

The State Fair...llamas, acrobats, donuts and more

"Our state fair is the best state fair in this state!" So goes the song from the musical "State Fair." So goes the echo of thousands around Minnesota who will come to the Minnesota State Fair, in our own backyard.

An anticipated 14,000 people will participate as exhibitors, vendors and workers at the fair. It's likely that well over one million people will come to enjoy, to buy, to gawk and to meet friends. The 12-day celebration of agriculture, industry and entertainment gets under way Thurs., Aug. 25 and continues through Labor Day, Sept. 5.

Some 35,000 entries are expected in livestock, fine arts, fruit, baked goods, crops, school projects, vegetables, crafts, bee and honey products, flowers, butter and cheese and more.

A new competition this year will be the first-ever llama show. The llamas will be housed in the horse barn and will be judged Thurs., Sept. 1.

Another first-ever event will be the appearance of the famed Incredible Acrobats of China. The Chinese acrobats represent the best of China's renowned acrobatic, circus and magic troupes. Jugglers, contortionists and tumblers will perform ten shows daily during the fair in a specially-constructed portable theatre near Snelling east of the Dairy Building.

Admission to those shows will be $3 for adults 16 and over and $2 for youth. The acrobats appear at the fair through cooperation with the Ministry of Culture of the People's Republic of China, the China Performing Arts Agency and the Shanghai Acrobatic Troupe.

The '88 State Fair Grandstand concert lineup includes 14 shows featuring country, pop and folk music, rock'n'roll, jazz and comedy. All grandstand shows are followed by aerial fireworks.

Also on the '88 State Fair Grandstand schedule is the Miller High Life 300 American Speed Association late model stock car race. Several of the leading drivers on NASCAR's Winston Cup circuit are scheduled to take on the stars of the ASA in the State Fair's Labor Day auto race classic.

In addition there are hundreds of free performances daily at five stages around the fairgrounds. The State Fair goes on parade every day except Labor Day. Floats, clowns, marching bands and special surprises parade through the fairgrounds starting at 6 p.m. The State Fair's High School Marching Band Contest is a featured part of the parades.

Locals and folks from afar can find out more about the history of this 125-year-old event at the State Fair History Museum, where admission is free. It's also free to see how newspapers like the Bugle used to be printed, at the Minnesota Letterpress Museum.

This year, for the first time, discount coupon booklets are available for use on all eight weekdays of the fair. Get weekday savings on dozens of attractions and concessions by purchasing a "Happenings-Weekdays at the Fair" booklet at the State Fair ticket office, Cosgrove near Commonwealth. For $3 buyers get 84 coupons with discounts totaling over $250 on food and merchandise. For information, call 642-2254.

Also at the ticket office, get discount tickets for adult admission. Advance sale discount tickets of $3 are available only through Aug. 24. Regular adult admission is $3.75 (16 and over). Youth admission to the fair is $2 (ages 5-12); children under 5 are free. On both Thursdays, Aug. 25 and Sept. 1, senior citizens are admitted free. All persons 17 and under will be admitted free on Mon., Aug. 29.

Lindig remembers and anticipates State Fair

By Kathy Malchow

With so much attention focused on Falcon Heights at this time of year, we thought it would be interesting and fun to ask the city's oldest lifelong resident, Art Lindig, 82, about his memories of the area and, of course, the State Fair.

The Lindig family helped settle this part of St. Paul back in the mid-1800's before Minnesota became a state. Art said his great-grandfather, Jacob, was embroiled in the controversy about whether the city of St. Peter or the city of St. Paul should be named Minnesota's state capital. (Jacob was for St. Paul.)

His grandfather and father owned a dairy farm out on what is now County Road B, but moved to Larpenteur Ave. and switched to truck farming, where they hauled produce to the Minneapolis market, when Art was young. Art and his brothers started a nursery business about 1920 on Larpenteur Ave. and ran it for 50 years. He and his wife Lillian have been retired for 15 years. He has lived in the same Falcon Heights home, which itself is now more than 100 years old, since about the age of 6.

A fixture at Snelling and Larpenteur about 60 years ago, Lindig said, was the Curtis Airport "which didn't have anything to do with the Fair, but was a big attraction by itself. It was a privately owned small airport with one hangar and only two or three planes. People used to come out on Sunday afternoons to get airplane rides."

Here are Lindig's memories of his early years and of the State Fair:

"When I was about six years old we moved from our farm on Broadway [County Road B] to another farm on Larpenteur Ave. At that time Larpenteur was a narrow two-lane road.

"My earliest recollections of the Minnesota State Fair go back about 70 years. I can remember a truck parade that started in Minneapolis going to the State Fair by way of Larpenteur Ave. They were to parade through the fairgrounds, but got stalled for a good many hours from the entrance of the fair down Larpenteur Ave. as far as you could see in both directions. After a long delay the drivers were so hungry they started coming in and asking my parents for a cup of coffee. I remember my mother feeding a lot of the drivers fried eggs, ham, homemade bread and

Capturing views on canvas

By Jeri Glick

Some people would call it snooping.

But George M. Tapley Jr. isn't snooping.

"I get some people giving me strange looks because they think I'm casing a place," the St. Anthony Park artist said.

Well, he is casing the place in a way. But he's not looking for the typical goods.

It's colors and shapes, shadows and lighting, that draw Tapley to St. Anthony Park's alleyways and backyards.

"I find the morning and evening hours are most interesting because the light (at those times) changes the appearance of things. The shadows are long and they fall in interesting places and sometimes they disguise the actual shapes of things," he said.

Tapley, 47, has been painting St. Anthony Park's nooks and crannies since he moved to the neighborhood from Prospect Park in October. Six St. Anthony Park works that he painted in May and early June will be featured July 15-Aug. 31 at the Groveland Gallery, 25

Groveland Terrace, Minneapolis, near the Guthrie Theater. A seventh painting, a scene of Elm Street in Minneapolis, will also be on display.

The exhibit will include six oil paintings on paper and one on canvas. Tapley also plans to make his portfolio of preliminary sketches available so that viewers can see the evolution of a painting from the initial sketches to the final piece, he said.

"I usually paint every neighborhood I live in," Tapley said. "When I get into a new situation, a new environment, that's stimulation. And when spring came, things got so beautiful."

Tapley hunts for subject matter in the back streets of St. Anthony Park because it is there that he finds the most interesting combinations of shape, form, color and lighting, he said.

These, rather than the subject matter per se, are most intriguing to him.

For instance, one painting that will be exhibited is a view behind Luther Northwestern Theological Seminary's historic 19th century wood-framed chapel off Como Avenue. The chapel is not in the painting.

"I didn't include the church because I'm looking for color contrasts. I walked behind the church into someone's back yard and found a brilliant evening scene.

"It's really the views between the houses and buildings that interest me. It's the relationships of shapes and color, lights and darks, and of the positioning of the objects — the composition, the verticals and horizontals," he said.

Another painting is an early morning scene of an alley between Como and Doswell Avenues. It contrasts the geometric shapes of three garages and a parked truck with the fluid forms of leaves from several trees.

"I like to see interesting houses and architectural forms and combine them with natural shapes," Tapley said.

"Alleys are so much fun because each is like a different world with different views. It (the structure of buildings

Family a-fair

It's a big event, there's no mistaking it. It has a big effect on our lives here in Falcon Heights and St. Anthony Park. For some, it's one big blast. For others, one big mess. For many, one huge, tiring, stomach-stuffing celebration. It's the State Fair...the biggest event in our community, certainly, because it's the biggest event in our state.

A fascinating part of that one big event for me is considering how many subcultures exist in that whole. They're more than puzzle pieces, because we don't expect puzzle pieces to have a life of their own. The parts of the State Fair are more comparable to separate cells within a larger organism. Each part has a life and a history of its own.

For me, it's the cattle-showing life which comes into clear view first. When I was growing up, the fair began when the premium book came. Then we started planning what cattle to show and how to prepare them. We guessed what other members of the Milking Shorthorn "family" would show. Though they were our competitors we looked forward to meeting those Shorthorn friends at the fair. From various parts of the state we all made plans to ship our cattle in, to care for them and to show them. Our trip to the State Fair revolved around what day and time our breed was judged. Our big treat was hitting the "all-the-milk-you-can-drink" stand.

At the same time as we Milking Shorthorn folks were renewing acquaintances the same thing was happening with the Guernsey breeders, the Alpine sheep growers, Suffolk sheep folks and more. And then there were the weavers and the lefse demonstrators comparing notes at the other end of the grounds. The vendors in the Food Building made up another kind of family. The Royal American folks at the carnival traveled together but lived out another chapter of their lives each year in Minnesota.

Then there were the years I found out about 4-H life at the fair. When I watched the fireworks from the 3rd floor of the 4-H building, little did I know I'd live within seeing-distance of the spot years later. When I looked at Leonard Harkness, the head of state 4-H, with awe when I met him on the stairs, little did I know he lived in Falcon Heights and that I'd someday edit a paper which would include an article about him, just at the time his name would go on the very building in which I met him.

When we walk through the crowded streets, gawking and gaping, it's hard to imagine the levels of life that go into the mix that we see as one big, noisy, exciting whole. It's hard to realize that the parts that make the whole are in fact complete entities on their own.

I only know a bit about a couple of corners of the fairgrounds. This year I'm going to try to open my eyes and ears to sense some of the dimensions of life as it's lived out there by other groups. I'm going to try to appreciate some new parts more completely. Then I'll likely appreciate the whole a lot more, too.

AIDS quilt reflections

By John Paulson

Names. Thirty-five hundred names on a quilt of many colors. Angelo and David and Tyrone and Susan and Peter and "Little Girl 'C.'" Names they were of friends and lovers, husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, parents and children.

Images in cloth reveal their individual callings, as doctors and lawyers, musicians and poets, athletes and dancers, criminals and police officers.

They were heroes—and bullies and cowards, and victims.

They were real people, just like you and me, who loved life, music, their teddy bears and their children. They were people who died from the ravages of AIDS.

The quilt tells only a part of who they were, where they came from: Dallas and San Francisco, New York and St. Paul. One panel reads "Small Town Minnesota Minus One." What is the story there?

They are mere names on a quilt but much more, forming a patchwork of loving and remembering—a comforter, a catharsis, a product of deep caring.

Thirty-five hundred individual memorials connected to present a visual reminder of an epidemic.

Some are plain, some fancy, some pure works of art, like the people they image. Some are funny, others tear at the very fabric of the heart. Some of them reveal great love, others great hate and still others, mere resignation.

All these many colors and feelings are joined together in one massive blanket of memories.

Four football fields can barely contain it; even the Metrodome is stretched.

And it grows. Thirty-five hundred panels—thirty-five hundred names representing some forty thousand people who have died fighting an enemy that knows no justice.

It is silent here, oh so silent — deathly silent, as death is grieved and memories are stirred. Angelic music plays, and the dome takes on the spirit of a cathedral. Visitors filing up and down the steps remind one of churchgoers coming to commune with those they have loved and those whom they never knew.

Tears replace cheers in the dome this day. Hugs replace homers, and the hankies are damp with sadness. White-garbed monitors hand out Kleenex with their directions.

Over here, a man sobs; over there, two women simply stand and look and ponder.

Suddenly a child's voice pierces the silence and revels in the reverberations it creates. One hears joy in the midst of the weeping, hope in the midst of death, a mission born of the many struggles represented here.

There is hope that the enemy will be conquered—with enough time and enough money. Hope remains that AIDS, too will become a memory some day—soon—like the people whose lives it has claimed: Anthony and Angela, Fritz and Fifi, Jesus and John Paul.

Names on a quilt they are—a remembrance, a challenge, and a prayer.

The NAMES Project quilt, seen in Minneapolis in July, continues on to Seattle and San Francisco, to be displayed in October on the National Mall in Washington D.C.

As of Feb. 1, 313 cases of AIDS have been reported to the Minnesota Department of Health: 311 adults, 2 children. 41 cases have been reported in St. Paul. By 1991 the State of Minnesota is predicted to have 1,246 to 1,860 new cases of AIDS with 840 to 1,209 deaths.

There, our shiny new motor coach will open its doors for you, inviting you to step into the gracious decor of the climate-controlled main salon. Earl, your conductor de cuisine, will escort you to your luxuriously comfortable seat, complete with reclining back, overhead bin and individual tray-table, which tucks conveniently away in the seat in front of you so that you may relax in comfort before and after dinner.

As the Dinner Bus eases gracefully out onto Como Avenue, our crisply uniformed servers will offer complimentary hors d'oeuvres. The Ritz cracker with pickle slice and process cheese is irresistible. Take two! No one is counting on the St. Anthony Park Dinner Bus.

Turning down the hill between the Methodist Church and Knudsen Realty, the Dinner Bus glides around Langford Park, offering a lovely view of the bandstand, horseshoe pits and jungle jim. Take in the lovely scenery as your server offers you your favorite beverage, served in a safe and sparkling plastic glass with the St. Anthony Park Dinner Bus logo on the side, yours to keep as a souvenir of your evening.

Your courteous and experienced driver next cruises up Gordon Avenue to Carter, where you will get a unique view of the mysterious "house-on-the-triangular-island-lot-surrounded-by-streets." From your window, high above normal traffic, you will actually be able to peer over the fence, to get a look into the private lives of the most isolated family in the neighborhood.

As the Dinner Bus purrs up Carter hill, the tantalizing aromas begin to waft down the center aisle. Your taste buds will tingle, as you cross Como Avenue and Earl points out the fascinating architectural contrast between the Tudor-styled Milton Square and the modern new bank building. And as he explains that such contrasts help give St. Anthony Park its unique flavor, a cart full of flavor is rolled to a stop in the center aisle, and your conductor de cuisine lifts the elegant styrene dome to reveal the evening's main course, boef ala bus, ground to perfect tenderness, and served on an enriched mini-loaf from a bakery right here in the Twin Cities. The view from your window presents such neighborhood landmarks as Murray Junior High, Park Hardware, and the homes of local celebrities like Jim Larson and Warren Gore. To accompany your entree, enjoy potatoes, sliced satin-thin, then fried to a delicate crispness, and lightly salted to bring out the natural goodness. Take in the vista of the Raymond Avenue Bridge to add splendor to your dining pleasure. Partake of a salad of fresh iceberg lettuce, carrot curls and a rich succulent tomato slice, and you have a meal that rivals the most prolific restaurants in the world.

But wait! There's more! As the Dinner Bus eases past the tennis courts in College Park and moves gracefully onto the University of Minnesota Agriculture campus, desserts are unveiled. Choose the cool shimmering emerald elegance of genuine gelatin, generously flavored with lime and topped with our special dressing. Or enjoy the icy freshness of frozen sherbet, colored by the rainbow and crowned with a single vanilla wafer. Or, for those with a hearty appetite, dive into our "Bus Buster Sundae," a generous mound of neopolitan ice cream, topped with fudge, caramel and strawberry sauces, chopped mixed nuts, marshmallow cream, sliced banana, vanilla wafers, whipped cream, chocolate shavings and a cherry.

Linger over your dessert, as you get an up-close look at the school of veterinary medicine and the animal husbandry barns at one of the most renowned agricultural schools in the world.

The St. Anthony Park Dinner Bus is the only experience of its kind in the nation. Unlike the dinner trains which have appeared in recent years and which offer dinner to the annoying clackety-clack of the wheels as they clatter over their predetermined steel-rail route, the Dinner Bus can take you wherever you would like to go. If your son or daughter is playing baseball at Langford Park, your driver would be glad to stop so you can watch a couple of innings. Need to stop by the Post Office? No problem. Forget your wallet? Your driver will go right to your house so you can avoid embarrassment when your server brings the check.

It is truly an evening you won't soon forget. As the St. Anthony Park Dinner Bus slowly turns toward home at the end of your leisurely thirty-minute ride, you put your seat back, chat with your friends, and sip a cup of coffee, fresh from our thermos. It has been a ride to remember, an unforgettable experience that will live in your memory for years to come.

Intercampus bus turnaround

By Dubravka Kolumbic

University Vice President for Planning Harvey Turner has announced that a plan has been chosen for the proposed intercampus bus turnaround in front of the St. Paul Campus Student Center, requiring the closing of Buford Ave. at Cleveland. Turner spoke at the St. Anthony Park Community Council Physical Planning Committee meeting on July 7.

"The committee was not aware that three plans were being considered and they have not seen the final plan," said Bobbi Megard, Community Organizer for the district. "We're going to ask for them."

Megard is "not real pleased with the turnaround plan personally because of the alterations to the yard in front of Bailey Hall and I'm not quite sure how far into the mall it would go."

A bus turnaround behind the library would be a better choice, Megard feels, because the idling buses' pollution would be moved further from a people-congested area. The turnaround would diminish the number of cars (now 1600) that pass through the Cleveland/Buford intersection daily, Turner said. The University's main concerns are access to Bailey Hall and the Student Union, he said.

A turnaround effect not wanted by the council is the disturbance of the present land architecture.

Turner said, "On the St. Paul campus we have to operate with a very distinctive outline of what can and cannot be done to affect the aesthetic quality as a passive, open space landscape." Turner stressed the importance of realizing the University is going to change and grow and such projects are imminent.

He continued, "We are working within the University community to try to improve the access to the University from the north because, if we can't do that...the long-range impact is that Cleveland is going to continue to carry more and more traffic. The University suggests that improving Cleveland Ave. would increase its use.

University Acting President and former College of Agriculture Dean Richard Sauer agrees with the chosen turnaround plan, but the College of Agriculture prefers a different plan, Turner said. Student votes are "overwhelmingly in favor" of the chosen plan, he said.

Megard questions Turner's statements on the acceptance of the turnaround plan by faculty and students. "In our [the committee's] estimate, very few students and faculty members know about the plan or voted for it," Turner's statement, Megard said, was "not as accurate as I would like to hear it."

Turner also spoke about the University's plans to acquire the right of way for the new intercampus bus route (roughly in the railroad area between Raymond and the Minneapolis campus area). The University would purchase the land along the route and allow only University bus access. The estimated cost of the entire project, based on Minnesota Department of Transportation averages, is $19 million, for construction and maintenance. The cost reflects the different land acquisition costs, Turner said. Funds will come from the Interstate Substitution Funds.

The University, required by law to test the acquired lands for contamination, is cleaning the Schnitzer site west of Hwy. 280. It should be ready for construction by late fall, Turner said. The contamination found is not significant, and can be found on most railroad right of ways, according to Turner.

The University has also filed an Environmental Impact Statement with the state for the entire bus route project. That statement has been approved, Turner said.

When asked what the meeting with the University accomplished, Megard said it "let us know that plans and decisions are being made without us knowing. We need more information and discussion."

"The Council has taken no position on the bus turnaround," she said, but members will discuss it at their next meeting on Aug. 4.

Water trees!

The City of Falcon Heights requests all of its residents to use their water resources wisely. By reducing water consumption on a voluntary basis during this drought period, demand on the Mississippi River can be limited.

The City of Falcon Heights has planted new boulevard trees in many areas. Residents' help is needed to assure the trees receive adequate water during this stress period. The St. Paul Water Utility, which provides water to the City of Falcon Heights, has indicated that a sufficient back-up system is available to supply water to its customers and maintain this tree program.

The Saint Paul Water Utility will continue to monitor water conditions and will advise Falcon Heights residents if further adjustments are needed.

Commonwealth: More than a street name

The following report is from Jan Meyer who is entering her second year as President of St. Anthony Park Association.

As we all know, one of the streets weaving through our community is named Commonwealth. What most of us may not know, or may have forgotten, is what the word commonwealth means. According to Harry Boyte, of the Humphrey Institute at the University of Minnesota, to our ancestors commonwealth meant "collaborative action to preserve the 'commons,' all those forms of wealth that are shared, from our natural resources to the health and prosperity of our children." According to Boyte, dictionaries list that as an outdated definition, "archaic and obsolete. But here and there, an older sense of commonwealth survives."

Having been active on the Board of Directors of St. Anthony Park Association for two years and president this last year, I have found evidence that perhaps here, in our community, there are many people interested in and trying to retain our commonwealth. And as we are in the summertime transition from last year's activities to next year's, it seems a good time to review and renew that commitment to the common good.

Two years ago, then-President Joan Dow-Styve and the Board felt the need to review the basic mission of SAPA: why do we exist? What do we do well? What are we not doing so well, or what can't we do? These questions and others were the center of a planning meeting last summer, the outcomes of which provided new vitality and direction for this year. Most significantly, the Board updated SAPA's bylaws to reflect its mission and strengths: to provide positive neighbor-to-neighbor contacts; to preserve and enhance the cultural diversity of the community, and to promote a safe and attractive physical environment. We do well at getting people together, at disseminating information, and providing a community forum. We have creative and interested volunteers. We don't do so well at raising large amounts of money; therefore, we cannot provide significant monetary support for other organizations. However, we can provide fund-raising opportunities, get people together, and foster two-way communication for other community organizations.

Based on those objectives and strengths, SAPA had a busy and productive year, a year of commonwealth. Our regular monthly dinner programs—our version of a combination "Minnesota church basement restaurant" and town meeting—planned by Vice President Mel Boynton—were lively, stimulating, and informative. Mertcyce Mayne wrote stimulating copy for our publicity in the Bugle. Jane Bose as Secretary recorded our activities for posterity.

Treasurer Nancy Myers kept our checkbook balanced, and Adele Fadden was our two-way "pipeline" to St. Anthony Park Community Council. Christy Myers continued the keeping of the history books!

The list of activities and groups we've supported is long.

We are the sponsoring organization for the Langford Park 4th of July celebration: Sandy McClure (besides spearheading SAPA's membership campaign!) along with Bob Beck provided liaison to the 4th of July Committee and its many wonderful volunteers. We've provided support and some funding for the Langford Park Boosters, whom Ann Kersey so ably represented on our Board. We've assisted the Block Nurse Program, the Centennial activities coordinated by Judy Flinn, Music in the Park, South St. Anthony Park Recreation Center activities, and Bookstart. Ann Bulger coordinated our support to the Murray Library, the St. Anthony Park Library, and Isabella. We've helped to support and provided opportunities for neighborhood contacts for the Community Chorus, Boy Scout Troop #17, and St. Anthony Park Community Council.

Through our monthly and other meetings we've helped to support and cooperated with the Bugle, SAP Nursery, the United Church of Christ, and the Methodist Church. Chris Midelfort coordinated our support both administratively and financially to the Block Workers. Many volunteers worked hard to put together the very successful Progressive Dinner. Through the creative efforts of Julie Anderson and Dennis Ferche and working with President Steve Townley of the St. Anthony Park Merchants Association, we've initiated, developed and will administer the New Neighbor Program. Dennis Ferche also coordinated the information forum about the proposed trash burner in Minneapolis. And, Joan Dow-Styve produced—and voluntarily delivered—the very useful Community Directory.

Again recognizing our strengths and limitations, for the future we've made a commitment to work more closely with St. Anthony Park Community Council, and thus with them we jointly secured the funding for the Block Club Organizer. We're coordinating the volunteers for the Neighborhood Clean-up in September, and we're hoping for a significant educational campaign about recycling. Of course we'll continue our popular monthly dinner meetings, which is a great way to meet the neighbors. We hope to sponsor more special events, both of the informational and entertainment variety.

Of course we always welcome volunteers, new members, and guests. If any of the above activities is of interest to you, or if you have questions, please call me or any other Board member. We'd love to hear from you.

Last and not least but instead the most important: a sincere thank you to all the people—the list is too long to include each and every name here—who worked so hard this year through SAPA for this community. It seems very appropriate that SAPA meets on Commonwealth Avenue.

Mailing letters is easier

A new postal drop has been added on Gove Place in St. Anthony Park. It's on the boulevard of Nick Mayers' Unocal station. Gove is a one-way street so drivers heading west on Como are encouraged to turn onto Gove, drop their mail from the car (no parking on Gove) and exit via Doswell. Nick reminds postal patrons that it's vital to exit via Doswell rather than cutting through his station area because of concern for the safety of service station vehicles and employees.

For postal patrons driving east on Como, mailing letters has also been simplified. The drop boxes in front of the post office have been moved to the street edge to allow patrons to mail from their vehicles. To facilitate that, it's vital that other cars leave that area vacant when parking on Como.

Both of these changes should do much to alleviate the parking and traffic congestion on Como.

Strike up the band!

The St. Anthony Park Community Band will play two concerts at Como Lake Pavillion in August. Hear them there on Tues., Aug. 9 and Tues., Aug. 23. Both concerts are at 7:30 p.m.

We put our communities First

First Bank System (FBS) was recently honored with the President's Volunteer Action Award, received for donating more than 585,000 hours of community service in 1987.

Presented by President Reagan at a luncheon in Washington, D.C., the award was accepted by First Bank System Chairman Pete Ankeny on behalf of 4,000 current and retired employees serving our communities as volunteers.

Sixty percent of all First Bank System employees participate in volunteer activities, including the upcoming Metro Paint-A-Thon on August 12. On that day, FBS employees from around the Twin Cities will gather to paint the homes of elderly and handicapped citizens — one more way First Bank System puts its communities first.

Roger Hanson, Troop 17 Eagle Scout

Neighbors

Roger Hanson, Lauderdale, has earned the highest advancement award the Boy Scouts of America offers youth. A member of troupe 17, led by Scoutmaster James Cooper, Roger is among approximately two percent of all Boy Scouts who attain the Eagle rank.

To complete the Eagle requirements, a candidate must earn 21 merit badges and successfully complete a major service project that improves some segment of the community. In addition to earning merit badges in a number of subjects including skiing, wilderness survival, Indian lore, communications, citizenship and first aid, Roger carried out a service project that benefited users of the Gibbs Farm Museum. He organized and carried out the spring cleanup of the farm property.

During the 104th annual convention of the Society of American Florists, Dr. Harold F. Wilkins, St. Anthony Park, was inducted into the Floriculture Hall of Fame. Only ten other academics have been previously honored by the Society, the last being in 1979.

Wilkins has been at the University of Minnesota's Department of Horticultural Science and Landscape Architecture since 1966. He, along with his graduate students and colleagues, has received awards for outstanding research paper publications in 1967, 1978, 1980 and 1985 from the American Society for Horticultural Science. In 1984 he became a Fellow of the society in recognition of his graduate student training, teaching, research and extension.

His major research interest has been with the Easter lily, freesia, azalea, poinsettia and alstroemeria. His research group discovered the flowering mechanism of the alstroemeria. He is considered the father of the alstroemeria industry. He has traveled to Israel, Western and Eastern Europe, Russia and Japan on several occasions. He won a Fulbright Fellowship to Norway in 1987.

Local students named to the dean's list for the spring semester at the College of St. Thomas included: David Wald and Michelle Couture of Falcon Heights and Laura Rasmussen, St. Anthony Park.

Five St. Anthony Park and Lauderdale fencers earned points towards national team selection in the U.S. Fencing Nationals at Northeastern University in Chicago in June. In the junior division Matt Cutler placed 24th and Chris Swope placed 22nd in the under 19 Men's Epee competition. Elizabeth Krick placed 17th and Melissa Cutler 14th in the under 19 Women's Epee finals. Miles Phillips placed 6th in the Division I Men's Epee. He is, therefore, the first Minnesotan to ever make the finals in Division I National Championship. All are part of Excalibur, led by Park resident Bob van der Wege.

Van der Wege also coordinated the regional junior development camp sponsored by the U.S. Fencing Association. It was held in St. Paul in early July and featured Yves Auriol as head coach. Auriol was the U.S. Olympic fencing coach in 1980, 1984 and will be again in 1988. He is presently the head women's fencing coach at Notre Dame University. The camp provided grueling training in Minnesota heat for 15 fencers from around the country. Five from Excalibur participated.

Lauderdale resident Chris Herness's biography of her late husband, Cliff Herness, has just been published. Called To Illuminate the Darkness, the book traces the early days of Cliff Herness's life in rural Minnesota, to his first trip to the Soviet Union in 1937, and on to his later years of activism in DFL politics and as an advocate for American-Soviet friendship. Herness was, until his death in 1984, chair of the Minnesota Council of American-Soviet Friendship, an organization he founded.

Herness also built three houses in Lauderdale in the 1940s and '50s.

The introduction to the book is written by Minnesota author Meridel LeSueur.

David Schwartz and Katie Kline, St. Anthony Park sixth graders, were the winners of an essay contest on the topic "My Best Older Friend" or "My Grandparents." As part of Older Americans Month in May, the Minnesota Board on Aging sponsors the annual contest through local senior groups. Schwartz and Kline were sponsored by Seal Hi Rise, where they were brought in to read their winning thoughts. The essays have been entered at a state-wide level; two overall winners will be honored during Senior Citizen's Day activities at the State Fair.

"Hooray for Library Kids," the 1988 theme for the library's summer reading program has proven to be something to shout about. Close to 500 St. Anthony Park children have registered to be Library Kids this summer, with more than half of the kids reading at least ten books in only five weeks! The Tues. and Wed. programs have also been a big success, attracting audiences of 400-500 each week. The library staff thanks library volunteers Katy Friggle-Norton, Kathy Behrens and Lisa Griffin who have helped keep all Library Kids in good spirit throughout the summer. Thanks, too, to the St. Anthony Park Library Association, the donator of ten $5 Micawber's Books gift certificates which will go to lucky Library Kids in a random drawing. Names will also be drawn to determine winners of new children's paperback books donated by the Friends of the St. Paul Public Library.

BUY OR SELL FIRST

Here is one of the oldest questions in the real estate business: "Should I sell my house first and then scramble to buy a new one or should I find the new one first and then sell?"

Actually, both steps could be taking place simultaneously, but you'll need more information first and a helping hand to coordinate the steps so they'll fall into place painlessly. Your first step should be a visit to an experienced residential agency like ours. We will prepare a marketing plan for your present home. This will give you a firm basis for planning your new purchase. You'll have an idea of the cash you will have available to use for the downpayment on the next house. Also, you'll have a time-frame for the sale of your present home from listing to passing. This will help in planning the time you'll need to wrap up the purchase of the new home.

In selling one home to buy another, you are not alone. Over 70% of all residential transactions are hinged on one sale taking place before another is consummated. Our agency will help make this transition more profitable and less stressful.

Professional workers will make further changes after the volunteers have covered the walls with a fresh coat of paint.

During July and August the pews have been moved to Corpus Christi School, where Masses are being held in the gymnasium at 5 p.m. Sat. and 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. Sun.

On the feast of Corpus Christi on June 5, a special remembrance was made of all who had been baptized, married, confirmed or buried from the old altar before it was retired from service in preparation for installation of a new more central altar.

Tapley from 3

along alleys) is a simpler kind of architecture."

Other paintings in the show depict an alley off Chilcombe Avenue, a scene behind St. Anthony Park's Speedy Market and the vista and shops at Cleveland and Buford Avenues.

Tapley, an associate professor of art history at the Minneapolis College of Art and Design, said he usually goes looking for scenes to paint. Once he finds one interesting to him, he tackles the challenge of translating its three-dimensional forms and patterns into a two-dimensional sketch. The sketch, usually black felt tip pen on paper, emphasizes shading, lighting and the relationships of the shapes to one another. This first sketch usually take about five minutes to complete.

Tapley then sometimes draws a second sketch, which is essentially an outline of the scene. This, he covers with notes on lighting, colors, shading and so on. It, too, is completed in minutes.

At times Tapley will also take a photo, which he may later refer to for architectural detail or some other crucial information. But he relies most heavily on his sketches once he starts to paint.

Tapley finishes a painting in his Minneapolis studio in one or two sittings representing about three-and-a-half hours work, he said.

He likes to work quickly to capture the immediacy of his subject matter and the freshness of the scene, he said. "Usually if I don't get it right fairly quickly, I won't get it."

Since color and lighting are so important to Tapley's work, he must work quickly to capture a moment, he said. In minutes, shadows can move and colors can change hue. And in days, flowers and trees can change in shape and form.

"As I was working on these [St. Anthony Park] paintings, I felt how quickly the seasons were changing," Tapley said.

Tapley describes his paintings as "painterly realism," which he says is a style that emphasizes light, space, color, composition and visible brushwork but still has recognizable subject matter.

"I've experimented with a lot of different styles," he said. "I know a lot about contemporary art since I teach it, and intellectually, different movements appeal to me. But it's almost like getting a heart transplant and then rejecting it. I experiment with them and then I always seem to come back to this type of painting. This is me."

coffee. (We had our own hen house, cured our own hams and she always had her own good bread.)

"For many years we grew cabbage to be sold to the sheepmen who exhibited during the fair. They fed the cabbage to the sheep to make them look rounder for judging. They used a good many tons of cabbage. This practice by the sheepmen was used until about 1930.

"Every year we looked forward to the Minnesota State Fair with all of its fun and excitement. We neighborhood boys discovered a hole in the north fence that surrounded the fairgrounds. When my brothers and I finished our farm work for the day we would use this opening to get into the grounds. We never got chased away, because the mounted policeman always seemed to be looking in some other direction. We would come home by way of the road because that was more exciting for boys.

"In the early days of the fair Machinery Hill was a big attraction. The steam engines were on their way out, being replaced by gas driven engines. Tractors and trucks were hand cranked and chain driven.

"From the 1920's on, the army stored a large number of used army trucks on the north end of the fairgrounds. It was fun to us to go there and look over those old trucks. (In those days there was not much outside activity available in this area beyond the farm.)

"We used to stand out in our front yard and watch the airplane stunt flyers. This was a new form of entertainment and drew big crowds. It became very popular for many years until one day one of the girl acrobats swinging on a rope ladder was killed when the pilot flew too close to the ground. She was killed close to Larpenteur Ave.

"Now I am a senior citizen and still look forward to all the excitement of the Minnesota State Fair. My wife and I always plan to attend on the two senior citizen days."

And what will Art and Lillian head for this year at the Fair? "We like to see the livestock and go to the horticulture building," Art said.

Lillian's only complaint about the fair is the exhaust pollution from the four lanes of traffic going bumper-to-bumper on Larpenteur Ave. "It seems the pollution gets worse every year. You get used to the traffic, though. We know the traffic patterns during the fair so well we can tell what time of day it is just by watching the cars."

Rep. John Rose

Rep. John Rose, 54, a six-term member of the Minnesota House of Representatives, died July 19, 1988, of a heart attack following surgery. Rose, an Independent-Republican from Roseville, served in House District 63A which includes Falcon Heights and Lauderdale as well as part of Roseville and St. Anthony Village.

Last fall Rose suffered a heart attack while duck hunting but had received a doctor's clearance to resume a full legislative schedule.
