St. Anthony Park Garden Tour June 2

See the gardens, meet the gardeners

By Michelle Christianson

Have you ever marveled at some of the beautiful front-yard gardens in St. Anthony Park and wished you could see the secluded back yards, too? Did you wish you could ask the gardeners their secrets? Well, on Sun., June 2, you get your chance, for that is the date of the second annual St. Anthony Park Garden Tour.

Tickets for the tour, which cost $6, will be on sale on the library lawn from 11 a.m.-3:30 p.m.; the tour hours are from noon-5 p.m. A map with the locations of all the gardens will be printed on the tickets. Tourgoers can walk, drive or cycle between the locations of the self-guided tour.

Judy Wehrwein, who is co-chairperson of this event with Diane Emerson-Nelson, says this is a great opportunity for people to learn about the variety of types of gardens and how creative one can be with flowers, shrubs, trees and rocks. "Even in Minnesota, in the city, one can create great beauty and color."

Some of the gardens on the tour are those at 1666 Coffman, gardens on the St. Paul campus and at homes in north and south St. Anthony Park. There are casual and formal gardens containing common and unusual annual and perennial flowers. Also included are a typical English garden, several secluded and terraced back yards and the award-winning Merchant's Association plantings along Como & Carter Avenues. Owners will be at each location to answer questions.

Proceeds from the tour go to the St. Anthony Park Association and the Minnesota Horticultural Society who are sponsoring this event by providing publicity and staff. Of course, this being Minnesota, we can't count on the weather, but the tour will go on rain or shine.

The committee needs volunteers to sell tickets in two-hour shifts and to check for tickets at the various locations. If you would like to volunteer, call Judy Wehrwein at 645-9894.

New owner for healthcare residence

By Kathy Malchow

On April 6, Commonwealth Healthcare Center, 2237 Commonwealth Ave., changed owners and changed its name to St. Anthony Park Home.

Previously owned and managed by Vantage Corporation of Indiana, the new owner is John Barker, a St. Paul resident, who bought the home with help from the Small Business Administration and ParkBank.

This will be the first time since 1973 that the home has had private rather than corporate ownership.

Barker says he heard last summer that Commonwealth Healthcare Center was in bankruptcy and the owners were considering shutting it down. He was looking for an opportunity to own a nursing home and considered this one a good choice. Barker was familiar with the setting: he worked at Commonwealth from 1980-85 as a house-keeping supervisor.

The home had lost a lot of its value because of the possible bankruptcy situation, according to Barker, "so with help from the Small Business Administration, I worked with Rick Beeson at St. Anthony Park Bank, and was able to purchase the home," he said.

"I'll try to make it more of a home for the community," said Barker—hence the change in name to St. Anthony Park Home.

He says he wants his business to be accessible and responsible to the community. Barker himself should be accessible, since he's given himself the job of administrator. He admits to not having a lot of administrative experience, but is learning on the job. "I asked a former employee, Joanne Proffitt, for assistance. She came out of retirement to help out."

Barker came to St. Paul in 1980 from Cincinnati where

Park Festival to feature local fun

By Mary Mergenthal

"We're concentrating on going back to the basics," says Maureen Mariano of the 1991 Park Festival. "As we plan the events of the day, we're focusing our attention on the local nature of the festival. The uniqueness of the day is that it's an event provided by local merchants with local entertainment."

Mariano, one of the chairpersons of the event, stresses that this year there will be no outside food vendors—all food sold will be prepared by local restaurants. The merchants will underwrite the cost of providing entertainment, much of which will come from local sources.

There will be three stage areas—the Healy Building parking lot on Como, the lot of the ParkBank's drive-in facility, and Como and Carter. There local groups will dance and sing and fence and act. The complete schedule will appear in the June issue of the Bugle.

"The St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals provide this special day as a way of saying thanks to their customers and clients," Mariano stresses. "We want people from the community and visitors to have a happy, relaxing time. Merchants will be offering specials on merchandise and services that day."

Mariano, of M. Mariano and Co. for hair, shares her planning responsibilities with Paul Kirkegaard, St. Anthony Park dentist.

Town Meeting May 8 to review seminary plans

A Town Meeting, scheduled for Wed., May 8 at 7 p.m. in the Library Community Room, will focus on Luther Northwestern Theological Seminary. Dr. David Tiede, president, will present the master plan for the campus, which in the near future includes a proposed office building for the Lutheran Center for Service and Mission. Lutheran Social Service of Minnesota, now located at 2414 Park Ave. in Minneapolis, has already raised $3 million in grants, gifts and pledges to build a new facility at the corner of Como & Hendon, with construction planned for early 1992.

Along with the discussion of the long-range plans for the seminary, Wendy Lane, zoning manager for the city, will answer questions about appropriate zoning for an accessory use on the campus.

Council Comments

BFI and the issue of informed consent

By Michael Russelle
 Council member

Only recently did we learn about our new neighbors. Our neighborhood was not advised when a medical waste transfer facility was established by Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) at 742 Vandalia.

Yes, BFI had received most of the necessary approvals, but at no time in the process were we notified. Neighborhoods and businesses want to be involved in siting waste-related facilities.

What is BFI doing here? Phil Holt's article in the April Bugle covered this well, but for those who have recycled that issue already, a few definitions. Infectious medical waste is material that could transfer disease to humans. It comes from hospitals, medical and veterinary clinics, mortuaries, nursing homes and similar establishments. Infectious waste includes cultures and contaminated items from laboratories, discardable human and animal tissues, contaminated needles and scalpel blades, disposable gowns and bandages soiled with blood products or other body fluids.

This is not "nice" stuff. It needs to be handled and disposed of correctly. We are glad that some companies are doing this task.

This kind of material is regulated by the Minnesota Infectious Waste Management Program and by county and city public health licensing rules. Current regulations state that infectious waste must be kept separate from the normal solid waste stream and must be decontaminated by incineration, autoclaving or other approved methods.

Currently, BFI is using the building on Vandalia as a collection point. Infectious waste is brought by truck from over 500 waste generators in Minnesota, only 20% of which are in Ramsey County. Waste is loaded on refrigerated semi-trailers and leaves within 48 hours for incinerators in Fargo, N. D., or Kansas City, Mo.

Michael Russelle

Hospitals and other major infectious waste generators have traditionally incinerated their own waste. However, the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency estimates that 90% of these will not be able to meet new air quality standards. We need properly equipped facilities to process these wastes.

In the near future, BFI plans to convert this building to a treatment facility. It proposes to disinfect the medical waste in a large autoclave. The treated waste will then be shredded, compacted and transported to BFI's landfill in Pine Bend. Autoclaving is an effective way to disinfect most wastes, but some still must be incinerated, so BFI will continue to make transports to Fargo or Kansas City.

Should we be concerned about having a medical waste treatment facility in this area? I believe so.

BFI specializes in solid and liquid waste collection and disposal. The company has numerous waste-processing facilities across the nation and is experienced in autoclaving technology. However, its environmental record is less than perfect, as problems at the Flying Cloud landfill indicate.

This development should not be viewed in isolation. For example, the University of Minnesota Integrated Hazardous Waste Treatment Facility will be built in S.E. Minneapolis, about one mile west of the St. Anthony Park neighborhood. How much waste-related development should occur in the center of the metro area?

If the waste is transported and handled correctly, the risk of spreading disease organisms in an accident is small. However, processing odors may affect the Amtrak station, surrounding businesses and residences.

Paula Maccabee, our City Council representative, has been successful in helping shed light on this issue and the licensing process. Her staff alerted the Community Council about this facility. As she points out, St. Paul city agencies can impose conditions on the operation of these facilities, but cannot directly influence where they are sited.

This facility may be both necessary and ideally sited, but this decision should not be made hastily or without involvement of its neighbors. Please let the council (272-7884), Paula Maccabee (298-5378) or Mike Ayers at BFI (921-8649) know if you have concerns about this issue.

1991-92 Community Council elected

Five new council members will begin their terms of office on May 8 when they join eight continuing members and three incumbents as neighborhood decision-makers. There are still two vacancies on the South St. Anthony delegation and three vacancies on the Midway Civic and Commerce delegation.

Residential elections held on April 9 resulted in the election of Phillip Duff and Jan Meyer to 2-year terms as North St. Anthony delegates. Evan Murdock and Jim Pfau were elected alternates for one-year terms. Melissa Coffey, John Grantham and Beth Richardson were elected as South St. Anthony delegates by the council at its March meeting. Two alternate slots remain to be filled.

Midway business and commercial delegates and alternates are chosen annually by the Midway Civic & Commerce Association. The 1991-92 delegation from the business community will include Dan Goodman, Mel's Direct Service; Howard Ostrem, Luther Northwestern Seminary; B. Warner Shippee, Courtyard Antiques; and Tim Smith, Carter Ave. Frame Shop. One delegate and two alternate positions remain to be filled.

Three delegates from North St. Anthony and two delegates from South St. Anthony will serve the second year of their terms: Lis Christenson, Alice Magnuson and Michael Russelle from North; Heidi Myers and Carol Osip from South.

In May each delegation will select a chairperson and the council will organize four subcommittees for the year. Each person, delegate or alternate, is asked to serve on one of the standing committees—environment, housing, human services or physical planning. Community residents or business people interested in serving as ad hoc members to any of the standing committees or wishing to inquire about serving should contact any council member or call the office at 292-7884.

Ron Dorumsgaard has already worked hard to restore his historic Como home and he still plans to do more. See page 16 to see an early photo of the house.

Como Bed & Breakfast included in Mpls./St. Paul Home Tour

By Roald Sateren

Tucked away on a quiet side street in the northwest Como area stands a grand old Italianate-styled house. With an eye for antiquity and a historic sense to match, Ron Dorumsgaard is bringing back to life this ornate beauty—transforming it into one of the area's only bed and breakfasts.

Dorumsgaard opened Como Villa Bed and Breakfast, 1371 Nebraska Ave. W., last July after several years of painstaking and sometimes frustrating renovation. It will be part of the Minneapolis/St. Paul Home Tour, May 4-5.

The two-story house is modeled after villas built in the hillsides of Italy in the 1840s, according to Dorumsgaard.

On the exterior, the house has ornate, paired, scroll brackets at the corners and a wide frieze. Its tall, arched, segmented windows, with keystones at the top, are testaments to its elegant past.

Standing 28 feet from ground to peak, Como Villa is a good 10 feet taller than most homes in the neighborhood.

On the inside, the house is immediately spacious, with its 11-foot high ceilings. Victorian antiques fill the house and are priced for sale to guests and visitors.

A baby grand piano sits on an elegant 14 x 24 foot ballroom rug that Dorumsgaard got from the old Leamington Hotel in Minneapolis.

Dorumsgaard rents three antique-filled rooms at Como Villa. Two of the rooms have half baths and there are full baths on the first and second floors. A continental breakfast includes Dorumsgaard's homemade muffins.

To get the house back to its original character, massive renovation was needed. Dorumsgaard had never done any serious renovation work before, but took to it quickly.

Throughout the years, the house had undergone several style changes taking it further and further away from its original design and character. In the late 1950s it was converted into a duplex and remained that way until Dorumsgaard and his mother Vi bought the house in 1986.

Soon after purchasing the house, Dorumsgaard began envisioning restoring it to its original elegance.

"When it was made into a duplex, it was torn up; it seemed misplaced; nothing seemed right," he said. "I wanted to put it back to the grandeur of what it once was."

Today the house is very close to what it was when George and Hannah (Hoyt) Hazzard had it built back in 1872.

Sorting through a briefcase packed full with copies of letters, pictures, abstracts and documents more than 100 years old, Dorumsgaard is a man taken with and somewhat tickled by the rich history of Como Villa.

The tour is sponsored by the two cities and real estate, financial and home remodeling companies.

Visitors will have the opportunity to discuss the advantages of city living with homeowners and home staff volunteers.

Lots of volunteers are needed; even a couple of hours will help. If you're interested, call the St. Anthony Park Community Council office, 292-7884 or Ann Copeland, 228-3218.

The tour is free. See the May 1 edition of the Twin Cities Reader for a listing of all homes included on the tour.

Letters

A newspaper is a vehicle for the presentation of ideas and the exchange of opinions. Granted, lively discussion is more difficult in a monthly newspaper. However, letters we received this month demonstrate that readers are interested enough in the issues this paper presents to take time to respond. We're glad when our mailbag is full. The Bugle is pleased to provide a platform for community discussion.

Youth activist responds

Dear editors,

As a member of Central High Youth For Change, I would like to respond to Mr. Henry Hansen's letter "Concern about coverage of youth activists." Since Mr. Hansen is currently living in Norway, he may be unaware of the true work that Youth For Change has been doing, both at Central and within the community.

Youth For Change was established to provide a positive forum in which students may air their concerns and work together to empower and educate young people at Central. We have found apathy to be one of the most alarming trends among high school youth, and Y.F.C. challenges student indifference by hosting speakers and organizing events to get students more involved.

Last spring, the group helped organize the Central Carnival, a miniature Festival of Nations. Youth For Change also hosted a very successful series of open discussions on race relations at Central. Over 80 students took part in these discussions, which were credited with helping to diffuse a potentially volatile situation. Speakers from both the peace community and the military were invited to discuss issues relating to nuclear war and the arms race. Youth For Change felt it was important that both sides be represented so that students could make informed decisions for themselves.

Far from being a "militant" organization, Youth For Change was founded on the belief that compromise and communication are the most effective means of achieving changes within society. It has never been our policy to insult or interfere with those who hold opposing viewpoints, and we ask to be granted the same respect.

Mr. Hansen has criticized the Bugle for allowing itself to be manipulated by student activists, and for reporting on controversial issues. As I understood it, the purpose of the article had been to highlight what young people were doing in the community. This is what a community newspaper is all about. Mr. Hansen's criticism about our minority status at Central seems strange when it is our actions, not our numbers, that were the focus of the article. That a small number of young people could effect great changes within their school speaks to their credit, whether or not you agree with their politics.

Mr. Hansen seems to believe that it is wrong to report on members of the community whose accomplishments do not reflect his own personal values. This goes against the spirit of a free and democratic society. I hope Mr. Hansen will reconsider his opinions. I would welcome a dialogue with him at any time.

Sincerely,

Erik Farseth

Focusing on peace, not war

Dear editors,

I was pleased to see that the Bugle did not follow the lead of most of the rest of the mass media during the war. While others allowed themselves to become mouthpieces for the military and cheerleaders for the administration, you chose to remind us that there was another side to the story and featured the local "Youth for Change" who advocated peaceful solutions. I'm proud of you and happy to see that some young people are taking a pro-active interest in world issues again. I hope my own children follow in their footsteps.

Sincerely,
Karen Lilley

Freedom of the press

Dear editors:

In response to the letter to the editor in your last issue: Again, in spite of our claim that our youth are the hope of the future, we only want them involved so far as it is guaranteed that they do not question, but rather follow obediently whatever agenda we might have. We really do not trust our youth to think for themselves and we have to see to it that if there might be any dissent from our agenda it must not be given any credence.

One of the foundations of democracy is the free exchange of ideas and the right of any to have opposing views. A democracy is only strong and viable when the ideas of all can be freely expressed and reported by the press.

If only the views of some are to be allowed and reported, where is freedom of speech and where is freedom of the press? If only the views of the state are allowed and reported where is the freedom of the press? How is this so-called democracy then different than any other dictator or one-party state? If when you oppose any action of the power structure you are politicizing the discussion and if you support any action of the power structure you are neutral...how is that different from government by any dictator or one-party state?

As to the charge that the press is generally liberal, that may be an opinion from where the person has placed his allegiance. But if the press does not report more than the state view, whether it is liberal or conservative, where is the freedom of the press? Has it not become another arm of the state? In the recent past, the press too often has not been as critical as it should be and too often has almost become a tool of the state.

Sincerely,

W. Jennings
Mergenthal

Good bill, Senator Marty

Dear editors,

The people of Minnesota owe a debt of gratitude to Senator John Marty for his continued efforts to limit kids' access to tobacco. In the 1991 legislative session, Senator Marty authored a bill which would have required all Minnesota cities to license tobacco sales and which would have developed consistent civil penalties for tobacco sales to minors. Unfortunately, in the crush of money bills this session, the bill was not heard in committee and so never made it to the floor of the Senate.

Senator Marty sees clearly that the earlier kids start smoking the more likely it is that they will become hooked for life by tobacco, the drug that causes more deaths than AIDS, suicide, drunken driving and all other drugs combined. This bill would have punished vendors for selling tobacco to minors by taking away their tobacco license for 30 days. The proposed legislation would have sent a clear message that vendors should not profit from tobacco sales to kids.

We thank Senator Marty for his vision and his effort and we encourage him and the state legislature to pass this important bill during the next session.

Sincerely,

David C. Johnson

Planning Commission recommends continuing lawn parking

By Kathy Malchow

Lawn parking in the Como neighborhood during the State Fair will likely continue as it was in 1990.

On March 22, the St. Paul Planning Commission voted to recommend that the City Council remove the "sunset clause" written into the 1989 State Fair Parking District Ordinance. The clause states there should be a two-year trial period for the ordinance, in order to determine its workability. Removal of the clause, then, would make the ordinance permanent.

The ordinance states that in the Como area, lawn parking is allowed in front yards if the property owner gets written permission from adjoining property owners. Parking is allowed in side and back yards without written permission. The original ordinance states no curb jumping is allowed, but last year another ordinance was passed that allows curb jumping.

Lawn parking is still illegal in St. Anthony Park.

One Como resident, Bob Brokopp, spoke against removal of the sunset clause at the hearing on March 22. His objections to State Fair lawn parking are longstanding, and are based on environmental, safety, pollution and noise problems. He proposed trying one year of no lawn parking, instead of removing the sunset clause.

The City Council will now take up the issue based on the recommendation from the Planning Commission. At press time, no hearing date before the City Council has been set.

Arbor Day planting set for St. Anthony Park

By Ingrid Marklund

"It is a tradition to care about the trees in St. Anthony Park—the big old trees are characteristics of the Park. So we had no problems recruiting volunteers for Arbor Day..."

Bill Anderson of St. Anthony Park Green, an offshoot of the St. Anthony Park Community Council Environment Committee, is planning for April 26, when 5000 tree seedlings will be planted. At least half of the seedlings are expected to survive the first, tough years and grow into new trees that can be replanted all over the Park to keep its character intact.

1500 red pine trees, 1500 white pines and 2000 Amur maples, chosen for their hardiness, have been provided by the city's parks department. "For the work we mostly depend on neighborhood volunteers," Anderson says. "We will have some people coming from Ramsey County Jail, people who have been sentenced to work for the community. But most planters on Arbor Day will be volunteers, and we had no problem finding them."

The 5000 seedlings will all be planted around the Raymond Avenue bridge—along the railroad tracks, in the community gardens on Robbins St., and on Everett Court. The bridge area is meant to serve as a tree nursery for St. Anthony Park: When the trees grow big enough in about five years, they can be replanted in other places where trees are needed—to replace old trees or to create a new green spot.

If Arbor Day planting plans work as expected, the area around the Raymond Avenue bridge will see several hundred evergreens this size in 5-10 years. Pictured are David and Debbie Behr-Sylvestre.

Arbor Day planting is only one of many Park projects based on volunteering. A lot more are planned for this summer.

One example is in College Park, where Michael Russelle has organized 15 neighbors to work with him. It actually started last summer with the planting of ferns and daylilies and some shade-loving hostas, donated by Diane Emerson from her own garden on Hillside.

"I think the ferns will be magnificent this year," Bill Anderson says hopefully, "and I'm very grateful for the hostas, as they are unusual. We try not to plant the same varieties in all the parks. We want every local park to have its unique character."

The Community Council has received money from the city for erosion control in College Park, so this summer the volunteers will be working with plants that are expected to stop erosion on the slopes.

Langford Park is going to have a real facelift this summer. Laurie Shuster and Verne Comstock are coordinators, and with the help of neighbors, the bandstand in the park will be restored. Some of the railing from the old Raymond Avenue bridge will be reused as bandstand railing.

Also, evergreens will be planted along the edges of Langford Park, after consulting with neighbors about where to plant.

There is something going on in every park in St. Anthony Park this summer. Some of the plant material is paid for by the city, and some is donated by the Minnesota State Horticultural Society, which also rewarded St. Anthony Park last year with the society's President's Award.

"We have an agreement with the Horticultural Society that when our perennials have grown and need to be divided we will give them to other neighborhoods," Anderson says. "We hope that St. Anthony Park will be able to act as a plant nursery for the whole city."

"But of course we need volunteers all the time. The city gives us some money for plants, but they could never hire people to do all the work that volunteers have done the last summers. In these days of tight budgets, neighbors need to take responsibility for the local parks."

he studied music. In 1985 he had the opportunity to go to Julliard School of Music, "an opportunity I just couldn't turn down," so he went, while his wife stayed in St. Paul. In 1987 Barker returned with a degree but no job. ("There were about three openings in orchestras across the country for string bass players.")

He decided to pursue his interest in working with older people, so then completed coursework at the University of Minnesota to fulfil requirements for nursing home administration.

St. Anthony Park Home is a 100-bed facility with an occupancy rate of about 65%. "Of course, we're hoping to improve on that percentage," Barker said. "When it's your own place you tend to be more interested."

FIRE, an exhibit exploring primitive techniques and low-level technologies used to create artworks of clay, is featured at the Northern Clay Center from May 9–June 22.

Three contemporary artists, whose works consciously employ low-level technologies to achieve personal expression, have been invited to participate in the exhibition: Dale Bryner-McMillan of Mesa, Ariz., whose works are intensely earth related; George Kokis of Eugene, Ore., who uses his art as a means to express spiritual concerns; and Nancy Liedl of St. Paul, known for her burnished pieces that take their color from the firing process. All three will conduct workshops on Sat. & Sun., May 25 & 26. On Fri., May 24, each artist will give a brief slide lecture.

Gallery hours at the Northern Clay Center: Mon.–Fri., 10 a.m.–5:30 p.m.; Sat., 10 a.m.–5 p.m.

Marietta Spencer receives special award

By Norman W. Moen

The annual meeting of the Minnesota Social Service Association (MSSA) is the largest in the nation, attended by more than 2,000 public welfare employees, social workers, agency representatives, county and state commissioners as well as other officials. This year, the conference program included a ceremony presented the MSSA Morris Hursh Award to St. Anthony Park resident Marietta E. Spencer of the Children's Home Society.

The award, the most prestigious gift of the MSSA, is not presented annually or at stated intervals to outstanding leaders in the field of human services, but rather when the high achievements of a special person demand recognition. Past recipients include Gov. Elmer L. Andersen, Vice President Walter Mondale, and federal judge Miles Lord. Mrs. Spencer is the first woman and the first social worker to receive it. The University of Minnesota's distinguished Annie Laurie Baker, former director of hospital social work, nominated Mrs. Spencer.

Marietta Spencer

Mrs. Spencer's initial training was in medical social work. She has applied insights from the fields of human genetics and anthropology to create innovative and effective case and group procedures. In the course of her career, she has served more than 12,000 clients in workshops, and hundreds in family and individual counseling centers. She is known both nationally and internationally for her distinctive contributions to the concept of post-adoption services involving adoptive parents, adopted persons, and birth parents.

Mrs. Spencer designed the first three national conferences on post-legal adoption to be held in America. She has conducted and published research in the field, encouraged others to do the same, and travelled from one end of the country the other—as well as abroad—to keynote or lead literally hundreds of programs. It is owing to her efforts that the Children's Home Society of Minnesota has the first post-legal adoption department in the U.S.

Her friends and neighbors in University Grove and St. Anthony Park congratulate Marietta Spencer for the significant achievement which the Morris Hursh Award recognizes.

Mother and daughter duo, Kelly and Marilyn Robertson, will entertain twice in St. Anthony Park on May 10—at the library and at the elementary school.

Robertson duo to offer songs and fun on May 10

The Music in the Park Series will sponsor a special musical story time featuring folk singers Marilyn and Kelly Robertson on Fri., May 10, at the St. Anthony Park Library. The 10:30 a.m. program is free and persons of all ages are encouraged to attend.

Marilyn and Kelly Robertson—a mother and daughter team—will present a program of folk music, humor, stories and even a bit of juggling, all to the accompaniment of guitar and dulcimer. And the audience gets to sing along, too.

Singer/songwriter Marilyn Robertson, a performer in Artists in the Schools Program in Santa Cruz, Calif., has produced two tapes of original songs, "Songs out of the Ordinary" and "Tall Babies—Songs for Children." Kelly sings, plays the dulcimer and juggles, an art she learned at circus school in England.

The Robertsons will be spending the first two weeks of May in the Twin Cities. Anyone interested in booking additional performances may contact Dorothy at 722-3442.

Local speedskaters win national titles

The national short track (indoor) speedskating championships were held March 22-24 in Worcester, Mass., and two St. Anthony Park boys came home with titles.

Fifteen-year-old Leif Ahlgren (son of Steven and Cynthia Ahlgren) captured the junior boys division, while 12-year-old Emil Tack (son of Cristel and Steve Tack) won the midget boys division. Another teammate, Aaron Smith of Roseville, ranked second overall in the junior boys division.

The boys are members of the North Star Speedskating Club, which also features several other St. Anthony Park and Falcon Heights skaters. It is the club's first year, and capturing two national championships is quite a coup.

Coach Diane Wynne is a former national champion and Olympian and was recently inducted into the Speedskating Hall of Fame. She says there's plenty of room for North Star to grow. Any boys or girls age 5 and up should have their parents contact Cristel Tack at 653-1555, Steve Ahlgren at 644-7474, or Kathy Magnuson at 645-2475 for more information.

Summer conditioning for the club members will include cycling and in-line roller skating. The summer program will be especially important for teammates Ahlgren and Smith, as they qualified to compete in the Olympic Sports Festival in Los Angeles in July. Ahlgren competed in the festival last summer when it was held in Minnesota.

School News

Murray Junior High

Seven Murray students advanced to the state Science Fair competition held in Bemidji on April 7, 8 and 9. Murray's Science Fair was the largest junior high fair in the state.

In the paper competition, results are as follows (purple ribbon = 1st place; blue = 2nd place; red = 3rd place):

Sam Byers, "Where do Burglaries Happen?," red ribbon

Michaela Toohey, "An Explorative Look at Handwashing," blue ribbon

Joelle Pojar, "Daphnia Magna—Impacts of De-Icers," blue ribbon

Nicole Nice-Petersen, "The AIDS Controversy," blue ribbon

Benjamin Westhoff, "Mathematical Distribution," purple ribbon

Benjamin Westhoff was chosen to be alternate at the Tri-State Symposium held in November. In the competition for papers, only 16 of the 92 entrants are selected to receive purple ribbons in grades 8-11. Then they compete over again to narrow it to the top ten, along with an alternating three. Ben Westhoff was one of these three.

In the project competition, these are the results:

Carlo Sweeney, "Water Pollution," red ribbon

Nate O'Brien, "Paper Towels," purple ribbon

Congratulations to all of the competitors. We definitely have an excellent science program at Murray and these results prove it!

The girls' volleyball team had an excellent record this season and went on to win the Twin Cities Conference tournament! Congratulations to this great group and their coach, Marlene Ziemski.

Spring sports have begun despite the snow and sometimes rainy weather conditions. Baseball and softball are off to a wonderful start. Coach Pat Cherrier told me the first two weeks of practice are the most difficult because this year approximately 80 boys went out for baseball. An incredible turnout!

All 8th graders have signed up for high school already, some to Central or Como and some to other schools. Being an 8th grader, I can pretty much say for all of us that we are excited for the big switch to senior high and the new challenges and fun it will bring.

Eighth graders are leaving, but that definitely does not mean Murray will be smaller in population. There are approximately 300-350 new 7th graders coming to Murray next fall. The staff is excited about such a large number.

The state Geography Bee was held on April 6, and Edith Lotterman, an 8th grader, attended. She won 25th out of 104 competitors.

Selected cast and crew members and director Joanna Traver are busy practicing for the school play, The Doctor in Spite of Himself. Performance times are: senior citizen luncheon and performance, April 24; evening performance on April 25; and morning performance for St. Anthony Park Elementary School 6th graders on April 26.

As school is drawing to a close and summer is near, students are hard at work for final grade reports. An honors night to celebrate selected students' accomplishments will be held on May 30 in the auditorium.

The Spring Concert is also in the works. No date has been set yet.

Chelsea Heights Elementary

We have a lot of news to report this month. First, our annual Battle of the Pyramids contest is coming up. This activity requires every classroom in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades to make a design for a pyramid, then construct the design with the bodies of everyone in the class, in front of a group of judges.

One of our 6th grade classes is experimenting with laboratory rats' growth, and having a lot of fun doing it. These 6th graders were given two female albino rats (specially bred for these experiments) and gave them different kinds of food with different kinds of nutrients to see how their growth is affected.

The final piece of news is that all the sixth graders had to make that tough choice this month about what junior high to go to. With the school year almost over, we would like to say that the sixth graders have enjoyed the years we've been at Chelsea Heights and we hope that the staff members at the junior high we're attending are as nice as the staff at Chelsea Heights.

David Smith-Cunnen &
James Hammar

Como Park High School

The spring band concert will be at 7:30 p.m. on May 2.

There will be an inservice day on May 3. Staff members will be hearing Dr. Stevens, who will speak about multicultural issues. Students will have a half day of school, which will end at 10:40 a.m.

On May 9, at Roy Wilkins Auditorium at the Civic Center, there will be the 23rd annual recognition workshop and luncheon for parent volunteers in District 625. The Principal's Fund will be paying for Como volunteers who attend.

The Junior/Senior Prom is scheduled for May 11, 8-11 p.m., at Phalen Clubhouse. The theme is "Here and Now." The cost is $15 per couple, with senior admission free.

The prom is sponsored by the junior class, for the seniors. This year the juniors have added some new events—a Grand March and the crowning of Como's first prom royalty. They hope these will become long-lasting traditions.

The Grand March will be held in the school gymnasium from 4:30-7 p.m. on May 11. There will be professional pictures taken at this time. The Grand March is open to the public free of charge. Parents and community members are encouraged to come and enjoy this event.

Six senior females and six senior males will be nominated by the seniors as royalty. All will receive a title.

The school site council meeting will be May 13 at 7 p.m. in the library.

The spring choral concert will be May 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium.

The Spring Fling Dance will be May 17, 8-11 p.m., in the Commons. This dance is to help raise money for next year's prom.

Don't forget the graduation party for Como students. It is tentatively scheduled for 10:30 p.m.-5:30 a.m. The cost is estimated to be about $20.

Finals for freshmen, sophomores and juniors are tentatively scheduled for June 5 (for periods 1, 2 and 5) and 6 (for periods 3, 4 and 6).

Congratulations to Rebecca Russelle, whose art work was selected to be in the highly prestigious "Best 100" High School exhibitions. The selection was made from the entire metro area, including private, parochial and public schools. Russelle's winning entry was a pencil drawing of fellow student Charles Mickelson. Russelle is a post-secondary options' student attending classes at the Minneapolis College of Art and Design as well as Como.

Mr. Jacobsen, English teacher, has received a grant for 30 season tickets to the Guthrie Theater from the Pillsbury Young People's Fund. This will allow students to see the plays on next year's line-up. The grant is worth $4,500.

Plans are being made to start mural work at Como. The work will be done by students with help from John Acosta, who is known for his realistic art work and murals. This work will begin in late spring and early summer. Students interested in helping should speak with Ann Christianson or Pai Yang.

Central High School

The multi-cultural festival was held on April 12. There were displays and food from many different countries. Central students and faculty created and worked at their own booths. This was the second such event at Central and given its success it will likely be held again next year.

The Central High Band went to a band contest in Wisconsin April 19-21.

Student thespians will be performing student written and produced plays the weekend of April 26.

Senior Week II is coming up the week of May 13-17. There will be various activities promoting unity and friendship.

Many students are preparing to take Advanced Placement exams and other achievement tests in May.

The Blood Drive is coming to Central soon. Watch for posters for the date and time. Participants must be 17 years old and meet the weight requirement.

We also congratulate the confirmands. Thank you to Mary Catherine Dunkel and Molly Coyne who have helped them.

Mayor Jim Scheibel congratulates Evan Murdock for gaining a voice on the St. Anthony Park Community Council.

High school student elected to Community Council

By Kristin Copa

Young people need a voice in community issues, according to St. Anthony Park resident, Evan Murdock.

At the tender age of 16, Murdock will provide that voice on the St. Anthony Park Community Council. He was elected first-alternate, after receiving the third most votes for the four positions elected.

Residents as young as 16 can vote and participate on the council and Murdock hoped to encourage participation at a young age by his candidacy.

"It's a way to get a voice in at least local government," he said, "and bring up issues that wouldn't otherwise get brought up."

The issues Murdock hopes to bring up during his one-year tenure on the council include student's rights in the schools and a concern about the environment.

A Central High School junior, Murdock's interest in politics began after participating in the YMCA's Youth in Government program. Through the program, young people learn about the legislative process and even take over the real Capitol Building to act out procedure.

Community organizer Roberta Megard is pleased to have Murdock involved in the real process at the community level.

"I'm personally just delighted that Evan was elected," she said. "He will bring a new and different perspective to the decisions we make."

Murdock hopes his action will raise the awareness of other young people of their role in decision-making.

"It's important that young people are aware that by 16 you have political power," he said. "Running and serving on the council proves that people my age do have that power and should use it if they can."

Scheibel visits community council

By Phil Holt

St. Paul Mayor Jim Scheibel attended the April 10 meeting of the St. Anthony Park Community Council.

"The biggest issue facing the city is the budget and property taxes," Scheibel said.
He told the council that tax restructuring would cause 50% of St. Paul homeowners to see a doubling of their property tax. Ninety percent of St. Paul homeowners would see their property taxes increase.

The budget cuts proposed by Gov. Carlson will result in a 25% cut in city services due to a $30 million decrease in funding. "We are going to face some cuts," Scheibel said.
"When you cut 25%, everybody is going to be affected."

"Maybe district councils will be doing more rather than less," he said. He challenged the council to ask, "If the city gives us the money, what can we do with it?"

When asked for his position on LRT, Scheibel replied that he felt it should be a metropolitan system.

"If there is going to be LRT, we need to be involved," Scheibel said. He noted that questions need to be asked about the feasibility of tax increases to fund LRT during the current budget situation. Should LRT be implemented, Scheibel feels that the I-94 route is the most practical option.

Scheibel heard citizen concerns on a proposal to move the Burlington Northern hub facility into a Minneapolis location adjacent District 12. Residents of the area told the mayor they would not welcome the hub into their neighborhood.
Scheibel responded,
"A solution is not to push a problem into another neighborhood." The mayor's aides offered to bring District 12 into the negotiations and Scheibel offered to set up communications between residents and Minneapolis
City Council member Joan Campbell.

Scheibel praised the emergence of the arts district in the Raymond/University area. He said that organizations such as the Northern Clay Center and Film in the

Roseville School Board election May 21

Meet the candidates for the Roseville School Board on Wed., May 1, 7:30 p.m., at years). This event is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Roseville and the PTA Coordinating Council.

Incumbents Tom Bertz
(Roseville) and Ellen Shelton
(Roseville) and challengers Verne Henning (Shoreview) and Peter Hiller (Little Canada) are scheduled to participate.

The Working Group on received $25,000 for its Early Warning project, which will encourage early intervention by communities in cases of potential job loss.

Cities fit in with the neighborhood and help strengthen it and create a sense of community.

The mayor was asked how the proposed budget cuts would affect the Parks and Recreation program. He stressed that "Rec centers are very important to keep kids out of trouble. If you close everything, you need more police."

Scheibel discussed some of the revenue options he has seen. They include taking $300 million from the state's rainy day fund, raising $80 thousand from income tax hikes and allowing counties to increase sales tax for local use. "We would benefit quite a bit from a county-wide sales tax," Scheibel said.

He also discussed the issue of charitable gambling to fund state and city programs.
"That is something we should study," Scheibel said.

Mayor Scheibel told the council his office is circulating a document of 200 ideas on the budget which will be released for public comment.

Holy Childhood From page 9

Several guests have visited our school recently. Mr. Charles Wagner told us about the Special Olympics this summer and asked for volunteers. Mr. John Thompson of the brokerage firm of Dain Bosworth introduced 7th and 8th graders to the stock market. Following his visit our students will invest $1,000 and chart their gains/losses as part of their math classes.

Mr. Heiner A. Gunster from the Modern Language Association of Germany also visited our school. He comes from Koblenz, Germany.

On April 14 at the 9 a.m. Mass we had a Children's Special Liturgy. Following that we had a continental breakfast, served by our Home and School Association.

St. Anthony Park Elementary

As the weather gradually gets warmer, many students at St. Anthony Park School will be going on field trips.

The kindergartners have already taken several local field trips to places like Flowers by Jane, ParkBank, the Bugle and the post office. During May they will also go to the Bell Museum and the Minneapolis Institute of Art.

The 1st graders will be visiting the Planetarium. They are going to Scandia, Minn., to see an old-fashioned school and also to see an old Swedish settler's cabin.

The 2nd graders are continuing their trips to the St. Anthony Park Public Library. They will be studying trees, because it's the month of Arbor Day. They will also be finishing their labor unit.

The 3rd graders are going to the Children's Theatre on May 10 to see Pinocchio. They will also have Mr. Charles Numrich from Creative Theatre Unlimited come to school to tell Hmong folk tales.

The 4th graders are going to Fort Snelling and the Henry Sibley House on May 15. This trip is one of the last parts of their Minnesota history unit.

The 5th graders are getting ready for their D.A.R.E. graduation. Parents of the 5th graders will be invited to watch their children perform skits and get certificates honoring their graduation. They will also be doing state projects and finishing their Western projects.

The 6th graders will have a picnic and parade on May 21 honoring them for patrolling all year. The parade is in downtown St. Paul and the picnic is at Como Park.

I would like to mention three school-wide events. Marilyn and Kelly Robertson, a folk singing duo from California, will sing for the students on May 10.

The annual school carnival is Fri., May 17, 5-8 p.m. This event has been held for many years and has always been greatly enjoyed.

Lastly, the student council will be holding elections for next year's officers. Any 5th graders who are interested in running may enter the race.

Neighborhood institutions form three-way partnership

By Ann Bulger

Three St. Anthony Park institutions, the H. B. Fuller Company, Murray Junior High School and the Seal Hi-Rise, are working together in a three-way partnership.

Murray, a math-science magnet school, and the H. B. Fuller Company, a Fortune 500 company, have had an informal partnership for 15 years. This was formalized last year when the St. Paul School District and the Chamber of Commerce began the Business and School Alliance, in which schools are matched with a business partner. A team of people from the school and the business meet regularly to plan ventures of mutual interest.

This year, the H. B. Fuller Company entered the Adopt-A-High-Rise program and began working with the Seal Hi-Rise in South St. Anthony Park. Murray then joined in this venture.

Murray students have made Valentines and birthday cards for Seal residents. Fuller will provide a bus to bring Seal residents to Murray on April 24 for the senior citizens' lunch and a performance of the play, The Doctor in Spite of Himself.

Murray staff Phyllis Baltes and Millard Neymark wrote a grant proposal for an inter-generational project involving the junior high students and the older generation at Seal. Residents will visit Murray and be paired with teenagers who will interview them to learn of similarities and differences in their lives. The junior high students will make booklets about their adopted grandparents and then invite them back for a presentation.

Coordinator at Fuller is Liz Johnson, corporate archivist who recently was named to the board of the Ramsey County Historical Society. Other Fuller team members are Dan Subach and Arlene Stenberg. Coordinator at Murray is Ann Bulger, assisted by Phyllis Baltes, Johnny Bland and Millard Neymark. Coordinator at Seal Hi-Rise is Byrl Wessinger, chairperson of the Residents' Council.

The Ramsey County Historical Society's Gibbs Farm Museum has announced that on Sun., May 12, noon-4 p.m., Gibbs Farm at the corner of Larpeur and Cleveland in Falcon Heights will feature "Stories of the Land and the People." This annual storytelling event boasts storytellers from age 8 to 80 telling family remembrances and lively folktales. Also highlighted will be an exhibit of quilts from the museum's textile collection. To celebrate Mother's Day, mothers accompanied by their children of any age are admitted free.

On May 19, demonstrators will show how sheep are sheared and how wool is washed and dyed. The wool will then be carded and spun into yarn. Finished items will be on display. This program is also from noon-4 p.m.

Getting rid of yard waste

Ramsey County's eight yard waste sites are open, free of charge, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 11 a.m.-7 p.m.; Saturdays, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Sundays 11 a.m.-5 p.m. They will be closed on Memorial Day, May 27.

The Midway Compost Site is located on Pierce Butler

Route between Fairview Ave. and Transfer Rd.

In 1990, a new state law banned yard waste—leaves, grass clippings and soft-bodied plants—from being mixed with other trash. It now must be bagged separately for trash pick-up, composted at home, or taken to a county yard waste site.

"Last year, our residents did a terrific job understanding the new law and disposing of their yard waste properly," said Ramsey County Commissioner John Finley, chairperson of the Environmental Services Committee. "Nearly 29,000 tons of yard waste were collected by private trash haulers, making a total of over 36,000 tons of yard waste kept out of landfills and the county's resource recovery plant.

Composted yard waste returns nutrients to the soil, helping grass, trees and other plants to grow in addition to preserving space in landfills and at resource recovery facilities for waste that can't be handled any other way.

Composted yard waste, for use in gardens, also is available for residents to take home, free of charge.

Brush and other woody materials are not considered yard waste and can be put out with the trash. Homeowners may call their trash hauler for specifics on brush disposal.

For information on lawn care and backyard composting, call the Ramsey County Extension hotline, 777-2777. For information about yard waste, call 633-EASY or The Connection at 922-9000.

St. Paul Chapter. The first $1,000 worth of smoke detectors were donated by United Electrical and Fire-X manufacturers.

St. Paul Fire Marshal Steve Zaccard says, "Operable smoke detectors afford people the greatest chance for escaping a fire—the important thing being operable. Hard-wired smoke detectors, which require virtually no maintenance, are the most reliable smoke detectors available."

For more information, call the St. Paul Fire Dept., 228-6230.

Real Estate

By Peggy Sparr

REALTOR

UNDERSTANDING APPRAISALS

The purpose of the appraisal is to establish value for lending purposes to confirm collateral for the loan. Value is established by comparing subject property to similar houses in the neighborhood that have sold and closed. The best comparables have 1) sold within the last 6 months 2) are within 1 mile radius and are 3) similar in size and style.

Professional appraisers are employed by the mortgage company, FHA, VA or an independent appraisal firm. In arriving at the estimated value, the appraiser considers obvious defects. If they are serious, repairs will be required. The buyer should understand that the appraisal does not serve as a home inspection, or as a warranty to the condition of the home. If work orders are anticipated, the purchase agreement should indicate who is responsible for repairs.

When an appraisal is less than the purchase price, the choices are 1) to request a reconsideration, (agents will supply needed comparables.) 2) Buyer purchases at original price and makes larger down payment or 3) Renegotiate the purchase agreement.

If you have any questions regarding this or other real estate issues, please contact Peggy Sparr at 636-3760! We're here for you!

Special Olympics

The Twin Cities will host the International Special Olympics from July 19-27. Equestrian events will be held at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

To build spectator support for the expected 6,000 athletes from 90 countries, residents from more than 90 Minnesota communities have "adopted" a country. The Midway Area has "adopted" Jamaica and Chinese Taipei and will host approximately 30 athletes from each of these two countries. Tickets to the nine events that the Jamaican and Chinese Taipei athletes will participate in are free and will be distributed by the Midway Kiwanis. To order, call Murry Krug (646-1814) or Herb Elmstrom (644-8281). The Midway Civic & Commerce Association is the publicity contact for Midway/Special Olympics.

Discuss a Minnesota book

The Faith and Fiction Book Club will have its next meeting on Sun., May 19, 7 p.m., to discuss Simon's Night by Minnesota novelist Jon Hassler. A reviewer has written, "Simon Shea, a retired professor of English at a small Minnesota college, has begun to forget things and has negligently set fire to his kitchen. Fearing the onset of decrepitude, he voluntarily commits himself to terminal residence at a private rest home. It's a serious mistake...but upon Simon's error hinges one of the most delightful novels I have read in years, a work of manifold virtues, felicitous, intelligent and very funny...full of anecdote, rich with scenes and characters of tremendous comic vitality."

Newcomers are always welcome to the group, which meets in the upstairs fellowship hall from 7-8:30 p.m.

Community Education news

The next meeting of the St. Anthony/Merriam Park Community Education Advisory Council will be Mon., May 13, 7 p.m., at the St. Anthony Park Elementary School, 2180 Knapp St. If you are interested or concerned about the classes being offered by Area 1 Community Education, your input is welcome and encouraged at this meeting. For more information, call 293-8738.

Summer session registration for Community Education classes will be accepted May 28-June 6. Registration hours are 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Patchwork Theatre announces auditions for Hello, Dolly. Auditions will be held May 20 and 21, 6:30-9 p.m., at Fairview Community Center, half a block west of Fairview and County Road B. Call 482-8861 for more information.

School carnival

The 37th annual St. Anthony Park School Carnival is Fri., May 17, 5-8 p.m. Neighbors will have a good time. Come for supper!

Events include the haunted house, moon walk, bake sale, cake walk, face painting, carnival games, bingo, toy sale and fish pond. There will be drawings for door prizes.

South St. Anthony Rec Center news

Don't forget the upcoming Booster Club meeting on Mon., May 6, at 7 p.m. Neighbors are encouraged to get involved in this group which supports recreation activities at the center.

St. Anthony Park resident, Adele Fadden, was honored on Tues., April 9, at the Division of Parks and Recreation's volunteer appreciation banquet held at the Landmark Center.

Adele has been active at the rec center for the past few years, encouraging support for center activities, working on potlucks and picnics. When the division faced budget cuts, Adele played an important role in keeping the center open. Congratulations and thanks, Adele!

Looking forward to summer? Parents with children ages 4-6 will want to enroll for Bookstart. This is a beginning reading program introducing youngsters to reading and books. The class is free, and meets every Monday through Thursday, 9:30-11 a.m., beginning June 17 and continuing for six weeks. T-Ball and Kickball will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, following Bookstart, from 11 a.m.-noon. Call the recreation center, 298-5770, to register. Hours are 4-9 p.m.

Ice cream social

Don't miss the annual Northern Lights 4-H Club Ice Cream Social and Community Band concert on Fri., May 31, 7-8:30 p.m. at the ParkBank drive-in lot (St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church in case of rain). Bring a lawn chair and enjoy an evening with homemade pies, ice cream and good music.

Falcon Heights and Roseville study cooperation

By Jane Berg

Falcon Heights City Council gave the go-ahead during its last March meeting for a study on cooperation of services between Roseville and Falcon Heights. Currently, Falcon Heights contracts with Roseville for police services. The study, which will be conducted by the consulting firm of DeLoitte and Touche, will look at what services both cities have and how each could benefit from sharing. The city council approved a Metropolitan Council loan to fund the study. The loan is for $38,100 over three years; the loan is split 50-50 by both cities.

Interim city administrator Susan Hoyt says it is too early to speculate about what may be paired. Right now, the study is looking at rising costs in both cities and how taxes can be kept down. The two cities approached each other last spring, before Ramsey County started encouraging cities to look at consolidations. Hoyt says they hope to have the study completed by the end of July. After the recommendations of the consultants are in, the cities will then decide which services will be shared.

First Column

With only two months to go, there's still time to get involved in what will be one of the greatest events the Twin Cities will ever see. That's why I wanted to take this opportunity to talk about the Eighth International Special Olympics for athletes with mental retardation, July 19-27, being held at the University of Minnesota and other surrounding metro facilities.

First Banks is proud to be a silver sponsor of the games which will be the largest 1991 sporting event in the world and the largest international event ever held in Minnesota.

The first International Special Olympics (ISO) games were held in 1968 at Soldier Field in Chicago and co-sponsored by the Kennedy Foundation which founded the ISO. One thousand athletes from 26 states and Canada participated in track and field and swimming events.

Since then, the event has grown by leaps and bounds. This year, the Twin Cities will be host to more than 6,000 athletes from nearly 90 countries, along with 2,000 coaches, 10,000 family members and friends, 50,000 volunteers (many of them from our communities) and as many as 50,000 spectators each day!

The athletes range from ages 8 to 80 and will compete in fifteen different events including aquatics, track and field, basketball, bowling, cycling, equestrian, soccer, gymnastics, powerlifting, roller skating, softball, table tennis, team handball, tennis and volleyball.

First Banks has a long and proud history with the Special Olympics. We've sponsored the Minnesota Special Olympics - one of the state chapters which oversees the local programs, trains the coaches, puts on state competitions and selects athletes for the international games - for the last six years.

Thousands of you who have volunteered for these games know the thrill of seeing these athletes give their personal best. Hundreds of First Bank employees will extend their volunteer efforts to the ISO this year. If you're interested in participating or contributing to the ISO, write to 1991 Games, P.O. Box 199, Minneapolis, MN 55459-1991 or call 337-1991. Tickets to the events are free and available at all Ticketmaster outlets.

Also, you can stop by any First Bank to buy a special, limited edition, ISO pin, available only at participating Minnesota banks. The pins cost $4 and $3.25 of that goes to the ISO.

There are a wide variety of ways to get involved in this exciting event. Join the ISO in "Winning Over the World."

B & B from 3

He has spent long hours researching and reconstructing the history of the house and the surrounding area.

The front of the house faces east, and originally the front yard extended all the way to Hamline Avenue—some 200 feet away. The Hazzards had purchased the 10-acre plot from Lorenzo Hoyt, Hannah's brother, for $1,500 in 1872.

Horse-drawn cutters and carriages were the main mode of transportation at the time the house was built. Electricity was added around the turn of the century and plumbing was added some ten years later.

As a sign of the times, Dorumsgaard has scraps of newspaper dating back to 1876, which he found during renovation. In addition, he has a copy of the original abstract, written elegantly with a quill pen. One entry on the abstract in 1888 shows the Hazzards taking out a $5,000 loan against the house to be paid off in gold coin!

What is Como today was an area known as Rose Township in the late 19th century. Maps of the area during this time show a proposed, yet-to-be added Como Boulevard.

The Hazzards and Hoyts were influential community members in their time. Lorenzo and Hannah's father, Benjamin Hoyt, was a pioneer in the early years of St. Paul. Their cabin built on Eighth and Jackson in 1848 was one of only eighteen. Hoyt was the first Methodist minister in St. Paul, was a founder of Hamline University, and at one time owned nearly half the land in the city.

While some local historians credit Lorenzo Hoyt with selling his land for the Minnesota State Fair, Dorumsgaard has documents that show George Hazzard playing the central role in getting the Ramsey County Board of Commissioners to donate the land—what was then a "poor farm"—for the State Fair site.

The house was owned by several families up until 1950 when Como Presbyterian purchased it to use for prayer meetings. The church used the basement and upstairs for Sunday school classes and as a nursery. The church tried to run a retirement home in the house for several years, but ended up selling the house in 1958.

It was between 1958 and 1986 that the house was converted into a duplex and generally fell into disrepair.

While the Dorumsgaards bought the house in 1986, Ron didn't start any major work until the summer of 1988. At one point during renovation Dorumsgaard considered selling the house. "But I just fell in love with the house and it's in such a beautiful area."

The next projects planned for Como Villa are: restoring the large Victorian cupola to the roof of the house; building a carriage house with double garage; and possibly adding a fireplace. Dorumsgaard already has the vision of a couple winged-back Victorian chairs facing toward the fire, he said.

In addition to running the bed and breakfast, Dorumsgaard and his mother have an antique shop in Antiques Minnesota on University Avenue in St. Paul. He also has a growing handyman business.

Rates for the bed and breakfast are $50-$70 per night. For reservations call 647-0471.

Westgate progress continues

By Phil Holt

The Westgate office complex has been steadily adding companies to its tenant roster and officials plan to have a majority of its space open for business by summer.

Mike Strand, director of communications for the St. Paul Port Authority, said that two companies currently have offices in the complex—a printing company, Impressions, Inc., and Colder Products Company, a manufacturer of quick release valves.

Strand says three companies were lined up in 1990. River-town Trading Corp., a catalog company selling public television and radio merchandise, has agreed to move in. CSM Corp., a real estate development and management company, plans to develop office and showroom space. Opus Corp., which specializes in commercial development, plans to occupy office as well as warehouse and showroom space. Northern Star Company has tentative plans to expand its food processing operation into Westgate.

According to Strand, the office space along University Ave., west of 280, has not received any commitment yet.

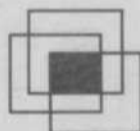

Area business people and community leaders welcome the development of Westgate. Greg Kitchak, property manager of Court International, said that even though his company lost a large tenant (Optional Care Systems) to Westgate he is glad his former tenant decided to stay in the area. "The more good businesses we have in the area, the better the district is going to be."

Chuck McCann of Update Company, a building renovation firm, welcomes Westgate. "Even though it's competition, I like to see it," McCann served on the District 12 Council when Westgate was first proposed. "I think the total package is working out the way we planned," he said.

McCann feels that the economy is largely responsible for the empty space along University Avenue. He thinks the development will come. "You can't force good developers to develop when the whole economy is in a downturn," he said.

Community organizer Roberta Megard welcomes the jobs that will be created by the new businesses. She says it is still uncertain what the impact of additional Westgate traffic will be. "They aren't out there controlling the employee traffic. If they use a shortcut through the neighborhood, we can't control it. We hope they'll encourage their employees to use Hwy. 280," Megard said.

Strand says there are currently 700 people employed in the Westgate complex. He expects well over 1000 employees once the office and light industrial facilities are fully operative.

Humane Society to host Fun Run/Walk

The Humane Society of Ramsey County's 5th annual Fun Run/Walk, a race by human and canine competitors, will be held on Sat., May 4, 10 a.m. at the Como Park Picnic Pavilion (Horton Ave. and Beulah Lane).

The k9-5k, which is expected to draw around 400 people/animal teams, is an important fund-raiser for the Humane Society. The money raised supports the spay/neuter program, shelter operations, educational programs and many other activities.

To enter the race, participants must obtain at least $25 in pledges. Prizes, such as color televisions, cameras and personal stereos will be given to the top pledge-raisers. The top five overall finishers and the top three men and women in every age division will receive awards. All participants will receive a commemorative t-shirt.

This year Pat Billig and Kristine Ensrud, along with their canine running partners (Nina and Ole respectively), will be honorary "Top Dogs." Pat was the overall winner of the event each of the last four years, and Kristine was the top women's finisher three times.

But you don't have to be a runner to enter. Walkers are welcome and encouraged. They follow the same course through Como Park as the runners do. And walkers are not restricted to canine teammates—people have been known to show up with cats, birds and hamsters.

The starting line is quite a sight to see, with both people and animals bedecked in interesting arrays of clothing.

Participants are encouraged to register in advance, but can also register on race day (at the Como Park Pavilion) from 8:30-9:45 a.m. In advance, call the Humane Society at 645-PETS to receive complete information.

People/animal teams will run and walk on May 4 to benefit the Ramsey County Humane Society.

Arts and Crafts Fair coming June 1

On June 1 from 9 a.m. & 4 p.m., the 22nd annual St. Anthony Park Arts & Crafts Fair will salute the rescue of the State Fair Carousel. The carousel is now in Town Square Park continuing its work of pleasing riders and spectators.

For your entertainment, Angelo Rulli is bringing the only authentic air-powered calliope still operating in the metro area. Between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m., the music from its 43 brass whistles and pipes will take you back to the days of old-time fairs and circuses.

Many favorite exhibitors as well as new people from five states have already applied. All items must be made by the exhibitor. Entry fee for a 6' space is $20; a space from 6' to 12' is $40. Applications are available at the library. The deadline for applications is May 15 but may have to be earlier since the committee will not accept more than 100 exhibitors.

The Art Fair is an annual event of the St. Anthony Park Branch Library Association, which uses the money raised for branch library needs. However, some of the money raised last year and from this fair will help the Friends of the St. Paul Public Library pay for the new Bookmobile.
