

Children's Home Society has 100th birthday

By Alice Duggan

In 1989, the Children's Home Society of Minnesota (CHSM) celebrates its 100th anniversary. Its history twines around the history of St. Anthony Park and of Minnesota, of Child Welfare, of War and Peace. When you read the early publications of the Society, you lurch from the local Sunshine Society to the National League for Child Welfare, from the need for wood and potatoes to the need for better laws, from the list of stockings mended to the list of war dead. Times change, fashions change, buildings go up—or come down—new directors arrive and take charge. But certain things remain constant through a century of service. Always there is a high regard for the worth and rights of children; always an effort to support and nurture families.

We can be grateful to Joseph Elsinger, philanthropist, for the five lots he gave to CHSM in 1900. That property, bordered by Commonwealth and Como Avenues, gave the Society a place to put down its roots. It was still fairly new (though active) and didn't have a home of its own, only rented and temporary space. The gift of land gave a boost to morale and fund-raising, and the new Jean Martin Brown Receiving Home was finished in 1903. It was much admired—for its stateliness, its high elevation, its unobstructed view of the little green suburb that was St. Anthony Park. What could be more ideal? It was only a stone's throw from Murray School (later called Gutteresen). A few blocks from Stryker Seminary and the State Agricultural College. And right on the Como-Harriet interurban line (the streetcar).

The heart and soul behind all these bricks was a small group of dedicated people, most notably the Rev. Edward Payson Savage, founder and first director of CHSM. He and his wife, Kate, poured out their lives for what they called "child saving." She did fund raising and he did that and everything else: He wrote and edited a journal, Home Finder. He lobbied the legislature for laws that would give legal status to the Society's work. He spoke in churches throughout the state, organizing a network of support. (A key element of this support: 300 volunteer boards, scattered from Duluth to Spring Valley, made it their business to identify neglected or homeless children and find them adoptive homes.) Unencumbered by forms, laws or procedures, because they didn't exist in his day, he gathered up abandoned children, piled them onto the train, and carried them back to Saint Paul.

In 1903 we read in Home Finder, "Our new home is now complete and handsomely furnished with almost everything it needs...The ladies of St. Anthony Park, Mrs. Prof. Green, Mrs. Gov. McGill, Mrs. Polk, Mrs. Liggett and many others have most kindly aided in making many visitors at the home welcome....We are much indebted to Mr. Green for his competent direction as to the grading and laying out of the lots." Later that same year, "Acknowledgements: 32 glasses of jelly from the St. Anthony Park Women's Association, who recently visited the home in a body for a sewing bee."

CHSM caused a kind of excitement and commitment throughout the state because it was a new idea for dependent children that seemed, as the Rev. Savage put it, "natural and sensible." What was new about it? The determination that every child deserved a family. It was not enough to provide a sanctuary, in the form of an institution, for the neglected, bereft and abandoned. What was best for children was life in a family. If one family failed them, they should get a second chance.

So the new building was going to be a different kind of Home, a non-institution. Workers would keep their eyes on the prize—a new home for each child—and send them off with new parents as soon as possible. Very early on, however, board members saw the possibility for another kind of service. They agreed to board children, temporarily, as a way of supporting parents in stressful circumstances. Thus at any time in the history of the receiving home, there were CHSM wards, waiting for new families; but there were also boarders—children waiting for the better times that would reunite them with their parents.

What was it like to be a child who stayed at the Home? If you arrived after 1910, you might have taken one of the first psychological tests. For the first time, the staff included a nurse and a doctor who examined you and kept records of your progress. There was still a cow in the barn out back, but now your milk was pasteurized and refrigerated in the big kitchen. The nursery was full to bursting, because the Society was boarding babies. (The new director wanted to support public health leaders by providing an alternative to "baby farms," which exploited babies by placing them for profit.) The babies' cereal had to cook all day, to get soft enough. Busy stirring the pot, changing the diapers and rocking the babies was the latest batch of young women assembled for the Baby Nurse Training Course, started in 1915. In exchange for their much-needed labor, they received a six-month training course, a monthly allowance of $5, a diploma and help finding a job.

There was plenty of company for the older children, too. In 1918 some of the "new kids" were the children of soldiers, whose mothers worked in war industries and who needed child care.

You might have thought the highlight of the '20s was the installation of a new playground, with an absolutely marvelous merry-go-round (fondly remembered by certain Park neighbors). You might have watched the construction of a new brick building, the Humphrey Memorial Building, on the south side of the old Home (since razed). It became the new home for all wards under the age of four, together with the Baby

Nurses. You might have met the Society's first professional social worker, Florence E. Johnson, who arrived in 1927. She used new words like "development" and "self-expression."

If you came during the depression, you were one of many. The resident population peaked in 1933. The average length of stay stretched out—from six months to one year. But whatever worries the grown-ups had, they made life comfortable, even home-like, for the children. There was the routine of weekdays at Gutteresen School and Sunday at one of the neighborhood churches. Expeditions to the farm school, the fairgrounds, the dump. The new wood-working shop, installed in the basement "for the older boys." The dog, who posed for pictures with the children. And if ever they felt too iso-

Carousel to stay at State Fair in '89

By Kathy Malchow

Our Fair Carousel, the St. Paul-based group, bought the State Fair's "world's largest merry-go-round" on Dec. 10, assuring the ride will stay in Minnesota. It was announced the carousel will remain at the fairgrounds in 1989 for one last State Fair run. Then a permanent home will be found.

Price of the sale, announced moments before an auction was to begin in New York, was $1.1 million—beating the all-time high price previously paid for a carousel by about $375,000. It was said the Blinstrups, the family who owned the ride, rejected a bid of $1.3 million from outside bidders because they wanted the carousel to remain in Minnesota. (They were selling the attraction because of business management problems with the State Fair Board. In essence, the Blinstrups were told by the Fair they couldn't operate on the fairgrounds any longer because they wouldn't disclose long-term plans—which is part of the contract for all Fair rides.)

The $1.1 million loan, put up by First Bank Saint Paul, needs to be repaid within a year, or ownership of the merry-go-round goes back to the City of St. Paul, which could sell it this time next year if enough money isn't raised.

Any guesses as to how much it will cost to ride your favorite horse during the 1989 State Fair?

Council actions at a glance

Actions taken by the Community Council at its December 7 meeting included:

- Approved John Grantham, Wanda Lorentzen, Carol Osip, Jean Donaldson, Jack Sheldon as members of a sub-committee considering a long-term policy for replacement housing in St. Anthony Park. Ad hoc members were invited to participate.
- Directed a letter to the Planning Commission recommending that a comprehensive city housing policy be designated a top priority.
- Directed a letter to the University of Minnesota stating that phasing of the Busway project was unacceptable to the neighborhood.

- Voted to schedule a household hazardous waste cleanup in 1989 as a cooperative effort with Como Park, Midway Coalition, Merriam Park, Lexington-Hamline and Snelling-Hamline community councils and to also hold a neighborhood cleanup for St. Anthony Park.

- Requested Public Works to do a traffic study at Como & Eustis to gather data to determine whether a semaphore is needed at this intersection.

If more information is desired regarding any action of the Council, please call the office at 292-7884 or any of your Community Council representatives.

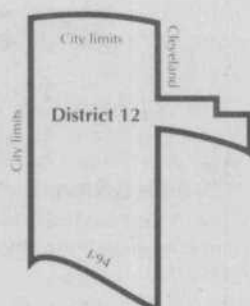

The St. Anthony Park (District 12) Community Council is a group of 21 citizens elected to serve the District 12 area of St. Paul, including residents of St. Anthony Park, and representatives of commerce and industry. It is one of 17 citizen participation councils in the city.

The council meets the Wednesday after the first Thursday of every month. All meetings are open to the public. Check for location.

Budget planning for 1990-91 begins

The biennial cycle for preparation of the 1990-91 Capital Improvement Budgets begins early in 1989. Approximately $25 million is available annually for projects selected through a process designed to insure that neighborhoods have significant voice in how the dollars are used.

Capital improvement projects fall into three classes: streets and utilities, community facilities, and residential and economic development. Commercial and arterial streets will be considered, but residential streets are no longer eligible because of the sewer separation project currently under way which provides for sewers, street paving, lighting, and curbs and gutters over 10-years. Community facilities cover improvements to recreation centers, libraries, fire stations, city buildings. Residential and economic development is likely to include housing loan and rehabilitation funds, or commercial development.

By mid-Feb. district councils submit preliminary nominations for projects to the City Budget Office. The projects submitted by both neighborhoods and city departments are reviewed by three task forces made up of representatives from each of the District Councils.

Groups, whether residents or city staff, appear before the task forces to describe the project and why it should be funded. A priority list is then forwarded to the Mayor, who makes recommendations to the city council. It makes the final decisions.

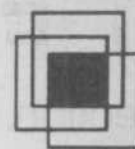

Suggestions for CIB improvements in St. Anthony Park should be submitted to the Community Council office before Feb. 8.

St. Anthony Park Community Council will also choose representatives to sit on the three task forces. Any resident willing to devote three hours a week (usually late afternoon) to task force work between April and June should contact the office, 292-7884.

Members of the Minnesota Knitters Guild made 100 pair of mittens and hats for the Merriam Park Holiday Bureau to be used for people in need. Local members who donated material and knitting time included Joan Hurley Clemens, Judy Dahlin, Elizabeth Tedesco, Kimball and Sandra Foster, Janine Kemmer and Catherine Daly from St. Anthony Park and Donna Severance from Lauderdale.

Monica Erler of Falcon Heights was one of seven women honored Dec. 8 at the ninth annual Leader Luncheon Outstanding Achievement Awards sponsored by the St. Paul YWCA. She received the leader award in the human services category as program coordinator for Parents Anonymous of Minnesota.

St. Anthony Park resident Kira Gregersen has won national recognition for her feat of winning four state titles in tennis. Her photo appeared in the feature "Faces in the Crowd" in the Nov. 28 issue of Sports Illustrated. She was the first person, boy or girl, in Minnesota to win four consecutive state titles when she defeated Katie Mixon from Breck on Oct. 29 at the Nicolet Tennis Center.

"Gentle" sport of curling has Park fans

By Michelle Christianson

Some people think the only game played on ice is hockey and the only way people can behave on the ice is in an aggressive, violent manner. Those people aren't familiar with the "gentlemanly" sport of curling.

Curling, like hockey, is played by two teams on ice, but the resemblance stops there. Curlers treat one another with courtesy and respect, often congratulating one another on good shots and taking care not to be distracting. It is also one of the only sports in which men and women can compete equally. This is just one of the reasons Jim Dexter, manager of the St. Paul Curling Club, loves the sport.

"It gets in your blood," says Dexter, who has been curling since he was 16. At that time he and his friends from the Murray hockey team, Barkley Brastad, Greg Page and Tryg Hansen, went to laugh at Jim's father and his funny sport, but ended up joining a junior league instead. He has been curling ever since.

It's also a great family sport. Dexter's wife, Debbie, and his two sons, Jeff and Mike, all curl. "We have curlers from ages 12 to 75 in the club. It's a sport you can compete in all your life," says Dexter.

The St. Paul Curling Club, with 700 members from all over the metropolitan area, is the largest in the nation. Leagues play every day of the week from Nov. to April and many bonspiels (tournaments) are held there. This club, established in 1917, also has the distinction of having hosted the men's, ladies' and junior national championships. Dexter has managed the St. Paul Curling Club and the Arden Hills club before that (now closed) since 1972.

"It's really the people that keep me here," says Dex, and in some cases it's Dex who keeps the people there. Everyone knows him, not just those of us from the Park. His humor and bear hugs add to the warmth and "homeness" of the club. (Other curlers from St. Anthony Park are Jack Pearson, Nate Wesenberg, Mark Arnold, David Christianson and me, and Sally Augustin of Sal's Park Deli.)

The game itself, which originated in Scotland, is one that takes a few minutes to learn and a lifetime to perfect. Each member of a four-person team throws (slides) two 42-pound rocks one at a time toward a bullseye some 125 feet down the ice. Teammates may help direct the rock by sweeping with brooms in front of it to melt the ice. A player's object is to complete the "end" (two rocks thrown for each team member) with his or her team's rocks closer to the center of the bullseye or "house." It's an addictive game of skill and finesse that can change dramatically by the position of a single rock.

So there are many draws for Jim Dexter and other curling enthusiasts—the game, the people, the sportsmanship. Come to laugh at this funny sport—you may find a lifetime of competition and companionship.

Editorial

'Tis the season to be confused

In our Nov. editorial we urged everyone to jump on the recycling wagon and think creatively about how much more they could take on with them. Forget what we said, but, hopefully, just for now.

In the meantime St. Paul Mayor George Latimer has announced plans to establish a mandatory recycling program. We could hardly be against that long-term goal but it's more than a little frustrating that no specifics were given on how such a plan would be implemented.

One might hope that we could just keep putting our bags of cardboard and all sorts of paper on the curb for Super Cycle's faithful pickup while the powers that be figure out how to convince or force participation from neighbors we've been unable to bribe or shame into involvement. Forget that, too. For now, at least.

Unfortunately, many, many people have not been careful enough in separating recyclable items and more have included materials which were never recyclable. Therefore, at least for now, the Super Cycle trucks will be able to accept only corrugated cardboard, newspaper, bottles and cans. NO food boxes of any kind or gift boxes qualify!

Newspapers are the only paper that can now be accepted. NO cards, junk mail or holiday wrapping paper. Brown shipping paper and brown paper bags can be recycled but they must be placed in a bag separate from newspapers. All glass bottles (colored & clear) may be placed in one bag; labels do not need to be removed. Aluminum and steel cans may be placed in the same bag. Magazines never were recyclable and certainly are not likely to be in the near future.

However, Waldorf Paper Co. on Vandalia will accept white letterheads, uncoated white bond or plain paper copies and white computer paper without carbon interleaves. They cannot accept colored paper and forms, carbon paper, self seal, manila or plastic window envelopes, food and tobacco wrappers.

Mary T'Kach from the Neighborhood Energy Consortium says, "If we're not careful with what we do, we'll be back to where we were before this recent surge in recycling occurred. We're getting more and more contaminated loads which our buyers have to reject. We have no choice but to bite the bullet, real hard. We simply cannot ignore the problem. We don't know how long this moratorium on other materials will last and we're looking intensely at other possibilities to solve the problem. But, for the meantime, there's no choice. Thin cardboard will have to be stored or added to garbage and white paper other than newsprint will have to be delivered to Waldorf."

Letters

More than one way to give

Dear editor,

Although my name is not included in the list of 500 contributors supporting the Bugle, perhaps I have contributed in another way, i.e., supporting the people who advertise in your paper.

Yes, I place my money in ParkBank, buy my gas at Park Service, my kerosene at Como-Raymond, my hardware at Park Hardware, sundries at Miller Drugs and insurance from a local State Farm agent.

I also buy groceries at Speedy Market (re: recent letter to editor) and they can bag my goodies any way that is economically feasible.

Harry Forsberg

Thanks

Dear editors,

We'd like to take a minute to thank you for your article about our project on University Ave. We were very pleased with the story and received many comments from Bugle readers.

The McCann family is really excited about the buildings (we have named the project "Midtown Commons."). We feel that St. Anthony Park is a great place to do business and so do our tenants.

We'll keep in touch to let you know our progress and let you know who our new tenants (and your new neighbors) will be.

Charles P. McCann and family

Fill it out NOW

Help us know and serve you better. Your comments and suggestions are important to us. They'll help the paper be what YOU want it to be.

Your responses will also be used to generate new advertising. Ad revenue provides much of the money needed to pay for producing the Bugle and getting it to your house each month.

Right now, take a few moments to complete the reader survey inserted in this issue. Mail it to us at Box 8126 Como Station, St. Paul, MN 55108 or put it in the dropbox behind our office in the Healy Building at 2301 Como Ave.

Thanks! We'll be glad you took the time and we think you'll be glad, too.

Thanks to Prof. Philip Tichenor and Diane Emerson Nelson for their help in survey preparation.

Bugle dates

Jan. 9 - Park Press, Inc. board meeting, St. Anthony Park Branch Library
Jan. 12 - display advertising deadline, noon.
Jan. 16 - editorial & classified deadline, 6 p.m.
Note this is a holiday.
Jan. 26 - February issue printed

Bugle contributors

Michelle Christianson is glad to be back writing for the Bugle again, and we're glad to have her back. Alice Duggan is a St. Anthony Park writer who obviously loves kids and history. Warren Hanson will deny he's famous, but we think he should have his own sidewalk star. But who will shovel it? Any volunteers? Truman Olson proves that a friend will go anywhere for you as he scuttles about taking photos for us, often with little notice.

Thanks to the Association

Dear editor,

The story in the Dec. Bugle publicizing the holiday program at the United Church of Christ inadvertently failed to mention that the St. Anthony Park Association made that evening possible by asking the St. Anthony Park Community Chorus to plan a holiday program for its Dec. meeting. The Association board members plus interested others cooked the dinner and gave the profits to the chorus. We thank you both as members of the chorus and as members of the community.

Mary Jane Munson

St. Anthony Park Community Chorus Committee

Stop the politics

Dear Editor,

I would like to publicly express my opposition to the use of the Block Worker Program to distribute political propaganda such as the STOP THE HELIPORT flyer. The proposed heliport is a very complex issue and one on which many residents have seen little or no information. I feel an information flyer presenting both sides of the issue and urging concerned residents to attend the public meeting would have been appropriate. The flyer we were given to distribute presented only one side of the issue and urged people to come to the meeting to fight the heliport.

I support the Block Worker Program, a network of volunteer block workers and area coordinators, as an information distribution network and the basis of the Neighborhood Crime Watch Program. However, if the District 12 Council continues to use the program for political purposes I would find it very difficult to continue this support.

Mark Hansen

Area I coordinator

A caring community

Dear editor,

After nearly four years as the director of Langford Park Recreation Center, I will be leaving Langford as of Dec. 19 to pursue other career interests within the City of St. Paul's Division of Parks and Recreation.

At this time I would like to introduce and welcome back Lori Sundelius who has been appointed as the new director at Langford Park. Lori will do an outstanding job at Langford Park and I would hope that this community would work with her in the future like it has with me in the past.

As I reflect on my time spent working in this community I can honestly say that the people of St. Anthony Park make this community a very special one. Coming from an Eastsider that's quite a compliment! The recreation program at Langford Park has grown dramatically during the past few years and I am extremely proud of this fact. I hope you are as well. Because of hard working staff (I love you all), a dedicated and supportive Booster Club, outstanding and unselfish volunteers and a caring community, this program rates as one of the best in the entire city. And although we are not perfect, take pride in the fact that each year we seem to get a little better and I see no reason why this trend won't continue.

Finally I wish you continued success not only with the Langford program but with everything you do. I have made many new friends during my time here at Langford Park and although I will miss you, I will never forget you.

Sincerely,

Dan Berchem

Thanks! More $ needed

Last month we thanked over 500 people who have contributed to our fund drive because they see the Bugle as an important part of their community. This month we're grateful for contributions from more readers whose names we were not able to list.

But we need to hear from more of you to reach our $11,500 goal. Our only sources of income are ad revenue and your contributions.

You can contribute by mailing your check, payable to Park Press, Inc., to Park Bugle, Box 8126 Como Station, St. Paul, MN 55108. You can also drop it in our drop box (behind our office in the Healy Building at 2301 Como).

Walk of Fame

By Warren Hanson

Shoveling the sidewalks just after a deep white bountiful Minnesota snowfall provides the rare opportunity to be alone with one's thoughts. Whenever I am out on a snowy morning, bundled up warm and cozy against the cold, with the bustling city sounds gently muffled by the fresh white quilt from heaven, the thought that fills my head is that shoveling stinks!

Snow demands to be shoveled immediately. It has no regard for my plans, my schedule. Snow doesn't care that there is a fresh pot of coffee in the kitchen and a fresh newspaper at the door. For if snow is not shoveled RIGHT NOW, it allows itself to be trampled by the daily army of pedestrians that pass my house, until it is compacted into a rock-hard runway that a returning space shuttle could not indent.

Swarms of dark and cursing thoughts tumble through my head as I hunch over the scraping blue blade of my snow shovel. I perspire incongruously in the sub-zero morning air as the grudging, loathing, infernal thoughts fill my brain and invariably condense into these words: "I'll bet famous people don't have to do this!"

I'll bet Elizabeth Taylor doesn't shovel snow. She probably has throngs of people outside her door every morning, just praying for the chance to shovel her sidewalk or take out her garbage. She's probably never SEEN a snow shovel.

I'll bet Bruce Springsteen doesn't go outside in the cold before the sun is even up, with mittens that don't match and don't keep his hands warm either, wearing an old Minnesota Fighting Saints stocking cap, poking away at the snow with a flimsy aluminum snow shovel.

And Charleton Heston. I'm just about positive HE'S never had to even TOUCH a snow shovel. He probably just steps out on his front porch and waves his arms and the snow just parts before him, leaving his sidewalk dry so that he may walk sandal-footed across it to reach his promised newspaper on the other side.

I wish I could be famous. Some of our neighbors are, you know. Oh, you probably don't realize it, because the famous people who live in St. Anthony Park are the quiet kind of famous people who don't draw attention to themselves. But they're here all right.

Marge DeBoer is famous. She writes those books that usually have a picture on the cover of a good-looking buccaneer wearing a leather vest over no shirt, sneering seductively as he embraces a young woman with long flowing tresses and a billowy blouse falling off the shoulder. You know the ones. You've seen Marge's books lots of places. But if you're like me, you've been so busy looking at the picture on the cover that you never really noticed the name of the author. Well, next time, take a look, because it might be Marge, your famous neighbor.

Then there's Ed Zotolla. Ed is kind of the father of farmer's cheese. He introduced the process of making farmer's cheese after going all the way over to France to find out how it was done. Why, we've got some of Ed's claim to fame in our refrigerator right this very minute. Oh, it's not exactly like having Imogene Coca's autograph, but fame is fame, especially if you have to go all the way to France to get it.

Ralph Wayne is retired now (but then what has Jimmy Stewart done LATELY?), but when he was head of the cattle show at the State Fair, he was on a first name basis with every good-looking cow in the state of Minnesota. Oh, it may be a little different brand of fame than you usually think of, but I for one would rather be famous among cattle than not famous at all.

Tim Harding doesn't live in the neighborhood any more, but he still has his studio nearby. Tim makes clothes. He makes them out of layers and layers of colored cloth. He carefully sews them in intricate quilted patterns. Then he takes a sharp knife and cuts the heck out of them. That last step turns the clothes into art. Now I don't understand it, myself. I wear layered, quilted clothes to stay warm while I'm out there shoveling snow. It seems to me that cutting them with a knife would let the cold right in. But Tim has made quite a name for himself out in New York. I guess that explains it right there.

Oh, we have lots more famous people around here.

Young Brian Krinke (he'll probably be known around here as "young Brian Krinke" even when he's ninety) is getting good and famous for playing the violin. He's even played it in the Soviet Union. There's plenty of snow in the Soviet Union, but I'm just sure that Brian didn't have to worry about it.

Elmer Andersen, the former governor of Minnesota, can often be seen walking down the sidewalk in St. Anthony Park. Alvin Rogness and Herman Preus, two leaders of Lutheranism, live here too. And Kira Gregersen, the state tennis champ, and E.W. McDiarmid, the Sherlock Holmes expert, and Dudley Riggs, the renowned funny guy. Why, even the erstwhile Garrison Keillor used to live here, and has been known to come back to sign a book or two.

I think these famous citizens of our area deserve our recognition. Lots of them are famous in other parts of the country, but we, their neighbors, hardly give them a second look. I think it's time that the community honor these outstanding people the same way they do in Hollywood, with a St. Anthony Park Walk of Fame, a stretch of pavement dedicated to those among us whose fame makes us proud.

The Walk of Fame would be divided into squares, like a regular sidewalk is. But each square would have a big brass star sunk into it, with a picture in the middle representing what the person is famous for. For instance, Ralph Wayne's star would have a picture of a real good-looking cow in the middle, maybe with a big blue ribbon in the background. And Tim Harding's star would have a picture of a coat that has been slashed to ribbons.

Then we would have the mayor dedicate a day in honor of each of these famous people. So that, for instance, on Ed Zotolla Day, we would all gather round, and the mayor would make a speech, and the Como High School band would play, and then Ed would write his signature in the wet cement, so that his fame would be known throughout the ages, or until a tree root busts up through it, whichever comes first.

So now that I have suggested this grand idea, I'm going to put my money where my mouth is by volunteering the sidewalk in front of my house as the site for the St. Anthony Park Walk of Fame. And I will happily be the one to usher the idea through all the red tape down at city hall. I think we have ignored these famous neighbors long enough, and I believe we owe it to them to make this monument a reality without any undue delays.

I am completely confident that, once all those people have their names immortalized in concrete and brass, they will want to be sure that people can see them. And I am willing to bet that, when it snows, each of my famous neighbors will be out there bright and early to shovel off his or her own square.

And I'll never have to do it, ever again!

Taking Control: Steps you can take to control your cancer risk

A new approach to "Taking Control" of your life will be the featured topic at the Jan. meeting of the St. Anthony Park Assoc., Jan. 10 at the United Church of Christ. The American Cancer Society will present a thought-provoking program on taking charge of our lives and reducing the risk of cancer by careful decision-making.

Mary Kay Johnston, the professional education chairperson of the Ramsey County American Cancer Society, believes that awareness is truly the key to fighting cancer. "Cancer has a stigma of fear and death," she said. "People don't even want to say the word cancer. In order to take control, we need to take control of our fears first."

The "Taking Control" awareness program battles cancer by fighting the taboo, educating youth and providing cancer patients with support and empowerment to be in charge of their health care treatment.

According to Johnston, cancer awareness is becoming part of our schools' curriculum. "Raising kids to understand healthy lifestyle choice is going to determine future reduction in cancer occurrences. We've got to take responsibility to have our kids finish their vegetables and not just keep taking them to McDonald's."

Cancer patients must also be able to take control of their health care treatments. "They must ask questions and keep asking questions," she said. "The entire health field is realizing and training new health professionals that the patient has the right and responsibility to play an active part in decision-making for treatments."

Following Johnston's presentation, a brief overview of the St.

Paul Chapter's activities will be presented. In addition to the "Take Control" program, the American Cancer Society offers "I Can Cope" and "Cansurmount" which are additional collaborative efforts portraying the Society's theme of "Together We are Winning."

Make your reservation for the meeting by calling Jan Meyer at 647-9104. Dinner will be served at 5:50 p.m.; the program will begin at 7 p.m. Babysitting will be available. Dinner is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12.

You can share your home and your food at St. Anthony Park Association's Third Annual Progressive Dinner on Sat., Feb. 4. Anyone in the neighborhood may join in this special event, but all must register first. It's a special way to meet your neighbors and share a meal in several homes.

There is no charge but each participant must host and provide a course of the dinner. Or, you may provide appetizers or co-host with another host on the main course. To participate, complete the registration form and return it by Jan. 28.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. at the United Methodist Church on Hillside at Como. Appetizers will be served there and everyone will receive group assignments, consisting of the names of everyone in their group and the homes they'll be visiting. The second course, consisting of salad and bread, will be served from 7-7:45 p.m. The main course, usually offered by two hosts, will include a main dish and vegetables. This course will run from 8-9 p.m. Finally the dessert course, 9:15-10:15 p.m. THE ABSOLUTE CUTOFF FOR RESERVATIONS IS JAN. 28. WRITTEN RESERVATIONS ARE A MUST! If requests come in after the cut-off date, they will be put on a waiting list to fill any emergency cancellations on a first-come basis.

Commonwealth Ave. neighbors seek agreement on housing

By Kathy Malchow

A public hearing will be held at St. Paul City Hall on Thurs., Jan. 19 at 3:30 p.m. on the request for a Special Condition Use Permit that, if granted, would allow a six-unit "cluster housing" development to be built at 2389-2399 Commonwealth Ave.

The hearing has been postponed several times since last fall at the request of the developer, Park II Development, in order to give them and the neighbors time to work out possible changes in the design plans.

Park II Development owners, Dick Schoen and Roger Vik, both long-time St. Anthony Park residents, also own the property they want to develop and they live adjacent to it.

The two want to construct three double unit owner-occupied single family residences on the Commonwealth Ave. lots. The plan includes two garages per unit that would face Commonwealth Ave. The units would be in the "over $100,000" price range.

Park II Development applied for a Special Condition Use Permit for "cluster zoning" privileges within the current R-3 (residential) zone. All the city's requirements for cluster zoning have been met, the St. Anthony Park Community Council has given its approval, but several neighbors are unhappy.

When the neighbors came before the Community Council's Housing Committee in September, they were concerned about the impact of six additional families living on the block—with the accompanying increased number of cars and traffic. They were concerned about the possibility of absentee landlords renting out the property. They had questions about the visual impact the new homes would have in the neighborhood. Would they fit in aesthetically? Would the roof lines be too high? But their primary concern was that they hadn't been asked for input in advance of the Community Council's Housing Committee meetings. Some felt the developers had falsely stated that the neighbors approved of the project.

At its Oct. meeting, the St. Anthony Park Community Council voted to support the request of the neighbors for a two-week delay of the hearing before the Zoning Committee to allow the neighbors to meet among themselves and with the developers to work out possible compromises. Then, realizing it was getting too late in the fall to begin construction, Park II Development asked for, and was granted, postponement of the hearing until Jan..

Since the end of Oct., three of the neighbors met with Schoen and Vik once; two have met with Schoen a second time. "Our main areas of concern are the roof lines—we want them to be lowered, the landscaping, and the exterior design—which we want to be consistent," said Wanda Lorentzen, one of these neighbors.

Schoen said that as a result of his meetings with the neighbors, the roof lines will be lowered. The original plan called for heights about four feet higher than those of neighboring homes. "The width of each unit has been reduced, too, so that now there is more space between each building," he said.

"After our last meeting with Mr. Schoen, it was decided that he was going to prepare final construction plans and a scale model, including landscaping, for the neighbors to see before the January hearing," Lorentzen said.

In accordance with its requirements, the city will notify all neighbors within 350 ft. about this hearing before the Zoning Committee. Zoning then will make a recommendation to the Planning Commission, which makes the final decision.

Investment info

For those willing to invest a little time to gain a lot of knowledge about investing, the Lauderdale Investment Forum is the place to go. It meets every Mon., 9:30-11:30 a.m., at the Lauderdale City Hall, 1891 Walnut St. A financial planner and an investment executive are scheduled to speak at future meetings.

All are welcome, no reservations necessary or fees charged. Call Don Ellis, 631-0959 or 631-9040, with questions.

South St. Anthony Rec Center

Winter brochures listing recreation programs are available on request at the recreation center. Highlights this winter include: arts & crafts on Mondays, 4:30-5:30 p.m., ages 6-11, .25 per time; gym games on Tuesdays, 4:30-5:30 p.m., ages 6-11, free; and co-rec volleyball for teens & adults on Wednesdays, 7-7:15 p.m., free. All activities start the week of Jan. 30 and continue for six sessions. Registrations are accepted by phone at 298-5770. Call Mon.-Thurs., 4-9 p.m.

Join in an old-fashioned skating party on Wed., Feb. 1 at 6:30 p.m. There will be plenty of fun, hot chocolate and donuts!

Call the rec center if you can serve on the planning committee for the annual pot-luck dinner. Area residents should watch for further information on this event in upcoming issues of the Bugle.

Driver retraining

55-Alive Mature Driving Refresher Courses are scheduled at Falcon Heights City Hall, 2077 West Larpentour on Jan. 10-12, 6-10 p.m. and Jan. 19 & 20, 10-3 p.m. The courses are sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons and are open to everyone 55 years of age and older. Upon completion of the eight hours of retraining, a certificate is issued which makes persons 65 or older eligible for an insurance discount. The cost is $7 per person. To register, call Falcon Heights City Hall, 644-5050.

The National Defensive Driving Course for those age 55+ will be held at Lyngblomsten Senior Center, 1298 N. Pascal, Jan. 12 and 13, 12:30-4:30 p.m. in the community room. The course is an educational seminar that teaches basic accident avoidance skills and also qualifies drivers for insurance discounts. Class size is limited. Cost is $16. Call 646-2941, ext. 425, for details.

Falcon Heights commission vacancies

The Falcon Heights Parks & Rec Commission is looking for people interested in working on park development and recreation activities. The Human Rights Commission will have a vacancy also. This commission advises the city council on long-range programs to improve community relations in the city, and promotes an understanding of human rights issues, needs and requirements in Falcon Heights.

Kids at the library

Real Estate

By Carol Weber

REALTOR

WHEN NOT TO USE $125,000 EXEMPTION

Homeowners over age 55 may exclude from gross income any profit up to $125,000 realized on the sale of a principal residence. To qualify for the exclusion, you must be age 55 by the day the residence is sold, and you must have owned the property and used it as a personal residence for at least three of the preceding five years. This tax break can be used only once in a lifetime.

Does this mean that it ALWAYS makes sense to use this tax break if you sell a home for a good profit when you are 55 or older? Not necessarily. This exclusion was made primarily for a retiring couple to sell their old home and buy a small retirement home without having to pay significant capital gains taxes. If you are going to buy another home that will cost as much or more than your present one, it might make more sense to avail yourself of the rollover break which allows you to defer all the profit from the sale and which can be used as many times as you desire.

Meet all your financial needs at First Banks

In these busy, busy times it's nice to know you can look to one place for all your financial needs. At First Banks, we have the resources to provide a complete range of banking products and services, as well as to manage your mortgage, help you create a will or trust account, offer you discount rates on your investments and handle all your insurance needs.

Contact your personal banker or any of these First Banks companies directly for more information:

FBS Mortgage St. Paul (four other metro area locations)	641-3800
First Trust St. Paul	223-7000
FBS Brokerage Services, Inc. Minneapolis	343-1570
First Insurance Edina	829-4800

Resolve to succeed — purchase your new home through FBS Mortgage

If your list of new year's resolutions includes moving to a new home, FBS Mortgage can help make that resolution a reality. FBS Mortgage has a wide variety of mortgage options and alternatives — and the expertise to help you make the best decision. A member of First Bank System, FBS Mortgage is one of the largest lenders located in the Twin Cities area.

One of FBS Mortgage's more popular programs is the "Lock and Roll" program that allows you to "lock" into today's rates on an adjustable rate mortgage and later, if you qualify, "roll" over into a fixed rate mortgage any time before closing.

So go ahead, read those Sunday papers and chat with a realtor. FBS Mortgage will be there when you need them.

Make First Bank your "First Choice" for checking

Stop in to talk with us about our line of simpler, more predictable checking accounts called the "First Choice Checking Series."

With no per item charges, the five "easy to use and choose" accounts are designed to meet the varied financial needs of our customers. There's even a special senior account for people over age 55.

"First Choice Checking" offers these personal checking accounts:

- No Minimum Checking charges a flat monthly fee and requires no minimum balance;
- Balance Checking is free when the minimum balance is maintained;
- Interest Checking pays interest and is free when the minimum balance is maintained;
- Relationship Checking earns interest, is free to qualifying First Bank customers, and includes free check printing and travelers checks;
- Senior Checking, free to anyone over age 55 who holds a certificate of deposit or savings account with First Bank, offers discounts on safe deposit boxes.

See your First Bank representative to learn more about "First Choice Checking" or call First FinancialLine at 370-3900, weekdays from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Winds to play at Music in the Park concert

The St. Paul Chamber Orchestra Wind Quintet will make its only Twin Cities appearance this year as part of the Music in the Park series' tenth anniversary season on Sun., Jan. 29, at the St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2129 Commonwealth. Music by Anton Reicha, as well as performance of several new works for wind quintet, will be featured at the 4 p.m. concert to be performed by the principal wind players of the SPCO.

The Music in the Park series has earned a reputation with audience and music critics alike for top-notch performers and innovative programming. Artistic Director Julie Himmelstrup has a knack for providing premieres of musical works at these concerts, and the program for Sun., Jan. 29, will include four.

In one of those unplanned but serendipitous happenings, Himmelstrup noticed a common thread uniting four of the programmed selections. Not only are they all premieres, they all have a connection with children.

Oberlin teacher and composer Michael Daugherty's composition is titled "Hush" in honor of his first child, a daughter born in Nov. The work was commissioned by Music in the Park and funded by the 1988 Composers Commissioning Program of the Minnesota Composers Forum. His music, a mixture of rock, jazz and avant-garde sounds from the 20th century, is described by Musical America as "eclecticism at its best." Daugherty will participate in a 3 p.m. pre-concert discussion of his compositions in the church assembly hall. The public is invited to the event which is free.

A second premiere performance will be "Seven Dedications," a work composed for flutist Julia Bogorad and her husband, bassoonist Charles Ullery, by Joseph Castaldo of Philadelphia. Each movement is dedicated to a child born to friends in 1988, including the daughter born to Bogorad and Ullery, both part of the quintet.

In a 1987 concert of Music in the Park, pianist Paul Schoenfeld played the world premiere of "Merry Christmas, 1941, for Hope Castagnola," by Czech composer Bohuslav Martinu. Written for Julia Bogorad's mother, a little girl when Martinu lived with her family in New York, the piece has been transcribed for wind quintet by Roger Ruggeri and will have its premiere in that form at the Jan. 29 concert.

The fourth premiere is a wind quintet by Robert J. Maderich II of Minneapolis, the first movement of which is entitled, "Belfast Lamentations for March, 1988."

Members of the SPCO Wind Quintet—principal players who also perform frequently as soloists with the orchestra—are Timothy Paradise, clarinet; Julia Bogorad, flute; Kathryn Greenbank, oboe; Charles Ullery, bassoon; and Herbert Winslow, horn. All have appeared previously in the Music in the Park series.

Tickets for the concert are $8, available at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506) in St. Anthony Park or at The Bibelot Shop on Grand Ave. at Lexington (222-0321) in St. Paul. Student rush tickets at concert time are $4. For further information call 644-4234.

CHSM from 1

lated, there were the Pearson children, all seven of them, ready to jump the fence and join them on the playground. Visiting social workers said that the home didn't look like an institution and—the acid test—didn't smell like one either.

During World War II, the population of boarders swelled again. Again there were working mothers, absent fathers, families under stress. You might have heard the grown-ups grumble because they couldn't hire a resident cook for love or money (war jobs paid well and made steep competition). Neighborhood women tried to fill the gap, volunteering their time. Home Finder said, "How would you like the job of mending 25,000 pairs of stockings? Well, that is what some of our friends on Rose Hill [now Lauderdale]...have done in the past 10 years. They meet every two weeks and at their last meeting they mended 106 pairs of stockings. These good friends were first brought together by Mrs. C. M. Colby who lives at 1784 Carl St."

You collected scrap metal for the war effort, but mostly you were busy with your friends. You might have invited Donna over to play and stay for supper. Maybe it would be a cookout on the outdoor fireplace built of bricks from the old barn. If you came during World War II, you were one of the very last children to stay at the Jean Martin Brown Receiving Home. Times were about to change.

In our Feb. issue you'll be able to read more about the history of our century-old neighbor. This month a book of the Children's Home Society's history, "One Life at a Time" by Kenneth L. Green, will be available. Come to the CHSM reception desk with a check for $10.60 or send $13.78 (which includes shipping, handling and tax) payable to and mailed to CHSM Centennial Book, 2230 Como Ave., St. Paul 55108.

Special thanks to Mary Ann Nord and Barbara Crandall of CHSM who provided materials and photographs, and to Kenneth L. Green for the use of the manuscript.

It's been a good year in our little town. It seems like there are more kids around, we've noticed lots of neighbors out saying "Hi!" to each other, the merchants in the Village seem to be successful... It's been a good year.

We've been able to help lots of families to own new homes in the Park, and we've helped lots of people to sell their homes as they move on to a new phase in their lives. We've had some very interesting transactions this year. Due to some unusual circumstances, we've helped some folks pour concrete, helped paint houses, taken care of lawns for out of town sellers, even helped carry trash out of houses at the last minute.

We consider ourselves "Full Service" Realtors. But we do this because it's what neighbors do for each other in little towns like ours. It's been a good year.

Thanks!

Obituaries

Wilhelm Anderson

Wilhelm Anderson, a champion skeet-shooter, died at the age of 94 on Dec. 2, 1988. Anderson, who lived in his Como Ave. home for 64 years, moved to Alexandria in 1982.

Wilhelm Anderson was born in Garfield, Minn., in 1894. He lost his right arm in World War I after being hit by shrapnel. He was discharged from the hospital at Fort Snelling in 1919 and took vocational training at the University of Minnesota.

After working for an insurance company, he began working for the State Highway Department as an inspector in 1928. He became an accountant with the State Income Tax Department in 1942 and retired in 1960.

Anderson had been right-handed before his amputation, and had to learn to use his left hand. He taught himself to shoot skeet one-armed in 1933 and became well-known for his ability. He shot more than 60,000 targets and won more than 100 trophies. He participated in seven world skeet shooting championships, beginning in 1941. He was secretary of the St. Anthony Gun club from 1936-1940.

His wife, Maria, died last year. The couple had no children and there are no surviving siblings.

Katherine Krantz

Katherine L. Krantz, who had been a resident of St. Anthony Park for over 60 years, died Dec. 7, 1988. She was buried on Dec. 9, her 95th birthday. She was a "second mother" to many graduate students in horticulture the University of Minnesota. She was the widow of Fred A. Krantz, a specialist in potato culture at the university for 30 years. Krantz grew up in Minneapolis. Their home on Langford Park Place was demolished to make room for the new St. Anthony Park Elementary School in 1955, at which time the family moved to Carter Ave.

She was a 1918 graduate of the University of Minnesota and taught home economics in Morris, Minn., until she married in 1919. The Krantz's lived in St. Anthony Park during most of their marriage. Fred Krantz taught at the university from 1928 until his death in 1958. Katherine was a charter member of Corpus Christi Church and an active member there. She was also active in the University Alumni Association, the Faculty Women's Club and Phi Upsilon sorority.

She is survived by a son, Fred, of Breezy Point, Minn., and daughters, Katherine Stevens, Anchorage, AL; Mary Smith, Prescott, WI; Margaret Biniek, Venice FL; Alice Line-rooth, Pine Springs, MN; Ann Krantz, St. Paul; Jo Dolan, St. Paul; 35 grandchildren and 25 great-grandchildren. Funeral

Mass was said at Corpus Christi Church on Dec. 9 by her grandson, Father Joseph Biniek.

Russell Lembke

Russell (Doc) E. Lembke, 86, died Nov. 27, 1988. He lived in St. Anthony Park for 17 years before moving to Brooklyn Park and was a founder of the St. Anthony Park Association in 1946. He also coached its pee-wee, midget and junior baseball teams. He received the Eminent Citizen of St. Anthony Park award in 1958.

Lembke practiced dentistry in downtown Minneapolis for nearly 60 years before retiring in 1983. He graduated from the University of Minnesota.

He was a musical man and played clarinet and saxophone in the University of Minnesota band and orchestra. He was a member of the Minneapolis and the St. Paul Musician's Association and played with many name bands. In addition, he was president of the Twin City Choir Association and directed the choir at University Lutheran Church of Hope in Minneapolis for 42 years.

Lembke is survived by his son Richard of Maple Grove, his daughter Mary Penner of Michigan and four grandchildren.

Lillian Lindig

Lillian Lindig, long-time resident of Falcon Heights, died Dec. 1, 1988 at age 84. She was active for many years in the Falconeers Senior Club. Lillian had worked in the old Lindig floral shop and greenhouse on Larpenteur Ave. with her husband Art. Besides her husband, she is survived by her daughter, Carol, of Falcon Heights, and her son, Frederick of Tucson, AZ.

Barbara Minder

Barbara Minder, age 75, died on Nov. 21, 1988. She was a resident of St. Anthony Park. She is survived by her husband, Gerald, and her son Bruce, of Tampa, FL.

Harold Pederson

Harold Pederson, formerly of Falcon Heights, died Dec. 1, 1988, at the age of 85. He had been living in Augustana Home in Minneapolis.

He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1927 and earned a master's degree in agriculture and economics from the University in 1951. He taught in its agricultural extension program until 1971. He was the founder of the Minnesota Landscape Arboretum and a life member of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society. He was past president of the Minnesota Federation of Fairs and an active member of the Minnesota Soil Conservation District Association.

Pederson had served as agricultural extension agent in Traverse, Winona and Hennepin Counties.

Pederson was an active member of St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church before his move to Minneapolis.

He is survived by his wife Florence; sons, Roger of Pittsburgh and Bruce of Minneapolis; a brother; 3 sisters; 4 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

ALWAYS! READ THE FINE PRINT.

1 A trust is an extraordinarily efficient and cost-effective estate planning tool. The trust serves the function of a will in that it directs the distribution of property after death, but the passage of the trust assets is accomplished without the delay and expense of probate. The dollars saved in avoiding probate at the very least pay for the cost of preparing the trust and in most cases greatly exceed the cost of the trust. Financial considerations aside, distribution of the assets from the trust relieves the executor, usually a daughter or son, from the burdens of probating an estate. In this way, the trust serves to satisfy the client's basic concerns - the appropriate, least expensive, and most convenient distribution of his/her estate after death.

ALWAYS! READ THE FINE PRINT.

2 If you have read The Fine Print in any of the past issues of The Park Bugle then you know of the enormous convenience provided by a trust both for managing your assets, should you ever suffer mental incapacity, and for passing your assets without the need for probate after your death. As an added benefit, the trust can be written so that members of your family and/or charitable organizations will receive gifts from the trust assets after you have lost your mental capacity, but prior to your death! With the trust you can specify by whom your mental incapacity is determined, how long the trustee waits after that determination before making the gifts, who you desire to receive the gifts, and what amounts or items are to be given.

ALWAYS! READ THE FINE PRINT.

3 Too often, people hold all their assets jointly. Spouses routinely acquire their assets jointly. Single persons frequently retitle their assets jointly with a child or sibling. Joint owners are content with two advantages of joint ownership: convenient access to assets during a possible incapacity and automatic transfer of assets upon death. However, they commonly overlook hidden pitfalls of joint ownership: unnecessary exposure to income tax on the sale of appreciated assets by the survivor, vulnerability of assets to other joint owners' creditors, and the complications that can occur when the younger or healthier joint owner unexpectedly dies or becomes incapacitated first. With the preparation of a revocable trust you can have the advantages of joint ownership without the risks.

ALWAYS! READ THE FINE PRINT.

4 After executing a revocable trust our clients address the question: Which assets should be transferred to the trust? The answer is complicated by the variety of the client's assets, their physical and mental health, choice of trustee and their need to avoid probate. As a general rule, the more assets that are transferred to the trust the easier it is for the trustee and the greater the savings for the client's estate at the time of incapacity or death. Many people put only a minimum of their assets into their trusts initially. Where possible these people should name the trustee as beneficiary upon death, and as an added precaution, should also execute a Power of Attorney enabling someone else to transfer assets to the trust prior to their death.

5 A common misconception among people thinking about establishing a trust is that a trust company will assume total control of their assets. In reality, the creator of a revocable trust controls its terms and invariably names himself or herself as one of, if not the only, trustee. Usually a family member, friend or bank, is designated to serve as cotrustee. Our client will always provide for a successor trustee if the person or institution serving as trustee is unwilling or unable to serve. In addition, if because of death or mental incapacity the client will no longer be serving as a trustee then a dual trusteeship can also be provided for effectively checking and balancing against a sole trustee abusing his or her powers.
