

LRT Midway option still not decided

By Phil Holt

Three different routes are being considered for a Light Rail Transit (LRT) system in what is known as the Midway Corridor. The corridor runs from the University of Minnesota East Bank Campus in Minneapolis to the State Capitol. The Ramsey County Regional Railroad Authority (RCRRA) and the Hennepin County Regional Railroad Authority have proposed the LRT system.

The LRT system would use steel-wheeled vehicles running on tracks with its own right of way. The cars would be connected like trains and powered by overhead electrical wires. Passengers would enter from station platforms designed to be handicapped accessible as well as accessible to the elderly and those pushing strollers.

The alternatives being considered are the Burlington Northern/Pierce Butler Route, University Ave. and Soo Line/Interstate I-94. A no-build alternative is also being considered. The RCRRA has issued an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) on the various alternatives.

LRT construction will begin at the earliest in 1993 in the Midway Corridor and would take about three years to finish. LRT could be operating by 1996.

The Burlington Northern (BN)/Pierce Butler Route would begin at Oak St. S.E. (Mpls.) and run along Beacon St., University Ave., the University of Minnesota Transitway, Pierce Butler Route, Como Ave., and Marion Street to the Capitol area and into downtown St. Paul. It would take 23 minutes to travel the 8.1 mile route. Passenger stations would be located every mile at major intersections. It is estimated by RCRRA that by the year 2010 there would be 24,300 riders. Construction costs would be $246 million.

The University Avenue alternative would begin at the University of Minnesota East Bank at Oak St. and generally run along University Ave. to Marion St. It would then run through the Capitol area and into downtown St. Paul. It would take 27 minutes to travel the 7.7 miles with street

Local students lead Youth for Change at Central

Apathy beware. The next generation of political activists has arrived.

While some high school students worry about getting through the next exam and life after hockey season, two local high school seniors are making their voices heard on issues facing their high school and their country.

Tasha Baizerman, of St. Anthony Park, and Erik Farseth, of Como Park, are founding members of the student-run Youth For Change group at Central High School. The group seeks to politicize students, making them aware of their ability to make a difference.

"In an educational system that is really productive," Baizerman says, "we will play a vital role."

The group's role at Central, according to Farseth and Baizerman, is to keep a check on the administration's policies and encourage dialogue on issues like military recruitment, sexism and racism. On a national scale, members seek to make the voice of youth heard in debate over the war in the Persian Gulf and equal rights.

The group has attracted considerable attention at the school. According to Farseth and Baizerman, ten percent of the school, or about 160 students, have attended at least some of the meetings and the group has a core membership of 35-50 students.

The conflict in the Persian Gulf has increased student interest in the group. "People who have not been political this year are asking us, 'What's going on?,' 'What can I do?,' 'I want to do anything,'" Baizerman says.

Youth For Change posters in the hallways serve to capture students' attention and keep them informed, according to Farseth. Students from the group also write articles for the student-published Free Association newspaper sponsored by the city-wide Youth Against Militarism Project and speak up at local events like the peace rallies around the city.

Farseth and Baizerman aren't new to speaking out on the political scene. Farseth says his activism started in seventh grade when he heard a song about the conflict in Northern Ireland, spoke with an Irish scholar who was a family friend, and later did research for a paper on nuclear weapons and took part in a Freeze march.

Farseth says that coming from a liberal background, these issues "really bothered" him and forced him into action.

Baizerman says their background made it natural for them to start organizing—both she and Farseth were "encouraged to think and act independently."

The two met at Central and were involved in Youth Against Militarism, a student group set up primarily to offset military recruitment in the city's high schools. Baizerman and Farseth sought to broaden the focus of the group at Central three years ago by forming Youth For Change to address any issues important to students.

The group meets at least once a week, according to Farseth, and holds discussions with speakers on topics ranging from pacifism to fascism.

Open discussion is encouraged, the students stress, and efforts are made to represent all sides. At a recent meeting dealing with military recruiting at the high school, they say, draft counselors and representatives of the military were present.

Farseth and Baizerman see recruitment as an important issue at Central, where left unchecked, students might not be completely informed when considering military service as a means to a college education.

"We want to get population groups that are likely to join up and make sure that they at least have an adequate representation of the other side," Baizerman says, including "true information about the military,

Council actions at a glance

- Voted to support rezoning of 2492 Doswell Ave. (Ti-Kromatic Paints) from I-1 to I-2 to allow for expansion. (Note: Since the Council made its recommendation, city staff has determined that there is no legal requirement for rezoning.)
- Recommended Capital Improvement Projects for the neighborhood: Traffic signals at Como/Eustis, Energy Park Drive/Snelling; upgrading of traffic signals on University Ave. from Prior to the western city limits; bike path connection from Como Park to Mississippi River Blvd.; parking ramps to alleviate parking shortage in commercial/retail areas; reconfiguration of Raymond/Como intersection; refurbish band shell in Langford Park; playground equipment and air conditioning in the So. St. Anthony Rec. Center; reuse of the Raymond Ave. bridge railing in Gateway Park.
- Supported city licensing requirements for BFI Medical Waste Systems of Minn., Inc. at 742 Vandalia, with restrictions that no treatment or processing of any kind take place at the facility and that there must be compliance with the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency rules relating to Infectious Waste Management. The Council recommended that early notification should take place before any facility of this nature is located in a neighborhood.

Tim Smith, Carter Ave. Frame Shop, has been chosen to lead the Midway Civic and Commerce delegation of the Community Council for the remainder of his term. Smith will act as co-chair of the SAPCC until the April elections are held and new officers selected at the May Council meeting.

Nominations sought for Council

Neighborhood activists make things happen in St. Anthony Park! They plan parks, promote redevelopment, and have a lot to say when it comes to shaping public policy in St. Paul and Ramsey County. You can be part of it by serving as a delegate on the Community Council.

The date for Council elections this year is April 9. New members for the Community Council will be selected to provide citizen involvement in decisions affecting St. Anthony Park. As an advisory body, the Council provides a nonpartisan forum for the discussion of neighborhood issues and planning for the economic, physical and social development of the neighborhood.

The delegations representing St. Anthony Park and the west

Midway business area are preparing candidate slates for the April election.

Alice Maguson will chair the North St. Anthony delegation nominating committee. Two delegates will be elected to two-year terms, and two alternates will be elected to one-year terms.

Carol Osip has been selected as the chair of the South St. Anthony nominating committee which will elect three delegates and two alternates. Alternates attend committee and council meetings, participate in all discussions and move up to delegate positions if one of the elected members has to resign.

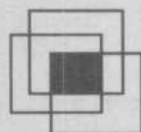

Residents of St. Anthony Park who would be interested in running for a place on the Council should contact one of the current members of the delegation or call the Community Council office at 292-7884. Business owners in the west Midway area who would be interested in filling a delegate slot should contact the Midway Civic and Commerce Association at 646-2636 or the SAPCC office.

Members of the council are expected to participate in one of the standing committees—physical planning, human services, housing or environment—as well as attend the monthly meetings of the full council. Members also participate from time to time in citywide committees or task forces.

Orientation sessions and board training are provided for all council members on an ongoing basis.

THANKS TO MORE THAN 235 INDIVIDUALS AND BUSINESSES WHO SENT CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE ST. ANTHONY PARK COMMUNITY COUNCIL, RECOGNIZING ITS EFFORTS TO MAINTAIN AND ENHANCE OUR DESIRABLE, LIVABLE NEIGHBORHOOD. WE HAVE NOT REACHED OUR $5000 GOAL. Flower shop opens in Milton Square

By Jane Berg

St. Anthony Park is a little brighter this winter thanks to Jane Carlson. Carlson opened a flower shop in Milton Square in early December. She has been in the landscaping business for twelve years, but decided to try her hand at flowers as well.

In addition to your standard fare of flowers, Carlson's shop, called "Flowers by Jane," also houses unique flowers from around the world. Carlson also uses the flowers from her perennial plants from her landscaping business to make dry wreaths.

Carlson picked St. Anthony Park as a place to start her business because of the sense of community. She said she looked at other areas, but none had as much of a neighborhood feel as the Park did.

Carlson used her insights from being a former pastry chef to also determine the location for her new store. "I always thought that pastries and flowers went well together and with Sherman's Bakery right up the street, this seemed like a good place."

Carlson wants to brighten everyone's winter by offering memberships to the flower club. A $20 membership fee allows one to purchase a $6 fresh-flower bouquet each week for a month. The program, as far as Carlson knows, is not seen at other flower shops.

Once the weather gets nice, she hopes to set up a cart outside her store and sell flowers on the street. Carlson has plans to sell unique hand tools for gardening and hand-painted gloves.

Carlson and her husband, Walter Bera, live in the Seward neighborhood of Minneapolis with their daughter, Sophia.

It's hard to do landscaping in the winter in Minnesota, so Jane Carlson is marketing fresh flowers instead. Her new shop opened recently in Milton Square in St. Anthony Park.

Editorial

Lights out

We are pleased that some St. Anthony Park merchants have chosen to turn off decorative lights for the duration of the Persian Gulf crisis. We applaud this saving of energy.

If every business and the library joined the effort by turning off tree lights as well, drivers and pedestrians in St. Anthony Park would see a strong visual reminder of local concern for the global situation.

We urge area residents to follow suit by limiting their use of non-renewable resources now and in the future.

Recycle more items

During 1990, the amount of recyclables collected in St. Anthony Park totaled 426.6 tons. This shows an increase of 10% over the amount collected in 1989.

1991 holds even more promise, because the number of items residents can put at curbside has increased. In St. Paul, glossy magazines and catalogs may now be recycled. This does not, however, include shiny newspaper inserts.

In Lauderdale, residents can now recycle not only magazines but clean, plastic containers. We hope it won't be long before Falcon Heights follows suit and St. Paul adds plastic to its recycling list.

Thanks for more time to read

Beginning February 2, the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, 2245 Como Ave., will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays between Labor Day and Memorial Day weekend.

We applaud this decision of the City Council and the Library Board to respond to the needs of residents. These additional hours will help those unable to get to the library on weekdays.

At the same time, Highland Park Library will inaugurate Sunday service. If local readers truly do frequent the library on Saturdays, maybe we could be next in line for Sunday hours.

Negotiate peace

Dear editor,

Democracy requires participation between elections. Tell your representatives what they should be doing. Tell them that now is the time for a new world order based on resolving conflicts without war, starting with the Persian Gulf crisis.

If our country funded multi-billion dollar diplomatic and negotiating efforts the way we fund defense projects, we would have blossoming prospects for solutions to many of the world's currently intractable problems.

We are alarmed by Iraq's desire for nuclear bombs. So we should support the Limited Test Ban Treaty Amendment conference (Jan. 7-18 in Geneva) to change the treaty to a ban of all nuclear weapons tests. This would be a positive signal for signers of the Non-Proliferation Treaty which limits the spread of nuclear weapons and will be up for renewal in 1995. But by opposing a comprehensive ban, the U.S. has set the example that nuclear weaponry is the way to go!

The outcome of these negotiations has budget implications that will affect all levels of government and the lives of most of us.

Cubs are going strong

Dear editor,

Cub Scout Pack 22 will celebrate 42 years of Cub Scouting in the Park at our annual Blue & Gold Banquet on Feb. 25.

Pack 22 is 67 boys strong with exceptional parent support providing us the leadership to achieve such projects as: assisting in the annual spring cleanup of Langford Park and other areas in the community, a November food drive that yielded 250 pounds of food for the Merriam Park Food Shelf, a December toy drive for Toys-for-Tots that yielded 105 toys plus $50; holiday caroling at Commonwealth Healthcare Center, and 80% attendance of scouts in camps this past summer. Our focus has been to return some service to the community that supports us.

We would like to thank St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church for its four decades of sponsorship to our unit. Thank you to Cubmaster, Larry Ward, and all the adult leaders and volunteers. Without this superior parent involvement our Pack could not participate in the various events and projects listed above.

Thank you to Charlie Christopherson and his committee for all their efforts in making the wreath sales this past fall such a success. Because of the success, Pack 22 can offer Scouting to all boys ages 7-11 at a minimal cost.

And, finally, a special thank you to the merchants and residents of this community for their tremendous support of the scouting programs in our community.

We will sing Happy Birthday to Scouts this month and continue to serve our community, which has done so much for us.

Dear editor,

We at Northwest Youth & Family Services (NYFS) are fortunate to conduct our programs in a 10 suburban-city area where people are working together to provide services that help our young people.

For 15 years, NYFS has responded to community concerns by providing court diversion, employment and leadership programs, crisis services, family counseling and mental health services.

Our Board of Directors, volunteers and professionals would like to thank the following corporations, foundations and service clubs for contributing to our program in 1990: [40 organizations are listed in the letter, including the Falcon Heights/Lauderdale Lions Club].

Thank you for your partnership in our work. It is essential and greatly appreciated.

St. Paul neighborhood leaders say...

Scheibel gets a "B"

By Dan Callahan, Neighborhood News Service

After one year in office, neighborhood organizers and activists give Mayor Jim Scheibel's performance a "B."

The mark is above average but not the "A" many say they had hoped for the politician who ran for office on a neighborhood platform.

"He came in as a neighborhood man but I think in the first year that hasn't happened," said Jill Danner, president of the West Side Citizen's Organization Board of Directors. "He came in with high expectations. And I think he does have a belief in the neighborhoods but what actually happens is something different."

"He promised that he would have an interest in the neighborhoods and he seems to be living up to that in individual cases," said Bob Wicker, a 20-year resident of the Midway area. "But I don't sense a grand plan from him."

"I've had problems with city staff people," said one neighborhood activist who asked not to be identified. "I think he's trying to change that but so far it's like it was before he was mayor—when you go through the decision-making process, the staff gets up and completely contradicts what the neighborhoods have to say. It's like they're saying 'We're the pros and you're not.'"

In interviews with neighborhood organizers and activists, and Scheibel himself, the mayor went under the microscope. A wide range of opinions were polled from those who have worked with Scheibel. Many district council organizers refused to comment on the record for fear of retaliation or harm to projects they have in the mayor's office.

Scheibel, who refused to give himself a grade for his first year on the job, said there were accomplishments and disappointments.

"I think there's a different attitude in city hall toward the neighborhoods," said Scheibel. "Part of my philosophy is that each neighborhood is a little different but in each neighborhood, community leaders have some answers, solutions and ideas. What the city needs to do is support them."

Scheibel has made many efforts to physically be in the neighborhoods. He considered it a major accomplishment to get himself, staff and administrators out of the office.

"The days in the neighborhood have allowed the director of public works to see the relationship between good street lighting and having safe neighborhoods," he said.

Any assessment of Scheibel may be premature, many said. One year is not long enough to make a major impact on a city, especially in a year like 1990.

It's hard to find a financial investment that changes along with your needs. That's why trust accounts are so attractive. First Trust, one of our wholly owned subsidiaries, has a lot to offer no matter where you are in life or how fast your needs are changing.

Trusts are commonly misunderstood. Simply put, a trust is an investment/ money management plan. Whether you have thousands of dollars or millions, a trust can help ensure that your money is managed in accordance with your changing needs and objectives. Your trust's funds can be invested for long-term growth, immediate income or a combination of both. A trust account can work for you even beyond your lifetime.

When you create a trust you give the trustee the legal right to manage certain funds in the interests of you and your beneficiaries. With the help of your attorney, you write the terms for the trust and First Trust carries out the instructions.

One of the most comprehensive money management plans available is a living trust which takes your current financial concerns into account while addressing your estate planning needs. First Trust manages your trust investments while you maintain control at whatever level of involvement you choose. You may re-examine or cancel the terms of your agreement at anytime.

A living trust offers the convenience of having your trustee handle your financial paperwork and recordkeeping so you won't have to. If you travel frequently, for example, First Trust can make sure that certain bills are paid on time. Or, if you become ill or incapacitated, First Trust may draw from your accounts to cover your medical costs and other expenses.

Upon your death the terms of your agreement will often be carried out without interruption for your beneficiaries.

First Trust can provide many other investment options. Look into a trust account today by calling a trust new-business officer in St. Paul, at 291-5167, or in Minneapolis, at 370-4661.

Keeping in touch with your money is just a phone call away with First Bank's FastLine. FastLine gives you the latest information about your First Bank accounts 24 hours a day. Call 228-7800 (Twin Cities area) or 1-800-535-8646 (outside the Twin Cities area).

Farseth says they are currently trying to force the military to recruit off school grounds or minimally set up a table in the same area as the recruiters to offer alternative information.

Despite all of their activism, these students have not forgotten how to unwind. Baizerman says the nice thing about not being directly linked to the school or under tight supervision is that she can put more energy into the group when she wants to and less when other things come up.

Farseth divides his time spent on activism with a part-time job and a role in a play at Central. As he writes in the latest issue of Free Association, "Lighten up! There's no reason you have to stop having fun just because you turned 16!"

level passenger stations every 1/2 mile at major intersections. The 2010 ridership estimate is 30,000 passengers. This alternative would require that pedestrians or cars could cross and turn at selected intersections only. It is thought that this turn limitation would cause traffic congestion. For example, left turns on green lights would only be allowed at selected intersections, such as Snelling at University.

The LRT on University Ave. would cost $248 million in addition to $5-$48 million allowed for mitigation over issues resulting from air quality. It is expected that the LRT system on University would combine with other traffic to cause local violations of air quality regulations at the intersection of Snelling and University, according to RCRRA officials.

The RCRRA has tentatively selected the Soo Line/I-94 route as the preferred LRT alternative. This route would follow the Soo Line Railroad right-of-way from Beacon St. in a southeast direction to I-94 near Fairview Ave., and run on the median of I-94 to the Capitol area and into downtown St. Paul.

Travel time for this 8.1 mile route would be 18 minutes, with stations every mile.

It is estimated that by the year 2010 this LRT route would serve 32,400 passengers. Speed and accessibility are the two main factors for the tentative selection of this route.

There is also a no-build proposal. Transit service would continue to be provided by regular route buses and paratransit services. Under this plan, routes would be expanded and new routes added.

John Finley, RCRRA chairman, says the LRT system would be funded from a one cent regional sales tax for broad base transportation services. Finley says the matter is being considered by a legislative study board and the amounts for each part of the transportation program are not yet finalized. "One quarter of one cent for LRT would come to $50 million a year," said Finley.

The St. Anthony Park Community Council has gone on record opposing the use of park and ride lots in the Midway. The council also favors a station to serve the businesses at the Westgate business complex. Should the Burlington Northern route be chosen, the council would be opposed to a proposed station on Raymond Ave.

Bob Straughn of the Midway Corridor Task Force, an advisory group of citizens appointed by the RCRRA to make LRT recommendations to the County Commissioners, thinks there is still a great deal to discuss about LRT. "There are still many issues to resolve before the line is constructed, if it is constructed at all."

Straughn praised the St. Anthony Park Community Council for its interest in and attention paid to this issue. He urged people and businesses affected by LRT proposals to "continue to follow the issues as they are resolved because of the potential impact on the Twin Cities and particularly the Midway area."

Two public hearings will be held in the near future. The first is Feb. 25, 7 p.m., in the Buetow Auditorium in Concordia College's Fine Arts Building, at the corner of Hamline & Concordia. The second will be held Feb. 26 at 3 p.m. in the Ramsey County Courthouse, third floor council chambers.

Discussion by RCRRA of public feedback is scheduled for April 9. For more information on LRT, call Ramsey County Regional Railroad Authority at 298-4145.

Speaking Briefly

Arts feasibility

A questionnaire was sent by Artspace Projects Inc. to arts organizations and a sampling of businesses and residents in South St. Anthony Park. About 400 questionnaires were mailed in January—questionnaires designed to research the feasibility of future cultural growth in District 12.

This study was undertaken in contract with the St. Anthony Park Community Council, which, along with the city's planning department, is preparing a small area redevelopment plan.

Artspace encourages all questionnaire recipients to return them as soon as possible. A similar questionnaire will be sent to many North St. Anthony Park residents and businesses in February. A report of the results, including recommendations for housing individual artists and arts organizations in St. Anthony Park and recommendations for funding, will likely be presented in the spring.

Help with taxes

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) have announced a tax service for elderly and low-income persons beginning Feb. 5. Volunteer tax advisers will be available, by appointment, between 9 a.m. & 2 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at Lyngblomsten Community Center, 1298 N. Pascal. The service will continue through April 11. Appointments may be made by phoning 646-2941, ext. 425, between the hours of 9-11 a.m.

Bring warm clothing

Winter clothing in small sizes is needed for new refugees arriving in Minnesota from around the world. Clothing for children and infants as well as small-sized adult garments are in particular demand. In addition, blankets, pillows, sheets, kitchen utensils and other small household items in good condition are requested.

Donations may be brought to the International Institute of Minnesota's Refugee Clothing Center, located at Lyngblomsten Care Center, 1298 N. Pascal, from 9-11 a.m. Mondays. For more information, call John Borden at 647-0191.

Mock Trial competitors

Does random drug testing of high school athletes violate their civil rights? That question will be at the center of the 1991 Minnesota Mock Trial competition, an academic competition that teaches students about the law and our legal system.

Students from the Hubert Humphrey Job Corps in Como Park will be among the 175 teams participating in this year's competition in March, sponsored by the Minnesota State Bar Association.

In a mock trial, students assume the roles of attorneys and witnesses and argue a fictitious case. Each team prepares the case with the help of a volunteer attorney-coach, as well as a teacher-coach. The cases are decided by volunteer lawyers, who serve as judges.

Commission vacancies

The Falcon Heights Human Rights Commission is currently seeking interested persons to fill vacancies. Persons interested in serving should contact City Hall, 644-5050, for more information and an application.

"A few good dogs"

The St. Paul Police Canine Unit, rated #1 in the nation for the past two years, is looking for donated dogs to replace those that will be retiring from their careers in police work.

Ten dogs are needed for the Training Academy, which begins March 4. Canine commander Lt. Les Benson prefers male German Shepherd dogs between 1 and 3 years of age, although other breeds will be considered.

The animals are well cared for and are taught obedience and skills necessary to search for and apprehend criminals. Anyone wishing to donate a dog should call the Police Canine unit at 292-3773.

Be a special friend

Lyngblomsten Community Senior Center has a need for additional volunteers to participate in the program "Community Special Friend," funded in part by Wheat Ridge Foundation.

Training and supervision is provided for volunteers who have the opportunity to befriend older adults with special needs in the Como Park community.

Visits by volunteers provide a vital link to family, friends, church and community. Activities during visits might include letter writing, reading, games and conversation.

For more information, call Judy Abbott, Senior Community Center social worker, at 646-2941, ext. 425.

Recycle magazines

St. Paul and Lauderdale residents may now recycle glossy magazines. Only magazines will be collected—not other glossy papers, such as newspaper ad inserts. The magazines should be placed in paper bags or boxes, separate from newspapers.

In addition, in Lauderdale, plastic bottles may now be added to recycling left at the curb.

Ski at Como Park

A 1.5 kilometer portion of Como Golf Course's 5 km. cross country ski trail is now lit for better night skiing. The lighting is part of a joint project between the St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation and the St. Paul Public Schools. The project will also include the future use of artificial snow on cross country trails for the first time in the metro area.

The lighted portion of the trail includes the first 3/4 kilometer of the regular trail and a portion that loops back to the starting point.

Lights are on Mon.-Fri. from dusk until 9 p.m. and Sat. & Sun. from dusk until 6 p.m. Como Ski Center is located at 1431 N. Lexington Pkwy. The chalet offers equipment rental as well as food. Call 488-9673.

Adopt A Highway

St. Paul motorists and residents in the vicinity of a two-mile segment of Highway 280 should be seeing less roadside litter these days.

Staff workers at HealthEast Midway Hospital are volunteering their efforts to keep the stretch between Como Ave. and I-94 free of debris for a two-year period.

Fifteen hospital employees have joined others from organizations around the state in the Minnesota Department of Transportation's Adopt A Highway program. In return for the community service, MinnDOT posted roadside signs facing traffic at both ends of the volunteers' cleanup corridor.

Fare SHARE needs help

Fare SHARE, the non-profit food distribution project of Ramsey Action Programs (RAP), needs volunteers to help bag and sort food and to do light warehouse work.

The work is easy and suited for ages 12 and over. It is estimated that one hour of work will help about sixty families.

The Fare SHARE warehouse is located at 807 Hampden Ave. Fare SHARE food packages are distributed monthly at 280 sites in 87 counties. A typical food package contains 15-20 items: meats, vegetables, fruits and staples worth $28-$35, for a cost of $13 cash or food stamps and two hours of community service.

For information on volunteering or on how to get your Fare SHARE, call 644-6003. The program is open to anyone, regardless of income.

Join the band

The St. Anthony Park Community Band will begin its 10th season with a rehearsal at 7 p.m. on Tues., April 2. The band will meet in the Como Park Senior High School band room. The school is located at 740 W. Rose.

Each summer since 1981 the band has played a series of Tuesday evening concerts at various places in St. Anthony Park and the surrounding area. These locations have included several senior care centers, Como Park pavilion, Central Park in Roseville, the St. Anthony Park summer festivals, and the State Fair.

The band has been made up of about 25 mostly local musicians who play for the enjoyment they get from playing with others. Anyone who has an instrument is welcome to join the group. Those who play cornets or brass instruments would be especially welcomed. Paul Husby, who has directed the band since its organization, will direct again this year.

The band's program of activities has been planned by a steering committee composed of Jon Molstad, Jim Stohl, Dan Larson,

Falcon Heights Elementary

Starting this new year off with a bang, Falcon Heights has been busy with many activities. Some are: Mrs. Gier's first grade and second grade split class had a used book sale where you could buy used books for 50¢ or 25¢ with a coupon received when you brought in a book. They made more than anyone expected: $132—WOW! They used the money to go to a teacher seminar in River Falls, Wis., to show some of their projects and plays.

The fifth & sixth graders went to Wild Mountain Ski Resort, where they spent the day on the slopes.

But one bad thing came out of this excitement. Mrs. Smith, our computer teacher, and her family moved to Sioux City, Iowa. I don't think we have a replacement at this time.

Chelsea Heights

At Chelsea Heights we have been focusing a lot on the Middle East Crisis, just like everyone else. We have many different things in our school symbolizing the war and how we feel about it. One of the projects we have been working on is making peace doves to hang in our hallways. We have been studying different countries that are involved in the war.

Our school has just enlisted in a contest called O.M., or Odyssey of the Mind. Challenge students will work on different kinds of problem solving and brain teasers. On March 16, they will be in a competition with other schools.

All of the 6th grades and one 5th grade classroom are making a lot of progress in projects with S.E.H. (Short, Elliot, Henderson).

S.E.H. is an architectural firm that has been working with some classrooms on projects such as making drawings and models of our idea of what a building in the future would look like.

Our school has just started a new recycling project, separating the low and the high grade paper. Low grade paper is notebook paper and newspaper. High grade paper is typing paper and unlined paper.

We will celebrate Catholic Schools Week Jan. 27-Feb. 2.

To begin the festivities, we had a 9 a.m. family Mass and pancake breakfast. Also grades K-8 went rollerskating and a hot lunch was provided by the Home and School Association.

The next School Site Council meeting will be Feb. 4 from 7-9 p.m. in the library. The group is discussing fundraising guidelines and finals.

Don't forget the Open House for everyone, especially potential students, on Feb. 12 from 7-9 p.m. There will be door prizes, information on departments and refreshments.

Winterfest week is Feb. 11-15. Different types of dress are planned for each day. There will be various activities all week culminating in the crowning of the Winterfest Queen and King. The theme of the semi-formal dance is, "Love has just begun, Winterfest '91." The dance will be held in the commons from 8-11 p.m. on Feb. 15.

March 4 is Underclass Academic Honors night. It will honor those freshmen, sophomores and juniors who are on the A and B honor roll, those who have perfect attendance and departmental awards. It will be held from 7-9 p.m. in the auditorium. The reception will be held in the commons.

On March 8, there will be a luncheon and tour for area pastors and community leaders from 12-2 p.m. The purpose is to give information about Como and to share ideas about community improvement.

On Thurs., Jan. 17, a group of students at Central voiced their disapproval of the Persian Gulf situation. Most of the students were members of Youth for Change, a social, political and environmental concerns group. The group congregated in the cafeteria during the lunch periods and displayed signs protesting the war. The demonstration was peaceful and was completed with little difficulty. Many classes at Central have spent time discussing the Persian Gulf situation.

The Central Downhill Ski Club has been resurrected and is planning several trips to Afton Alps. The plan is to take skiing trips every other Thursday. The first outing is scheduled for Jan. 31. Interested students should follow the announcements for further details. The cost is likely to be around $20 per trip, depending on how many people sign up.

The following are some of the Bugle area residents involved in winter athletics at Central: Bea Foster, Girls' Varsity Basketball; Brian Maddock, Tim Kersey, Aaron Erickson, Matt Hickam and Tom Laird, Varsity Hockey; Brad Sperbeck and Ben Tittle, Varsity Wrestling; and Anne Nakanishi, Varsity Gymnastics.

The Central High Touring Theater recently performed the play... and Justice for All. The group performed the play about social concerns at various schools around the metro area and did several shows at Central.

Students and staff at Central were saddened by the death of Douglas Kessler, a long-time math teacher, who died of a heart attack during the first week back from vacation. He was a friend of many and will be dearly missed.

Zack Steven

Ninth-graders in Mr. Greener's Quest Social Studies class at Central made up the only freshman team to compete at the state level in the National Bicentennial Competition on the Constitution and Bill of Rights on Jan. 14. The group finished 5th out of 6 in a contest that tests the students' understanding of the Constitution, Constitutional application, reasoning, supporting evidence and participation.

Bugle area residents Jeff Mensah-Biney, Matt Crosby, Dan Larson, Eric Peterson and Mike Beattie were members of the team. The Central students earned their berth in the state competition by scoring highest in the 4th U.S. Congressional District contest. They received 127 of 150 possible points in the district competition.

The Bicentennial competition is unique in that it requires each participating secondary school to send an entire classroom of students, instead of forming a squad of after-school volunteers.

St. Anthony Park Elementary

The month of February is traditionally a fun month at St. Anthony Park School. One school-wide activity is an annual Valentine's Day candy heart sale. Students can buy boxes of hearts to keep or to have delivered to a friend by the 5th and 6th graders who run the school store.

Fourth graders will make and deliver Valentines to several nearby nursing homes. First graders will make Valentines for some older neighbors who use the St. Anthony Park Block Nurse Program.

One other school-wide activity is the second parent-teacher conference.

Fifth graders will begin the D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program. They will learn how to say no to drugs.

On Feb. 27, all three 4th grade classes will go to Orchestra Hall to see a concert. They also plan to visit the State Capitol, and perhaps the Science Museum.

The 3rd graders will go to Como Planetarium to study astronomy. They will start a new unit in American History about pioneers.

The 2nd graders are going to study world museums. They will study the Smithsonian, the Boston and the Egyptian museums. The second graders will write and make their own books with the school's book binder.

First graders will study American presidents because February is presidents' birthday month. They will also learn stories and superstitions about Ground Hog's Day.

Mrs. Dech's kindergarten class will celebrate 100 days of school with a big party that includes seeing how far they can walk in 100 steps, and other games using the "100" theme.

February is national "I Love to Read" month. Our school librarian is helping teachers plan special activities.

Elizabeth Plagens

Murray Junior High

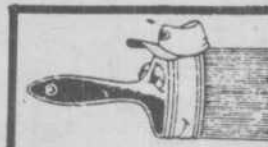

The Science Fair will be held on Feb. 4, with open house on Feb. 5. This is a time for students to present their papers and projects to friends and relatives.

Joelle Pojar won first place in the annual spelling bee. Christina Heringlake and Steve Wothe won second and third.

The Middle East crisis has caused many emotions for students at Murray. The week war began, the majority of classes spent time discussing hopes, fears and feelings about this serious conflict. We hope there will be a peaceful resolution as soon as possible.

The girls basketball team worked their way to the top this season. With a lot of hard work and practice every day, the team placed second in the city! Congratulations to these students and their dedicated coach, Bill Acree. The team includes local residents Nora Anderson, Natalie Hoyle, April Larson, Dana McCormick, Anna McKay, Emily Rohr and Vail Smerlinder.

Scheibel from 4

The year was a rough one for St. Paul. Most notable of the problems was the West Publishing announcement it would move out of the city, the closing of the Schmidt Brewery and the imbroglio over the Fire Chief's job. And 1990 was a year that saw a decline in funding from state and federal sources. At the same time, crime rose and the economy weakened.

"He's too wishy-washy..."

Most activists gave Scheibel the benefit of the doubt for the issues and problems he had little control over.

"Jim inherited disasters from George Latimer," said West Seventh Street-Irvine Park activist Maggie Schwichtenberg. "It made his job a lot more complicated than it would have been."

Scheibel's neighborhood tours received high marks. But one man who spoke on a bus tour of his neighborhood found he got little more than lip service from his personal appeal to Scheibel.

"I sat right across from him and told him about our problems," said Jerry Tower, a 75-year resident of District 5. "His aide sat there and wrote down everything I said. But nothing's happened. We've still got the same problems."

Tower's assessment of the Mayor? "He's too wishy-washy. I don't know what the future's going to be like but he's not tough enough."

Scheibel's personal style received mixed reviews. By his own assessment, he's a consensus builder and not the flashy leader his predecessor was.

Many activists wondered if he takes too much time to build consensus at a time when the city needs bold initiatives.

"He's not a dynamic personality. That's one of his shortcomings," said Duffy Pearce, a member of the Merriam Park District Council. "But he's very thoughtful and makes studied decisions. Sure he encourages consensus but when he can't get everyone together and has to make a decision, he makes a decision."

"He has to find one or two or three issues that are very important to the city as a whole and really work those ideas," Wicker said.

Scheibel was criticized for hiring a $4,500 consultant to critique his management style. But Susan Kimberly, former president of the city council who had a public falling out with Scheibel, gave him credit for seeking honest criticism.

"When you're the Mayor, no one wants to tell you the truth," she said. "It's the emperor's new clothes syndrome. I give him credit for actually trying to break through that."

Scheibel says he wants to improve on his performance in 1991 and plans to open an Office of Neighborhoods, something that failed to be established in 1990 because of budget problems.

As for his priorities for the neighborhoods this year, Scheibel said he starts with having safe and clean neighborhoods. Beyond that, his top priority is "working to ensure continuation funding from the state for [Urban Revitalization Action Program] or some program like that."

"Number two: working to get more money for housing from the state and federal government. Number three: a summer work program, and number four: making people know what's available, maybe through a citizen's guide."

"...he's very thoughtful and makes studied decisions."

Scheibel believes the District Councils have an important role to play in the city. "What I've encouraged them to do is to look at their neighborhoods," he said. "I want them to look at themselves and ask the question—what do we need to do differently?"

Scheibel says he is "open to some wild ideas" from District Councils.

"One example—it's going to be more and more difficult to keep all the playgrounds open," he said. "At the same time [we want to meet] the need to give our young adults other alternatives besides the streets. I'm going to look to [District Councils] for some way to keep the playgrounds open."

The future, according to Scheibel, is bright. "I think people are going to like it," he says.

But, said Bob Wicker, "People are going to give him another year. Then they're going to say, 'Where's the beef?'"

Caucuses scheduled in St. Paul

Caucuses for both the Independent-Republican and Democratic Farmer-Labor parties will be held Tues., Feb. 26.

In St. Paul, organizing for city council and school board elections will be the focus of the meetings.

"This is grass roots politics, an entry-level opportunity for citizens to get involved with neighborhood issues and to have an influence on who will represent the community in local government," said Scott Walker, chairman of the St. Paul IR City Committee. "This year we have invited Governor Arne Carlson to be the keynote speaker. He started his political career with city government in Minneapolis, and should have some great insights to share."

"Precinct caucuses will be the first step in the DFL process of endorsing candidates for all 7 city council seats and 4 of the 7 school board seats," said Karl Neid, Chairman of the St. Paul DFL.

St. Paul caucuses for IRs will be held at one location, the St. Paul Technical College at 235 Marshall Ave. Registration will start at 6:30 p.m., and the caucus will convene at 7 p.m.

Caucuses for DFLers in St. Paul will start at 7:30 p.m. at these locations: Ward 4 (St. Anthony Park, Merriam Park, Midway): Ramsey Junior High, 1700 Summit. Contact Fran Voerding, 644-4518; Ward 5 (North End, Como Lake): Como Senior High, 740 Rose. Contact Kevin Nicholson, 488-2493.

At press time, no caucuses were scheduled for Falcon Heights or Lauderdale.

Music from 6

Both artists have made many recordings. Together, they have recorded songs by Richard Strauss and Hugo Wolf. Their first recording of Strauss songs was the winner of a Golden Disc Award by Bruxelles-Europe Arts Magazine.

Bryant and Blumenthal bring an extra dimension to the stage in their recitals together. Husband and wife in private life, their musical collaboration is an intimate one, providing audiences with a deeply personal portrait of these two artists.

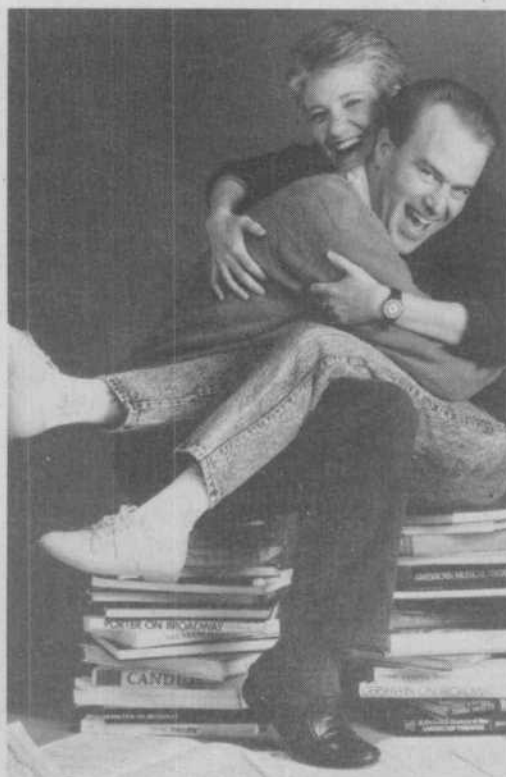

Poetry lovers will have a field day at this concert. In addition to the German texts by Goethe, Heine, Brentano and others set by Schubert, Strauss and Marx, there will be a world premiere of a setting of John Dryden's "A Song for St. Cecilia's Day" composed by Richard Ratner. Among Dryden's most luminous poems, this modern-day setting by New Yorker Ratner should balance the concert program nicely.

This program is sponsored in cooperation with The Schubert Club of St. Paul.

Tickets, at $9 for advance purchase, $10 at the door, and $5 student rush, are available at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506), or by writing Music in the Park Series, 1333 Chelmsford St., St. Paul, MN 55108. Information: 644-4234.

Singing ragtime at family concert

Singers Marsha Hunter and Brian Kent

Singers Marsha Hunter and Brian Kent and pianist Lee Afdahl will perform at the next Music in the Park Family Concert. It is called "Once Upon a Ragtime..." The concert is Friday, Feb. 22, 7:30 p.m., at St. Anthony Park Library, 2245 Como Ave.

Hunter and Kent have produced and performed ten different song concerts at the Ordway McKnight Theatre. Last season they created concerts for children in collaboration with the Schubert Club and the Ordway's New Generation Series. They have been featured on KTCA's "In Recital" series. The New York Times called them "strong, colorful singers." The Star Tribune said simply, "They shouldn't be missed."

Hunter and Kent are singing actors who specialize in songs from the American musical theatre. Past Ordway concerts have included songs by all the great Broadway songwriters from vaudeville to the present. They will present their popular song favorites that appeal to young listeners for this entertaining concert.

Since the concert is taking place in a library, the singers thought it appropriate to sing songs that tell a story, therefore the title "Once Upon a Ragtime..." These story songs range from the zany vaudeville favorite "Rings On My Fingers and Bells On My Toes," about a desert island castaway, to Cole Porter's hilarious "Tale of the Oyster." This song chronicles the downs and ups of an oyster who gets a taste of high society and lets society get a taste of him!

The audience will join in the singing of several numbers—some familiar and some brand new. The highlight of the evening will be the spontaneous creation of a new song using words, rhymes, and a story created with ideas from the children in the audience.

Your kids will have a great time, and so will you. Don't miss this delightful evening of songs and stories presented by these dynamic entertainers!

Tickets at $2 are available at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506). Seating is limited and advance purchase is urged. Information: 644-4234.

Dear Parents:

Edina Realty helps relocate thousands of families each year. Often children's feelings and anxieties about moving are overlooked. Edina Realty is addressing the needs of children relocating to the area through a new booklet, "What I Like Best About Living in the Twin Cities."

We would like the input of children, ages 5-12. We ask that they draw a picture and/or write an essay (in 25 words or less) about living in the Twin Cities and we encourage them to use their imaginations.

A T-Shirt with a fun Twin Cities skyline will be sent to the artist/writer of the first 1,000 entries received. If your children's entry is chosen for the publication, they will receive a copy of the booklet they helped author, and also have the satisfaction of being a contributing author of a book distributed nation-wide.

Our thanks for your participation.

Sincerely,

District 10 goals for 1991

By Linda Johnson

At the District 10 Council meeting at Lyngblomsten Senior Center on Jan. 8, goals were drawn up as follows:

- organize block clubs for crime watch
- promote better involvement with the Job Corps
- bring block nursing to Como Park
- complete State Fair review
- update of Como Park master plan to move the rides

- discuss formation of a human services committee.

The environmental committee also reported its goals:

- increase committee participation
- increase recycling lawn sign participation
- encourage corporate recycling
- plan an environment event, such as Earth Day
- provide a regular environment column for the District 10 newsletter.

The environmental committee will hold a formal meeting on the fourth Wednesday of every month at Lyngblomsten.

Business News

Some St. Anthony Park merchants have opted to turn off the white lights in their windows to save energy until the crisis in the Gulf is resolved. They have traditionally kept their white lights on until March.

The St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals Association, organizers of the white lights campaign, is now considering turning off tree lights as well.

Dr. Gregory Stende and the staff of Falcon Heights Dental Center are doing something special on the Saturday after Valentine's Day, Feb. 16, to give families in the community more to smile about.

Knowing there are many in this community as well as in other communities who need dental care but for one reason or another fail to seek it, Dr. Stende and staff will "Have a Heart." From 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m., children (18 and under) may receive an examination, four x-rays (if needed) and a consultation, all for $1.

These dollars and any other contributions will be donated to the Crisis Center for Children, a division of the Children's Home Society.

Call 642-1091 to make an appointment. Falcon Heights Dental Center is located at 1549 W. Larpenteur (corner of Snelling & Larpenteur in Bull's-eye Plaza).

Showcase Home Furnishings and Sally Marie Gallery have opened for business at Hamline Square, five blocks south of Larpenteur Ave. at 1503 N. Hamline in Como Park. The business is owned and operated by the Jacobsen family.

Showcase Home Furnishings offers discount prices for leather, end tables, curios, clocks, brass, window treatments, and more. In-stock inventory may be purchased, or merchandise may be special-ordered from catalogs.
