New St. Paul ordinance restricts railroad yard noise

By Winton Pittcoff

On October 6 the St. Paul City Council unanimously adopted an ordinance to protect neighborhood residents from the environmental impacts of railroad yards.

The bill, authored by Councilmember Paula Maccabee, was directed specifically at Burlington Northern Railroad, its main intermodal hub in the Midway neighborhood, and its proposed new hub, most of which will be located within Minneapolis, but part of which will be in St. Anthony Park.

An intermodal hub is a railroad yard where truck trailers are brought in on flatbed train cars, lifted off by crane and driven away by tractor trailer trucks.

The new ordinance allows such hubs to be built only in industrial districts zoned 1-2. The current site is zoned 1-1. The existing hub will be grandfathered in to the ordinance, but will not be allowed to expand or complete any major renovations.

Along with the location restrictions, the new ordinance lists other requirements for the hubs. Operations at the hub must be at least 10 feet from the nearest homes, landscaping must be provided and maintained to mitigate noise, and noise barriers, and access to the hub must be limited to roads designed for use by trucks.

Residents in the Newell Park neighborhood near the hub's current location on Pierce Butler Route have long complained about the noise of the trucks driving to and from the facility and the cranes lifting the trailers on and off of the trains. Maccabee said the distance requirements specified in the new ordinance will reduce these noise problems.

Maccabee also said the proposed site is better located for noise mitigation, because it is not on a hill like the current site. She said that the new site is also larger than the current one and could accommodate newer, quieter cranes.

Chuck McGauley, a planner in the department of Planning and Economic Development for the City of St. Paul, said the noise from the hub itself won't be excessive, and added that most of the noise won't be able to be heard over the sound of traffic on highway 280.

McGaurd added that traffic noise from the trucks will increase, though, particularly for homes near the intersection of highways 280 and Energy Park Drive.

Byron Olsen, a local attorney for Burlington Northern, called the new ordinance "overkill."

"There's no objective evidence that there's sound dissemination even at 500 feet," said Olsen. He said even though the requirements are excessive, Burlington Northern will meet them.

"Burlington Northern wants to make the new hub a state of the art facility," he said.

The proposed site is on land already owned by Burlington Northern, and has been a railroad yard for over 100 years. Olsen said the hub will likely make less noise than the facility's present use.

Olsen said the hub will utilize quieter cranes, and because of its size will require less switching of trains from track to track, reducing noise significantly. He also said the new facility will be paved, adding that the railroad would like to repave the current site in order to reduce truck noise, but is prevented from doing so by the ordinance which forbids any new development at the site.

Olsen said the new site won't be in use until 1995, mainly because of an ongoing process in Minneapolis involving reevaluating zoning ordinances. Some Minneapolis residents have expressed concerns about noise from the proposed hub, and Olsen said Burlington Northern is working with the city and the residents to come up with a plan.

Minneapolis Councilmember Joan Campbell's office said the city is working at St. Paul's new ordinance, and will take it into consideration when drawing up its new plans.

"I live in St. Anthony Park," said Olsen, "and I wouldn't want this in my backyard if I didn't think it was an efficient and unobtrusive use of the space."

Solutions outlined for coal-related problems near St. Paul Campus

By Corinna Nelson

Commonwealth Terrace residents may soon have fewer coal trucks roaring past their homes, and may not experience as much coal dust as in the past.

Foster Wheeler, the company which now manages the University of Minnesota steam plant adjacent to the housing units just east of the St. Paul Campus, will change coal truck routes, store less coal outdoors and regularly spray the coal to keep the dust down, said University spokeswoman Sue Markham at a St. Anthony Park Community Council meeting on October 7. George Delarca, general manager of the plant, outlined the new truck route and coal storage procedures in the meeting and in a subsequent interview.

Coal trucks will be tarped, and Foster-Wheeler will screen out smaller coal which produces more ash, Delarca said.

The trucks transporting coal from the Minneapolis storage site will take highway 94 to highway 280, go east on Larpenteur, and then south on Gortner, entering the plant gate from Gortner and avoiding Commonwealth, Delarca said.

- The plant will store up to 2,000 tons of coal outdoors, Delarca said. In January, 1992, there were 9,000 tons stored outdoors. Foster-Wheeler will spray the pile with water to keep the dust down. Over the next 25 years, the plant plans to burn 10% coal and 90% natural gas overall.

The problem for residents is that those percentages are averaged. The plant will burn more than 10% coal during the
Former University professors return to grade school

By Vickie Gilmer

Budget cuts, growing classroom sizes, and the need for diminishing pool of resources makes a group of volunteers ready and willing to help teachers implement enrichment programs for students seem like a godsend.

Twelve to 15 senior citizen retirees from the University of Minnesota, many of them former professors, have organized themselves and are starting the Elder Mentor program, which provides students with the opportunity to work one-on-one in areas where they may need remedial help. The program has made its Twin Cities debut at St. Anthony Park Elementary School, the only school in the metro area to offer such a program.

"There’s always been an untapped portion of volunteers in the city. These are people with time on their hands and many times anxious to do so service," principal Tom Fohner said. "For one thing, we lost the Chapter One program last year. It [Chapter One] encompassed getting help for remedial children, children that have remedial needs, and we knew that we were going to have to depend more on volunteer help."

The ElderMentor program is part of a statewide program being sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Education and the Minnesota Board on Aging, and involves the University of Minnesota Retirees Association.

The University’s group includes 155 retirees who work in a variety of volunteer areas. Teacher Charlotte Kelly has been involved with implementing the Elder Mentor program, and is enthusiastic for the opportunity it offers her students. "We decided that actually what we wanted was some enrichment and these people are from the University and have just vast amounts of expertise." Kelly said that "especially for the younger of the younger children it’s really nice to kind of have someone supporting them as they’re learning the process." Kelly said she experimented with the program last year, enlisting two Japanese women to come to the school to talk with the students about Japan and demonstrate paper-folding.

However, there is one roadblock that has nothing to do with education and may prevent the participation of some retirees in the program: access to parking. Due to the lack of parking within an easy proximity to the school, and the difficulty some retirees may have with mobility, both Foster and Kelly are concerned that they cannot offer enough courtesy services to attract the volunteers. "It’s awfully difficult for us to ask them to school and not provide a service of at least being able to drive up to the school and walk in the door instead of walking quite a distance in the snow where there’s no sidewalk," Foster said. He added that other volunteers and parents have complained about coming to the school because of a lack of parking. The school is dependent on volunteers to help the library alone has 25 volunteers.

Kelly and Foster both agree that the main concern is to keep the ElderMentor program. "Last year, in my opinion, another woman came from the program and we were reading a story in the library. She got a chance to read it out loud and talk about it to they were reading. It really increased their comprehension skills better than in a class they would have had one out of 28 chances to respond. With her, they had one out of two chances," Kelly said all school work that is completed with someone from the ElderMentor program is graded along the same guidelines as the rest of the class. "They’re there to supplement and give extra help—it might be during that class that’s operating. And once the assignment is given, they can work with the aide to get that one-to-one help which will help them to catch the concepts," Foster said. "I don’t know of anyone other senior group that is organized as this one, and it may spur on other groups in other schools to look for those kind of opportunities. I mean, there’s millions of retired people who have that potential of doing something for children. Anyone interested in learning more about the ElderMentor program can call the University of Minnesota Retirees Association at 625-4700.

without traffic lights usually has a rating of half that amount.

VanBerkom’s figures show that most accidents occur at intersections and of, all the intersections, the lighted intersections had 93 accidents, Como Avenue and County Road B had 93 accidents. VanBerkom said the 1977 project will include the replacement of the interchanges—or off ramps—to make them safer for people like those on a freeway. The roadbed may also be lowered and moved slightly.

VanBerkom is looking forward to the upcoming meeting to show the community what MnDOT has planned so far. He said community involvement is important because, "the people who live there know more about it [the problems that exist] probably, than we do.”

He said that $12 million has been appropriated for the project so far, and that, in addition to making the road safer by updating it, a full noise study will be done. He reported that the future redesign plan will incorporate the construction being done this past winter to widen the bridges over Kosata and the railway tracks.

About how to solve the problem, both sides agree. "Something should be done because it’s a very old road and the traffic’s going to be there whether we do it or not," VanBerkom said. Larson put it another way, "280 is here to stay; it’s just that we as a community need to be made aware of future plans earlier so we can act on them.”

School funding referendum on November 3 ballot

By Jane McClure

Effectiveness of St. Paul's public schools versus accountability for educational spending are at the heart of a debate to be resolved Nov. 3.

Months of effort by both sides will end that day as the St. Paul School District's second excess levy try in two years goes before the voters. If approved, the referendum will raise an additional $60 million, or $12 million every year, over a five-year period.

Many of those on either side of the excess levy issue agree on one thing: A $12 million per year proposal may be easier for voters to support than the $5 million effort narrowly rejected two years ago.

"I'm optimistic," said School Board Chairperson Becky Montgomery. "But that doesn't mean we can let up on our efforts."

Montgomery and other referendum proponents contend that without the added funds, St. Paul Public Schools will be hard pressed to meet student needs. But opponents say the proposed referendum will raise property taxes too much for too little in return.

"I think it will probably pass," said William Rosenblom, a Highland Park area resident and long-time crusader for Quality Education. "I think the strategy is to be as lowkey as possible. If the school district wins is could be a disaster for us."

If the excess levy referendum is approved, funds are to be used to:
- Limit K-6 class size to no more than 30 students. Reductions are also proposed in the size of junior high and high school sections and in certain electives such as math, science and English.
- Offer more high school science courses, including one a sixth hour course. Currently, about 20 percent of St. Paul public high school students can take a sixth course. The increased offerings would add about 50 percent to a sixth course.
- Total costs of these options, which generally employ more teachers, are at $7 million.
- Increase learning readiness by expanding Early Childhood Family Education programs, the Family Resource Center program and the four-year-old school readiness program. ($2.5 million)
- Offer more teacher training, with training support programs for new teachers who don't have tenure status, and specialized subject content area training to all teachers ($1 million)
- Hire more instructional staff at all levels, including librarians, counselors, English as a Second Language (ESL) teachers and paraprofessionals in such areas as math and science, ($1.5 million) to meet the business community's future employment needs.
- Library and counseling staff have borne the brunt of some budget cuts in recent years. Demand is also increasing for ESL classes, as the city's population of non-English speaking children rises.
- On a per-pupil spending basis, the referendum will add about $390 to the amount allocated for each student. Per-pupil spending in the St. Paul Public Schools is currently at about $4,050, with $3,050 coming from the state and $1,000 from tax levy dollars.
- Getting the referendum on the ballot has taken months of effort, as well as a lot of compromising. Some potential opposition to the proposed excess levy request was vanquished in September, after the St. Paul School Board voted to cut the levy from $16.5 to $12 million. The reduction was made at the behest of the St. Paul Area Chamber of Commerce. Chamber members, who remained neutral on the failed 1990 levy, indicated that they would support the lower amount.
- School district officials also agreed to work with Chamber members in measuring whether district goals are met, selecting an outside consultant to review budgets and fiscal policies, and doing strategic planning for St. Paul Public Schools. In turn, Chamber members have agreed to develop more partnerships with the school district, and assist in training teachers and other staff members. A fundraising effort is also being planned, to offset costs of evaluating the proposed program. That effort will eliminate the need to use excess levy funds to study the results of the excess levy to produce.
- Rosenblom is among those who argue that the School Board "sold out" to the Chamber of Commerce. "I don't know if I want the Chamber of Commerce running this school district," Rosenblom said. "The Chamber's made up of downtown, big business types, many of whom do not even live in the city. I don't want them deciding how much property tax I pay."
- Reducing the excess levy to $12 million means trimming a proposal that had been previously withdrawn from $26 million in school district needs. The push to make further cuts prompted mixed reactions from school board members, ranging from bitterness at business leaders' sentiment to optimism that chamber support would be an important boost.

In discussions earlier this year, Superintendent Carman Gaines and some school board members pointed out that the referendum's goals, and the students themselves, will in turn be better prepared to meet the business community's future employment needs.
- But making the cut from $16.5 to $12 million meant cutting the teacher training budget from $2.1 to $1 million, and spending $1.5 million instead of $2.5 million for library, counseling and education support staff.
- Another effort trimmed in that of school tardiness for four year olds, from $4 million to $2.5 million. This was cut earlier this fall, with the expectation that either state or federal funds may be drawn on to supplement that budget. However, recent word of a $700-plus million state funding shortfall makes the prospect of state dollars a question mark.
- Spared the brunt of the cuts were plans to limit elementary school class size, reduce the size of junior high/middle school core classes, and offer more courses for high school students. About $800,000 was cut from those plans. Montgomery stressed that the referendum efforts will be carefully monitored, if they are approved Nov. 3. Should changes need to be made in certain programs, that will be done.
- Efforts to promote and protect the referendum have been quiet thus far. Proposers and opponents have addressed many of the city's district planning councils, and have also appeared at a smattering of community forums.
- As of mid-October, city residents had received two brochures, one of informational piece from the St. Paul Public School and pre-referendum literature from Vote Yes for Kids. Evening and weekend phone calling by Vote Yes for Kids began in late-September.
- Information also may be essential to the levy referendum's passage this time around. Last spring, a school district commissioned survey indicated that an excess levy referendum stood a good chance of passage. If it can be proven that schools need more funding, survey results indicated a narrow margin of 5 percent support over opposition for an excess levy referendum. However, 61 percent of those questioned said they needed more specific information before taking a stance on the issue.
- No citywide mailings had been sent by anti-referendum groups, nor had any phone campaigns been announced.

Back up your ballots

Though much has changed in our education system, elementary school students today are still being taught some of the same things I remember learning, among them the principle that (as a group) civilians are in such a way that if the people don’t like it they can change it. Students are still taught that every four years the public is given a chance to decide what they want their government to do for them. On the whole, it’s a good concept and works for a lot of people.

Some people in South Central Los Angeles last spring didn’t think it was working all that well, though. Neither did a core on the 170th Ave. and Lake St. in Minneapolis on September 25. Though these are extreme examples of problems with the system, there are indications that the process may have some flaws.

There are other avenues of change as well, though. Residents boosting the city planning department with letters supporting restrictions on a railroad yard, restrictions that were ultimately codified. Neighbors convincing a local institution to limit its expansion so as not to disrupt the scenery. People organizing block clubs to help fight crime. People who decide not to rely solely upon their elected representatives or hired public employees, but rather take upon themselves to bring about the changes they want.

But too many people still think that casting their ballot is the only role they need to play in the system. The rest of the year they’re supergrateful to know how their representa- tives don’t represent them, the government is one big chain of insider deals, the media is nothing more than one-sided big business, and the judicial system is not only blindfolded, but bound and gagged as well. And the more people sit and talk about how much more true they believe it to be.

Residents sought for 280 redesign plans
By Kristin Copá

Community concern over the construction and future design plans for Highway 280 will be the topic of discussion at a meeting Thursday evening, Nov. 19, at the St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church.

Several neighborhood members, including State Representative Alice Haemisch, have already organized a group called "Citizens Concerned For Habitable Neighborhoods." The group drafted a letter of concern and an invitation to the meeting to the Minnesota Department of Transportation, the St. Paul Mayor's office, Burlington Northern representatives, St. Paul officials, the St. Paul City Council and the City of Lauderdale.

Refurbishing the highway and especially the Kastoria bridge is being completed in two stages, the first of which took place last spring on the southbound side, and the second stage to begin this spring for the other side. This construction is being done now in spite of major redesign work scheduled for 1997, since increased traffic on the highway had made the bridge and the roadway unsafe.

Redesign of the highway will mainly affect the stretch north of Larpenteur Avenue, possibly even including Como Avenue. The community is looking for more involvement with the construction of the highway and the 1997 redesign, because the residents felt underinformed about the 1992 construction.

Gaye Larson, a St. Anthony Park resident for whom the steady hum of the highway is a part of life, said the problems of CHN for Habitable Neighborhoods main concerns are for safety and noise control. She said the group is also very concerned about the possibility that the Burlington Northern railway hub may be relocated to the area west of 280.

"The community has long been concerned with noise and risk," Larson said. "It's something you can't help getting used to."

Richard Hessman, a member of the group, for whom the noise is just the beginning of the problems, said the noise is bad enough to drive him out of his home.

"It's a dangerous situation," he said. ":\n
The group would like to see noise barriers and guard rails put up along the stretch of the highway that runs along the west side of St. Anthony Park from the Kastoria Bridge to Lauderdale, she said.

In the group's letter, this area is particularly targeted because the highway is elevated and there is no barrier. The draft of the letter reads: "An automobile or truck that would leave the road, perhaps due to failure of an airbag or a deformed driver, a blown tire resulting in loss of control, or a driver falling asleep at the wheel, would have the potential to end up from running into a home or pedestrian in the adjoining residential area."

The letter also states that children often play on the incline between the highway and Eustis Street, and there is no barrier to keep them from playing too close to the highway or to prevent debris from the highway flowering off and hitting them.

Highway 280 currently serves 38,600 drivers each day, according to Minnesota DOT engineer Earl Vaanbergen. He said that the figure increases all the time, up 1-2% each year. Some safety features have been added through the years, such as wider shoulders and guard rails. However, because the road is old — it was one of the first freeways in the area and was built before the amount of traffic on it — it has had several accidents.

MNDOT calculates a figure of accident rate per million vehicle miles to measure a highway's safety. Hwy. 280's rate is 2.6 accidents; Vaanbergen said a good freeway is 280 redesign to 2

Leisure Center offers activities for seniors

Do you know where you can spend a few enjoyable hours on Wednesdays each week? At the community senior citizens’ group at St. Anthony Park Leisure Center, that meets at the Methodist Church. Some who attend just enjoy visiting, a large group play cards, others attend an art class, while others sew on crafts and projects for Ramsey County Social Services. A dinner is served at noon for $3, followed by a program. New members are always welcome. Call Eldora Rasey, 644-6188, for more information.

“Holiday Lights” Day Nov. 21

Mayor Jim Scheibel will be on hand at noon, Sat., Nov. 21, on the St. Anthony Park Library lawn to light the ceremonial holiday tree, marking the beginning of the holiday season for St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals.

Other events that day include special sales, the MTC Art Bus (sponsored by St. Anthony Park Bank), which will shuttle shoppers throughout the Park, and a silent auction and dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Manci’s restaurant in Baker Court.

Call Bridget Fairy, executive director of the St. Anthony Park Merchants and Professionals Association, 645-2536, with questions.

United Church of Christ annual bazaar

This year’s bazaar on Thurs., Nov. 12 at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2129 Commonwealth Ave., will have a Scandinavian touch. There will be toys, baked goods, Hardanger, Christmas ornaments, pecans, peanut brittle, old fashioned stuffed monkeys, goldfoes (combined quilt and pillow), collectibles, attic treasures, and more for sale from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at a cost of $4 for adults, $1.75 for children.

LNTS sponsors two speakers from South Africa

Two experts on South Africa will speak at Luther Northwestern Theological Seminary on Fri., Nov. 13, 7-9 p.m.

Dr. Wolfram Kistner and Regina Farsiensi will speak on the topic, “Suffering and Hope in South Africa: A Challenge to the Churches.”

Kistner is co-director of the Ecumenical Advice Bureau in Johannesburg and the retired director of the Department of Justice and Reconciliation of the South African Council of Churches. He played a key role in the formation of the Kators Document in 1985, which declared apartheid contrary to the Christian faith. The South African government, however, characterized Kistner as “carelessly planning strategies of resistance to the government.”

Regina Farsiensi has long been an active participant in the movement to end apartheid. She and her husband and three children fled South Africa in 1987 to escape further persecution because of their work. Currently she is a graduate student at San Francisco State University.

A goal of their speaking tour is to examine issues of racism in the United States, as well as South Africa.

The free event will be in Northwestern Hall, 2481 Como Ave. Call 641-3461 or 641-3487.

Barber shop has new owner

St. Anthony Park Barber Stylists will reopen on Tuesday, November 3rd, under new management. The shop has been purchased by Sandy Daust, a hairstylist who has been working at Campus Barbers in Dinkytown.

Steve will continue to host gym activities after school for ages 6-11, from 4:30-5:30 p.m. New games will be explored and old favorites played. Students in grades 6-10 may register at South St. Anthony to participate in the citywide Junior Royalty program. Candidates from recreation centers throughout the city will compete for the titles of King Frost, Queen of the Snowflakes, Prime Minister, Lady-in-Waiting, and Wind Prince and Princesses, to reign during the St. Paul Winter Carnival. The first step is to pick up and return the candidate applications. This is a way for teens to represent the center and meet other teens citywide.

Parent-Child Playgroup continues to meet at South St. Anthony on Wednesday mornings, 10 a.m.-noon. Parents and their toddlers are invited to attend.

District 10 approves revised Lyngblomsten expansion

By Lee Ann Owen

A revised, reduced-size expansion proposal for the Lyngblomsten Health Care Facility received a warm reception from the District 10 Council and a group of 25 residents.

During its October 20 meeting, the council unanimously voted to recommend approval of the plan with the contingency that every reasonable effort be made to construct a berm next to the existing north parking lot of the campus.

District 10 council member, Dennis O’Rourke, referred to the May, 1988, meeting minutes in which Lyngblomsten’s president, Wallace Hauge, had stated a berm and boxes would be added to the north parking lot.

According to Hauge, drainage had been a problem for planting the area. “I don’t see that as a big issue.”

Lyngblomsten’s three-story, 60-unit, 60-resident plan is slated to occupy the site currently housed by the unoccupied senior center. Suggestions heard from concerned neighboring residents were considered in designing the downscaled new building, according to Hauge.

During a presentation to the District 10 Land Use Committee on October 13, Hauge said, “We virtually have gone back to the drawing board. We feel we have a building that fits very well into the residential neighborhood.”

The proposed plan which requires no variances would consist of an L-shaped building on the corner of Midway Parkway and Pascal Street. A total of 36 parking spaces would be provided with 29 below grade and the remaining seven in a lot to be downscaled from its current number of spaces next to the senior center.

The facade has a varied projection of living areas with extensive glasswork and some color brick as seen on Lyngblomsten’s other buildings. “It’s going to relate well to the rest of the campus [and] to the residential neighborhood,” said architect Steve Patrick.

The revised plan stems from a previous proposal for a five-story building that fits very well into the residential neighborhood.”

Financial news from your neighborhood Norwest banker

Strengthen your savings plan

Used to be some folks thought the best savings plan was to bury a few bucks in the backyard. Unfortunately, even the most fertile soil failed to make that money grow.

Today, investors have many sound options to help them make the most of their money. According to Mary Ann Bown, Personal Banking Officer, University-Midway Office, “Everybody needs a savings plan. Whether you have a little or a lot to set aside, there are savings alternatives that are right for you.”

Understanding your financial goals

- Identify what you are saving for. Retirement? Your children’s college education? Or a major purchase, like a home, car or boat?
- Know your timetable. When do you want this money available?
- Determine how much you want to save. Do you plan to add to it in the future?
- Consider your need for liquidity. Do you want access to the money you invest at all times?
- Set your priorities. Do you prefer the safety of FDIC insurance or the potential for long-term growth?

“CDs are popular with those who want guaranteed rates of return, FDIC insurance and flexible terms,” says Bown. “Of course, a substantial interest penalty is required for early withdrawal.”

Another option is money market savings accounts, which provide convenience, liquidity and safety. “They’re ideal for those seeking competitive money market interest now, plus some access to funds through automatic teller machines, by check or with telephone transfers,” Bown adds.

“No matter what your goals are, it’s important to work with someone who is familiar with a wide range of savings options,” says Bown. “What may be appropriate for one person may not necessarily be the best plan for another.”

To find out how Norwest can help you strengthen your savings plan, see your neighborhood Norwest banker today.

To commemorate the feast of St. Francis of Assisi, Holy Childhood School held a special service on Mon., Oct. 5. We assembled on the lawn with parents and pets. What a menagerie! Dogs, cats, birds—even snakes and gerbils—all received a blessing from Father Gordon Doffing.

On Oct. 7 Holy Childhood School had its annual marathon to raise money for extra activities such as field trips, classroom equipment, and special assembly speakers. The lower grades walked to Como Park and the junior high walked around Como Lake. The day was rainy but Holy Childhood students marched on. After the rain, the rainbow, right? We're hoping for the pot-o'-gold at the rainbow's end. Our school goal is $6,000. At noon the Home & School provided a luncheon for all in the school cafeteria.

The eighth grade students and their parents attended high school orientation in the school cafeteria on Wed., Oct. 14. Representatives were present from St. Agnes, St. Bernard, Cretin-Derham Hall, Hill Murray, St. Thomas and Visitation high schools. The schools will also feature an evening open house for prospective students and their parents.

Oct. 19 was the date for our first Young People's Concert. Harpist, Andrea Stern, was the guest artist. The program was both informational and entertaining. Some famous historical figures like King David, Marie Antoinette, Benjamin Franklin and Harpo Marx were harpists too.

Many people have acted in a play, whether it was a small school one or a big Broadway production. However, not very many people have tried to imitate shapes and try to form themselves into a triangle or a square.

That is exactly what students at Falcon Heights Elementary School are doing with their "artist in residence," actress Jessica Zuzelski. She has been teaching the students about changing feelings into shapes and changing shapes into feelings. Jessica has students make themselves into shapes and try to pose as a certain feeling. She also has students do exercises to tone their muscles.

Instead of focusing on just plain acting, Jessica has the students work more on feelings. She also has them try to remember dreams and then silently act them out.

All the students in Falcon Heights School have class with Jessica once a week for six weeks. Students enjoy their time with Jessica and look forward to class.

St. Anthony Park Elementary

St. Anthony Park elementary had its annual student council elections. You must be in sixth grade to run for office. All the students vote on the candidates.

The officers are Dan Flanagan (president), Scott Barrick (vice-president), Dan Moos (secretary), and Tryste Hansen (treasurer). The executive board is Marie Lister (runner-up for president), John Krohn (runner-up for vice-president), Allana McNearney (runner-up for secretary), and Niki Stewart (runner-up for treasurer). The student council also includes representatives from each classroom.

They have a chance to discuss projects and learn about running a meeting. The projects this year include selling school sweatshirts and putting together a yearbook.

The first and second graders went to see a performance of the Shanghai Acrobat and Shanghai Dance Theater at the Ordway Theater on Oct. 14. On that same afternoon we had an all-school assembly with a musical group called The Mannos. A trio that sings Carribean music. Students learned about the variety of music from the Caribbean as well as the variety of instruments. Everyone learned something about geography and history as well.

Second grade teachers set up the glass case by the school office. The authentic Norwegian costumes and the books were lent by the Jon Leiknes family, who are studying in the United States for several years and who live in our neighborhood.

This year we again have school guides for visitors. Fifth and sixth graders are trained to take visitors around and show them class rooms, the library and other facilities and programs.

The band and orchestra are starting their instruction. There are 55 members in the orchestra and 55 members in the band. They take weekly lessons and begin to practice, after the first of the year, for the annual spring concert.

St. Anthony Park School was the only school in the district to receive a perfect score on our fire drill. All the children were out in a minute and half.

Our principal, Mr. Tom Foster, would like to say to the many parents who came to our open house, THANK YOU!

Bert Griffin

Murray Junior High

The first few weeks at Murray Junior High have gone very smoothly.

Thanks to everyone who helped with the garage sale, by giving donations or doing other services. Murray was able to raise over $800 from it.

American Education Week is November 15-20. Parents and others are welcome to come and visit the school that week.

Parent and teacher conferences are Nov. 5 & 6 from 5:30-8:30 p.m. If you would like to come on the 5th, please call for an appointment. If you would like to come on the 11th, no appointment is necessary.

The Stephens/kg Theater club is doing well. The members meet three times a week. Their performance is on Mon., Nov. 16 and they will also hold a senior citizens' luncheon with a performance afterward on Nov. 19.

Every Wednesday after school a number of students meet to be trained in peer mediation. It is going very well.

Chelsea Heights Elementary

This month at Chelsea Heights Elementary, lots of things have been going on. The kindergarten classes went on a hunt for a gingerbread man, and on the way they met all the people who work in our school. Then they each got a bite of the gingerbread man.

The second and third grade went to the Ordway to see the Shanghai Acrobats.

Officer Heider of the D.A.R.E. Program came and talked to the sixth graders to see how much we remembered about the Drug Abuse Resistance Education Program.

Just this year our science teacher, Ms. Tauer, has received some new learning materials. F.O.S.S. kits, F.O.S.S. stands for Full Option Science Schools. With the F.O.S.S. kits, it's more experiments, and more hands-on; and the kids are motivated to keep on learning.

The 20 students in the Cheetah Band are getting ready for a winter concert. There are lots of kids in beginning band this year since we are including the 4th graders. Ms. Pajim is the band director.

Ski lessons at Como Park; instructors needed

The St. Paul Division of Parks and Recreation will offer cross country and downhill ski lessons this winter.

Group cross country lessons are given for beginner or advanced skiers on Saturdays or week nights at Como Ski Center. Cost is $15 for two 1 1/2 hour lessons. Equipment rental is $6. Lessons begin Dec. 5 and run in two-week cycles through Feb. 8. Lessons for groups can also be arranged.

Downhill group lessons are given on Saturdays or Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday evenings. The one-hour downhill lessons begin Jan. 9 and continue for six weeks. Cost is $35 through Dec. 24; $40 after that date. Rental rate for lessons is $20.

For more information or a registration brochure, call 292-7446.

Those interested in being a ski instructor are urged to call Howard Bell at the same number. Instructors earn from $5 to $9.50 per hour based on experience and PSA Certification. If selected, all instructors must attend an orientation on Nov. 2 and Winter Rescue/CPR training taught by Parks & Rec staff, prior to the start of the season.

Como Golf Course also has 7K of groomed trails for cross country skiing and a 2K lighted trail for night skiing open until 11 p.m.

story. 120 unit new institutional looking facility which met strong opposition from a number of surrounding residents concerned over the changing building would make in the neighborhood.

There will be less traffic around the new, smaller building. A combined staff of five to six workers will be required to run the addition. An additional ten people per day are projected to come to the new building as visitors.

"We tried to minimize an increase in traffic, need for parking, velocity of people coming and going. We also think the [new building units] will be easier to market," Haage said.

The building will house a total of five two-bedroom units, three efficiency units and 32 one-bedroom units. The new units are a little bit larger. That will assist us in the market," Haage said.

The senior center portion of the building included in earlier building discussions was eliminated. A senior center outreach program will be conducted in other areas, Haage said. Supportive community involvement was a concern for Haage. "We've had so many negative comments while we were doing this, any positive ones would be appreciated," he said.

Feedback given to Haage by viewers of the plan at both meetings was favorable. At the Northern Clay Center, Weavers' Guild of the Holiday Market. Fiber Fair

The event is billed as a forum for community organizers, neighborhood activists, planners, artists, journalists, educators and elected officials to learn about artists working with communities to address such issues as homelessness, environmental destruction and AIDS.
Patrice Clark Keoich, executive director of Center for Arts Criticism, explains that “this forum is quite frankly not about what specific people artists are, or what magic they might do if your community brings them in and gives them a grant. Instead, ‘Arts for Community Change’ intends to take a close look at artists who have successfully engaged neighborhood communities in their exchange critically the usefulness of art and artists in supporting neighborhood action.”
A portion of the program (9:00-11:30 a.m.) will deal with the role of KFAI Fresh Air Radio, 90.3 FM, and phone-in participation will be welcomed. The event is co-sponsored by KFAI and United Arts.
Call the Center for Arts Criticism, 644-5551, for further information and registration.
A $10 registration fee includes all materials, coffee and donuts.

Literature

The St. Anthony Park Writers’ Workshop will meet Tues., Nov. 10, 7:30 p.m., at 1496 Raymond Ave.

Drama

Georgette Lobb-Plunkett’s “Reader’s Theater” class will present the French play Ces Dames aux Chapeau Verts by Albert Arcemant on Dec. 7, 7 p.m., at the Loring Playhouse, Hennepin and Harrison Avenues in Minneapolis. Free admission. The Loring Café will serve a French dinner that evening at 6 & 8 p.m. For information and reservations for the dinner, call Georgette (a St. Anthony Park resident) at 645-3784. Reservations for the dinner must be made by Nov. 24.

Punchinello Players open its 78th season with the classic comedy Room Service by John Murray and Allen Boretz. The play, one of the great comedy successes of the American theater, will premiere Fri., Nov. 6, at 8 p.m. Performances will also be held Nov. 7, 13, 14, 19, 20, and 21, all at 8 p.m. Room Service deals with the attempts of a nimble-witted Broadway producer to keep himself and his cast well-fed and warm while he scrambles to find a financial backers for his latest production. The play is a frantic collage of mistaken identities, slamming doors, wishful romances, and impulsive dressing and undressing.

Performances will be at North Hall Theatre, located on the St. Paul Campus of the University of Minnesota. Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for students and seniors. Group rates are also available. Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling 624-7438. Punchinello Players started in 1914, making it the oldest theatre in the state still running.

LEAD: A SECRET CULPRIT

Put lead on your list of household hazards. Environmentalists, health care groups, and now FHA, are making this a health concern for the nineties. According to the National Lead Watch (NLW), a company that provides lead education and testing, lead is particularly harmful to pregnant women and children. The housing stock in the inner cities is older, the risk is higher to children who live there. Before 1977 most paint contained lead and plumbing supplies used lead solder and piping. Since 1977 the Federal Government has banned most lead-based paint, but there are still many properties where lead may still be found in the paint, drinking water, soil and dust. As of December 1, 1992 FHA financed properties must have a lead-base paint notification signed by the buyer for homes built prior to 1978.

Homeowners can test for lead themselves or use a professional lab, which might be more accurate. Buyers and sellers can get more information by calling the lead test line at 800-531-6885. If we can be of any help in selling or buying a home, call Carol Weber at 636-2299.

St. Anthony Park Home

Thanksgiving would not be the same without a Turkey dinner with all the fixin's and most importantly the family and friends. Each resident at St. Anthony Park Home will be treating a guest to the BIG Family style Thanksgiving Turkey dinner on Wednesday the 25th. Also... we would like to invite everyone to stop by on the 21st to see the HeartHand Cafe's "Rock-n-Roles." They will be performing in conjunction with the "Holiday Lights" celebration.

winter months due to gas curtailment, Delarche said, and will fire the boilers, using coal, through December 1992 to provide baseline figures for the Environmental Quality Board's review of the plant. Delarche said that the plant will receive an average of five 25-net-ton capacity trucks of coal per day, generating one truckful of ash per each five coal loads.

Those numbers are averages as well. The plant may receive coal trucks only several days per week. Delarche said, receiving more than five truckloads of coal on some days.

If residents have complaints about trucks or coal dust, they can call the chief operating engineer at Foster-Wheeler at 625-3552, or call George Delarche at 379-1885.

The Environmental Quality Board will seek public comment on the plant during a review of its environmental impact. This "scoping" period will include advisory committee meetings and will culminate in a public hearing. The public may voice opinions at any time. Call the EQB Review Program at 296-6283 for further information. You may also request a copy of EQB Monitor, a biweekly notice of public comment periods, public meetings and governmental decisions.
Vida opens Music in Park Family Series

Vida, a new trio of cello, harp and percussion, will give two performances of folk music on Sat., Nov. 21 at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. at St. Anthony Park Library, 2240 Como Ave. The first in a series of family concerts sponsored by Music in the Park, these two performances will help kick off St. Anthony Park's "Holiday Lights" day—a day-long festival to bring the community together to celebrate the coming of winter and decorate the area with holiday lights.

The centerpiece of the program will be a musical illustration and reading by actress Diane Landa of Jan Brett's folk tale, The Mitten. All children are urged to bring some sort of small percussion or noise-making instrument they find around the house, since the audience will be invited to join the performers on several selections.

Vida's cellist, Laura Sewell, and percussionist, Jay Johnson, are St. Anthony Park residents. Both have a wealth of worldwide recording and performing experience.

Sewell is a graduate of the Juillard School of Music and in 1988 was chosen as the Self magazine "Fresh Start" winner, a prize awarded nationally to women of outstanding initiative and spirit. Recently she was featured as solo cellist in the PBS movie, "A Marriage of Georgia O'Keefe and Alfred Stieglitz."

Johnson is pursuing a masters degree in ethnomusicology at the University. He has performed dozens of world premieres at new music festivals throughout the U.S. and Europe. A composer and conductor as well as a percussionist, Johnson has worked with the Children's Theatre Company, Guthrie Theatre, Chanhassen Dinner Theatre and others.

Vida's third member, harpist Sunila Staneslow of St. Paul, is one of the few harpists worldwide to perform professionally on both the concert pedal harp and traditional folk harp. She has performed with major orchestras such as the Israel Philharmonic and as principal harpist of the Jerusalem Symphony. Staneslow tours internationally and has appeared on radio and television in Spain, Israel and the U.S.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children or $4 for adults and $2 for children if purchased in advance. They may be purchased at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5006). For more information, call 644-4234.

Vida performers Laura Sewell, Jay Johnson and Sunila Staneslow will give two performances on Sat., Nov. 21, 9:30 and 10:30 a.m., at the St. Anthony Park Library. Sewell and Johnson are St. Anthony Park residents.

Music in the Park

Music in the Park Series presents violinst Jack Glazer in his Twin Cities concert debut on Fri., Nov. 6, 8 p.m.

The Rosalyn String Quartet will perform Sun., Nov. 22, at 4 p.m. with Minneapolis Orchestra principal clarinetist Burt Hara.

"Dinner in the Park" at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church will follow the Nov. 22 concert. All proceeds benefit community services. Reservations should be made by Nov. 17. Call 645-3058.

Tickets for both concerts, held at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2270 Commonwealth, are $15 at the door, $5 in advance at The Bibelot Shop and Micawber's Bookstore, and $5 student rush. Call 644-4234.

Park, who was DaChess for the sophomore class. Student Council this year has a great turnout. People in Student Council from the neighborhood are Tim Kersey, Wendy Peterson, Todd Nakamish, Nicole Nice-Peterson, Amy Tenison, Amanda Steven, Nandis Muli, Brenna Barrett, Kerstin Beier, Ben Westhoff, Cory Tenison and Vail Smirrleider. These students were voted on by their classmates to be on Student Council. These students will be divided into the following committees: coronation, homecoming dance and coronation balloting.

At Central we have some members of the Optimist Club. The Optimist Club consists of 15 young men and women. These representatives from Central are Jeffrey Rhodes and April Carter. Jeffrey and April will attend a youth appreciation on Nov. 15. A random drawing will take place with the winner receiving a $1,000 scholarship.

Como Park High School

On Oct. 19, several Como Park High School students participated in Youth Vote '93. The students had a chance to run for a citywide student chair position. Pauline Vo and Zoe Bloch were Como's nominees. While there, Como students, as well as those from other schools, had a chance to debate five resolutions and then vote on them. Resolutions were on a variety of topics such as education and health care. The students from all over the city ended up passing four of the five resolutions.

After that was over, students had a chance to hear from representatives of each candidate running for president.

With October almost over and November coming up, Como students and staff are as busy as ever. On Nov. 4 and 12 from 5:30-8:30 p.m. parent/student/teacher conferences will be held. There is no need for an appointment and everyone is welcome and encouraged to come. Nov. 6 is an interivew day for secondary schools and students will only have a half day. Nov. 7 is the writing competency test for 11th and 12th graders.

On Nov. 9, a banquet/potluck will be held for all fall sports. It will be a time to congratulate the fine jobs the Como athletes have done this fall. Nov. 20 is the Sadie Hawkins dance where the girl asks the boy, but don't worry, a date isn't required. This will be held from 7:30-10:30 p.m.

Nov. 21 is the math competency test, again for 11th and 12th graders. Competency tests for 9th graders will be held later in the spring. On Nov. 24 there will be a parent/advisory council meeting at 7 p.m. in the library. The 25th is again a half day for students. On the 26th and 27th there will be no school because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Como yearbooks are on sale now until the 25th. If you are looking for holiday gifts, yearbooks are perfect.

Congratulations to Como's debate team, which earned a first place trophy at the St. Croix Falls Wild River Debate Tournament. Varsity debaters for that meet were Zoe Bloch and Brian Zabel, whose record was 6-0. Watch for Jovan Petkovich and the JV team. We expect to hear more from him in the future.

Como Park's fall sports teams have been doing an excellent job. One team in particular, the boys' soccer team, has taken Como by surprise. They have finished as champions of the St. Paul conference, but their season is not yet over. It looks as though they may have a good chance at making it to State. Niles Deneen, Ben Borre, Dan Jongeward, Josh Jongeward, Adam Seeley, Ahmed Thabet, Tian Tran, Chad Trost, Jeremy Woodward, Kelly Wynn, and Khassu Suk Yung are team members from the Bugle area. They all helped in making the soccer team a success.

Beginning Thurs., Nov. 12, at 7 a.m., there will be coffee hour with the principal for parents and all who wish to come. This will continue to take place the second Thursday of each month.

Obituaries

Lilith Grant
Lilith Kennedy Grant died on October 4, 1992, at the age of 63 years. She was a longtime resident of St. Anthony Park. Grant is survived by her children, Margaret Frenson of Northfield, Alston Grant of Cleveland, Ohio, Elizabeth Grant and Nicholas Grant, both of St. Paul, her mother, Marian Poutsma of St. Petersburg, Florida; and her former husband, Richard Grant of Morris, Minn.

Arthur Helland
Arthur J. Helland, a South St. Anthony Park booster, died on Aug. 4, 1992, at age 83. He was a retired bank executive.

Helland was born and raised in a house on Territorial Road and lived there until 1935. He lived in St. Paul for the past few years, but spent his 45-year career in Minneapolis.

Helland maintained an interest in St. Anthony Park history and wrote several articles for the Bagle in the 1980s, including a feature on the origin of neighborhood street names.

Helland helped organize and was a member of the South St. Anthony Park Booster Club.

He is survived by his wife Louise and two sons, Stephen and Robert, all of St. Paul.

Norbert Hermes
Norbert Leo (Butch) Hermes, a lifelong resident of Falcon Heights, died at age 87 on Oct. 2, 1992. He was the proprietor of N.L. Hermes Flowers and Gifts and a member of the 4th Degree Knights of Columbus. Hermes was born in Rose Township in what is now Falcon Heights. He and three of his brothers went into the greenhouse business, dealing in vegetable plants and, later, flowers.

In 1945 Hermes left the family business and purchased the shop on the northwest corner of Snelling and Larpenteur, where he opened N.L. Hermes Flowers and Gifts. He also developed a shopping center which included a post office. He served on the board of the Falcon Heights Businessmen’s Association and the board of the St. Paul and Minneapolis Greater Floral Assn.

Survivors include his wife, Verna of Falcon Heights; his sons, Rev. Roger of Hampton and Ralph of Monticello; his daughter, Joan Klosterman of Minneapolis; eight grandchildren; twelve great-grandchildren; sisters, Alvina Nord, Bernadine Smith, Melita Rosenthal, Gerritse Ascher, Marion Edson, Mildred Moyer, brothers Walter and Victor; and stepbrother Sister Hubert Marie, C.S.J.

Shirley Holleran
Shirley Ann Holleran died suddenly on May 24, 1992, at age 60. She was a resident of the Como Park area.

Holleran was a member of Holy Childhood Catholic Church. She was survived by her husband, Thomas; her daughters, Kathleen Schroeder, Mary Plancher, Sheila Holleran, and Theresa Holleran, all of St. Paul; her sons, Thomas and Michael, both of Lino Lakes; 13 grandchildren; her mother, Edna Fink of St. Paul; and her sister, Pauline Wilkowski of Minneapolis.

Elise Johnson
Elise J. Johnson, a longtime St. Anthony Park resident, died on September 20, 1992. She was 90. Worked for more than 30 years at Mrs. Strayd’s Bakery on Como Avenue, located where The Ribbet Shop is now. She was a member of St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church.

Survivors include her daughter, Jean L. Larson; grandchildren, David and Keith Larson; five great-grandchildren; sister, Mary Cherv; and a brother, Victor Madsen.

M. W. Knoblauch
M. W. Knoblauch, a longtime commissioner in the Como Park area, died at 95 on October 7, 1992. He had lived in St. Anthony Park for over 50 years.

Bill's THE DAYS OF GOOD GOVERNMENT

Issue: Political Reform
Pat Igo: Term limits are necessary to "take our government back from career politicians." Pat Igo is a successful area businessman and firmly believes in the principal that our politicians should be citizens first.

Joh Wary: Voted against allowing term limits from being placed on the Senate, and even voted against allowing term limits from appearing on the General Ballot.

Pat Igo for Senate State

Smith to receive service award
Lois Ann Smith will receive a Northwest Youth & Family Services' 1992 Outstanding Service to Youth award on Nov. 5. She is one of eight recipients of this annual honor given by the social service agency.

Smith has acted as counselor, dean and assistant principal in the Roseville School District, serving as dean at Parkview Middle School and assistant principal at Fairview. She began her career as a guidance counselor at Macalister College and later at Capitol View Middle School. She has worked many years with youth both in the college and middle school level, teaching groups and personally counseling students and parents. Smith is currently a member of the Ambassador Club of Northwest Youth and Family Services, which promotes the agency and services to the public. She also acts as a mentor for a disabled teenager by providing guidance and support.

The awards will be presented at the organization's annual Community Social at Shoreview Community Center, 4968 North Victoria, at 7 p.m. the evening (5:30-8:30 p.m.) will feature hors d'oeuvres, a raffle and door prizes. The public is invited to attend; tickets are $12 and can be reserved by calling 636-5449. Proceeds support the work of Northwest Youth & Family Services.

Rock and Mineral Club meets
The Minnesota Mineral Club, the state's largest organization for rockhounds, meets monthly from October through May at Falcon Heights Community Center/City Hall, 2705 Larpenteur Ave. Meetings are held the second Saturday of every month, starting with a business meeting at 7:30 p.m., followed by a program and refreshments.

New bus route to link St. Anthony Park & Energy Park
Starting Nov. 7, the Metropolitan Transit Commission (MTC) will move the 4U route to better serve businesses on Energy Park Drive. The route will serve Energy Park west of Stelling Ave.

This expanded bus service is the result of a public-private partnership between MTC and the St. Anthony Park Community Council, with support from the Midway Chamber of Commerce and Director Paula Macabeo.

Energy Park will have 30-minute service from 6:30 a.m.-10 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturdays.

Customers who now catch the 4U on Como Ave can use Route 5 or walk a couple of blocks to catch the 4U. The 4U picks up in Superior and Raymond Avenues.

Council votes to support excess levy referendum for St. Paul Schools
In October the council:
- Sent a letter to the Board of Education supporting the upcoming school levy referendum.
- Began planning and volunteer recruitment for two Neighborhood Violence Forums to be held in February and March next year.
- Approved the concept of a Dart Transit plan to provide some parking for their building at 1047 Raymond Ave., as long as Gateway Park is not negatively impacted.
- Accepted a site plan for a temporary 452-space parking lot on University Ave. to be part of Court International with maximum landscaping along University and Eustis and access from Territorial Road rather than Eustis to be considered.
- Recommended that the Franklin/University Small Area Plan boundary be amended to include the area south of Territorial Road in Westgate to address the parking problems of Court International and adjacent businesses.
- Voted to oppose future development of any drive-through fast food business on the front lots of the Midway Shopping Center.
- Approved a change in non-conforming use permit at 1441 N. Cleveland Ave. to allow use as a coffee shop.

Recycling efforts continue
Recycling in St. Anthony Park is highly successful. Approximately 70% of the households participate in the twice-monthly curbside pickups. The tonnage for July was 40.06 tons; August, 51.11 tons; and September, 42.82 tons. Plastics pickups at 928 Raymond Ave. is proving very popular and the tonnage is showing an increase since the program was begun last summer. September figures for all sites stood at 5.12 tons. The neighborhood cleanup held September 19 collected 15.60 tons of refuse; 24 tons of demolition debris; 48 appliances; 23 TVs and air conditioners; 131 tires; 10 tons of clean fill; 9.86 tons of scrap metal.

Our curbside recycling and sorting at the site diverted 62.68 tons of materials from landfills. The Community Council will again sponsor a Christmas tree pickup in January to recycle tree waste. Watch the NETWORKERS for more details.

SAP Elementary School Parking Lot Task Force update
At a recent meeting of the Elementary School Parking Lot Task Force, it was decided to have more meetings to review additional information regarding the proposed lots. The Town Meeting scheduled for November 11 to discuss recommendations was rescheduled for January 13 at the library.

Two additional meetings of the task force have been set for Mon., Nov. 2 and Mon., Nov. 20, at which time recommendations will be voted on and forwarded to the Community Council for consideration.

Representatives of the schools, parks, public works, teachers and residents have been at work since July addressing concerns about parking, bus loading safety, lighting, sidewalks, handicap access, and drop-off location at the elementary school.

Task Force meetings in November will be held at the South St. Anthony Park Rec. Center at 7 p.m. For more information call the Council office, 292-7884.

Other council meetings in November:
- Thurs., Nov. 5: Physical Planning Committee, 5 p.m.; Human Services Committee, 7 p.m.
- Wed., Nov. 11: Community Council, 7 p.m.
- Wed., Nov. 18: Housing Committee, 5 p.m.; Environment Committee, 7 p.m.

All meetings will be held at South St. Anthony Park Recreation Center, 890 Cromwell Ave.

Council-sponsored meetings are listed each month in the Bugle Community Calendar on page 17. Everyone is welcome!
