

Neighborhood residents fight for Gibbs school

By Mary Mergenthal

Falcon Heights students learned the 3 R's at the Gibbs School at the corner of Cleveland and Larpeur... Reaction, Resistance and Restoration. Now, years after they attended the school and years after it closed, they are using those lessons to try to convince the University of Minnesota to reexamine the importance of the school building the University now owns.

Those former students have been reacting for more than a year, first in sorrow that an arsonist could have damaged the interior of their school building last September and second in dismay at the University's apparent intention to raze the building.

From reaction has come action and the neighbors have mobilized to resist University plans that could destroy the last one-room schoolhouse in Ramsey County. The 118-year-old structure has many supporters, including the Hermes sisters who attended the school their forebears helped to build in 1871 on land donated by Heman Gibbs.

A large crowd attended the September 8 meeting at Gibbs Farm across the street from the school. There were young children who wanted to hear the story of the school their parents and grandparents attended, people who attended shortly before the school closed and was sold to the University in 1959, and others like Art Lindig, who graduated from the school in 1919. They shared memories and planned how to effectively resist the University's plans.

The one-room schoolhouse is considered by many to be worthy of being listed on the National Register of Historic Landmarks as a symbol of a vanishing phase in our nation's history. But so far the University has been unwilling to seek such registry. Dreams were verbalized about how the little school could become a museum on its own, a place where people could learn about education in early Minnesota.

They talked about how the building could be restored for about $60,000 and how they could locate donors to cover that cost. They planned how they would try to get their

Burlington Northern Hub unpopular with many

By Kathy Malchow

Affected neighborhoods in St. Paul and Minneapolis are working together to fend off relocation of the Burlington Northern (BN) railroad hub in overlapping sections of their cities. A task force, made up of residents from Prospect Park and St. Anthony Park, will begin meetings in November to study the situation and recommend action.

The "hub" has been located in Newell Park in St. Paul near Pierce Butler Road since 1974. For several years neighbors there have complained about noise from the 24-hour-a-day railroad operation, including the noise and pollution created by the accompanying semi-trucks used to haul loads in and out of the facility. In a railroad hub such as this one, cargo is either transferred from train cars to semis or from the trucks to train car beds. In the process, much clanking and screeching occurs.

In 1987 Burlington Northern wanted to expand the Newell Park hub, but, because of fierce neighborhood objections, has proposed moving the facility to an area it owns west of Westgate Drive at the Minneapolis/St. Paul city limits. Most of the area lies in the Prospect Park neighborhood of Minneapolis, but a small portion is situated between the city line and

Three vie for Lauderdale mayoral position

By Roald Sateren

Like many small cities in Minnesota, Lauderdale is riding on the horns of a dilemma: Given massive cuts in state aid and state-mandated limits on the amount of property tax it can levy, how can Lauderdale continue to provide municipal services as well as maintain and upgrade the city's deteriorating infrastructure?

This dilemma is one of the central concerns confronting the mayoral candidates in Lauderdale this year. Lee Peterson, Paul Villela and Jeffrey Dains, all currently serving on Lauderdale's city council, are ready to accept the challenge, and have filed for the Nov. 5 election.

Paul Villela, 38, has lived in Lauderdale for all but nine months of his life. Married and the father of four children, he is a manager for American Semi Parts and Service. He has been a member of Lauderdale's city council for nine years.

Also a life-long resident of Lauderdale, Lee Peterson has been on Lauderdale's city council for four years, having served as acting mayor for two years. A mortgage analyst for Norwest Banks, the 25-year-old Peterson is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and plans to enroll in Law School next year.

A manager of the Biological Science Library at the University of Minnesota, Jeffrey Dains moved to Lauderdale in 1985 and has served on Lauderdale's council for two years. With a BA in journalism from the University of Kansas, Dains is currently completing his MA in Biological Sciences at the University of Minnesota. The 38-year-old Dains and his wife have two children.

WHY DID YOU DECIDE TO RUN FOR MAYOR OF LAUDERDALE?

Jeffrey Dains: I think we need to promote more opportunities for citizen involvement...I would like to organize volunteer groups to do some things with the parks and skating facilities and redevelop that sense of community...

If we bring back that [sense of community], I think we could get more people to come to public hearings...I think the citizens feel the council has been aloof and that the council has made policy in the past without getting good input from the people in town.

Paul Villela: I've had a lot of people call me and ask me to run... Also, I'd like to turn the city back to the way it's supposed to be...to get the mayor and council to where it should be—as a voting body and decision-making body and not try to run the city as a manager would run the city.

Lee Peterson: I think I've done a pretty good job on the council. I enjoy the work. You have to do something you get meaning from. I like to think I benefit the city. I can see the improvements.

No bingo hall in St. Anthony Park

By Michelle Christianson

Although the ultimate use of the vacant building at 2424 Territorial Rd. in South St. Anthony Park is yet to be determined, it is certain that the building will not be a bingo hall. Tony Andersen, chief executive officer of H.B. Fuller Co., has the signed purchase agreement in hand and definitely does not intend to use the building for bingo.

Andersen has looked at the building with thought of purchasing it for a number of years. "It is a good location in a great area."

"Having grown up that neighborhood, I knew that a bingo hall was not the most desirable use of that property. That's why I moved with such dispatch when it became available."

Credit goes to Paula Maccabee for delaying the St. Paul Council vote so that Andersen could acquire the property.

There is a possibility that the Greater Twin Cities Youth Symphonies will purchase the building from Andersen, who is a member of the board of that organization. That board will soon vote on whether or not to buy the building and how to finance such a purchase. A move to this location would mean that the seven youth orchestras, their support staff and music library would all be housed in one place instead of the five sites they rehearse and work at now.

If the Greater Twin Cities Youth Symphonies does not buy the building, Andersen will use it for "personal uses, not for Fuller."

Town Meeting Nov. 6

The recommendations for zoning changes at Energy Park Drive and Raymond Avenue, explained in the Everett Court article on this page, will be discussed at a Town Meeting on Wed., Nov. 6, 7 p.m., at the South St. Anthony Rec. Center, 890 Cromwell Ave.

The long-range goals for this area, which have been listed by the Small Area Task Force, are:

1. Strengthen and maintain the residential neighborhood centered around Everett Court;
2. Encourage redevelopment of the Inland Supply Co. property on the northeast corner;
3. Support the neighborhood to retain development on the northwest corner;
4. Encourage relocation of the trucking firms on the southwest corner;
5. Implement the plan for a small park on the southwest corner and decorative street lighting in the area;
6. Promote attractive design and landscaping throughout the area.

Zoning changes affecting University/Raymond will also be discussed at the Town Meeting. Questions about the study and recommendations can be directed to Donna Drummond, PED, at 228-3365, or the council office at 292-7884.

Recycling containers coming

Every 1-4 unit household in St. Anthony Park will receive a blue recycling container on Sat., Nov. 23.

Recycling containers will be delivered by volunteers from our neighborhood and Supercycle (our recycling collector). If you are able to help with this project please call 292-7884. We need a large number of volunteers to make this project happen. Volunteers will help with phone calls, set up refreshments and lunch, put fliers into the containers and do the actual delivery of the containers.

On delivery day it will be important for each of us at home to help our neighbors by making sure their container gets up to their front door after it is delivered to the curb.

If you see stray containers on your neighbor's curb, please bring it up to their house. Anyone who does not wish to use a recycling container can call our office after the delivery and we will pick it up from you.

Council Comments

The struggle to sustain Everett Court

By David Liset and Neil Anderson

More than eight years ago, residents of Everett Court started asking for a 40-acre study to look at zoning and land use issues around Raymond Avenue and Energy Park Drive. Everett Court contains the train depot and a number of the original houses built in St. Anthony Park. The St. Anthony Park Company built the depot in 1885 as part of a deal with the railroad to add a train stop so that the company could build a town around the station. The houses were built as model homes (before 1890) to attract people to St. Anthony Park and were largely used as boarding houses until 1900.

St. Anthony Park grocers, the Allen family—whose grocery became Fairway Foods—lived on the street for a number of years and were associated with several of the boarding houses. Also, the railroad yardmaster's house is adjacent to Everett Court on Tainter Avenue.

The request for a 40-acre study came after repeated failed attempts to rezone the residential portion from industrial (I-1) to residential. Neighboring business owners objected to the residents' request to rezone their own residential properties. This condemned Everett Court and the surrounding area to maintain its industrial zoning status.

An example of the detrimental impact, after the failed zoning initiatives, was the erection of a pole barn in the middle of the neighborhood to service a trucking firm. The appearance of the pole barn dismayed the residents. People began wondering if homeowners would take this as a sign to move out and allow the return of the type of careless renters who previously had loud parties all night, and drove motorcycles through the houses, in the back door and out the front. Since that time, the percentage of owner-occupied houses has declined from 78% to 56%.

A strong neighborhood organization evolved to deal with various problems. While the association has been active in enhancing the aesthetic appearance of the street, its influence has not been able to overcome the need for constant watchfulness of adjacent industrial neighbors and the three lots on Everett Court, which are perceived to be a potential threat to investment as homeowners are reluctant to invest too much in their houses.

Initially it was proposed that a 40-acre study be undertaken to evaluate the zoning status and long-term planning for the Raymond/Energy Park area. This was rejected since the area did not meet the minimum size requirements for such a study. A later interpretation of the rules allowed for two geographically distinct areas within a district to be included in the study. As a result, the St. Anthony Park Small Area Plan and 40-Acre Study Task Force examined the land use, zoning, and other developmental concerns for the two major intersections in St. Anthony Park: (a) Raymond and University Avenues and (b) Raymond Avenue and Energy Park Drive.

By supporting spot zoning, the task force committee did not vote according to the majority opinion of the voters on Everett Court. In essence this was a vote against the neighborhood. There is a paradox of continued growth and use of the neighborhood, while encouraging industries to start driving their semi-trucks down the street on which children play. While this vote allows the owners of these three lots to use them as they wish, they are all for sale and would allow for their use as contractor's yards, junk yards, bingo halls, auto body shops, adult bookstores, used car lots, etc. None of these serve to further the image of the neighborhood and the area as a "gateway to St. Anthony Park."

Everett Court residents have worked hard to improve the area. Those involved are from diverse backgrounds, ages and professions: students, professionals, and senior citizens (comprising 33% of the residents). This is a special and distinct neighborhood where residents plan and work together (landscape plans, plantings, neighbor helping neighbor, sharing meals and socializing). If a neighbor improves his/her property, we see it as an improvement for everyone. The project has been getting better, project by project, for over ten years.

The Wellington project will be for families with children, whom we hope to meld into our community. St. Paul has been against the rejuvenation of Everett Court. Finally, after years of private improvement efforts, the city invested in public improvements. Now, with the help of the community council, the city is willing to rezone to RM-2. Probably the city will also include the last three lots in the rezoning if the community council will take the initiative to include them in the rezoning.

While the residents of Everett Court supported adjacent businesses and have lived with them for years, home-owners are unwilling to invest in exterior renovation until this zoning issue has given the needed security. The current use of the three lots is okay with the neighborhood; current owners would be grandfathered in for usage when the zoning is no longer industrial. The suggestion that someone else shouldn't rezone your own property originally happened when the city rezoned Everett Court to I-1 without a public hearing or residential input.

Now the city has seen that the value of this area lies in its residential composition. It should be returned to its original status.

Lauderdale from 1

WHAT ARE THE DUTIES OF THE MAYOR OF LAUDERDALE?

J.D.: To get the councilmembers to work together as a team but still have constructive debate. I think recently the council has been somewhat in a state of disarray because of politics. If I were mayor, I'd like to bring that sense of working as a team by making sure we have goals that we're accomplishing at every meeting and that the meetings are run efficiently and we follow an agenda.

P.V.: There's a little bit more than the councilmen's duties. The mayor is responsible for signing a lot of the things and carrying out the wishes of the council and seeing that those things are properly done... He is also the one to handle emergency situations when we do not have a full body... He is also the one to coordinate the meetings so that they run smoothly.

L.P.: They [the mayor's duties] change over time but right now our biggest concern is to make up for things that have been neglected in the past....

The mayor is basically another councilperson... He has control of the gavel...[and]...has one vote, but no veto authority... He gets more correspondence and is the center of things more often because people tend to direct their inquiries to the mayor.

GIVEN CUTS IN STATE AID, HOW DOES LAUDERDALE FIT INTO THE SCHEME OF THINGS, PARTICULARLY IN RELATION TO ITS LARGER NEIGHBORS, ROSEVILLE AND ST. PAUL?

J.D.: In Lauderdale we need to assess our situation, assess our budget and analyze it in light of other cities, and look at what we can do, perhaps to share services with other cities... The more we consolidate with our neighbors on some of these things, the more it will help us in light of cuts in state aid....

P.V.: Lauderdale's going to survive by operating as a small city... If we try to copy the larger cities, it won't survive. If it's going to try to copy the larger cities, then it would be better off joining the larger cities.

Lee Peterson

L.P.: In my opinion we are being abused by the legislature... Now we're under levy limitations...and costs...have gone up... At the same time they take away our state aid... The first year I think we lost $50,000...and $15,000-$17,000 the next year... I think they took $9,000 from us last year... I said to Senator Marty that if I'm elected mayor, I'd be down at his office a lot, because we need to get some help here....

ARE YOU SATISFIED WITH THE CODES AND ORDINANCES OF LAUDERDALE?

J.D.: Some of our codes and ordinances have been on the books for a long time... Some of these work fine, some of them need modification and some of them are outdated in light of state statutes and that's a real problem....

P.V.: We have some codes that need to be upgraded. Codes have been a real problem as far as some of the council people and their feelings toward them. Some believe that the codes should be literally rammed down people's throats.

Some of these codes, which are very minor things, create hardships for certain people in the city... For example, somebody might not have a proper driveway, and they can't afford to put a driveway in... There's been little compassion for the citizens where there have been hardships for them....

L.P.: No, definitely not. As far as I'm concerned we need a whole new book... In some cases the ordinances aren't even legal. So, as a result of not having adequate ordinances, we can't enforce compliance as far as standards of property maintenance, so we've seen a slow deterioration of housing stock and cleanliness of properties....

WHAT'S YOUR VISION FOR THE FUTURE OF LAUDERDALE?

J.D.: I would like to see a more developed sense of community. I think we can remain independent [from the larger surrounding cities] if we work together... The more public involvement we have and the more the council attempts to get the information out to people... the more success we'll have.

I'd also like to see more done with environmental issues...and I'd like to aid and educate citizens on those issues...

Paul Villela

I think we need a stronger ethics policy in Lauderdale... to build public confidence in clean, open government....

P.V.: Lauderdale is going to survive. Lauderdale will always be Lauderdale. Lauderdale is something I look to protect and see that it does have a tomorrow. I would very much like to see my kids grow up here... To me Lauderdale is a very unique city in the metropolitan area and being this small.

L.P.: Clean up the mess first of all. That's not a small task... It's going to take some public relations to sit down and appeal to the people and say, "Listen, what do you want to do?" We are a community, and we've kind of lost that lately... We need to cultivate that sense of community.

Help local schools

Dear editors,

Last year we challenged our business and residential neighbors to help our local schools by supporting the St. Anthony Park School Association and the Murray School Association. Over $800 was raised to provide extra educational experiences and supplies that weren't in the school budget. This money went to pay for field trips, story tellers, Science Museum programs, parent training, and other educational experiences DIRECTLY AFFECTING OUR KIDS. We hope you will come through again this year with generous investments in our schools.

We pledge $100 each toward the kind of excellent educational programs that the school associations make happen. We invite you to join us in thanking our schools for their fine work on our behalf, teaching our children to be the best they can be. Please send your checks to either of us. Make checks payable to SAP School Assoc. or Murray School Association.

Fall Festival thanks

Dear editors,

On Sat., Oct. 5, people of all ages began to stroll the sidewalks of Carter and Como Avenues in St. Anthony Park for another Fall Festival! Sal set up her food cart, Mama D fried her fritters. Our friends set up the fragrant apple carts and Philippe put out the his wood products. Jane brought pumpkins for decorating and decorated children's faces as well.

There were book prizes from Micawbers for children, steaming cups of coffee and cocoa treats from Sherman's and caramels apples. Muffuletta roasted a pig. The odor in the crisp morning air was elegant.

In the afternoon our friends from Forest Lake came with the hay rack and team to give us rides through the neighborhood.

Meanwhile hail covered our tables and chairs and blew onto our cheeks to remind us winter was coming. The dancers gave us toe-tapping rhythm to enjoy.

The Scottish people camped on the library lawn where they ate a fragrant meal and gave color to our hours along the street.

Hail to Mary Ann Milton, the lady in red, who organized it all!

Preserving the common wealth

Dear editors,

Last year in the Bugle I pointed out that Commonwealth is more than a street name. I quoted Harry Boyte of the Humphrey Institute who said that to our ancestors, commonwealth meant "collaborative action to preserve the 'commons', all those forms of wealth that are shared, from our natural resources to the health and prosperity of our children." The latest controversial issue—the bingo hall—has been resolved to the neighborhood's satisfaction so this is a good time to review that issue of commonwealth again and add another: that of representation by elected officials.

Are public officials elected because they know the wishes of their constituents, or because those constituents trust their judgment?

In the September Bugle the proposed bingo hall was discussed, reporting that "the council voted 10-1 with one abstention to oppose granting a license at the location." Being that one St. Anthony Park Community Council (SAPCC) member who voted "for" the proposal and since the visual vote made public my "deviant" behavior, I would also like to make public my reasons: I am not pro-gambling. I am pro-logic.

The Bugle's editors asked the question in the editorial "Where Will Bingo Go?" about gambling: "Are we willing to address the issues of the appropriateness of gambling in general: lottery, pull tabs, and bingo included?" That is an important question. However, in this case, I believe that the real issue was representation: as elected council members, we are charged with fairly representing our constituencies—all of them—and doing it in such a way that our decisions reflect careful, objective, logical and analytical consideration of the issues.

In order to preserve the common wealth, we must recognize and try to balance the rights and needs of all of our diverse groups. One such group is the commercial and industrial property owners. When a property owner finds a responsible tenant, who complies with the requirements of the law, and is responsive to the concerns of the neighbors, emotions must take a "back seat" to the facts.

With foresight and organizing, the negative energy that neighbors use to fight potential rent/tax/salary-paying tenants might be channeled into a positive energy working to find and attract acceptable tenants, being proactive rather than reactive.

The only neighbor speaking for the bingo hall was the brave manager of the neighborhood pizzeria because the bingo players would bring him badly-needed night business. His clientele is primarily employees working in the area during the day. Do neighbors patronize existing businesses acceptable to them? If they don't, perhaps the next tenant after the pizza place goes out of business will be a sauna or a bingo hall?

Please don't misunderstand:

I was elated that so many neighbors took the initiative to make their feelings on the issue known at the August meeting. But much of the rhetoric sounded like emotional victim behavior: "I am tired of being an experiment, of having to fight off one bad idea after another for our neighborhood." So why not also take the responsibility to find and attract, rather than waiting to complain, and in the meantime punishing landowners who sit with empty buildings?

I hope that the lessons learned from the Faust issue, the heliport and the bingo hall may result in some organized positive community action, not leaving the responsibility to someone else like Bobbi Megard, Paula Maccabee, and the business property owners.

We are for the most part in this neighborhood blessed with responsible and concerned business and rental property owners. To remain a viable neighborhood, let's neither drive them out nor discourage new ones: let's work together to protect the common wealth.

That is the challenge to the neighbors. The challenge to SAPCC is that we need to remember that we represent and are responsible to all of our constituencies. Are we representing them all legally, fairly, objectively, logically, rationally and ethically?

Extension employees receive award

The Minnesota Extension Service of the University of Minnesota has presented Karen Lilley of St. Anthony Park and Lynette Marten of Roseville with its Cultural Diversity Award. Both work on the St. Paul Campus.

They set up a data base on organizations and publications that reach such groups as racial and ethnic minorities, the disabled, elderly, veterans and women's organizations.

Lilley is head of information and technology for extension's Educational Development System. Marten is an associate administrator with that department.

In addition to the mayoral election (see article on p. 1), Lauderdale residents have the opportunity to elect two councilmembers on Tues., Nov. 5. Residents may register to vote on election day if they present identification proving Lauderdale residence. Polls will be open at Lauderdale City Hall, 1891 Walnut St., from 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

Those residents who won't be in town on Nov. 5 can vote by absentee ballot through Mon., Nov. 4. City hall office hours at 12:30-4:30 p.m., Mon.-Fri. City hall will be open these additional hours for absentee voting: Sat., Nov. 2, 1-3 p.m.; Mon., Nov. 4, 5-7 p.m.

Apartheid opponent to speak

Father Michael Lapsley, an outspoken Christian opponent to apartheid, will speak on the Luther Northwestern Theological Seminary campus on Tues., Nov. 5. He is an Anglican priest and chaplain in South Africa's African National Congress.

He will speak at the seminary chapel service (10 a.m.) and the Global Forum seminar (12:30 p.m.). Both events are in the Campus Center, Fulham at Hendon.

Fr. Lapsley is traveling in the United States and Canada in order to explain why South Africa's apartheid system, despite political and legislative changes, still exists for most blacks in the country.

Fr. Lapsley lost both hands and an eye in a 1990 mail bomb explosion. He had just returned to his home in Harare, Zimbabwe, from a speaking tour in Canada. Lapsley had known his name was on the South African government's death list. Even though he is permanently disabled, he feels the attack failed. "They took away my hands and they took away one of my eyes, they did not take away my tongue so I can still speak out for justice and reconciliation."

The next one can be bigger and better if there are sufficient volunteers to create and staff the event. The goal is to celebrate the special diversity of St. Anthony Park by displaying three types of houses: historical (older homes of architectural or historical interest), contemporary (modern architecture that is unique and livable) and old-gone-new (older homes recreated in an imaginative way).

Do you know of houses that fit these categories or would otherwise be appropriate for general viewing? Isn't there a house in St. Anthony Park you have always wanted to see? Would you be willing to volunteer to help out with organizing or on June 7?

If the answer to any of these questions is yes, call 647-9104 and leave a message. If you are volunteering a house, please indicate its address, owners, and why you think it is appropriate for the house tour. The owners of houses nominated will be contacted to see if they are willing to display their house and make it available. The bigger the list of possible houses, the better the tour will be!

Thomas Frost of St. Anthony Park has been appointed by Gov. Arne Carlson to be state public safety commissioner.

He's in charge of an 1,800-employee department that administers drivers' licenses and motor vehicle license plates, the State Patrol, the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, fire safety, liquor regulation and preparing for and responding to disasters. "For the first three weeks I've been meeting with department people and beginning to better understand the functions," he said.

Frost has been a prosecutor for 14 years in the Hennepin County Attorney's Office, where he has been chief of the criminal division since 1989. In that capacity he had worked with the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension and the State Patrol.

LWV open house

The League of Women Voters of the Roseville Area (LWVR) is holding an open house on Sat., Nov. 9, from 9-11 a.m. at Falcon Heights City Hall, 2077 W. Larpenet. Those interested in learning more about LWVR and past members of the league are especially invited to attend.

LWVR is a nonpartisan political organization that encourages the informed and active participation of citizens in government and influences public policy through education and advocacy. Promoters say it gives the individual a way to turn questions and concerns into answers and action.

Curtiss Field dedicated

The City of Falcon Heights dedicated Curtiss Field, a redeveloped park at Idaho and Snelling just east of the State Fairgrounds, on Sat., Oct. 26. Festivities included kids' games, relays and races, a ceremonial dedication and entertainment by the Ducktails.

The 1.4 acre park has been redeveloped at a cost of $165,000. Improvements include a new park warming/picnic shelter, play equipment, fencing and landscaping. The project was partially funded by a $69,500 grant made possible by the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development, Outdoor Recreation Grant Program.

The park is named Curtiss Field after an airport that used to be on the corner of Larpenet and Snelling in the 1920s and '30s.

Red Ribbon Campaign

Nov. 8-15 is Minnesota Chemical Health Week. Residents of Falcon Heights will receive red ribbons along with their November city newsletter, as they did last year, and are asked to tie the ribbons on their front doors to symbolize the fight against drugs. This project is sponsored by the Mayors' Commission Against Drugs.

City wins budget award

A representative of the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA) presented the City of Falcon Heights with a Distinguished Budget Award at the city's regular council meeting September 25.

Jan Weissner, former Falcon Heights Administrator and Tom Kelly, the city's accountant, received the award for their work on the 1991 budget document.

Falcon Heights is only the 17th governmental unit in Minnesota to obtain this recognition. Over 500 governmental entities have received the award since 1984.

The budget document was reviewed by a panel of independent budget experts. It was evaluated for its effectiveness as a policy document, a financial plan, an operations guide and a communications device.

Weissner said she was proud to receive the prestigious award and considered the process a good exercise. "We had to look at policies—it really forced us to look at things in a different way."

Election brief

Falcon Heights residents may cast their vote at City Hall, 2077 W. Larpenetour, on Tuesday, Nov. 5 from 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

Tom Baldwin is unopposed for mayor; four candidates for city council will be on the ballot: David Black, Jan Gibson-Talbot, Carol Huso and Sam Jacobs. There are two positions on the council to be filled.

NSP gas regulators have been installed recently at the north end of Langford Park, on the elementary school playground.

Solving the NSP mystery at Langford Park

By Kathy Malchow

Neighbors surrounding Langford Park have been concerned about two sets of unsightly green pipes recently installed on the Knapp St. side of the park. Another set has appeared on the grounds of the water works building on Raymond Ave. near Scudder Street.

The structures are gas regulators installed by Northern States Power Co. (NSP) to maintain adequate pressure in the system. NSP design supervisor Mike Clemens says they are "temporary installations" that will be removed when main feeds are replaced. He did not know when this would occur.

Neighbors have raised concerns about whether these pipes in Lanford Park, with all their levers and handles, will be prime targets for the curiosity of St. Anthony Park Elementary schoolchildren who regularly use the area as their playground.

Clemens insists that the regulators are tamper-proof. He says NSP has installed these types of regulators in other playground areas with no subsequent problems.

The St. Anthony Park Community Council discussed neighbors' concerns at its October meeting, including concerns about the constant "escaping steam" noise. Some neighbors have suggested that NSP fence in or enclose the pipes to minimize their noise and visibility to both the neighbors and the school-children.

The community council decided to study the issue further before making any recommendations.

The sense of the discussion was that these regulators, although ugly and noisy, are tolerable because they are necessary for maintaining safe natural gas service.

Since the council meeting, Clemens says an NSP designer is working with Public Works and Parks & Recreation to come up with a fence design. "We want to design a fence that's acceptable to the neighbors," he said. "We've never put in a fence around any of the other regulators, but if the neighbors want a fence, we'll put in a fence."

Qualey writes young adult novel

By Kathy Malchow

"I 'stole' time to write this book," is how Marsha Qualey puts it.

The new St. Anthony Park resident (she and her family moved from Como Park in June) had her first book published earlier this year. She was in the midst of moving and keeping up with the needs of her four young children—a kindergartner, a 1st grader, a 4th grader and a junior high student.

"The first thing people ask when they find out I have four children is 'How did you have time to write a book?' I tell them I stole time when the younger ones were napping."

The book, Everybody's Daughter, is a young adult novel set in northern Minnesota. It's about a young girl who was raised in a commune and how she comes to terms with that unusual upbringing.

Qualey says she did not have personal experience living in a commune, but that the book started as a short story in a writing class on community life.

Her manuscript was rejected by a number of publishers, she says, but was accepted by Houghton Mifflin after she sent them an unsolicited copy.

Even though Qualey says she still is "only hesitantly calling myself a writer," her earlier experiences include working on journalism projects in high school. She hails from Austin, Minn., attended Macalester College and graduated from the University of Minnesota.

A second young adult novel is her current project. She hopes to have it finished in about two years. "This one grew out of a subplot of the current book."

Everybody's Daughter is available at Micawber's bookstore in St. Anthony Park.

Budget cuts threaten St. Paul libraries

By Kristin Copa

Most major library cards accepted.

This may no longer be true for residents of St. Paul if planned city budget cuts go through, and they may be surprised to find that their own long-held cards are no good.

One of the programs that would suffer with the cuts is the city libraries' membership in the state-wide MELSA program. This program allows St. Paul residents to use their library cards to tap the resources of libraries outside the city limits.

Without the reciprocal program, St. Paulites could not use the resources or check out books or movies at other libraries such as the Ramsey County library on Hamline Avenue and County Road B or any Minneapolis libraries.

A Ramsey County librarian said technically the librarians there could not even answer reference questions over the phone for residents of St. Paul. "I think this will leave St. Paul very isolated," she said.

Without the membership in the blanket MELSA group, residents of other cities likewise could not use St. Paul libraries.

City Council Member Paula Maccabee said the city council is looking to state legislators Alice Hausman and John Marty to push for an exception to the state law governing membership.

According to the law, any government unit—state, county or city—that cuts library funding makes their libraries ineligible for MELSA membership.

This rule is in place to prevent other libraries and library systems from suffering or picking up the slack if one library system is cut, state Director of Library Development and Services Bill Asp said.

He said that non-member library users would have to pay a fee of about $45 a year per library to use other libraries.

"This is punishing city libraries for state funding cuts," Maccabee said. She asked that the state "share a sense of fairness."

The council members look to lower the number of supervisors and managers in the library system to keep from cutting Saturday hours at the downtown library and Monday hours at branch locations, Maccabee said.

She said the library budget will need to be cut in excess of $600,000, and it would not be possible to restore all of the cuts.

Director of the St. Paul Library Jerry Steenberg said the libraries are just responding to tough economic problems in the city.

The city will vote on the budget in early December, he said, and then decisions would have to be made.

"We haven't singled out a single program," he said. "We will still do children's activities, provide reference and buy books."

He said most of the budget cuts would be felt in the workplace as the library cuts some part-time and full-time positions and reduces hours.

"TEMPORARY BUYDOWNS"

I. WHAT IS A TEMPORARY BUY-DOWN?

A temporary buydown allows a borrower to have lower payments in the early years of the loan and still have the security of a fixed rate mortgage. This is accomplished by setting aside in an escrow account the differences between the payment at the note rate and the payment at the lower, bought down rate. A 2-1 buydown is the most common type of buydown: the payment is 2% below the note rate for the first year, 1% below the note rate the second year and at the note rate for years 3-30. Other combinations are allowed for the buydown and typically the buydown period is 1-3 years.

ify a borrower for a higher mortgage amount and home than they would qualify for on a straight fixed rate.

B. To lower the first years' payments: Although a borrower may not need a buydown to qualify for the mortgage they are applying for, they may choose a temporary buydown to give them a lower payment during the first years of the loan. This is a good option if you know your income will be increasing over the next few years.

The costs of a temporary buydown are made up of the discount points required for the buydown and the buydown funds (the amount paid into the escrow account).

II. WHY SHOULD A TEMPORARY BUYDOWN BE USED?

St. Anthony Park Library users would also feel the pinch of cuts in the city budget.

Librarian Marti Lybeck said they could expect the biggest changes to be in hours. The branch may have to go to a Tuesday through Saturday schedule. It is currently open Mondays from 12:30-9:00 p.m.

Fewer story hours for children may also be a result as the library is forced to lose back-up staff.

She said the 74-year-old branch has weathered budget crunches before. The latest one came in the early '80s when hours were cut and only recently restored.

The University plans to have the old Gibbs school provide a "gateway" to its St. Paul campus "providing linkages from the past to the future...[with a] picket fence to imply a sense of security." The use of field grass maintained to a longer, more natural growth is planned to give a sense of "prairie."

SOCIAL SERVICES

The Social Services Department is an important service in every nursing home. Perhaps the greatest service extended by the Social Service Worker is to help each new resident in their often painful transition to Nursing Home life. Working with the new resident and their family during and beyond the adjustment period helps assure a personalized, concerned, compassionate atmosphere which we daily strive to obtain.

Many people do come to our home for rehabilitative therapy. The Social Service Department assists in their short term adjustment and works with the resident, family and community services to help them return to their own home, utilizing any necessary community resources.

message through to University leaders who need to relay their concerns to the University Board of Regents.

On September 24, the same former students and other concerned neighbors and friends met with University officials at the Falcon Heights City Hall. They repeated their concerns, voiced their frustration and listened in amazement to the University's current plans.

Those plans DO include saving the building but they do NOT include any use of the building whatsoever. What is included is money for bushes to mark the University greenhouse (hardly a concern of the school group) and for a lighted sign announcing the name of the University (a major concern to the University folks).

The plans, as presented at the September meeting, call for the University to spend $12-$15,000 for a lighted sign at the corner of Larpenteur and Cleveland and $15,000 for a shelter belt along Larpenteur between the 1666 Coffman residence and the school. As for the school itself, Clint Hewitt, associate vice-president, Office of Physical Planning, tried to convince the people that the school would be treated in such as way as to look like a country school.

"We'd plant field grass to recapture the idea of prairie grass, leave the school in an open area with perhaps a picket fence around it. There would be a sign on the fence identifying the building itself.

"This concept," he stressed, "does not involve use. It views the school as a monument."

The cost of this part of the package? Another $12-$15,000 which would include painting the outside of the school and minor repairs to the building but would definitely not include any restoration of the inside of the building and certainly not enough repair to allow any sort of use.

Though the University would fund its sign, he said, help would be needed for the costs involved with the school itself. He stressed that the only interior work to be done would be that which would preserve the "structural integrity" of the building. Hewitt and Robert Erickson, University vice-president for finance, turned deaf ears to Tamara Truer's desire to preserve the "historic integrity of the building."

Truer (manager of Gibbs Farm Museum) and members of the committee trying to save the school have collected documentation and oral history of the school. Those attending the meeting gave unanimous encouragement to the committee to continue to push for interior preservation of the building, with a goal to later access. The building currently is full of creosote-covered refuse.

After the meeting, Truer said, "It felt like an unequivocal sort of thing. There is a general lack of trust in the University. We want guarantees that they will do at least what they say. But fixing up the outside isn't enough for us. We want promise of some access into the building. We understand budget crunches but we, too, will be limited if we can contribute only cash to the project. It will take much longer to achieve our goal if we are not allowed to contribute materials and sweat equity and are allowed only to raise money."

School News

St. Anthony Park Elementary

Now that school has been in full swing for two months, it's time for the teachers to share their thoughts about the students' progress with their parents. That's right, school conferences are coming up Nov. 12 and 13. So parents are reminded that they need to schedule appointments if they haven't already done so. And also there are some days that school will not be in session. These are November 8 and 13 for all grades; November 12 for kindergarten only.

While parents are at conferences they can once again participate in the Donate-a-Book project sponsored by SAPSA. This popular program encourages children to read by looking for their names in the books their parents have purchased and it also increases the number of great books the library can offer.

Remember the Thanksgiving holiday is coming up and that means school will not be held Wednesday through Friday, Nov. 27-29.

The last big thing for November is that the student council president, Jennifer Krein and the other student council members Kristen Dorf, vice-president; Katie Schomaker, treasurer; and Joe Keller, secretary, are working on a brand new yearbook. It's the first one for St. Anthony Park and we are all excited to see how it turns out.

Chelsea Heights Elementary

Chelsea Heights Elementary School recently had a school election. The candidates campaigned around the school from Sept. 30-Oct. 4. On Mon., Oct. 7, we had the elections. Fernando Mejia, from Mr. Odell's room, won the office of president. Erin Lee, from Ms. Outcalt's room is now vice-president, and Katie Mansour, from Ms. McGrath's room, claimed secretary.

On Wed., Oct. 16, we had Twins Day at our school.

This is just one of the many special days planned by our student council. During the week of Oct. 21, we opened a school supply store at Chelsea Heights. This store will have school supplies available at reasonable prices.

Sometime at the end of October or early November our school will be getting a new first grade teacher to even out the very high class numbers. The new teacher's name is Mrs. Judi Sierakowski.

Our school wishes the Twins the best of luck in the World Series!

Ben Roosa and Margaret Smack

Central High School

Coming up in November there are many chances for parent involvement at Central. Parent/teacher conferences are the evenings of Nov. 6 & 14. This month's Parent Advisory Council meets on Nov. 13. This is a great way for parents to meet with administration to voice concerns, or just find out what is happening at Central. The council meets the second Wednesday of every month.

Also, mid-semester report cards will be given to students the first week of November. Our food drive begins Nov. 18.

Last year was the first year that Central's International Baccalaureate program was able to produce full diploma candidates; and both received diplomas. I.B. is an internationally-recognized program of advanced study, with curriculum and tests formed in Switzerland. A full diploma candidate has tested in six areas, done 200 hours of community service or activities and written a 4,000 word essay. I.B. students who do not choose to go for the full diploma can opt to only test in certain areas, and they will receive certificates for passing. Overall, 119 tests were given at Central last year, with 15,000 being given worldwide. The Central students had a passing rate of 71%, a good score for the program only being four years old.

Central has recovered from the excitement of Homecoming and returned to its normal hubbub. This year's Student Council organized a fun-filled week from Sept. 30-Oct. 4. Activities included dress-up days, breakfast at Embers, coronation, pep rally, and dance. The only bad moment was when the students lost to the teachers in the tug-of-war match!

Our fall sports teams are ending their seasons, and Central should be proud of them all. Three fall teams were conference champs: boys' soccer and girls' and boys' cross-country running. Unfortunately, the boys' soccer team lost its first regional game. The cross-country teams haven't had any regional meets as of yet. The girls' soccer team had a record of 6-4-1, the third place girls' tennis team had a record of 4-2, the volleyball team was 9-6, the football team was 2-4 and the girls' swim team finished 3-2. Also, many freshmen athletes received their team "initiations" this month. These include teepeeing their houses or making them walk around school in crazy clothes.

Holy Childhood School

Our Holy Childhood Marathon was a success. We passed our goal of $6,000! Thanks to all our sponsors and contributors.

During the first semester of school we have had our fall session of sports. Boys' soccer has ended while girls' volleyball continues. The boys' record was 1 win, 1 tie, and 6 losses.

During the 1991 Minnesota State Fair, James Levins, a 7th grader, won the grand prize for his art project.

The school boys and girls were invited to sing at the School Sisters of Notre Dame Mother House in Mankato on Nov. 3.

In mid-September, Holy Childhood received three exchange students from Guatemala City. They wanted to learn about different cultures during their summer vacation. They are staying with three families until Dec. 7. Dinorah Ravina, grade 5, is staying with Bonnie and Chuck Karver; Fernando Cordova, grade 6, is staying with Jeanne and Joe Goblirsch; Annabella Cordova is staying with Mary and Mick Detviler.

Falcon Heights Elementary School

Mr. Hansen's sixth grade class at Falcon Heights School is very busy with their first grade buddies. On Oct. 22 we went to a farm for a hayride and to pick pumpkins. A few weeks ago, we ate lunch with our pals.

Every day except Wednesday several of us go down to see our buddies in Mrs. Richard's class to help them read and do extra-credit activities.

As we get nearer to Christmas we will eat lunch with them again. We have planned more activities that will be tons of fun.

Como Park Senior High

Thank you, alumni, for the homecoming bonfire, held under the supervision of Pat Richards and Jack Meggitt, and for the volleyball game.

A fundraiser has been started to replace the football ponchos.

On Nov. 2 the chemistry teacher at Como, Pat Richards, will be taking several students to Chemistry Day at the University of Minnesota to display projects. Students from many of the science classes will also be attending this event as spectators.

There is going to be a special meeting at Honeywell with some Como staff members on Nov. 5 to help the St. Paul Program find career paths for high school graduates.

Parent-student-teacher conferences are from 5:30-8:30 p.m. on Wed., Nov. 6, and Thurs., Nov. 14. The athletic potluck for all winter sports is at 6:30 p.m. in the cafeteria on Mon., Nov. 11.

The Parent Advisory Council is very active and has started several new committees such as curriculum, scholarship, volunteer, building and grounds, athletic and public relations. The advisory council will meet on Tues., Nov. 26, at 7 p.m.

The multicultural committee has been active with help from Josie Ahartz and Gloria Ray.

November 27 is a half-day of school because of compensation time for teacher conferences. Students will leave school at 10:45 p.m.

Murray Junior High School

On Nov. 19-22, Murray students who were randomly chosen from those signed up will be spending a fun-filled week at Wolf Ridge Environmental Learning Center, or E.L.C., in Finland, Minn. Up there, students can go on nature hikes, cross a rope course or climb a rock wall. They can also take classes on beavers; ecology; Ojibwe heritage; Voyageur life; Native American, Asian, African American and European cultures and many other fun, educational experiences.

The Murray Math Team has had only a few math competitions and has done very well in all of them.

The girls' soccer team has won all of its games so far. They are looking for the championship medal at the end of October.

The boys' soccer team has won a few of its games but has played some pretty hard teams. Their season ends at the end of October also.

Peer mediation, a new program at Murray, is doing just as well as hoped. Students can go into a sound-off room with a student mediator and talk out their problems.

Red Ribbon Week is coming up. This is when students hang or wear red ribbons to demonstrate their support of a drug-free world. On Nov. 21 a senior citizen Thanksgiving luncheon will be held. The school band is playing for the first time at the luncheon. On Nov. 28 and 29, students take a break for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Conferences are being held on Nov. 7, 5:30-8:30 p.m., by appointment only, and on Nov. 13, 5:30-8:30 p.m. for unscheduled conferences.

Afternoon of reading and music sure to entertain

By Julie Hessler

Imagine: an afternoon of music and poetry about boxelder bugs, lovers, a gall-bladder operation, sports, turtles, tortoises—and songs from China?

On Sun., Nov. 17, Music in the Park Series presents cellist Laura Sewell, harpsichordist Peter Hendrickson and writer/composer Bill Holm performing works by Rorem, Marais, Satie, Heitzeg and Holm's own Boxelder Bug Variations for harpsichord and narrator.

The Gall-bladder Operation by Marin Marais is "told both textually and musically," says Hendrickson, with Holm reading the hilarious saga of an early gall-bladder operation as Sewell's cello illustrates the various emotions of the reluctant patient.

Holm will read selected poems by Whitman and others. Also featured will be percussionist

Robert Adney and oboist Merilee Klemp.

The final piece originated from Holm's moving essay "Red River Valley" about a young Chinese woman, Wang Xiao, singing on the banks of the Heavenly Water River. The concert will feature soprano Xiao, currently a student at St. Cloud State University, singing Chinese songs. Holm will read several selections from Coming Home Crazy.

"I think kids and adults will enjoy this concert," says Sewell. "Bill's a wonderful reader. He does it in a way that you absolutely catch every word—he has a booming voice."

So bring your wits and imaginations and come hear the bugs.

The Nov. 17 concert begins at 4 p.m. at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2129 Commonwealth Ave., St. Paul.

For further information, call 644-4234

Advance ticket purchase is recommended. They may be purchased for $9 at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506). Tickets are $10 at the door; $5 student rush. Season tickets for the five remaining Music in the Park Series concerts are available for $40.

Poets and Scientists Find Boxelder Bugs Useful For Both Metaphor and Experiment

By Bill Holm

Crush a boxelder bug. After the little snap a tiny liquid drop the color of honey comes out on your thumb. The boxelder bug does not hear this sound. The red racing stripes on his black back, like decorated running shoes, finally don't run anywhere, anymore. You, on the other hand, have done what your life prepared you for: kill something useless and innocent, and try to find some beauty in it.

The November 17 Music in the Park concert will feature Peter Hendrickson on the harpsichord; Bill Holm, author and composer; and Laura Sewell playing cello. Both Hendrickson and Holm grew up in southwestern Minnesota. Hendrickson and Sewell now live in St. Anthony Park with their daughter Jackie.

St. Cecilia's welcomes new priest

By Amy Causton

If you are a churchgoer, you may well have sung songs written by a new St. Anthony Park resident. He's Father Michael Joncas, who became the parish priest at St. Cecilia's Church in late August. A well-known Joncas singer/songwriter, Joncas is also a professor in the theology department at the College of St. Thomas.

Father Joncas, a self-described "child of the '60s," became a priest 11 years ago for three main reasons. First, he says, "social service was really in the air" when he was growing up amid the turbulence of the '60s; second, his experience with religion was very positive; and last, he says, "God called me to it."

Joncas's musical interest goes back even further. He began composing classical music in his early high school years, winning the Minnesota Young Composers contest more than once. Inspired by the folk music movement of the sixties, he merged folk and classical elements to create his religious songs. Among his best-known songs are "On Eagles' Wings," "I Have Loved You" and "Come to Me."

For Joncas, music is an integral part of the worship service. "For one thing, it's a way to unify the congregation through the blending of multiple voices," he says. "Also, it's a chance to internalize [scriptural] texts" by associating them with melodies.

Perhaps it was meant to be that Joncas would come to St. Cecilia's, a parish named for the patron saint of music.

Joncas grew up in Northeast Minneapolis and is enjoying the adjustment to his new neighborhood. He describes his church as being like "a little country parish dropped down in the middle of St. Paul," and enjoys the diversity of his South St. Anthony Park parish as a change of pace from the "rarefied atmosphere" of the academic world.

"Academia tends to attract a relatively small slice of life," he says. "Here, you see from womb to tomb."

Father Michael Joncas is well-known as a composer in churches of all denominations. He's also the new parish priest at St. Cecilia's Catholic Church in South St. Anthony Park.

Writing lets Duggan's imagination really fly

By Kristin Copa

What happens to a down-on-her-luck cat who comes upon a magic cape?

You'll have to ask local author Alice Duggan, because her cats aren't talking—at least not yet.

Duggan will be at the St. Anthony Park Library Sat., Nov. 16 at 1 p.m. to tell about the feline heroine of her new book, Violet's Finest Hour.

The book tells a fantasy story about a cat, who is really a little girl, who finds a magical cape and learns how to fly.

The story takes place in southern Ohio, in a town not unlike the one in which Duggan grew up. She said she even borrowed local names for some of the characters.

For Duggan, a longtime St. Anthony Park resident, it is actually a rather old story. The first draft of the book was bought in the fall of 1989 and she has been working with the editors at Lothrop, Lee and Sheppard since then to bring the book to print.

Although she spends most of her day working with nursery school children, her book is actually a short novel aimed at children from the ages of 7 to 10, or younger, Duggan notes, if someone will read to them.

Picking out children's books for her students and reading them aloud is what first drew her to writing.

"It's not too far to jump from loving children's books and loving to read them out loud to wanting to make one," she said.

The author polished her craft in classes at the Loft in Minneapolis. At first, she said she felt on shaky ground.

"I can remember being just amazed at what other people in class were doing and how they would see their stories begin, progress and end," she said.

Duggan said she started by writing only sketches of ideas from fantasy plays she saw her students come up with or scenarios she and her husband concocted about the family's cats.

Alice Duggan

Her second class was led by Susan Pearson, who later acted as one of the editors of Duggan's book. At this stage, Duggan concentrated on picture books about things like dinosaurs coming to life and wolf packs behind the clothes dryer, some of which she still hopes to publish.

"After I got started doing picture books, I liked doing it," she said. "It made me feel excited and peaceful."

Fellow writers in critique groups helped her try out ideas and prepared her for the long editorial process after she sold her story.

Even though she has had to turn out many rewrites of the book, she said the feeling of the book hasn't changed though the editors comments weren't always expected.

She said at one point one of the editors told her that Violet, the cat, couldn't just pick up the magical cape and fly, she needed to have a device to control it. Duggan said the idea took some getting used to, but she found something she was happy with.

Although art was her major in college, Duggan's book is illustrated by a French artist, which is fine with her. "I'm too rusty," she laughed.

The Violet the illustrator created was cuter than Duggan had originally envisioned, she said, but the character as drawn has taken over her visual imagination.

Seeing her name in lights was not what this author was after.

"It's the whole package," she said, "that the story is available to read, more than my name on the cover."

Her publishers have asked Duggan to write a sequel to Finest Hour. Her first attempt was rejected, but she's not discouraged.

To frustrated or untried authors she said that when writing, it is important to allow oneself to have fun.

"Dinner is something that has to be done on time and has to be edible," she explained. "Writing should be treated as your pleasure."

Multicultural concert planned for families

By Anne Turek

The New International Trio headlines the first concert in the 1991-92 Music in the Park Series Family Concerts. Two concerts will be given at the St. Anthony Park Library on Fri., Nov. 22, one at 6:15 p.m. and another at 7:30.

The Twin Cities-based group blends familiar instruments such as the harpsichord, recorder, clarinet, bass and pipes with traditional Cambodian folk instruments such as the khim (hammered dulcimer) tro u, tro au, tro chhe (two-stringed fiddles), drum banjo and foot chime. This combination of instruments contributes to the eclectic mixture of folk, jazz, Cambodian, and early music the trio plays.

Tickets are $5 adult, $3 students at the door, and $4 adult, $2 student in advance. Call 644-4234 for information.

Birds and Feeding Preference

A National Wildlife Federation study has found that the most popular food of seed eating birds is the Black Sunflower. White Millet is popular among sparrows and juncos. Safflower seed is only eaten by cardinals, but they actually prefer Black Sunflower almost four to one. Niger Thistle seed is highly attractive to goldfinches and Pine siskins. The other seeds found in mixes rate considerably below the above-mentioned seeds and are included for visual attractiveness and economy.

At Park Hardware, we offer seed in bags or in bulk, by the pound or pounds. You can offer specialty seeds in different feeders or create your own mix.

Stop in and look over our selection and study our copy of the Wild Bird Feeding Preferences Pamphlet.

Hub from 1

Highway 280 in South St. Anthony Park.

If the hub were to move to this location, it would be a much larger operation than what now exists in Newell Park. It would be upgraded to a "state-of-the-art" facility with maximum sound barriers and the latest in equipment—which should mean less noise for neighbors, according to Burlington Northern.

No homes on the Minneapolis side are closer than one-fourth mile to the proposed hub. In St. Anthony Park, however, some houses are within 800 feet. They are separated from the area by Hwy. 280; thus noise from the hub is not the main concern.

Truck traffic is.

Semi-trailer trucks entering the hub site would use the Territorial Road exit from Hwy. 280, travel west on Territorial to Westgate Drive, turn right on Westgate to get to the hub.

Neighbors have brought their concerns to the St. Anthony Park Community Council about the undesirability and inappropriateness of semi-trailer truck traffic, noise and pollution near the South St. Anthony Recreation Center. In response to neighborhood petitions, council members are working with both the city of Minneapolis and the city of St. Paul in the initial planning stages to try to prevent the hub's move to the area.

...noise from the hub is not the main concern.

Truck traffic is.

Ellen Watters and Lis Christenson, members of the St. Anthony Park Community Council, and David Liset, an ad-hoc member, have been appointed to a task force that includes members of the Prospect Park neighborhood. This task force was formed by Minneapolis City Council member Joan Campbell, who represents Prospect Park. The group will meet for the first time in November.

Campbell has also asked her city to conduct an environmental impact study of the proposed hub area. These results are not expected until sometime in 1992. No environmental impact statement has been prepared by the city of St. Paul.

Meanwhile, the St. Anthony Park Community Council made a recommendation to the St. Paul Planning Commission in response to a study on the current hub carried out by the Department of Planning and Economic Development. The "Intermodal Freight Yard Forty Acre Study," completed earlier this year at the request of Councilmember Paula Maccabee, recommends that hub facilities be located in I-2 (heavy industry) zones and only with a special condition permit. The present hub facility is located in an I-1 (light industry) zone in Newell Park. But changing zoning requirements would not affect current operations; it would mean that the hub could not expand at its present location.

The area in question in St. Paul near Westgate Drive is also zoned I-1 (light industry). If the planning commission accepts the recommendations contained in the study, the hub could not relocate to an I-1 zone.

The St. Anthony Park Community Council has gone on record supporting the study. "All of our I-1s would be protected from this type of facility," says community organizer Bobbi Megard. In addition, the community council, in a letter to the Planning Commission, requests the added requirement "that the freight yard have direct access to a major arterial street and that all truck traffic using the freight yard be required to use such street."

Megard and other council members planned to attend a public hearing on Oct. 25 (as the Bugle was going to press) to urge the planning commission to accept the freight yard study with the additional details recommended by the council. The planning commission is expected to take its vote sometime in November.

Residents may contact members of the St. Anthony Park Community Council, community organizer Bobbi Megard, 292-7884, or councilmember Paula Maccabee, 298-5378, with comments or opinions about the proposed placement of the Burlington Northern hub in and near St. Anthony Park.

St. Paul election info

On Nov. 5, St. Paul voters will select city council and school board members and vote on several amendments. They will decide whether or not to repeal sexual and affectional orientation provisions of the St. Paul Human Rights Ordinance and city charter amendments dealing with the publication and date of effectiveness of council resolutions, the number of councilmembers and whether they should be part- or full-time.

In District 4, Councilmember Paula Maccabee's opponent is Mitchell Lancman. Janice Rettman's opponent in District 5 is James Reiter.

Candidates for the Board of Education are Bill Carlson, Tom Conlon, Greg Filice, John Fuerst, John Krenik, Choua Lee, Al Oertwig and Claudia Swanson.

Polling places in the St. Anthony Park/northwest Como area include: Luther Northwestern Seminary Campus Center, 1490 Fulham; St. Anthony Park Elementary School, 2180 Knapp St.; Holy Childhood Church, 1435 Midway Parkway; Lyngblomsten Health Center, 1298 Pascal St. N.; and Seal Hi-Rise, 825 Seal St.

Prospective voters unsure of their polling place should call 298-5441. Polls are open from 7 a.m.-8 p.m.
