by a parent.

On Fri., July 8 there's a trip to Lake Rebecca, one of Hennepin County's most popular summer choices.

When it comes to recycling...

Illustration after Guindon
by Barbara Lyman

...once is not enough.

Introducing twice-a-month recycling pick-ups in Saint Anthony Park.

Why?

We're making recycling easier than ever. If you already recycle, you know that your participation saves energy, preserves the environment, creates jobs in St. Paul, and saves you money. In fact, recycling costs less per ton than any other waste disposal method — including incineration.

Starting in July, the opportunity to recycle will come to your neighborhood twice every month. We're expanding the service because recycling is important — and so simple, it works.

Sponsored by:

- The St. Paul Neighborhood Energy Consortium
- The St. Anthony Park Community Council
- Ramsey County
- City of St. Paul
- The Minneapolis Foundation

For more information, call 644-SORT

How?

Put your recyclable materials on your curb in paper grocery bags or cardboard boxes before 7 a.m. on pick-up day. Materials in plastic bags will not be accepted.

MATERIALS COLLECTED CURBSIDE:

- Newspaper
- Rinsed glass bottles and jars
- Cardboard (flattened, 3'x3' or less)
- Beverage and food cans
- Non-motorized scrap metal (3'x3' or less and no heavier than 15 pounds)

MATERIALS NOT COLLECTED CURBSIDE:

- Magazines and other glossy paper
- Windowpane glass and light bulbs
- Glass dishes
- Milk cartons
- Plastics or styrofoam of any kind
- Building materials

When?

ON THE 2ND AND 4TH WEDNESDAY OF EACH MONTH.*

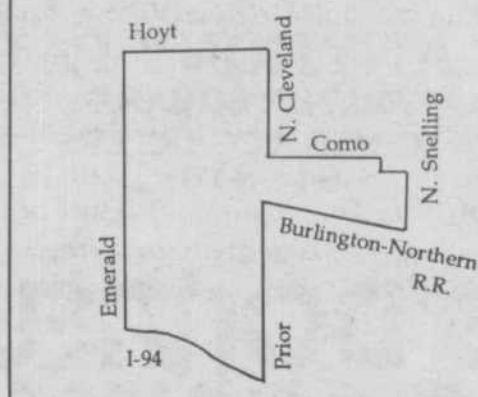

Before 7 a.m. on:

July 11 and 25
August 8 and 22
September 12 and 26
October 10 and 24
November 14 and 28
December 12 and 23

Neighbors

Janet Quale of St. Anthony Park received the Midway Civic & Commerce Association's (MCCA) community service award, an honor given annually to someone in the city who has given much to his or her community without receiving extensive recognition in the past. Quale was nominated by the St. Anthony Park Community Council for her years of leadership with the St.
Anthony Park Library Association. The MCCA solicited nominations from all area district councils and service groups. Julie Himmelstrup of St. Anthony Park was also a nominee of the St. Anthony Park Community Council for her administration of Music in the Park.

The needlepoint handiwork of Adah Lou Dunnwald of St.
Anthony Park can be seen on one of fourteen handstitched chaircovers dedicated on June 5 at the Episcopal Church Home in the Midway. Original patterned designs by Catherine

Hearding Osten were adapted from other furnishings in the meeting room where the chairs will be appreciated for beauty as well as function. The Episcopal Church Home has provided long-term residential care for the elderly for 90 years.

St. Anthony Park residents involved in the Saint Paul Area Synod Assembly of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America at Gustavus Adolphus College June 3-4 included:
Alice Hausman, vice president of the synod; Pastor Jeff Rohr, who served on the reference and counsel committee; and Rebekah Mergenthal, lector at the opening worship.

Ruth Wirt, Falcon Heights, was recipient of the College of Home Economics Alumni
Service Award for 1987-88.

David Laird Jr., St. Anthony Park, has been named president and chief executive officer of the Minnesota Private College Council. He leaves a position as vice president for planning and development for Carleton College in Northfield.

Obituaries

Richard Alquist

Richard Alquist, a former resident of South St. Anthony Park, died at the age of 60 on June 13. A graduate of Murray High School, Alquist took over the plumbing business formerly owned by his father and a partner, Alquist and Clark Plumbing. The business was located in South St. Anthony Park, where both men lived.

Richard Alquist later sold the firm and became a plumbing inspector in the northern suburbs. He lived in Shoreview for many years.

Alquist is survived by his wife, Trula; three sons, Richard, Gilbert, and Steven; a daughter, Gail; a grandson, Clinton; and a brother, James. All live in the St. Paul area.

Monsignor Paul Colbert

Monsignor Paul Colbert, former pastor of Corpus Christi Church, died on May 29 at the age of 81, five days before he would have celebrated his 55th year in the priesthood. During his tenure at Corpus Christi from 1953 to 1964, Father Colbert lived in the rectory next to the church on Cleveland Avenue.

He is remembered as the priest who saw the need for a Catholic school in the area, bought the property on County Road B and Fairview, and supervised the construction of the Corpus Christi School. He obtained the services of the School Sisters of Notre Dame, and the school opened in September, 1959. He also directed the building of an addition in 1963.

Noted for his ability to remember names and faces, Monsignor Colbert was a force for ecumenism in St. Anthony Park long before this became a household word. He was transferred to Annunciation Church in south Minneapolis in 1964, where he remained until his retirement 15 years later.

He is survived by a sister, Mary Colbert of Minneapolis.

Funeral Mass was said by Archbishop John Roach at Annunciation Church on June 2.

Myrtle Poehler

A resident of St. Anthony Park for over 50 years, Myrtle Poehler died on May 19 at the age of 93. She often spoke of her Norwegian heritage and her childhood in Harmony, Minn. After receiving her degree from the University of Minnesota's St. Paul Campus, she taught home economics before her marriage to Kenneth Poehler.

When their oldest son entered college, the Poehlers moved from Herman, Minn. to their home on Chelmsford St. Mr. Poehler changed his career from that of a school administrator to that of a salesman of school supplies. Although the firm for which he worked was located in the neighborhood on Como Avenue, he traveled throughout the state. They also visited their farm in North Dakota.

Preceded in death by her husband, Mrs. Poehler is survived by three sons, Wayne of Warren, Ohio; Gale of Benson, Minn., and Kenneth of Falcon Heights; 13 grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

Sister Dolores Waldoch

A former principal of Corpus Christi School, Sister Dolores Waldoch died on May 29 at 64 years. A member of the order of School Sisters of Notre Dame, Sister Dolores served as principal of Corpus Christi from 1971 until 1977. She had returned for an anniversary celebration early in May, a few weeks before her death.

Sister Dolores also taught the eighth grade during her stay at Corpus Christi. She was known for thoroughness and fairness. She had been serving as principal at Wabasha, Minn., when her struggle with cancer forced her to retire to the motherhouse in Mankato.

Sister Dolores is survived by two brothers, John Waldoch of Glencoe and Mike Waldoch of White Bear Lake; two sisters, Ethel Johnson of St. Paul and Cecilia Eggert of Robbinsdale; several nieces and nephews.

Community meetings on crime and recycling

The Blockworker program in St. Anthony Park is being expanded quickly after the recent appointment of its first Community Block Club organizer, Nona Narvaez. A series of sessions providing information for blockworkers and community residents has been scheduled, starting Mon., July 18 at 4 p.m. in the Community Room of the St. Anthony Park Library.

At this meeting Crimewatch, personal safety measures and neighborhood crime prevention will be discussed by a member of the St. Paul Police Dept. On Tues., July 26, at noon in the same location, a discussion on household and community recycling issues and techniques will be led by a representative of the St. Paul Neighborhood Energy Consortium.

Interested neighbors are urged to attend. There will be more sessions scheduled in the following months. The Blockworker program is sponsored by the St. Anthony Park Community Council and the St. Anthony Park Association.

Business News

Kate Lehman has been named to the position of managing director for Film in the Cities Media Arts Center. She has been manager of Production Resources/Senior Production Manager at KTCA/TV for the past seven years. At FITC she will be responsible for financial, personnel and day-to-day administration of the organization.

ParkBank announced the election of Richard B. Beeson, Jr. as vice president and senior commercial loan officer. He brings ten years of management experience with the City of St. Paul Planning and Economic Development Department.
