Fall Festival International Oct. 6 offers something for everyone to enjoy

The St. Anthony Park business district is due to become a melting pot of nations at the Fall Festival International on Oct. 6. The event is sponsored by the St. Anthony Park Merchants & Professionals Association.

Shoppers and visitors can plan to see dancers and entertainment from India, Greece, Scotland, Germany, Sweden, and Ireland, as well as a European organ grinder and American square dancing.

All children ages pre-school through 4th grade are encouraged to enter the costume parade at 10 a.m. that day. Costumes can include clown suits, Halloween specialties, or ethnic dress. Judging will be done by the Northern Lights 4-H Clown Club whose costumes will add to the fun. Entries should be submitted to Miller Pharmacy, The Bibelot, Park Bank, or State Farm Insurance before Oct. 3.

There will also be a poster contest open to all students grades 5-9. Posters should reflect the theme of the celebration, goodwill between ethnic groups and various cultural events celebrated throughout the world. Judging will be done by the board of the Association and entries will be displayed in Park businesses before and after the Festival.

Prizes for each event (parade and poster contest) will be a $25 savings bond for first place and a $15 book certificate for second place.

Of course, there will also be food—meat from a pig roast on the patio of Muffuletta, Scottish scones and shortbread and Swedish bread at Pam Sherman's Bakery, Italian fritters by Mama D, Greek gyros pocket sandwiches by Tom Comtolatis, Greek baklava by Mary Mantis, health foods from SAP Foods, and lots of apples from Pine Tree Orchards. While munching on those apples, watch cider being made on an antique apple press at Sherman Bakery.

The Country Peddler will be celebrating its 19th anniversary in Milton Square and the Minnesota Weavers' Guild will be celebrating its Golden Anniversary. The Bibelot Shop will have an informal style show and The Learning Square will be painting kids' faces.

Storyteller Jennifer Jeseph from Rochester, Minn., will be back at Micawber's Bookstore.

Participants of all ages will enjoy free horse-drawn carriage rides at Milton Square offered by Dr. Bob Bjorndahl, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Committee members from the Merchants and Professionals Association, including Bonnie Brandt, Van Keszler, Dr. Paul Kirkegaard, Paula Arnold, Sheila Boos, Jerry Page, Mel Boynton, Julian Zweber, Julie Langhoff, Jim Roehrenbach and Mary Ann Milton helped plan the events for the day.

The St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals Association will receive an award from the Minnesota Horticultural Society for the flowers planted in the Como/Carter business area. On the left is Bob Harvey who designed the landscaping, planted and cared for the flowers. On the right is Jim Roehrenbach, president-elect of the business association.

Merchants win award for flowers along Como & Carter

By Kathy Malchow

Strollers along the avenue have commented on the flowers beautifying the businesses on Como, Carter and Doswell. Thanks to the work of Bob Harvey and his landscape company, Edelweiss Design, the St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals Association will receive a special award from the Minnesota State Horticultural Society.

It's called the Minnesota Green Community Award and will be presented at the Minnesota Green conference in February, 1991. A special category was created to honor the business district's decision to improve its appearance. Further, the St. Anthony Park business district will be used as a model for other business communities by the Horticultural Society.

Bob Harvey will accept the award on behalf of the business association. He's the familiar figure with the watering hoses along Como Ave. maintaining his flower beds and answering a good many questions of passers-by about the identity of the varieties of blooms he tends.

This is the third year he's been in charge of flowers along the avenue. "It all started when I ran into Judy Schumacher of Wellington Management planting some marigolds in the boxes in front of the Healy Building three years ago. We got to talking. I told her what I did; she thought my services would be a valuable addition to the community." Harvey was then introduced to the St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals Association, of which he is now a member.

"I tried to create what I call a strolling garden," he continued, "a sort of 'grandma's back yard' to complement the community's pride and attitude." Harvey sees his type of self-described "simple, quaint" garden as opposite to the artificial environments sometimes found in huge shopping areas and malls.

He calls the flowers a unifying factor along the avenue as well as a means of enhancing communication between the various businesses. He says he's trying to get support for his project from all the area merchants through the business association. He'd like to contract with the association itself, rather than with each individual business separately—as he now works. He sees that effort as an attempt to further unite the business area.

Harvey, who has just moved back to St. Anthony Park, is working on a degree in landscape design at the University of Minnesota. His background includes tending gardens at the Von Trapp estate in Stowe, Vermont—hence the name Edelweiss Design for his business.

Harvey stressed that he doesn't do all the work himself—there are many others who help out. "Thanks to the merchants, especially Mary Ann Milton of Milton Investment, Don Menier of Wellington Management, and Joe Michels, who is responsible for the benches around the flowers. And thanks to the community for their support. All these people provided the vehicle for the success of this project," he said.

Energy audits announced

Energy conservation is again on the national agenda. Rising energy costs this fall and winter will increase awareness for conservation measures which many will remember adopting during the energy crisis of the '70s.

Home energy audits are still the best first step in cutting your energy bills and increasing your living comfort. This fall the St. Anthony Park Community Council, in partnership with the Neighborhood Energy Consortium and NSP, is encouraging area residents to sign up for an energy audit by giving away a free weatherization kit to the first 25 households to call in a request. The kit includes a caulking gun and one tube of caulk, a package of weatherstripping, and a pair of window pulley draft seals. Retail value of the kit is about $12.

The energy audit is primarily an educational tool used to evaluate a home's energy efficiency. During the audit, the consultant checks furnace safety and efficiency, evaluates attic and wall insulation, identifies by-passes and areas of cold air infiltration, and prepares a report on the costs and savings for 25 energy conservation measures.

Any homeowner or renter of a one- to four-unit dwelling in the St. Anthony Park neighborhood is eligible for this energy audit/weatherization kit offer. Just call the St. Anthony Park Community Council at 292-7884.

The St. Anthony Park (District 12) Community Council is a group of 21 citizens elected to serve the District 12 area of St. Paul, including residents of St. Anthony Park, and representatives of commerce and industry. It is one of 17 citizen participation councils in the city.

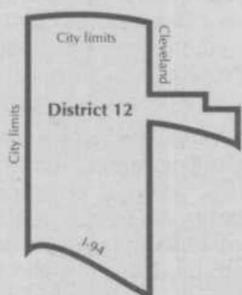

The council meets the Wednesday after the first Thursday of every month. All meetings are open to the public. Check for location.

Volunteer appreciated

Suzanne Brust was recognized by the St. Anthony Park Community Council as an outstanding recycling volunteer. Her contributions were noted on Sept. 8 at an event sponsored by the Neighborhood Energy Consortium. Brust has served as recycling coordinator for North St. Anthony Park since the recycling program began four years ago. She has delivered nearly 100 lawnsigns to neighborhood volunteers and her efforts have contributed to the fact that nearly 75% of households in the Park recycle.

Crime incident reporting

The Community Council is now receiving bi-weekly crime statistics on robbery, burglary, theft, motor vehicle theft and vandalism. At the request of neighborhood organizations, the St. Paul Police Dept. is releasing more information and we are passing that information on to you. As indicated on the map, the neighborhood is broken down by grids. We have compiled the data by grid and type of crime. If you have any questions or would like more information, please contact Julie Krahn, Block Club Coordinator, at 292-7884.

Chore Service for seniors

Do you need help with yard work, house-cleaning, snow shoveling and other chores around your home? If you are a senior citizen (age 60 & over) and live in the St. Anthony Park or Como Park areas, you are eligible to register for our free referral services!

We will match you with workers in your neighborhood who can provide services to you. Seniors pay only what they can afford and no senior will be denied services because of inability to pay.

Call Joan at 292-7884 for more information.

Energy Conservation Tips

10 things that make the most cents

1. In winter, keep your thermostat 68° and turn it down at night to 60°. (Can save up to 15-25% on your bill.)
2. Schedule an energy audit for your residence.
3. When buying new appliances check the energy guide label. (This will give you approximate annual operating cost.)
4. Vacuum the coils on the bottom and back of your refrigerator at least twice a year.
5. Keep hot water heater set between 110-120
6. Keep fireplace damper closed when not using it in winter, in summer open it for cooling, unless using air conditioning.
7. Unplug TV when not using it for long periods of time. (Most TVs are instant on, and will always use electricity.)
8. In summer, turn off furnace pilot light.
9. Insulate your hot water heater.
10. Drain air from radiators. Keep furnace filters clean.

Council actions at a glance

Actions in September:

- Approved a task force to work on a neighborhood marketing brochure with other neighborhood based organizations to include the St. Anthony Park Association, the Merchants and Professionals Association and a locally-based realtor.
- Donated $50 to the Grochala Memorial to replace bulbs on Summit Avenue lost last winter.
- Requested that David French, Horticulture Dept., U of M, do a tree inventory of South St. Anthony Park and make the information available to the St. Anthony Park Community Council, as was done this spring in North St. Anthony.
- Reviewed plans for Westgate construction of a 120,000 sq. ft. office and distribution facility to house Rivertown Trading Corp., a mail order catalog firm.
- Adopted a resolution to approve the structure of University UNITED and appointed Quentin Elliott, delegate, and Greg Kneisl, alternate.
- Directed a letter to the Housing Division, City of St. Paul, requesting that all relocated households in the Twin City Testing expansion area be informed of the replacement housing to be constructed at Energy Park Drive/Raymond Ave.
- Approved release of the blockworkers list in South St. Anthony in order to conduct a survey of children and to gather support to form a booster club for the South St. Anthony Recreation Center.
- Acted to make the food shelf pickup an annual event to be held the first recycling day in August and to encourage community councils in adjacent neighborhoods to conduct a food shelf pickup during the summer months to boost the service provided at the Merriam Park Community Center.
- Released 130 ft. of railing from the old Raymond Ave. bridge to be used in another neighborhood park, with 570 ft. of railing left to be incorporated in proposed projects in St. Anthony Park.

Concept for public art taking shape

By Kathy Malchow

On Oct. 1, an artist will be selected to come up with a concept for a public art project in St. Anthony Park. He or she will be selected by community participants of a Public Space Design Workshop program, sponsored by Public Art Saint Paul, a non-profit organization. It is funded by The St. Paul and Bigelow Foundations to integrate aesthetic considerations into urban development.

Public workshops have been held since July in St. Anthony Park. Participants have included members of the Park's business community, its community council and interested residents. In August and September, workshop participants were introduced to the four finalists for public artist chosen in response to Public Art St. Paul's call.

Finalists are art professors Cliff Gaten, Hamline University; Tom Rose, University of Minnesota; Kinji Akagawa, Minneapolis College of Art and Design; and Susan Fiene, St. Olaf College.

An announcement of the workshop opportunity was sent in June to artists on Public Art St. Paul's mailing list, which is made up of some 200 artists known to be interested in shaping a public site. The list also includes those who responded to the city's Planning & Economic Development public announcement last summer of public artist fellowships. Workshop announcements were also sent to artists on the Minnesota Museum of Art's mailing list and announcement copies were sent to COMPAS, Forecast and local galleries for posting.

About 20 artists responded. From those, art consultant George Reid and urban designer Lance Neckar (St. Anthony Park resident) chose the four finalists who presented their ideas for a conceptual plan at the workshops. Each of the four was "adopted" by a community resident and shown around St. Anthony Park, in order to give the artist a more fully informed sense of the neighborhood.

Christine Podas-Larson, Public Art St. Paul president, stresses the need for continued input from the public in selecting the project. "The focus of the project is to strengthen and manifest St. Anthony Park's identity while uniting the whole neighborhood," she maintains.

The public artist is charged only with proposing a concept based upon the community's wishes, Podas-Larson continues. The final direction of the project's medium is still very much undecided. "A role for the conceptual artist is to include opportunities for other artists—perhaps from St. Anthony Park—to be involved," she says.

After the conceptual plan is created by the artist, those continuing to participate in the workshops will review the artist's drawings and 3-dimensional models. The plan will be refined until it meets the approval of the workshop group. Before the end of the year, the project will be presented to the city for Capital Improvement funding (CIB).

Chances for its being approved for CIB funds are

A letter to the community:

The Neighborhood Cleanup on Sat., Sept. 15 was a huge success by all accounts. The new site provided by Minnesota Wire and Cable on Energy Park Drive was larger and improved the flow of traffic to the dumpsters. Eighteen 30-yard dumpsters were moved to the RFD plant at Newport by our hauler, Red Arrow. By our count, 408 trips were made to the cleanup site by neighborhood residents. Of these trips, 158 were single trips; 251 were multiple trips.

The experience of this year's cleanup has resulted in the St. Anthony Park Community Council carefully evaluating the cause of our closing the site an hour early. For the past three years, we have contracted for 18 dumpsters and have not used them all and were able to remain open for the hours advertised. This year, as many of you learned, we filled up in less than six hours. This was not unique to our cleanup; other neighborhoods have experienced the same problem. We are well aware that our flier should have indicated that residents would be served on a first come, first serve basis, and this will be done for any future cleanups.

The council, however, is still faced with the need to perhaps limit access to the cleanup site as more trash is coming each year. Garbage removal from residential households is becoming more costly and this is true for the council as well. Each dumpster costs $125 and the tipping fee at Newport is $67 per ton. We estimate that each dumpster holds an average of 2.5 tons.

Recommendations for next year's cleanup are being discussed by members of the Environment Committee and the elected members of the Council. If you have suggestions that can help us deal with the ever increasing volume coming to our site, please let your Community Council representatives hear them. We want this annual event to work for St. Anthony Park residents.

This year our volunteers assisted sixteen seniors in curbside pickup.

Thanks to all of you who were patient and understanding as we faced the dilemma of closing the site early.

Central acting students need stage

Dear editor,

"Central Touring Theatre is a group of multi-cultural students and artists dedicated to creating original works that address the needs of special audiences within the community." Now entering its 11th year, the theatre is headed by Jan Mandell, and is part of the Performing Arts Magnet at St. Paul Central High School. Due to recent changes, we, the students, are concerned about the future of the Central Theatre program. We are urging teachers and members of the community to help ensure the continued support for this vital and successful program.

This fall, Central Touring Theatre has been told that it must move into the choir room at Central, instead of having access to Central's stage. The reasons given include the cost of running lights, the size of the auditorium, and a desire to maintain the stage, which the District rents out to outside groups, such as West Publishing Co.

We, the students and actors, find this unsuitable, and request that those in charge reconsider their options. The choir room is insufficient: it is small, has no stage facilities, and is full of concrete steps that interfere with acting rehearsals. Several of the acting classes have over 40 students. Asking the theatre to move into the choir room is like asking the basketball team to practice in the cafeteria.

We also believe that, first and foremost, the purpose of schools is to educate students, NOT to provide facilities for outside corporations. If the district is serious in its desire to spend money on remodeling, we ask that they use the money, instead, to pay for the upkeep of the stage.

The Touring Theatre performs before an average of 10,000 people a year, taking plays to area high school and other locations such as nursing homes and prisons.

The unique Theatre

Support Program brings students and parents into the decision-making process of planning and production. Students learn to make press releases, contact local schools, organize ticket sales and raise funds. The company does not study plays—it creates them. It does not research programs in the community—it changes them.

Central Theatre has produced plays which reflect the community and society—abuse, drugs, AIDS, racism, peer pressure, and teenage pregnancy. The Theatre seeks to deal with these problems by offering solutions, and encouraging people to take a positive stand within their community. It is this community service that makes Central Touring Theatre such a vital part of the Performing Arts Magnet. Several members of the Touring Theatre have gone on to hold professional jobs at Penumbra, Stepping Stone and Theatre in the Round.

We feel that school facilities and programs should be focused on serving the students, and we urge you to help Central Touring Theatre continue in its educational mission.

Dear Warren:

Editor,

We enjoyed Warren Hanson's "HomeWords" in the Sept. Bugle. The timing of the article at the start of the school year and the insights it offered on today's nutritional standards were appreciated. It was with pride and pleasure that we read about some of our favorite recipes in one of our favorite newspapers.

However, we feel it is necessary to correct a few of the inaccuracies in Warren's description of his neighborhood homemaker:

Are deferred maintenance projects a safety hazard in St. Paul schools?

By Dan Callahan, Neighborhood News Service

School maintenance didn't have much meaning to parents and students at Cleveland Junior High School until the ceiling caved in last year.

"It had a leaky roof and two rows of fluorescent lights fell out of the ceiling," says Jene Sigvertsen, St. Paul School District's retired buildings and grounds man. "Fortunately, it was between classes and the kids were not in the room."

Sigvertsen, who retired as the district's director of planning and maintenance August 31 after 25 years with the district, worries that a growing list of deferred maintenance projects is being shelved by the school district.

And it may take a catastrophe—like the Cleveland Junior High ceiling problem—to dramatize the need to keep schools in good shape.

"The biggest problem is that without a stable funding base, you continue to fight fires," he says. "I think you could defer things to the point where it actually becomes unsafe. I just hope it never reaches that point."

Despite Sigvertsen's worries, the school district has been more concerned about housing all its students than maintaining the buildings it has.

While the district plans to ask voters to approve a tax increase to cover problems and it continues to acquire and renovate buildings, maintenance on some of the district's older buildings has been forgotten.

So far, the district's deferred maintenance and capital improvement program—those are projects the district puts off to save money—totals a substantial $37 million. And that amount doesn't even include maintenance work like roof replacement and repair, window replacement, repainting, tuck repair, sewer work and mechanical and heating projects. That work totals another $15.5 million.

While maintenance people say schools should be painted every five to seven years, the district has them on a 17-year schedule.

"You go to repaint them and the bottom rails have deteriorated," Sigvertsen says.

The district's long range facilities planner, Bill Larsen, agrees that the postponing of some maintenance is creating long-term problems.

"We've got some windows at schools where the casement is gone," says Larsen. "You can push your finger through the sash and push it outside."

"The longer you defer the work, the more complicated it becomes," Sigvertsen says. "And the more the material becomes decayed."

Becky Montgomery, chairwoman of the School Board's Buildings and Grounds Committee, agrees with Sigvertsen, though she doesn't feel the schools are as deteriorated as he does.

"It's hard to get funding for the prevention of anything," Montgomery says. "Our buildings are all safe but there needs to be ongoing maintenance to create an environment that's conducive to studying and learning."

Larsen has a huge stack of requests for maintenance by school principals. "We go out and look at the request, then we look at our budget," he says. "Many times, we have to put it on the deferred maintenance list which is getting longer and longer."

The list—Larsen estimates it at 40 pages long—has reached the point where he has begun to ask

He's Gotta Have It

By Warren Hanson

I woke up this morning needing a cookie. Oh, sure ... I suppose that's never happened to you! Don't make me laugh. I know it has. So don't you go acting so high and mighty, because if you say it has never happened to me I'm going to print your name REAL BIG right here in the newspaper so everyone knows what a BIG FAT LIAR you really are.

So, anyway, I woke up this morning needing a cookie. I mean REALLY NEEDING one, you know? Like, I couldn't think about anything else. I could hardly wait for the kids to get off to school, so I could start ransacking the cupboards. It's not good for kids to see their parent going wild for something that's so bad for your body. It sets a bad example. Of course, I could have lied and told them that I was looking for the winning lottery ticket that I hid in a really good place and then forgot where that really good place was. They'd have believed that. It happens at our house all the time. It routinely happens with airplane tickets and birthday money from Grandma. So they would have believed me. That's not the problem.

The problem is that lying to my kids to cover up the fact that I absolutely HAD to have a cookie is a depth to which I hope I never stoop. It's only one short step above stealing from their piggy banks to support my cookie habit. And no kid deserves to see a parent spiraling downward into a life of cookie crime.

But the moment they were out the door this morning, I started ripping the kitchen apart! My wife, hearing the noise, came in and asked what in heaven's name I was doing. I told her I needed a cookie. My hair was disheveled. My eyes were wild. My shirt tails were hanging out. I was panting and sweating and, in general, looking like someone who had very recently lost his mind.

"Well, I have some hidden in the cupboard above the sink." I was in that cupboard before the last word was out of her mouth. And do you know what I found? A box of little square wimpy-dimpy flat things with a picture of a flower embossed on the top. They were kind of a pale beige color, and looked more like Scrabble tiles than cookies. The name on the side of the box was "Fauntleroy's Finger-Tip Biscuits." I looked at my wife through swirling eyeballs. She shrugged and left the room. I dropped the worthless box of biscuits distastefully in the sink, pulled myself together as best I could and went off to work.

I had an early meeting with a woman named JoAnne. She sat across the desk from me and chatted earnestly about some project or other. I nodded occasionally and said things like "Yes, I see ...", but I wasn't hearing a word. I was staring at JoAnne, but all I could see was a cookie. A big cookie, about five foot five, in a blue blazer, sitting right there on the other side of my desk. After a while, the cookie stood up and shook my hand. Thank goodness I still had enough control not to try to take a bite.

After JoAnne left, I had some errands to do. Or maybe I just made up the errands as an excuse to ... no, they were real errands that really had to be done. Honest!

First I had to stop by the church to drop off some information for next week's newsletter. I thought I'd try my luck with the church secretary. "Say, by the way, Patty, you wouldn't happen to have any ... um ... cookies, would you?"

"Cookies?"
"Yeah, you know, cookies."
"Well, no, not here in the church office. I have some at home ..."
"Oh, no, that's okay. I ... you know ... just thought I'd ask."

She looked at me as though I was nuts, and I probably was. Well, now that I was out, and as long as I was so close, I figured I might as well just stop in at Sherman Bakery. I mean, it was almost right on the way home. Maybe it would be nice to pick up some fresh bread or something to surprise the family!

So I walked nonchalantly in, ordered a baguette, some dinner rolls, a couple of oat bran muffins, and "oh, why don't you throw in a couple of those peanut butter chocolate chunk cookies too, Bonnie? A little treat for the kids after school. Heh, heh."

Bonnie rolled her eyes as she put the cookies in the bag. "My lips are sealed," she said as I walked out the door. How did she guess?

So now, at this very moment, I am sitting at my word processor, writing this newspaper story, with a bag next to me containing two cookies the size of dinner plates. No finger-tip biscuits, these, but real, honest-to-cholesterol cookies, with lumps and pockets of wonderfulness through and through! I can smell the peanut butter. Mmmmmmmmmmm ... I take one out. Each chunk of chocolate is like a brown gooey iceberg; I know that what shows on the outside is only a small portion of the gigantic mass that lies beneath the cookie surface. There are a dozen such glaciers in each cookie. The chocolate melts easily with the warmth of my fingers. I am t...y...p...i...n...g w...i...t...h o...n...e h...a...n...d as I hold the cookie lovingly in the other. I close my eyes, breathe in the fattening fumes. I prolong the ecstasy until I can hold off no longer. I open my mouth ... and ...

Oh! OH! Oh oh oh oh oh oh oh! What sublime pleasure! Chocolate smears all over my lips. My teeth spin with glee in their sockets! My tongue dances the hootie coo! I hold my breath, savoring every quickly-fleeting second of rapture. All too quickly, the moment is gone. The luscious delicacy slips languorously down my throat and disappears into the depths. I slowly exhale, fogging my word processor's screen in a peanut buttery haze. My body goes limp.

But that was only one bite! There are more bites left of this cookie, and another one waits in its entirety still within the bag. I bite! I chomp! I gobble! I fumble in the bag for the second. It is gone in a euphoric flurry of gluttonous delight.

It is over. My need is filled. I can get on with my life. But no! Now comes the worst part ... the GUILT!

But no one will ever know. How could they? No one is here. No one was watching. Oh oh ... what's this? Crumbs next to my keyboard? Quick, sweep them up and swallow them! Oh, no! The bag! That tell-tale red and white Sherman Bakery bag! I stuff it to the very bottom of my waste basket, hidden inside an envelope from Publisher's Clearing House. What's that ... grease stains on my pad of Post-It notes? Shiny fingerprints on the computer keys? The evidence is everywhere! How could I have been so careless? How could I have given in to foolish desire? How am I going to face my family again? How am I going to face the bathroom scale?

A few moments of pleasure. But at what a price! Was it worth it? It's a difficult question to answer. As an adult, I am free to make my own choices and live with the consequences of those choices. But I keep thinking of the kids. Do they have the tools necessary to make intelligent decisions? Are they equipped to face the temptations that await them ... out there?

Kids, listen to me. Take it from someone who's been there. Don't give in to temptation. Don't cave in to peer pressure. If anyone ever lures you to try them ... just say no to cookies!

Murray students will help

Students in the Program for Social Development at Murray Junior High are looking for opportunities to do community service while learning skills. This program involves some 50 special education students in grades 7-12.

Coordinator Nora Flueger says the students have done in-house mailing, stuffing and tagging for the Cancer Society, Corpus Christi Church and the Children's Home Society. Any churches, organizations, or businesses having tasks to be accomplished may call Flueger at 293-8746. Other possible tasks could include making nametags, sorting materials or doing shopping for senior citizens.

PSD students have done work at the St. Anthony Park Co-op and are willing to work at other sites. While their labor is voluntary, Flueger says, "We never object to a contribution to the program."

PSD students will also be selling apples to earn money for special projects and field trips. Students pick the apples at a local orchard and package them for sale. Anyone wishing to order apples may call Bobbi Fitzenberger, staff chairwoman for the sale, at 293-8746.

English classes

Free English conversation classes, sponsored by the Minnesota International Center, will begin on Thurs., Oct. 4, 9:30-11:30 a.m., at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, 2136 Carter. Sessions open with coffee and socializing, followed by small group instruction at several ability levels, taught by skilled volunteers. Child care is provided. There is no charge for the classes or child care.

International women at any ability level are encouraged to attend. This is a good chance to meet other international women and to improve English conversation skills. It is not necessary to register in advance; simply come to the class at 9:30 a.m. to sign up. If you have questions, call Marian Raup, 644-7491, or the Minnesota International Center, 625-4421.

Ribbons in Falcon Heights & Lauderdale

Red ribbons will be displayed on the doors of homes, apartments and businesses in Falcon Heights & Lauderdale Oct. 20-26 to send a visible message that the communities do not want illegal use of alcohol and drugs or alcohol abuse. Every household will receive a red ribbon for the door. Volunteers will tie ribbons around street signs and trees.

Help at Children's Museum

The Children's Museum in Bandana Square needs volunteers. The museum store needs people with retail sales experience to welcome customers, assist shoppers, unpack merchandise, stock shelves and demonstrate products through the Christmas season. General volunteers to help with museum fundraising, to assist in the visitor area, or with other projects are welcomed year-round. Call Margaret Countryman, 644-5305, for information.

Meals on Wheels

The Meals on Wheels program in St. Anthony Park needs volunteers to deliver meals to the homebound. About ten meals are delivered in North & South St. Anthony Park. Meals are picked up at the Merriam Park Community Center, 2000 St. Anthony Ave., at 11:15 a.m. Call Judy Probst, 644-0492, if you are interested in helping.

Flu shots

The St. Anthony Park Clinic & Miller Pharmacy will provide flu vaccine and/or pneumonia vaccine on Oct. 23, 24 & 25 from 9:30 a.m.-2 p.m. at 2315 Como Ave. A $3 donation is requested to partially cover costs. Call 646-2549 for more information.

Legion meals

Lester Tjernlund American Legion Post, 2350 Territorial Rd., will serve a pancake breakfast on Sun., Oct. 7 from 8 a.m.-1 p.m. Donation is $3.50 for adults, and $1.50 for children ages 6-12.

On Sun., Oct. 14, the women's auxiliary will sponsor a turkey dinner from noon-4 p.m. Cost for adults is $5; children 6-12, can eat for $2.50.

STATE SENATE

Compare and Decide

Merlyn Scroggins will vote to lower taxes. Scroggins will set the budget first, then, prioritize spending. Like you do.

Scroggins will vote to protect victims and punish rapists and drug felons with tough prison sentences.

As a businessman for 40 years, Scroggins knows how to create jobs for Minnesotans. He will support small business.

TAXES

John Marty's legislative voting helped make your state income tax load the second worst in the country.

CRIME & DRUGS

Marty has voted against requiring criminals to serve time for rape and felony drug offenses.

JOBS

The Independent Business Association of Minnesota (IBAM) gave Marty the worst rating among all state senators.

Planting in the Dust

As part of World Food Day observances at the U of M, the one-woman play Planting in the Dust will be performed in the St. Paul Student Center Theater on Sat., Oct. 20, at 7:30 p.m. Written by Nancy Paddock and performed by St. Paul actress Joan Lisi, the play is produced by the Land Stewardship Project of Stillwater and has been hailed as one of the finest presentations on land ethics in the country. A discussion will follow the performance.

Admission is free for students and $3 for the public. For more information, call 625-9794.

Japanese Red Cross visits Block Nurse Program

The Block Nurse Program that originated in St. Anthony Park hosted a Japanese Red Cross Society Study Team on Sept. 5. The team was here to study home care and nursing services for the elderly. Other stops on the tour were Chicago, Toronto, Washington, D.C., and San Francisco.

Japanese Red Cross Society is investigating programs, which, like the BNP, are innovative approaches to care of the elderly.

Concert at Children's Museum

Acclaimed international performer, multi-instrumentalist Ross Sutter, is one of the Children's Museum's most popular performers. Surrounded by a unique array of instruments and dancing wooden dolls called "limberjacks," Sutter achieves a connection between children and folk songs. He will perform at 1 p.m. on Sundays, Oct. 7, 14 & 21 at the museum in Bandana Square. The concert is free with museum admission.

Breast self-examination

The American Cancer Society is sponsoring a breast self-examination instructor training on Tues., Oct. 2 from 5-9 p.m. The program will be held in the American Cancer Society office in the Park-Bank building, 2265 Como Ave., Suite 10.

At this training, participants will learn how to teach others the breast self-examination technique. To register for the training, call Ginny at 925-2772.

Model railroad sale

The Twin City Model Railroad Club will sponsor a hobby sale on Sat., Sept. 29 from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. in the Education Building at the Fairgrounds. Admission for adults is $2; under 15, $1; or $5 per family. The event will feature new and used model trains, toys, Lionel, railroadiana, miniatures, boats, radio control and much more. Funds raised will be used to help with construction costs for the club's public layout at Bandana Square. Call 647-9628 for more information.

The Music Man

St. Anthony Park/Merriam Park Community Education has arranged a trip to the Chanhasen Dinner Theatre on Wed., Oct. 24, to see The Music Man. Cost is $37. Payment must be received by Oct. 15 at Community Education, 2180 Knapp St., St. Paul 55108. Make check payable to I.S.D. 625. Reservations must be made by calling 293-8738. The price includes coach bus transportation, lunch and theatre tickets. Call for more information and a schedule of pick-up times.

Beef Dinner

On Sat., Oct. 27, 5-7 p.m., Peace Lutheran Church, 1744 Walnut at Lone in Lauderdale, will once again serve its annual Beef Dinner. Adult tickets are $6; youth 5-10, $2.75; and children under 5 free. A bake table will also offer items from the kitchens of Peace members. A homemade afghan will be given away as a door prize. The congregation has designated proceeds from this year's Beef Dinner for furnace replacement, a project also scheduled for this fall.

Music in the Park Series opens with Czech tribute

The Music in the Park Series has scheduled an impressive 1990-91 concert series that includes five pianists of international reputation, musicians from the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra and the Minnesota Orchestra, Wales' leading folk harpist, and acclaimed St. Paul writer Patricia Hampl.

Music lovers can look forward to a concert of romantic music by three Czechoslovakian composers when the series opens at 4 p.m. on Sun., Nov. 11, at the St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ. Performing will be pianist Lydia Artymiw, who received rave reviews after her performance with the Minnesota Orchestra at this year's SOMMERFEST, and Ensemble CAPRICCIO—violinist Chouhei Min, violist Sabina Thatcher, and cellist Mina Fisher. They will perform works by Bedrich Smetana, Bohuslav Martinu and Antonin Dvorak.

Poet/memoirist Patricia Hampl, who grew up in St. Paul's Czech-American community, will read from her own works and those of other Czech writers. Hampl was recently the recipient of the prestigious MacArthur Foundation Fellowship Award. Her writings reflect acute interest in her Czech background.

One of her prose works, Spillville, was listed among the best of the year by the New York Times Book Review.

This November 11 event celebrates the first anniversary of what Czechoslovakia's playwright/president Havel calls his country's "velvet revolution."

Other artists and chamber groups appearing on this year's roster include The Glorian Duo with flutist Donna Milovanovich and harpist Wendy Kerner, Jan. 20; Dinah Bryant, soprano and Daniel Blumenthal, piano, Feb. 17; Leonard Hokanson, pianist, March 10; and The Gabrieli Trio, with pianist Paul Schoenfeld, violinist Andrew Jennings, and cellist Michael Haber, April 28. All concerts are on Sundays at 4 p.m. with the exception of April 28, at 7 p.m.

In addition to its already stellar array of performers, the Music in the Park Series will present (in cooperation with Y Drych, the North American Welsh Newspaper) Elinor Bennett, Wales' foremost harpist on Oct. 12, 8 p.m., at the St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church on Como.

And the concert by violinist Jorja Fleezanis and Robert Helps, originally scheduled for May, 1990, will be presented on Sun., Nov. 25 at 4 p.m. at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ. Tickets purchased last season will be honored at the concert. Single tickets for the Fleezanis and Bennett concerts will be $10.

Season tickets for the 5-concert series at $40 ($37 if purchased by October 15) are available at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506) in St. Anthony Park. Or write Music in the Park Series, 1333 Chelmsford St., St. Paul, MN 55108.

Single tickets will be $10, $9 if purchased in advance, $5 student rush. Call 644-4234 for more information.

Watch for details of the Music in the Park Series Friday night family concert at St. Anthony Park Branch Library in the November issue of the Bugle.

School News

St. Anthony Park Elementary

This month of October is going well at St. Anthony Park School. Things are much less hectic than in September and everyone has gotten into the swing of things.

This month the 5th and 6th graders are going to E.L.C.

(Environmental Learning Center) along with the teachers and parent helpers. The E.L.C. is up near Finland, Minn. The students will enjoy a week of nature studies, and also the great feeling of togetherness.

Later on this month all the grades will start getting ready for Halloween by drawing pictures, making things and planning parties.

Elizabeth Plagens

Holy Childhood

Wow! We can hardly believe it! Our school has increased this year from 112 students to 145. That's an increase of 29%. We welcome all our new families, and hope their children have a good year with us and in the years to come. We especially thank our Pastor, Fr. Doffing, Sister Anabelle, all the teachers and parishioners who worked so hard to encourage enthusiasm and growth over the past year.

Holly Boyd & Martha Soler

Murray Junior High

The students and staff alike at Murray Junior High School are off to a great start. During the first two days of school, students became familiar with lockers, schedules, homerooms and other classmates.

We have many new faces at our school, the most important being Ms. Nancy Nielsen, the new principal. New teachers include Mr. Buckanaga and Dr. Gillen in social studies, Ms. Johnson in English, Mr. Neymark in math, Ms. Merchant in French,

Mr. Barte in special ed., and Ms. Ziemski in counseling. We welcome them and will miss Mr. Noud, Ms. Anderson, and Ms. Ylonen who have left us.

Girls and boys soccer has begun and the teams are off to a successful start. It looks like the year will be a great one.

Martha Namie

Central High School

Yet another year has begun at Central, and with it many activities and events for the students. The students were welcomed on the first day by balloons from the Student Council and candy from the Guidance Department. Most of the upperclass students seemed happy to be back and the freshmen looked excited about their new environment. The initial enthusiasm has worn off somewhat after these first several weeks, but Central students have much to look forward to for the upcoming school year.

Many of these activities revolve around the Student Council and its ten-member management team. Several Bugle area residents, including Anne Nakanishi and Liz Kramer, are on this executive board. Student Council elections are going to take place soon and all who are interested are encouraged to apply. Another prominent organization at Central is the Central High Chapter of the National Honor Society. Two area students, Jennifer Needle (president) and Zack Steven (vice-president), are on its executive board.

Some of the activities that Central students can look forward to are athletic events happening at various times during the week, including football games nearly every Friday night. Homecoming, a Central tradition, is coming the week of Oct. 8-12. Planned events include spirit days, a coronation, and a dance and football game on Friday. Most of the specific information has yet to be decided, but anyone wishing to help with the planning of these events should contact the Student Council. Further information will be available at school as plans are finalized.

Mark Oct. 18 and 19 on your calendar—our first days of vacation due to teacher meetings.

Como High School

Students at Como came back this fall to a building with over a million dollars worth of improvements. Room 103 was expanded into three rooms that are used for world languages, special education and drafting; a new science room equipped for general science; a new gym floor; a new hallway was built over the commons to reduce congestion in the bottleneck; lights in the parking lot; new windows; new carpeting; new trees and the building was repainted on the outside and the inside corridors were repainted. Field enhancements are being planned for next summer.

We have four new teachers this year—Bob Lace who teaches minorities encouragement programs, Janet Meager teaches Spanish, Tony Walker who teaches auto body, and Jan Anderson who is the physical education teacher. We have three new counselors: Dr. Haak, A-F; Dr. Niebeling, G-M; and Dr. Dan Sorenson, N-S.

Como has several new classes this year—advanced placement biology; African-American history; minority encouragement class; and a work readiness class which is part of Prepare Saint Paul, a program in which St. Paul businesses donated money to help prepare students for the work place and/or with vocational planning after high school.

Como students, staff and faculty are preparing for Homecoming Week Oct. 8-12. The theme is "Impeach the Governors." The football game will be played against the Johnson Governors on Oct. 12 at Griffith Field.

Fall sports are off to a good start. The boys and girls soccer teams and the boys and girls cross country teams are young teams but are steadily improving. The girls volleyball is 3-1 so far this season. The girls swim team is 2-0 and the football team with Mike Tressel as quarterback is at 1-1.

Elementary School receives grant

Dayton Hudson Corporation has awarded a grant of $1,000 to bolster the budget of St. Anthony Park Elementary School students' trip to the Environmental Learning Center (ELC) near Finland, Minn. Thanks to an application submitted by parent, Gloria Sweet, the grant money will be used to make sure all 5th & 6th graders have the opportunity for the week-long trip. This year's total budget is $18,000.

For nearly 20 years, children from the school have gone to the ELC in October to take classes on nature and the environment and to learn about cooperation and teamwork. This year about 175 students are expected to participate.

Cost for each student is $150, for which parents and students undertake fundraising activities. This year's project has been selling the "Gold C" coupon book, which has discounts on restaurants and entertainment. For each $8 book sold, St. Anthony Park School receives $4.

Students who go to ELC (and that's nearly all of the 5th & 6th graders) typically have grand tales to tell about their adventures away from home.

Brewing vinegar for Clovia

Marie Christenson has 82 bottles of her herbed vinegars ready to sell at the Clovia bazaar.

By Jane Berg

Marie Christenson is the type of woman who loves to give of herself. In addition to volunteering at the Children's Home Society and helping out at her church, Marie gives a little bit more to Beta of Clovia sorority: her skill for making herbed vinegars.

Marie, a St. Anthony Park resident for 47 years, prepares her vinegars for the sorority's bazaar. It has been almost 50 years since Marie graduated from the U of M and left the Clovia house, but she remains an active alumna.

Making the vinegars for the bazaar, which is held every two years, is no small task. People often ask her why the bazaar isn't held every year and Marie has a good explanation.

"It takes us two years to get ready for one," she says. And she's not joking. For this year's bazaar and craft fair, Marie has made 82 bottles of herbed vinegars. The process has three vital steps that must be followed to make the vinegar taste just right. Marie explains that she must pick the herbs just when they are starting to bloom. After that she works hard to get them clean and dry.

"Drying them is pretty tricky, especially with the basil. You can't dry basil in the microwave oven, but the others can take the microwave. The hot humid weather that we've had doesn't dry them, and they just turn a darker color. I like them to be pretty and green," she said.

Marie grows oregano, parsley, basil, tarragon, thyme and dill. She also offers fruit vinegars, such as strawberry and raspberry.

This year at the bazaar, Marie is making it easier for her customers to enjoy the vinegars by offering a cookbook that features recipes using them.

"My daughter asked me what she should be doing with the vinegars that I gave her, so we've come up with a cookbook with 44 recipes."

Over the past eleven years that Marie has been making the vinegars, she has refined her skill a bit to guarantee that the truest and best possible flavor comes through. One thing that Marie has learned is that the vinegar cannot be put in a metal container; she uses ice cream pails.

Beta of Clovia sorority was founded in 1937 and many alumni participate at the bazaar to help raise money for the house. In addition to Marie's vinegars and other goods from the Clovia kitchen, the bazaar has holiday gifts, handcrafted items, dried flowers and more.

The bazaar is Oct. 19 & 20 at the Northstar Ballroom in the Student Center on the St. Paul Campus.

Energy-saving tips for a warmer (and cheaper) winter

It's time to start thinking about ways to save on your home energy bills. The Minnesota Department of Public Service publishes numerous brochures about ways to reduce energy bills 10 to 25 percent, ranging from low- or no-cost ideas to high-cost home improvements. With weather-stripping, insulation, new doors and windows, and a high-efficiency furnace, you can easily shave off hundreds of dollars from your annual energy bills.

Low-cost tips

The most effective low-cost way to reduce your heating bill this winter is to turn down the thermostat. By reducing the temperature to 65 degrees during the day and 55 degrees at night, you can save as much as 25 percent, or $150 to $250, each year.

A 25-cent radiator key can release any trapped air which keeps radiators from filling with hot water and operating at peak efficiency. And too many coats of paint will insulate the radiators, causing them to retain their heat.

Clean or replace the furnace filter every month during the heating season. If the filter is even slightly dirty, air flow through slows down, and heat goes up the chimney instead of into your home. Also, at least twice a year, clean and lubricate the furnace blower fan and replace the blower belt if it's worn or frayed. Finally, turn off the pilot light during the summer and save up to $30 a year.

High-cost home improvements

CaULKING and weather-stripping your doors and windows can cut heat loss. It may cost as much as $800, but it can pay for itself within two years if done with care.

Similarly, replacing all your doors and windows can cost about $6,000, but saves $275 a year. Insulating your ceiling and walls is an even better investment: It costs approximately $2,500 and saves about $650 a year, paying for itself within four years.

Installing a new high-efficiency furnace yields the most impressive energy-saving results. An old furnace may extract only 60 to 70 percent of the available heat from the fuel, which means that 30 to 40 percent of your heating dollars go right out the window. New furnaces are so efficient that they waste less than 5 cents of every fuel dollar.

First Bank can help

First Bank has a variety of loans and revolving credit lines to make home improvements affordable. Just call your local First Bank for more information. And remember, over the years home improvements often pay for themselves.

For a complete list of available brochures, call the Minnesota Department of Public Service's Energy Information Center at 296-5175 or, outside the Twin Cities, 1-800-652-9747.

Art from 3

strong, Podas-Larson believes, since Public Art Saint Paul is already working closely with several city departments—including Planning & Economic Development and the Park Board. "If, for example, it's decided the project will involve a building renovation, potential zoning and land use issues need to be worked out with PED," she said. If the project involves use of city park property, that city department needs to grant permission.

As the map on page three suggests, plans for locating the public art have focused so far on St. Anthony Park's "gateways" and "gathering places." Public Art Saint Paul is interested in your perceptions of these identifying landmarks. Are there more public places the workshop participants didn't include? Are there additional "gateways" that identify St. Anthony Park? Send your ideas to Public Art Saint Paul for a project that would identify and unite St. Anthony Park. The next workshop session is on Mon., Oct. 1, 7 p.m., at South St. Anthony Recreation Center, 890 Cromwell.

Business News

Tim Smith of the Parking Committee, St. Anthony Park Merchants & Professionals Association, encourages local business owners and employees to park away from the central business district in order to free parking spaces for customers. According to the St. Paul Dept. of Planning and Economic Development, each parking space in a commercial neighborhood can be worth $300 per day in potential sales. If you need assistance finding alternative parking, please contact Tim Smith at 645-7862.

St. Anthony Park Bank announces the recent appointment of Linda Maschwitz as director of marketing. Maschwitz has five years of banking experience with St. Anthony Park Bank and four years of sales experience with Houghton Mifflin Company.

She is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and has lived in St. Anthony Park with her husband David and their sons Stuart and Eric for more than 25 years.

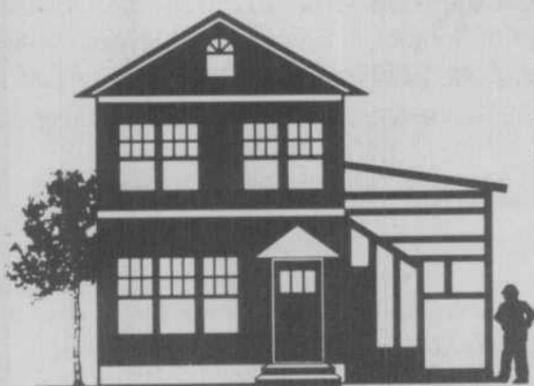

The Bank also announces the recent appointment of Kimberly Caouette as customer service manager. She has had over 11 years of retail banking experience at Marquette Bank Minneapolis, Bay Bank Valley, and Northeast Savings. Caouette is a graduate of Holyoke College and has recently moved to Minnesota from Massachusetts.

The Northern Clay Center, 2375 University Ave., celebrates its opening on Sat., Oct. 13. Festivities begin at 6:30 p.m. and include music, demonstrations and refreshments. The center's first exhibition opens that evening and runs through Nov. 17. It features works by nationally recognized ceramists.

Besides an exhibition gallery, the Clay Center houses artists' studios, classrooms and a retail shop.

China connection in the Park

By Mary Mergenthal

When Lutherans celebrate the 100th anniversary of American Lutheran missions in China this weekend (Sept. 27-28), there will be a number of people from St. Anthony Park and Como Park for whom the celebration will have personal significance.

Get the group of "China Hands" together and you can count on hearing stories of terrible heat, of missionaries being kidnapped or killed. Letters from home took at least two months to arrive; disease, famine and floods were commonplace. Not only did American missionaries bring a foreign religion but they were often the first foreigners people in rural areas of China had seen. All members of the group have stories to tell of the cultural shock it was to come "home" when the home in which they felt comfortable was so far away and so different.

Marian Haaland lives at Lyngblomsten Care Center; her sister Frances Schroeder lives at Twin Cities Linnea Home. Their father, Carl William Landahl, went to China in 1895 and Alice Holmberg, the woman who would become their mother, went in 1898, to serve as a nurse. She was already a world traveller, having come here alone from Sweden at age 11. Six of the Landahl's seven children were born in China, including Frances. Frances came to this country for high school and stayed.

"I still miss China, though," she says. She knows that the experience has affected her approach to people around her. "After you've lived in a foreign country, you know the importance of greeting foreigners."

Marian Landahl Haaland is the only one in her family born in the States. "But I was almost born on the Trans-Siberian Railway," she said.

Cora Martinson was born in Minneapolis, but went back to China at the tender age of six months. Her father died at age 45 and is buried in China; her mother lived until she was two months short of 101 and is buried in Hong Kong. Cora also came back to the States for college. She didn't want to go back, though she felt she should since she could speak Chinese. She dreaded the heat there and deflected the first letter of call to return.

But after she'd been teaching in North America for 11 years she was asked to go to China to teach and she couldn't turn down the call. She taught Chinese students for years and stayed in Canton as long as possible, even after being forced off the mission station by the Communists. Then she served another 25 years in Hong Kong.

Charlotte Martinson went to China after marrying Harold Martinson, a son of missionary parents. She spent many years raising her family alone in California while Harold went back to China. The whole family lived there for some time as well.

Her son Paul lives in St. Anthony Park and teaches missions at Luther Northwestern Theological Seminary.

Sig Haugan and his sister, Astrid Haugan Anderson, both live in St. Anthony Park and have for many years. But their parents, the Rev. August and Josephine Haugan, served in China for 14 years and Sig was born there.

Ted Zimmerman's parents were also missionaries to China and he was born there as well. His family then moved to Hong Kong when he was five years old. A decade ago, after returning to the States for a time, Ted and his wife Janie went to Taiwan for a decade of service. Now he's on long-term study leave and plans to go back to Asia, hopefully to do theological education.

The Lutheran missionary celebration will be held at Luther Northwestern Theological Seminary. Two Chinese Christians will participate in the event. Prof. Zhao Fusan, well-known church leader and theologian and former vice-president of the Chinese Academy for Social Sciences (Beijing), will present a keynote lecture: "The Christian Tradition and Chinese Life in the People's Republic of China." A theological student, Ms. Gao Ying, will speak about what it is like to be a young Christian in China today.

REALTOR

Earnest Money Protection?

When you make an offer to purchase a home, standard practice is to accompany the offer with "earnest money." The fate of your earnest money is governed by the language of your offer.

If the bid is not accepted, your check should be returned immediately. The situation can get a little sticky if the transaction falls through—like you change your mind or you can't get financing.

The language of your bid should contain two protections. The offer should be made contingent on the acquisition of mortgage financing and the seller should agree to accept the earnest money as "liquidated damages" if you default. If you can't obtain a mortgage, you still get your earnest money back as long as you have responded honestly to appropriate questions about financing. The "liquidation of damages" clause will limit any compensation for the seller to the amount of the earnest money if you back out of the transaction or otherwise default.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please call Edina Realty, 2803 Lincoln Drive, Roseville. Phone: 636-3760. We're here to help.

A journal of letters for all times

By Ann Whittemore

At our first faculty meeting this fall Superintendent Neveln spoke gravely of our special responsibilities to our students during the war.

He said our present sophomores would undoubtedly come to be in our war against totalitarianism on the battlefield, and those still younger would be building the peace in the war's aftermath.

Then encouraging us in our job of training young people to be leaders during these crucial times, he quoted that old adage—

MIGHTY OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW.

From Journal for You by Hazel and Sedoris McCartney

Sedoris McCartney's eyes may not see as well as they used to, but the gentle atmosphere of warmth he creates was as vivid when I spoke with him this September as when he wrote of his experiences over 45 years ago.

Journal for You is a collection of letters traded between himself and Hazel Severson during the school year of 1943-44. Both high school teachers, he in Austin, Minnesota, and she in Green Bay, Wisconsin, the two wrote of their students, the war, and their growing feelings toward each other. Their poignant letters offer insights to local lives as well as chronicling the times—we are given clear pictures of what it's like when teenaged boys must enlist for battle, and we see the true spirit of the teacher as the two writers describe both their personal and professional responsibilities.

At one point Hazel speaks of her lesson on racial prejudice, and at another, Sedoris, or "Mac," as he's called by his students, holds an open discussion regarding evolution and creationism. Throughout the book is the theme of learning and growing, as exemplified by the carefully drawn oak tree on the jacket. (Illustrations by Wendy Solyst and Miriam Arneson.)

After the school year during which the letters were written, Sedoris and Hazel were married in 1945. They then spent nine months as teacher and counselor at a Japanese relocation camp on the West Coast. In 1947 they travelled to Japan as educational missionaries, returning to the States in 1953. Sedoris had been ordained, and later served as a chaplain in Iowa. He eventually retired in Northfield, Minn. Hazel Severson McCartney has since passed away, and today Sedoris lives with his sister, Victorine Nelson, in Falcon Heights.

It had been Hazel's idea to publish their work, and she suggested the title Journal for You. Her other publications include two books and over 50 articles and stories; Sedoris has also published two books and several articles for church journals.

Journal for You is a collection of sensitively written letters from which we gain an historical sense of the times and those whose lives were touched by the McCartneys, as well as a timeless perspective of pleasure in the growth of those around us.

After several delays with the publisher—"But we don't have to go into that," says Sedoris—the book is well worth the wait.

Those wishing to order a copy of the book before it is available in bookstores may call Ann Whittemore, 659-0464, evenings.

Korean Catholics offer to buy Corpus Christi Church

By Ann Bulger

The Korean Catholic Community has made an offer to purchase Corpus Christi Church on Cleveland & Buford, as well as the former Cunningham house, adjacent to the church parking lot on Cleveland Ave. Plans are for the Korean Community to be incorporated as a "personal parish," a parish without boundaries to serve Korean Catholics throughout the Archdiocese. Father Louis Jung Hong Kim, the pastor, is a native of Korea and is assigned by the Archbishop of Seoul.

The community has been renting Corpus Christi Church for the past year for services on Sunday afternoon and on Friday evening. There are about 125 families in the group.

If the purchase agreement is finalized, which seems likely, the Korean Community will become owners of the church on Oct. 1. Corpus Christi Parish would become renters but will have full use of the building for worship services until Oct., 1991, when their remodeled facility at Fairview & County Rd. B is ready for occupancy.

The Korean Community welcomes former parishioners' use of the church for funerals, weddings, or other special occasions.

Sigvertsen feels that the answer to funding may be to go to a statewide system of funding education.

The district has turned to the state to try and get ahead on the deferred maintenance. After district lobbying, the state legislature gave the district the go-ahead to levy $9 million each year for the next two years for building improvement.

But the list of projects for this year only includes a small amount for deferred maintenance projects.

Here's the list of projects the district has made preliminary plans for the money this school year:

- Restoration of Mounds Park school possibly to be used for a World Culture and Language magnet elementary school: $4.8 million.
 - Move the Agade program for pregnant students from Farnsworth to Bridgeview: $140,000.
 - Furniture for the Control Data Corp. building at 304 N. Dale St.: $640,000.
 - Renovate the J.J. Hill building to accommodate the Montessori program: $78,000.
 - Renovate the Ramsey Junior High basement: $474,000.
 - Plans for renovating Eastern Heights: $230,000.
 - Furniture for the Saturn School: $23,000.
 - Design and construction of a new athletic field at Humboldt: $607,000.
 - Engineering and design work on a field at Como: $50,000.
 - Architecture and design work for renovation at Farnsworth: $290,000.
 - Acquiring 1.5 acres of land next to Jackson: $1.1 million.
- All the projects are preliminary and require state Department of Education approval before they can be started.

Welsh harpist to perform here Oct. 12

By Mary Mergenthal

Elinor Bennett is coming a long way to perform in St. Anthony Park. She is, first of all, the most distinguished harpist in Wales, a country whose national instrument is the harp. She comes to St. Anthony Park for her concert directly from New York City where she is performing a recital at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Her concert here, on Oct. 12 at 8 p.m. at St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church, is sponsored by Music in the Park in conjunction with Y Drych, the North American Welsh newspaper.

Bennett's performance is sure to thrill listeners. She is a stellar harpist as well as a remarkably charismatic personality on the concert stage. She will play two harps during this concert, performing classical music on concert harp and Welsh folk music on a smaller Celtic harp. She will demonstrate the unique Welsh traditional penillion music, in which the harp and the singer perform different melodies at the same time...extemporaneously. Traditionally, of course, the harpist and singer were not necessarily one and the same, but Bennett will easily fill both roles.

Elinor Bennett was the first harpist to gain the recital diploma from the Royal Academy of Music in London. She has worked with all the major symphony and chamber orchestras in Britain, travelling abroad with orchestras such as the London Symphony Orchestra, English Chamber Orchestra and London Sinfonietta.

Renowned Welsh harpist Elinor Bennett will play two harps in her concert here—classical music on concert harp and traditional Welsh folk music on Celtic harp.

As a soloist, she has given concerts and master-classes all over the British Isles as well as in Holland, Belgium, Ireland, France, Austria, Germany and the United States. In 1985 she was awarded a Churchill Scholarship to visit Australia to report on projects for people with learning difficulties. Concerts on her 1988 American tour were broadcast on National Public Radio.

A widely acknowledged expert on Welsh traditional music, she directs harp schools in Wales and appears regularly on Welsh television.

In addition to her music degrees, Bennett holds a law degree from the University of Wales. Her husband is Dafydd Wigley, Member of Parliament for Wales.

Tickets for the concert will be $10 at the door ($5 students), or $7 if purchased in advance at The Bibelot Shop or Micawber's Bookstore. An additional discount is available to Music in the Park season subscribers or subscribers of Y Drych.
