

Job Corps signs agreement with Como neighborhood

By Lee Ann Owens

A new memorandum of agreement signed April 21 by the Department of Labor (DOL), City of St. Paul and Hubert H. Humphrey Job Corps Center Neighborhood Advisory Committee (NAC), will serve as a policy for how the Job Corps interacts with the surrounding neighborhood.

The NAC drafted the memorandum with assistance of representatives from the city and DOL, keeping in mind the neighborhood's expectations regarding the Job Corps. "We pretty much found that in most cases our goals and their goals mesh pretty well. I think what happened before was a loss of accountability," said John Filter, NAC President.

Neighbors had voiced concern over how the Job Corps was responding to student disciplinary incidents and charged the Job Corps was retaining some students after they had behavioral problems that were grounds for dismissal.

Job Corps Center Director Greg Redmon said, "No one was responding to their needs. This is what I have done. A lot of work has gone into it."

Construction on TH 280 is the most reliable sign of spring for St. Anthony Park and Lauderdale residents. The Como, Kasota and Territorial Rd. ramps onto and off of Northbound 280 will remain closed until the project is completed around August 14. The University Ave. exit is expected to reopen by early June.

Horticultural Society blooms in Falcon Heights

By Daren Hansen

After spending the past four years fund raising, Diane Emerson is glad to be back in her St. Anthony Park garden.

Thanks to her efforts, a 127-year-old dream has come true for members of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society, a dream that will allow them to help others develop that same love for gardening.

Emerson's fund raising in part enabled the 16,000 member MSHS to purchase the Center for Northern Gardening as its new home, located at 1755 Prior Ave. N. in Falcon Heights. The Center officially opened in early April.

Begun as an apple growers' society in 1866, the Horticultural Society has been educating northern gardeners since 1919 out of donated space at the University of Minnesota.

"It was cramped in a couple of tiny offices with no external lighting," Emerson said. "It's very difficult to run an operation that way."

Emerson, past president of MSHS and honorary chairperson for the building's dedication, said the Society has always dreamed of having a home of its own. With four times as much space as in the old offices, the new Center will benefit both MSHS members and the local community.

"There's a place, and there's an identity. That will help in a number of different ways," she said.

Increased visibility has already paid off for the Society, as more than 1,000 people visited the Center during its opening weekend.

"That's about twice as much as we expected," said Lucy Brusic, MSHS public relations coordinator.

The new building and the Society are focused on helping gardeners raise fruits, vegetables, flowers and plants in northern states.

"Our mission is education within any part of horticulture," Executive Director Dorothy Johnson said. "It's not necessarily classroom teaching, but hands-on, or person to person."

Hands-on learning is what children were exposed to during the opening weekend, when they planted seeds and looked through microscopes. Other activities included mini-classes, tours and a talk about Minnesota's endangered wildflowers.

Since the opening, members and area residents have been streaming in to investigate the new facility, designed by St. Anthony Park resident and MSHS member Gail Weig.

"We have really had a lot of people in during the day," Brusic said. "It's really surprising to us."

Many visitors are interested in the Society's library, she said, a collection of more than 1,000 books and numerous video tapes and slides covering every facet of northern gardening. While only members are allowed to borrow items, non-members are welcome to browse.

Vote in Roseville School Board elections on May 18

Elections for two openings on the Roseville School Board will be held on May 18. The four candidates vying for the seats are Robin Pankonin of Roseville, Jane Spartz of Roseville, Steven True of Roseville and Carolyn Tucker of Shoreview. Pankonin is the only incumbent in the race. Polls will be open on the 18th at the Fairview Community Center from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. for Falcon Heights and Lauderdale residents.

The League of Women Voters of Roseville, Maplewood and Falcon Heights will sponsor a Meet the Candidate forum on May 4 at 7 p.m. in the Roseville Area High School auditorium.

Certificates of Occupancy revoked at two student-rented homes

By Vickie Gilmer

When renting housing, students frequently face problems ranging from lack of housing to broken faucets and leaky roofs to absent and negligent landlords. Recently, student housing at 1465 and 1469 Cleveland Ave. N. went through a tumultuous time, as the city of St. Paul ordered a revocation of their Certificates of Occupancy.

While the conditions at these two rental homes was more the exception than the rule, renters can face relocation if the housing they rent is not up to city code and violations have not been corrected. The city can be tried in court to be held responsible for not upholding codes if there is any damage to buildings or injury or death of individuals due to code violations. In the situation on Cleveland Ave., however, the Fire Prevention and Housing Information departments stepped in to encourage the tenants to put pressure on the owners to correct the violations.

The city inspects all rental buildings with three or more units or rooming houses with five or more renters unrelated to the landlord, every two years. Approval of the inspection results of a renewal of the Certificate of Occupancy, which is required by the city of St. Paul.

"When we go in, the Certificate of Occupancy, the issuance of the certificate or the renewal of that certificate means that that building or that property has to meet all requirements of both the St. Paul housing code, the fire and life safety code, any state statutes, or local ordinances that apply. That would include the state building code," said Pat Fish, an inspector in Fire Prevention.

City records were available for viewing only on the property located at 1469 Cleveland. The records show that this eight-unit building is classified as a dormitory and is owned by the Minnesota Students Coop Inc. The unit has been in code violation since a July 1990 inspection for renewal of certification. Violations of code have run the gamut from a refrigerator stored in the back yard to unsanitary conditions to peeling exterior

Como Pavilion to reopen soon

By Lee Ann Owens

Though not in full bloom yet, the Como Park Pavilion will open at the end of May.

The pavilion, originally built in 1907, has been renovated as part of a master plan for Como Park through funding from the Metropolitan Council Parks and Open Spaces Commission. "The building will cost when it's done roughly $2.1 million," said Duane Stolpe, City of St. Paul Parks and Recreation architect and project manager for the pavilion restoration.

Built in an Italian Renaissance style, the pavilion has large arch openings and a flat Mediterranean roof composed of new Italian-looking tile. The original tile from Italy was replaced with a Wisconsin-made counterpart. "Basically what they did was replicate what was here. We found it more cost-effective to tear down and replicate the original building," said Victor Wittgenstein, City of St. Paul Manager of Special Services.

The exterior columned area of the pavilion facing the lake called the promenade, was completed in 1988. The building itself was not in such bad shape but was settling to the west between three and seven inches, according to Stolpe.

"That whole area was what used to be the base of Lake Como and very bad soil. We decided to build it back up. The promenade was in worse shape so we worked on that first," Stolpe said.

With final touches left to complete in the interior of the building, an official opening ceremony is tentatively planned for the end of June. "We're going to open subtly at first to work out all the glitches and nuances so there's no last-minute scramble," Wittgenstein said.

The first floor will house an upscale fast food restaurant with seating for 85 people. There will be room for overflow on the second floor.

The banquet facilities on the third floor are slated to open during the beginning of September.

With capacity for 175 people, the third floor will be available for banquets along with consignment liquor services on a reservation basis. Liquor is only permitted if an establishment licensed by the City of St. Paul to serve liquor is hired by the renting party.

"It's not the city. The city's not going into the liquor business," City of St. Paul Councilmember Janice Rettman said.

Banquet facility renters need to provide for the security and traffic control during the occasion, according to Rettman.

All three floors are decorated in a similar style with art deco lights, creamy white walls trimmed with seafoam green accents and some areas have teal carpeting.

"It's going to be quite gorgeous," Rettman said.

"This gives us three really nice buildings in the park with the conservatory and the golf house," Wittgenstein said.

The pavilion's positive impression is shared by Stolpe. "It's a nice building. It feels warm, attractive, light and airy with all the windows. We're in anticipation of a big bunch of people this summer as usual," Stolpe said.

Four-way stop signs to be installed on Midway Parkway at Pascal St.

By Lee Ann Owens

The Midway Parkway and Pascal Street intersection will soon have new stop signs. The District 10 Community Council voted on April 21 to approve the 4-way stop on a year-to-year basis.

The District 10 Land Use Committee (LUC) had no official recommendation to the council regarding the stop sign, according to LUC chairman Dale Hall. Following a lengthy discussion at a LUC meeting, a motion to pass the measure made by Larry Bieza failed for lack of a second.

This issue has been discussed before, in 1981, 1985 and 1989. "Every few years we get the same request," William Hagland, City of St. Paul traffic technician said.

"This is an issue that has been pending for a while," Hall acknowledged.

"I've been trying to get a stop sign in here ever since I've lived here," said Curtis Swenson, who lives at the intersection.

Swenson has lived in the neighborhood 2 1/2 years and has petitioned again along with Holy Childhood School for a four-way stop. After a change in policy for the city of St. Paul, any party may make a stop sign request to the traffic division. If the request is considered a good candidate for a stop sign, a petition is completed and the measure goes before the community council for approval. If the stop sign fails on the community level, the City Council may still consider the measure.

According to Hall, studies have shown that stop signs do not reduce overall speeding and police protection has proven more effective.

"There is not an accident problem to fix," said Hagland. "Most collector streets experience three accidents per year so this is below average." Since 1990 the intersection has had six accidents.

Holy Childhood wants traffic to stop so students may cross the street more safely. "We know the speeding will always be there. The speed limit's 30 mph. What we want to do is stop it there at the intersection," Swenson said.

Sister Annabelle Theis said the school has wanted a four-way stop and has initiated several petitions. "It's a long shot from Snelling to Hamline. At least the drivers of the vehicles would have to come to a complete stop so our student patrol could stop them," Theis said.

The school sends adults out to help the student patrol, according to Theis. "You wouldn't dare leave the kids out there alone," Theis said.

Swenson, who has children at Holy Childhood, said "It's an ideal situation for a four-way stop."

Theater helps build self-esteem

By Amy Causton

Something dramatic is happening at Murray Junior High School. Led by Liz Geraghty, a teacher with Stepping Stone Theatre for Youth Development, a group of 22 students is writing and producing a play to be performed May 5 & 6 at the Murray auditorium.

The Murray drama program was eliminated two years ago due to cuts in school funding, but principal Nancy Nielsen saw a need for some kind of drama activity for students. With a Youth Development Grant from a local community education program, she contracted with Stepping Stone to develop student productions. This spring's play is the third the group has done.

Students signed up to participate and began meeting March 23. They started by brainstorming ideas for the story of their play. Deciding that they wanted to explore both the importance of friendship and also class differences, they developed a story loosely based on Romeo and Juliet that deals with a princess who falls in love with a peasant boy.

The students meet two days a week for two-hour rehearsals after school. With only 25 hours of rehearsal before the performances, much work has to be done at each meeting.

Typically, the rehearsals begin with vocal and movement exercises to warm up, after which the students engage in improvisational games to limber up their imaginations. Then they break up into smaller groups to work on individual scenes.

The students decide on plots and dialogue through brainstorming and trial and error. While Geraghty supervises the group, giving help and commentary when needed, the decisions are made within the group. "They really write this whole thing themselves," Geraghty says. "They're a real creative bunch."

Nancy Morton, Director of Education for Stepping Stone, says this process of developing the play demonstrates an important aspect of Stepping Stone's work. "The kids learn how to value each other's ideas and how to work together as a group toward a common goal," she said.

After working on scenes for a while, the groups of students perform them for the whole group and then work on coming up with ideas for further scenes. Through this process, the whole play is created.

Geraghty, who has directed all three Murray/Stepping Stone productions, has been involved in theater for over ten years and with Stepping Stone for two. Originally from New York, she began acting professionally there and also helped start a theater company working with kids. After she relocated to the Twin Cities three years ago, she heard about Stepping Stone from a friend, auditioned and was accepted.

Along with her teaching work, Geraghty has stayed active in the acting profession and is currently involved in the production of Shear Madness at the Ordway. She says she enjoys both acting and teaching and usually divides her time equally between the two, although sometimes her teaching assignments take precedence. "Teaching is very important to me," she says. "I really love working with kids."

Stepping Stone is headquartered in St. Paul and operates throughout the state, though mostly in the Twin Cities. It contracts with working theater professionals, mostly actors, to conduct its programs, which include teaching residencies and play productions in schools, Saturday classes and summer workshops. In addition, Stepping Stone does touring productions and four shows a year at Landmark Center, using local children.

The primary goal of Stepping Stone is "to use theater as a tool to build self-esteem," Morton said. That's what sets us apart from other theater groups."

cerned about safety and are aware of the quality of police service, said Dains.

"People feel like they'd like to see the police more and know they're around," said Dains. The Roseville Police Department has provided police service to Lauderdale for the last two years.

The Council is also considering forming its own police force if the proposals that come in are not satisfactory.

The council will consider bids at its meeting in May.

The Council currently uses about 42 percent of its budget for police services compared to 25 percent for most cities, said City Administrator Kathleen Miller. That adds up to $205,000 per year. Public safety is the main reason for examining the quality of police service, said Mayor Jeff Dains, but the council also wants to get the most out of the public dollar.

"We want to have the best police force we can possibly have," said Dains.

Although Lauderdale has a low crime rate, citizens are con-

Evolutionary justice

The United States judicial system can't promise justice. It can offer a chance at fairness, but the outcome has less to do with justice than it has to do with adherence to existing laws. In a system such as ours, though, can laws be unjust? Reflect on past U.S. laws which have codified segregation based on race, banned alcohol and denied women the right to vote and the answer is clear.

But eventually those laws were changed, determined to be unjust, and so too will some laws which we presently accept as canon follow the same evolutionary path of our system. As long as adherence to or deviation from laws is determined by people reviewing facts, legal decisions will always be subjective and will serve as the basis for ensuring that the legal system keeps pace with the rest of society.

Take, for instance, the way cases are decided. Though in a criminal trial twelve men and women with, at best, an average knowledge of the law are required to reach a unanimous verdict before deciding the fate of the accused, a Supreme Court decision requires only that the nine men and women, who are thought to be the foremost legal scholars in the nation and whose decisions affect every American, rule by a simple majority, frequently only by a one vote margin.

The 14th amendment, promising that no state would deny any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law, was passed in 1868, ostensibly to ensure that racial discrimination would not be legalized in the future. Eighteen years later the Supreme Court extended those rights to corporations, and in 1938 Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black noted that in the first fifty years after the 14th amendment was ratified it was used to defend corporations in fifty percent of the cases in which it was used as a defense, while only one-half of one percent of its use was dedicated to defending blacks.

An acquittal or conviction of a person accused of a crime need not end the discussion about the issue which the trial brought to light. A verdict is merely one interpretation of the law; the true litmus test is how society holds up under that decision. Laws have proven adaptable to public outcry in the past—indeed it is the only way our country has been able to progress as it has—and while that evolution is much clearer in hindsight it is no less important now. Laws we accept as just and necessary today will seem archaic to our great-grandchildren. The responsibility of holding our legal system to a standard of justice is ours.

Keeping tabs on politicians

Dear editor,

Having recently visited with Senator Anderson and Representative Hausman, it was with particular interest I read the article about perks and access [March Bugle]. Both officials promptly scheduled appointments when I requested to meet. They listened attentively to my concerns regarding the right of an injured worker to access a rehabilitation consultation. Then they asked perceptive questions. While part of me would have liked them to immediately endorse my cause, they acknowledged shared concern but indicated they would need to know the opposing view before committing to a position. In the long run I prefer that approach.

I found Senator Marty's position on perks, as conveyed in the article, especially ironic. He went on record opposing events like the Duluth trip, favoring meeting with constituents. But in the years he represented St. Anthony Park, he was never able to schedule a meeting with me. Despite several serious attempts to reach him, he remained inaccessible.

The aide with whom I met very briefly explained Senator Marty was simply "too busy." So much for meeting with constituents!

In the final analysis, I'm less concerned with whether my legislators accessed perks, being more interested in how they were available to me, and how they responded to my concerns. How did Senator Anderson and Representative Hausman vote on my issue, presented without frills? I'm still keeping them updated and watching for their vote.

Marcia Cheney

Dear editor,

I attended the Fifth Ward DFL precinct caucuses Feb. 23, at Como Park High School, as I have done faithfully since I was of voting age fourteen years ago. I chaired my precinct 5-6, which was a small, friendly gathering of neighbors, concerned about revitalizing our neighborhoods, safer streets and small businesses.

I learned later that evening of the following incredible set of events which occurred in Ward 5, Precinct 11.

Kevin Nicholson, former Senate District 66

Senate Candidate, affirmed the basic belief in and support of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly. Shockingly, it was voted down. Bill Carlson, St. Paul School Board member and long-time DFL activist, then submitted the following resolution (almost identical in wording to Kevin's):

"The City of St. Paul shall make no law against the constitutionally protected freedom of speech and freedom to protest in a lawful manner."

The resolution finally passed, but not unanimously. Astoundingly, a few people, including our newly-elected Senate District 66 State Senator, Ellen Anderson, voted against this resolution.

It truly angers and alarms me as well as others of fair reason in the DFL Party, that the progressive extreme left-wing of the party, of which Ellen Anderson is a champion, is so far to the left that it has reached a point where liberalism has met communism, a place where freedom of speech and freedom of assembly can be denied and trampled underfoot if it does not echo the "politically correct" left-wing of the DFL party.

Our right to peacefully protest and voice our opinion on concerns from pro-life to pro-choice, gay rights to traditional values are being threatened by some such as Ellen Anderson.

I urge my fellow Senate District 66, North End, Como Park, East Side and St. Anthony Park neighbors to express your opinions on this incident with Ellen Anderson, and begin to take an active interest in her ongoing senatorial voting record.

The constitutionally protected rights of free speech and assembly are in our hands, as some of our elected officials have abandoned support of these basic freedoms in order to serve their own political dogma.

Susan Collett

It was a good story

Dear editor,

I'm no baseball fan. Not by a long shot. So any published article with the word "baseball" in the headline is sure to lose me without a second thought.

But this is the Bugle, after all, and I read the Bugle cover to cover. So I grudgingly began reading Gregg Richardson's story, "What It Was, Was Baseball," in your April issue.

What a treat! I thank you for bringing this gifted voice to your pages. He is a welcome change from—you know—that other guy.

Bugle readership survey summary

Close to 500 Bugle readers returned the readership survey distributed with our February issue. The results of that survey are invaluable to Bugle staff when planning the paper's editorial directions and soliciting advertisements.

Most helpful for the editor were the responses to the questions about the Bugle's content. Over 90% of the respondents said they usually read the page one and news articles. Most of the surveys also indicated that advertisements and neighborhood news are widely read as well.

When asked what readers would like to see receive more coverage in the Bugle, many respondents requested more profiles of neighborhood residents. Many also suggested more coverage of the arts and politics.

Crime and safety issues were at the top of the list of community concerns, closely followed by the environment and education.

The comments many respondents wrote were extremely helpful as well, even though many contradicted each other. Some respondents suggested coverage of local sports events while others asked that we not cover sports at all. Many residents asked for more coverage of crimes in the neighborhood, and some said that the Bugle shouldn't give space to crime stories.

Many suggested story ideas and some offered design advice. Most had positive comments and the critical comments and suggestions are all being considered as we continue to try to improve the paper.

Thanks to those of you who returned your surveys. For those who haven't it's not too late. The Bugle is always open to comments and suggestions from our readers, and will consider any submissions of writing or artwork from neighborhood residents. Call us at 646-5369, or write P.O. H. B. Fuller Company— The Emperor That Has No Clothes

By Annie Baker

If St. Anthony Park has been your home for any length of time, you've probably heard of H.B. Fuller Company. A major manufacturer of adhesives and one of the largest international corporations in the world, Fuller has nearly a billion dollars in annual sales and 123 subsidiaries in 30-plus countries. Founded by the family of former governor of Minnesota Elmer Andersen, with corporate headquarters at 2400 Energy Park Drive, the company has worked carefully to establish a reputation as environmentally sound and socially beneficent. As proof of its corporate responsibility, Fuller points to its funding of a variety of projects, from broadcasting the Minnesota orchestra on MPR, to a carwash in Honduras employing homeless children, to the Park Bugle newspaper. Fuller stock is prominent in many "socially responsible" Minnesotans' investment portfolios and there is hardly a major Minnesota institution that isn't beholden to H.B. Fuller's sponsorship.

Last summer when national television news was about to implicate H.B. Fuller as a marketer of glue that is extensively abused as an inhalant by Latin American "street children," the company seemed to act quickly in an effort to salvage its reputation. Four days before a scheduled NBC Dateline News interview, Fuller's board of directors dramatically announced a unanimous board decision to "discontinue the production of solvent adhesives where they are known to be abused." Praised for this move in local media, Fuller has given the public impression that the company has remedied the problem. Nearly ten months later, however, H.B. Fuller's track record in carrying out its announced board policy has cast doubt on its claim to corporate social responsibility.

According to Dick Johnson of Fuller public relations, the company has not stopped manufacturing the offending adhesives anywhere. Instead of ceasing production as its board announced, Fuller's only action has been to take one brand of glue out of stores in two countries, while continuing to supply all its large industrial buyers and most commercial markets throughout Latin America. Fuller management insists this is "solving the problem," despite earlier public statements in 1991 that "even if distribution were strictly controlled, people would still find ways to get the glue."

Yet when confronted at the H.B. Fuller annual stockholder's meeting last week with the company's failure to act on its policy, H.B. Fuller board chairman Tony Andersen never addressed the issue of Fuller's non-compliance with the board directive. Instead, Andersen tried to discredit his critics (to "kill the messenger"), saying they were misinformed and held personal opinions about the glue sniffing issue that were erroneous. Andersen claimed the support of several international agencies for Fuller's social programs in Latin America as proof that the company was on the right course. A more accurate statement would have been that several international agencies can claim the support of H.B. Fuller for their programs. That is not necessarily proof of their approval of Fuller's actions.

Consider, for example, what Bruce Harris, Latin American Director of Casa Alianza (an international agency caring exclusively for homeless kids receiving funding from H.B. Fuller) has said: "I am saddened by H.B. Fuller's inhumane approach. I have seen hundreds of children suffer the debilitating and irreversible effects of glue sniffing. In mid-1992, H.B. Fuller announced with a slick PR campaign that they were withdrawing their product from all Central American countries where their product was being abused by children. After receiving some nice editorials commending them for their courageous stand, they silently announced that they would only withdraw from Guatemala and Honduras, and then only from certain areas of the market. The children have been betrayed."

Because in 1991 H.B. Fuller generated 14 percent of its worldwide sales and 28 percent of operating earnings in Latin America, the company's lack of action on this issue has a huge impact. Adhesives manufactured by Fuller in Latin America have been abused for more than a decade by street children as intoxicating inhalants; so much so that these young people are generally known as Resistoleros, after one of Fuller's contact cements called "Resistol." There are 40 to 50 million children living and working on the streets of Latin America. Virtually 100 percent of those who are homeless are involved in substance abuse.

Glue is the substance of choice for street kids because it's cheap and effective—they buy a scoop in baby food jars or plastic bags and within minutes after inhaling it, lose the pain of hunger and settle into a mindless euphoria. Some pay for it with money from shining shoes or selling newspapers; most pay from petty crime. According to street workers, abuse of the glue is highly habituating, rendering children unable to learn anything at all when they are sniffing. Long-term abuse typically results in kidney failure, permanent neurological damage, paralysis and death.

Not only has H.B. Fuller not stopped production of these deadly products, it has also failed to control their distribution as it has claimed. Just last month a member of the Coalition on Resistoleros, a Twin Cities group of eight organizations concerned with this issue, walked into a store in Honduras and purchased a can of "Resistol" that had been manufactured in El Salvador. The company has even refused to pilot-test an additive that has proven successful as a deterrent to glue-sniffing here in the U.S. for over 20 years.

Instead Fuller officials continue to argue that the problem is not their product but the conditions of the street children, whom they say will turn to competitive products should the company stop production. Are they saying it is children's responsibility to stop sniffing? This logic seems analogous to saying that one shouldn't work to remove heroin from the street because addicts would turn to cocaine.

Fuller's credibility and the credibility of the socially responsible investment movement is at issue here. Should a "socially responsible" company's good works and philanthropic causes be financed by profits from products that cause irreversible brain damage and death to children? We here in Minnesota all benefit directly from those profits. Further, does a socially responsible company announce a board policy that gives the impression they have solved the problem, and then privately do nothing to effectively carry out that policy? Can those in the socially responsible investment community who have been advising us to invest in H.B. Fuller's stock justify the fact that the company has known for over a decade that its glue is massively abused as an inhalant by children? The fate of Latin American children has yet to be addressed by H.B. Fuller and by the individuals and organizations in Minnesota that benefit from H.B. Fuller's Latin American profits.

Annie Baker, a writer and children's rights advocate, is a volunteer with the Coalition on Resistoleros, a Twin Cities-based coalition working to end the abuse of street children in Latin America.

Suburban program encourages respect for diversity

By Daren Hansen

Through a new program being developed in Roseville, residents of 10 Ramsey County suburbs will be encouraged to embrace the changing demographics of their neighborhoods.

Northwest Youth and Family Services, a non-profit social service agency, is hoping that its "Reflect Respect" program will convince people that diversity can be beneficial.

"It's really a community development kind of project," said Kay Andrews, executive director of NYFS.

After an initial community meeting early last year, NYFS received a $60,000 grant to finance the program, Andrews said. Since then, the agency has recruited about 70 volunteer supporters, including residents, mayors, police and school officials.

Larry Mazzitello of NYFS said the program will deal with diversity in all its forms.

"Basically the question becomes, 'How do we deal with people who are somehow different than we are—different in any of the ways people can be different?' That's a lot of ways," he said.

"Let's not treat those people as abstract 'thems', but let's get to know them," he said. "Let's see what they can bring to our community that can enrich us."

Volunteers will be recruited into six "action groups" focusing on various community structures, comprising religious organizations, the workplace, law enforcement, education, civic groups and appointed officials.

Each group will "go off in its own direction trying to see how diversity issues translate into that area, and what they can do to encourage the acceptance of diversity in the community," Mazzitello said.

The project will focus on 10 northwest suburbs, including Falcon Heights and Lauderdale.

Mayor Tom Baldwin of Falcon Heights sees a definite need for the program.

"I think there's a lot of very subtle intolerance in the metro area," he said. "If you look at our demography and geography, there are a lot of barriers to a fully integrated community in the Twin Cities."

Lack of services for differently-abled people in the suburbs, Baldwin said, is "just a subtle way of keeping them out."

NYFS will hold a community meeting on June 3 in Roseville High School at 7 p.m. to discuss the Reflect Respect program.

Major street work approved for University Grove and Falcon Woods

By Daren Hansen

Falcon Heights city council members approved the sale of $1,075,000 in bonds for street improvement projects and set a May 12 date for a final public hearing on assessments.

Year two of the city's five year Capital Improvement Project will mean work on curbs, gutters, streets, sidewalks and sewers in the Falcon Woods and University Grove neighborhoods starting in June. Affected residents will receive notice of their assessments before the public hearing, city administrator Susan Hoyt said.

The typical assessment in the Grove area will be $2,715 for a reconstructed sidewalk, street and storm sewer. In the Falcon Woods neighborhood, the typical assessment for street reconstruction will be $2,400. The majority of the $935,000 estimate for the project will be spent in the Grove neighborhood, Hoyt said.

In Falcon Woods, Autumn Street will be completely reconstructed from Roselawn to Prior. Pavement overlay, curb and gutter will be added to Summer Street from Moore to Howell and on Prior Avenue from Roselawn to Summer. The typical assessment for work on Summer Street will be $1,700, Hoyt said.

In the Grove neighborhood, Folwell will be reconstructed from Fulham to Coffman. Vincent, Northrop, Burton and Coffman will be reconstructed from Hoyt to Folwell, and Folwell will get new overlay east of Coffman to Hoyt. Sidewalks will be reconstructed throughout the Grove.

Some sewer lines and storm sewer drainage will be added to both areas of the city.

The city of Falcon Heights will pay for the street projects with the sale of general obligation improvement bonds to Piper Jaffray Inc. at 4.41 percent interest. Affected residents will have 10 years to pay a portion of the cost back to the city. Residents will pay 40 percent of street reconstruction costs, Hoyt said. The city will pay the other 60 percent.

At an April 14 meeting, council members discussed what interest rate to charge residents for their portion of the cost. Most agreed that 2 percent over the interest rate charged for the bonds, or 6.5 percent, was reasonable. The actual percentage will be decided at the May 12 hearing.

Franklin/University task force prioritizes long-term goals

By Kristin Cooper

The Franklin Avenue and University Avenue area generates healthy small businesses and those small businesses generate jobs, said Melissa Coffey, former chairperson of the St. Anthony Park Community Council. The reason, she said, is simple—"Location, location, location."

The area is well-served by public transportation and is an important link between Minneapolis and St. Paul, she explained. Coffey is co-chair of a task force developing a small area plan for the region bounded by the city border on the west, I-94 on the south, Highway 280 on the east and Territorial Road on the north.

The location is zoned I-1, which restricts business in the area to wholesale or warehouse activities and industrial operations, whose external physical effects are restricted to the area of the district and in no manner affect the surrounding districts.

Task force members started meeting last fall and were examining the site as a possible station for light rail transit for a period, but are now concentrating on long-term goals for the area.

"It's an area in transition," said Bob Straughn, Midwest Chamber of Commerce representative to the task force. "Some of the industrial uses are going downhill and there are parking problems."

The goals the task force identified are:

- a mixed-use urban village with commercial and residential development on University and Franklin shielding nearby neighborhoods from traffic.

- a center for clean industrial and high tech jobs, replacing heavy industry and trucking-intensive uses.

- an area well-served by public transportation and a friendly and safe place for pedestrians and bicyclists.

- an area with adequate parking and current parking problems resolved.

- an attractive, well-maintained community with landscaping and a well-informed neighborhood.

St. Paul Planning and Economic Development representative Allen Torstenson said now the task force needs to look at these goals in the context of future planning. "Given the kinds of changes that are going on in the area," he said, "we need to answer questions like how should it be zoned, what kind of development should be encouraged and how do we encourage that kind of development."

Task force co-chair Coffey said their meetings are becoming more creative as the task force examines how the details fit in with their overall goals.

Poepppe resigns District 10 position

By Lee Ann Owens

District 10 will hire a new community organizer in May. Keri Poepppe left the post as of April 26, to begin a new position at Glendale Residential Management Corporation of Minneapolis.

Poepppe served as District 10 community organizer for 22 months. "I've learned a great deal working in this position. There have been a lot of wonderful and insightful people in the neighborhood," she said.

While working for District 10, Poepppe said she had the opportunity to become familiar with the basics in volunteer management, administration and financial management.

Poepppe said she enjoyed working on a variety of projects along with sharpening her communication skills, but will definitely miss the people she has worked with most of all.

Poepppe intends to stay involved in District 10 government, and will be working for a staff person in the Neighborhood Advisory Committee for at least four more months.

MEET THE MAYOR

St. Paul Mayor Jim Scheibel will be on hand at the next St. Anthony Park Dinner in the Park Series, Tuesday, May 11. Not a candidate in this November's mayoral election, Mayor Scheibel should offer candid opinions on everything from the state of the city, to neighborhood development, to crime, to the mayoral candidates themselves. Bring your questions and an appetite for a delicious meal cooked by your neighbors.

Also planned for the May dinner meeting is the announcement of a number of award winners. The St. Anthony Park Association will elect next year's officers. The Con Overgaard Award for academic excellence at the Junior High School level will be announced as will the winners of the Community Improvement grants.

School News

Falcon Heights Elementary

Falcon Heights has been busier than ever.

It has begun two units of the Junior Great Books program, one for third graders taught by Mim Heggerston and Cathy Bawlin and one for second graders taught by Christine Welch. Junior Great Books is a well-known, long-used program of enrichment and interpretation of literature. The groups meet after school weekly to discuss the stories they read.

The Young Astronauts program has also started recently. First, second and sixth graders are able to participate in the program which was bought by the PTSA from NASA. The Young Astronauts program is offered to children who have expressed an interest in science and space.

Mrs. Kaufenberg's second and third grade classes are doing their part to save the rainforest. They have been collecting money to buy areas of the rainforest. Already, they have collected over $90! They have also been studying the rainforest while writing in journals, doing puzzles and writing poems.

Catherine Mackiweicz

Holy Childhood

Linda Bruning and Rudd Rayfield were guest artists at a student assembly on March 29. Their Rainforest Tales depicted the rainforest regions of Southeast Asia, Equatorial Africa, Central America and the Pacific Northwest. These storytellers made their own costumes, masks, scenery and props. Each of the folktales also had a moral or lesson. Rudd portrayed a caveman hunting and killing a dinosaur.

The students in fifth grade have been working hard during second semester in the DARE program. They are down to the final weeks. Officer Matthew Bostrom's enthusiasm energizes the class. Their graduation ceremony is scheduled for Tuesday, May 18. Three cheers for Drug Abuse Resistance Education!

Matthew Vaky from the Stepping Stone Theatre in St. Paul was our artist-in-residence the week of April 12. He worked with the students in grades 5-8. Each grade performed their original play for the assembly on Thurs., April 15.

Mark Dymond & Matt Davini

Chelsea Heights Elementary

Many students are excited as the year is coming close to its end. Still, there are lots of things happening before the year is over.

Jelly Bean days (where kids go around the gym and perform tasks to earn jellybeans) were a success. They were on April 1 & 2.

The spring band concert will be on May 13 at 1:30 p.m. for the student body and staff, and at 7 p.m. for parents and friends. The band will also be having some field trips, and is very excited about them. On May 27 the concert band will be going to Town Square Park for a lunchtime performance. Also, on June 3 is the annual band picnic at Como Park.

We'd like to thank all the parents and grandparents, etc. who helped with field trips, Omnibus, playground duty and all the other jobs and parties around our school. Our volunteers have been invited to the 25th anniversary Volunteer Recognition Workshop and Luncheon at the Radisson Hotel, St. Paul.

There are other classes going on field trips in May. To put it in a nutshell, May is a very busy month for us... and that's just the way we like it!

Karolyn Stoerzinger

Central High School

Central has been very busy registering new students and graduating seniors. With all the hustle and bustle going on a special favor has been asked of seniors. The guidance counselor's office has asked that seniors tell their counselors if they are awarded any scholarships. This way seniors can be honored at senior honors night. The date for senior honors night is May 19 from 6-9 p.m. Seniors and their families should receive invitations in the mail.

With the new registration the administration has found out that about 100 extra students have registered for Central who can't be accepted. So students in Central's attendance area will be admitted first. St. Anthony Park and its surrounding communities are out of the attendance area. Counselors say this isn't a big problem and not to worry.

Central had a very strong winter sports program. Two all-conference athletes were picked from this neighborhood: Wendy Peterson (gymnastics) and Tim Kersey (hockey).

The Central basketball program was led by Coach Brink and Coach Sellons. The girls' record was 12-11. The girls also had three all-conference picks, none from this neighborhood. The boys finished with five all-conference picks and a record of 18-7.

The girls' gymnastics team was city conference champion, led by Coach Payne and Coach Konarski. There were three all-conference picks from the gymnastics team and from the wrestling team.

The boys' and girls' cross-country ski team is one of the best in the state. The girls finished second in state and the boys finished first. There were a total of seven all-conference picks. Out of those seven, four were also all-state picks.

In last month's article these three names were left off the honor roll list: Nunia Mafi (A), Dana McCormick (B) and David Swartz (B). Please excuse the mistake.

Como Park High School

With only a month and a half left of school, each week is quickly becoming packed with activities. Como Park starts out its month with a Cosys meeting on May 4 as well as the Top 10 Recognition Night held in the cafeteria. This is an opportunity for Como's top ten in each class to be honored. On May 6, the band will give its annual spring concert at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium.

The last dance of the 1992-93 school year is quickly approaching. On May 14 Como Park will have its annual Spring Fling dance.

May 20 will be the night for Senior Honors Night, as well as the afternoon for the National Honor Society induction during 6th hour in the Library. That afternoon will be an opportunity to welcome the new members into the National Honor Society. On May 25, the city-wide Senior Recognition Night will be held at Central High School. The top ten seniors from each St. Paul public high school will be recognized.

This year's Spring Athletic Banquet will be May 27 in Como's cafeteria.

Also on May 25 is the Parent Advisory Council meeting at 7 p.m. in the library. Operation Wish List, started this spring by the Como Park Advisory Council, has found that a variety of classroom materials are needed. The Advisory Council is looking into a variety of ways to find these items. Some items on the wish list include: used musical instruments, aquariums, VCR's, tape recorders, Apple IIe computers, quiet fans and bookshelves. Please call Kathy McIntosh, 645-1858, or Steve Jongeward, 641-2434, if you are able to donate any items. If you have any materials, they can either be picked up or drop them off at the school office at your convenience.

Murray Junior High

Things are really cooking at Murray Junior High because the last quarter has now begun.

The garage sale was very successful. It was held on Sat., April 24. Thanks to everyone who donated or shopped at the sale.

Students who take foreign languages attended the Festival of Nations on April 29. Fun was had by all as they tasted foreign foods or shopped at the many booths selling foreign and interesting merchandise. It was a great experience.

The state History Day competition will be held at the University of Minnesota on May 1. Four students, Paul Allen, Peter Mazanec, Aaron Doepner and Brett Magnuson have advanced to this competition from Murray and we're all wishing them good luck.

A play written by Murray students, with the supervision of Liz Geraghty from Stepping Stone Theater, will be performed for the school on May 5. On May 6, a luncheon for senior citizens will be held at Murray, followed by another performance of the play.

A band and choir concert will be held on May 20 at 7 p.m. All are invited.

MSHS from 1

Prior to the move, the non-profit Society was primarily a corresponding organization, maintaining contact with members through mail and by telephone, Brusic said. Now there is space for the noonday, evening and weekend presentations and mini-classes, some of which are free to the public.

MSHS also works with state garden clubs and sponsors tours to visit gardens in Minnesota and around the world.

The new offices provide ample room for the production of Minnesota Horticulturist, the oldest continuously published magazine in the state, offering gardening advice for MSHS members. Also, a telephone "Garden Line" allows people to call MSHS volunteers at 645-6749 with questions related to gardening.

Included in the building is a room for workshops, space for floral displays, a meeting room for some of the 600 MSHS volunteers and an office for Minnesota Green, an MSHS community outreach program which focuses on developing community gardens.

The Center will eventually have an outdoor landscaping display occupying the 20 feet of space on each of three sides around the building.

"It's very small, but it is also an opportunity for people to see what they can do in their own small yards," Johnson said.

Upcoming MSHS events include a demonstration planting of trees for energy conservation on May 1, a plant sale at Como Conservatory on May 15 and a garden tour on May 20. Reservations and a fee are required for the tour, and all events are open to nonmembers.

Brusic said she hopes attendance continues to remain high for the Center and MSHS events.

"At this time of year," she said, "people want to be at home in their gardens."

ST. ANTHONY PARK

It's festival time

Anyone interested in reserving booth space for the June 5 St. Anthony Park Spring Festival and Arts and Crafts Fair should call Brigit Faricy at 645-2366 for more information.

College Park reopening

On Sat., May 15, at 1 p.m., there will be a reopening/rededication of College Park, located at Doswell, Raymond and Carter Avenues. Last fall the St. Paul Parks and Recreation department began a major erosion control replanting project to stabilize the steep slopes along the edges of the park. Several paths were resurfaced and new trees and flowers were planted.

The reopening will include a walk through the park led by local residents involved in planning the project, who will talk about the plants and trees—both old and new. The University of Minnesota Raptor Center will know in early May whether it will be able to release a bird in the park that day. Watch for signs around the neighborhood.

Children in the neighborhood around College Park are invited to set up lemonade stands before the reopening ceremony. For more information call Elizabeth VanderSchaaf at 645-6628.

South St. Anthony Rec Center

The South St. Anthony Booster Club will hold its next meeting on Mon., May 3, at 7 p.m., at the recreation center. The main item on the agenda is planning the Ice Cream Social, which will take place on Tues., May 18, from 6-8 p.m. Activities for the whole family will be held and information on summer programming at the recreation center will be available at the Ice Cream Social.

Congratulations to Angie Toombs and Jennifer Jeraige, who were selected Outstanding Youth Volunteers for South St. Anthony Recreation Center. They help each year with the Bookstart program by assisting with daily activities, such as hand washing and serving treats, and both have contributed by sharing special projects with the children. Jeraige dyed macaroni and helped the Bookstart participants make necklaces, while Toombs prepared balloons with faces. Both girls will receive a certificate and a t-shirt at a St. Paul City Council meeting.

Summer activity programs will be available after May 15 and at the Ice Cream Social. Registration will begin May 24 for gym games, Bookstart, art classes and other activities.

Pedaling to Winnipeg

Patty Hanson and Helen Canfield will be making a 500-mile bike ride to Winnipeg, Manitoba, this July to join Jimmy & Rosalyn Carter in their annual summer work project for Habitat for Humanity.

Hanson has been actively involved in the local Habitat for Humanity affiliate for about 3 years. An avid biker, she was excited to hear that a group of cyclists from all over the country will be leaving from St. Paul on July 12 to ride to Winnipeg. The ride is meant to raise money for and boost awareness of this international organization, which builds affordable homes for those who would not otherwise be able to acquire them.

Hanson has been helping organize the ride, providing training tips and other expertise to people who would like to participate but have never ridden a long distance before. The trip will take a week, and riders will be sleeping in tents along the route.

If you would like to make a contribution to this effort, or if you are interested in riding to Winnipeg yourself, please contact Patty Hanson at 646-4538.

New business owner

Longtime resident of St. Anthony Park, Ray Bryan, is the new owner of Raymond Commodore Amiga (formerly Jack's Computer Shack) at 898 Raymond Ave. Living on Raymond Avenue (and in the past at two other Raymond Ave. addresses), and having the name Raymond, he says it is only fitting for his store to have the name too.

The main business of the store is the sale and repair of Commodore computers, from PET to Amiga, and their attending hardware and software. Some generic computer supplies such as printers, ribbons and paper are also available.

Bryan was born during the time his parents resided at the late Thatcher Hall at the University of Minnesota St. Paul Campus. He received his baccalaureate degree from the University of Minnesota while living in St. Anthony Park and working at the St. Paul Campus. He holds a terminal degree from Goddard College in Vermont. Bryan is a former South St. Anthony delegate to the St. Anthony Park Community Council.

He extends this invitation to visit his store: "Come for the coffee, stay for the computers."

Murray teacher wins award

John Olson, science teacher and computer coordinator at Murray Junior High, received the 1993 Optical Data Corporation Videodisc Award, cosponsored by the National Science Teachers Association, for his plan to use videodiscs in the science classroom. In recognition of his creative project, "A Journey to Mars Using Lego-Logo and Videodiscs," Olson received the award and $1,000.

Students using this computer program would explore such areas as rocketry, space flight, aviation communications and the planets. The program is especially designed for minority students (Murray Junior High, a magnet school, has a minority student population of about 40 percent) and below-average and special education students.

Langford Park Rec Center

Langford summer registration is almost over for T-ball, near-ball, softball and baseball. Register now to assure your child's participation in summer sports.

Volunteers are needed to coach or assist coaches at all levels of play. Especially needed are coaches for pee-wee/midget baseball and softball teams and additional T-ball volunteers.

Three free clinics for T-ball, softball and baseball will be offered in May to help kids get a head start on the season. The T-ball clinic will be Mon., May 10, from 6-7 p.m.; Softball clinic: Wed., May 5, 5-6 p.m., for ages 7-10; 6-7 p.m. for ages 11-14; Baseball clinic: Thurs., May 6, 5-6 p.m. for ages 7-10; 6-7 p.m. for ages 11-14. Register at Langford Park.

Langford is sponsoring a "Super Soccer Saturday" on May 22, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. This event is a skills clinic for soccer players ages 5-12 years. Lunch and a t-shirt will be provided. Cost is $5. Register at Langford as soon as possible to guarantee a spot for your child.

"Kite Night" for kids ages 5-12 will be held Wed., May 12, from 6-7 p.m. For $3 kids can build and fly their own kite. This class is taught by a kite professional from the Minn-Kite Society. Preregistration at Langford is necessary.

Take the bus as a family from Langford to the megamall on Sat., May 8. Kids 10 and over may participate with parental permission. They will see a movie and tour Camp Snoopy with staff. The fee is $2 for the bus; additional costs will be charged for activities. Call 298-5765 for register.

Langford's first annual Family Campout in the Park will be Fri., May 21. The cost is $2 per person ($15 maximum per family) for hot dogs, marshmallows and singing around the campfire. Tent pitching begins at 6:30 p.m.

Langford is still looking for donations of pool tables, foosball tables or air hockey tables—or the rec center is willing to purchase these items at reasonable cost.

COMO PARK

Lyngblomsten benefit on May 1

The sixth annual Spring Rhapsody, a benefit gala supporting the Lyngblomsten Foundation, will take place on Sat., May 1, at Bandana Square. The evening begins at 6 with a social hour. At 7 p.m., guests will be escorted into Bandana Square's banquet room for a sumptuous dinner created by Atrium Catering. The program that follows will feature a magic show.

The proceeds from Spring Rhapsody will go toward Lyngblomsten's Faithful to the Vision; Committed to the Promise capital campaign. The Vision Campaign is raising funds for a new senior residence with assisted living services on the Lyngblomsten campus.

Tickets are $100 each ($75 tax deductible). For more information, call the Lyngblomsten Foundation office at 646-2941.

La Leche League will meet

The Como-Midway La Leche League will meet at 7 p.m. on Tues., May 25 to discuss "The Advantages of Breastfeeding."—for mother as well as baby. Babies and toddlers are welcome at meetings, as are expectant mothers. For meeting information call Kathy at 645-4953 or Jeanne at 644-0302.

AARP to meet

Midway-Highland Chapter 940 of the American Association of Retired Persons will meet at 1 p.m. on Thurs., May 20, at Lyngblomsten Senior Center, 1415 Almond Ave. A social hour follows the program. For more information, call 644-8937.

Zoo and conservatory events

Como Zoo has two new species of monkeys in the primate building. Three Woolly Monkeys, which typically inhabit rain forests of the Amazon Basin in South America, are on loan from the Louisville Zoo in Kentucky. Two Emperor Tamarins, extremely small primates weighing only 10-14 ounces when fully grown, are on loan from Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago.

The conservatory's annual bonsai and daffodil shows will be on May 8 & 9 from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. The Como Ordway Memorial Japanese Garden, located just north of the conservatory, opens for the season on May 8. It is open daily from 11:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., and until 8 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Como Conservatory's annual plant sale takes place on Sat., May 15, from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. Co-sponsored by the 7th District Horticultural Society and the Como Japanese Garden Volunteers, the sale will feature spring flowering bulbs, garden chrysanthemums and a variety of annuals and perennials.

Call 489-1740 for more information about the conservatory. It's open every day of the year from 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

Bake sale at Lyngblomsten

Lyngblomsten Community Senior Center, 1415 Almond Ave., is having its second annual Bake Sale and Salad Bar on Fri., May 7, from 10 a.m.-2 p.m., in the first floor lounge and chapel area of the Care Center. Bakery items will go on sale at 10 a.m., with the salad bar opening at 11 a.m.

Literature

"I thought I was writing history."

That's how St. Anthony Park resident Marsha Qualey reacts to the confluence of current events and the publication of her new young adult novel, Revolutions of the Heart. Set in Northern Wisconsin, the novel is about a town and a family divided by protests against Native American spearfishing.

Qualey's first novel, Everybody's Daughter, was a finalist for the 1992 Minnesota Book Award, and has been recently reissued in paperback. She will be signing books at Micawber's Bookstore in Milton Square, Como at Carter Avenues, on Saturday, May 15, from 11 a.m.-noon.

The St. Anthony Park Writers' Workshop will meet on Tues., May 4, at 7:30 p.m., at 1486 Raymond Ave. For further information, call 645-1345.

Drama

Punchinello Players, St. Paul's oldest theatre, will present Jean Anouilh's reworking of Sophocles' Antigone on May 1, 7, 8, 13, 14 & 15. Show times are 8 p.m. at North Hall Theatre, located behind the Student Center on the St. Paul Campus of the University of Minnesota.

Antigone is the story of one woman's search for "what is right." French playwright Jean Anouilh has taken this classic Greek tragedy and placed it in the 20th century, creating a commentary on our own world.

This production concludes the 78th season of the Punchinello Players. The group has performed in North Hall Theatre since 1961.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $4 for students and seniors. Group rates are also available. Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling 624-7458.

The Alliance Française of the Twin Cities, in cooperation with the University of Minnesota and the American Association of Teachers of French, will present the French theater company, Le Comédie de Béthune, in Deux Labiche dans une Armoire (Two Labiches in a Closet).

This production of two plays by Eugene Labiche is supported in part by the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the French Association for Artistic Action. It will take place on Sat., May 8, at 8 p.m., at Scott Hall on the University of Minnesota Minneapolis Campus. Tickets, at $10 for adults or $7 for students, are available at the Alliance Française, 821 Raymond Avenue, or may be purchased at the door. For more information call 644-5769.

Visual Art

Architectural Use of Terra Cotta: Historical Examples, Process and New Uses, will be on view at the Northern Clay Center until June 2. The exhibition features drawings, blueprints, photographs and terra cotta samples from historical examples, including the Hamm Building, the Norwest Bank of Owatonna and other local buildings. The process of making terra cotta will be shown through photographs.

Ongoing programs include classes and workshops for children and adults at all levels of proficiency. Call 642-1735 for more information.

The Northern Clay Center is located at 2375 University Ave. Gallery hours at Mon.-Sat., 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Diversions/Detours: Hand Dyed Garments and Masks by Marit Lee Kucera, continues through June 15 at Raymond Avenue Gallery, 761 Raymond Avenue.

The gallery also has a continuing exhibition of crafts by leading midwestern artists Warren MacKenzie, Nancy MacKenzie, Linda Christianson, Joseph Brown, Wayne Potratz, Mary Anne Wise, Timothy Lloyd, Jerald Krepps and Erica Rasmussen.

Regular gallery hours are Mon.-Fri., 10 a.m.-4 p.m. For more information call Joseph Brown at 644-9200.

The Goldstein Gallery, a design and teaching museum located in McNeal Hall, 1985 Buford Ave., on the St. Paul Campus of the University of Minnesota, features the exhibit Dressing for Sport: It's More than Just the Game, until June 27. Presented are historic and contemporary dress and equipment for swimming, football, ice skating, tennis, baseball, horseback riding, skiing and biking.

Admission is free. Gallery hours are Mon.-Fri., 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; Thurs., 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; and Sat./Sun., 1:30-4:30 p.m. Call 624-7434 for more information.

The Women's Art Registry of Minnesota (WARM) is looking for entries for its 14th annual juried exhibition for women artists, to be held June 26-Aug. 1. All visual media will be considered, including film and video. This year's juror is Nancy Spero. Call 649-0059 for more information.

The Center for Arts Criticism in South St. Anthony Park invites North Shore enthusiasts to a discussion with Twin Cities architecture writer Adelheid Fischer on Fri., May 7, from 4:30-6 p.m. at the Center's office on the second floor of the Chittenden-Eastman building, 2402 University Ave. Fischer will talk about the evolution of architecture on the North Shore. Call 644-5501 to make a reservation. The event is free and light refreshments will be served.

Artist David Hall will reveal his plans for an art performance called Implement at a FORECAST Public Art Affairs program on Tues., May 25, from noon-1:30 p.m. at Midtown Commons, 2324 University Ave., Room 108. Hall, together with choreographer Laurie Van Wieren, is preparing a performance centered around the act of building large-scale wood and steel farm tools and implements, and incorporating music and sounds samples from working industrial and agricultural machinery. The implements will carry pyrotechnical devices that will be ignited during the performance. Parts of the steel implements will be dipped into a sparkler slurry mixture to create large sparklers. The performance is scheduled to take place in Minneapolis this summer.

Call Jack Becker at 641-1128 for more information about this free, informal Meet the Artist brown bag series.

Music

The Schola Cantorum of the Church of the Holy Childhood, Midway Parkway and Pascal Street, will sing several sacred music selections at the church's 10:30 Masses in May:

May 2: Mass in C by Leonard Blake.

May 9: Messe Solennelle by Samuel Rousseau, Panis Angelicus by Cesar Franck, Ave Maria by Bach-Gounod, Lord's Prayer by Henri Busser.

May 16: Mass for a Saint's Day by Nicholas Jackson

May 23: Mass of Light by Alan Wilson

May 30: Messa di Gloria by Giacomo Puccini, Golden Sequence by Bruce Larsen.

The Schola's directors are Robert Vickery of Minneapolis and Stephen Schmall of Falcon Heights. The May 30 performance is a tribute to Bruce Larsen, who was music director for 35 years.

A musical called Have a Heart (To Change the World) will be presented at St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church, Como and Luther Place, on Sat., May 1, at 6:30 p.m. and Sun., May 2, at 4:30 p.m.

Job Corps from 1

relations with the Job Corps have improved and sees the memorandum as another positive step. "I feel real comfortable with it and think it's a good idea. In actuality, it makes the center run easier with the neighborhood," he said.

The neighborhood and Job Corps have had a memorandum of agreement since 1981 when the Job Corps first came to the center.

Concerns the neighborhood had originally with the Job Corps still exist and are expounded within the memorandum. "It was really important with the neighborhood that this not be used as a correctional facility," Jane Kramer, NAC Vice-President said.

Neighborhood concerns over disciplinary issues involving Job Corps students fostered some new additions to the memorandum. The new version rephrases the old agreement with changes clarifying several issues, according to Kramer.

Criteria for admitting students has been redefined. The memorandum states students will only be enrolled when "there is reasonable expectation that the student can participate successfully in group situations and activities with other students, and is not likely to engage in actions or behavior that would prevent other students from receiving the benefit of the program or be incompatible with the maintenance of sound discipline and satisfactory relationships between the center and the surrounding community..."

The memorandum also specifies that students with histories of disciplinary problems will not be admitted. Priority will be given to Minnesota youth.

The NEC also added a provision to maintain its newsletter. Now in its third edition, the publication is distributed to homes closely surrounding the Job Corps. The newsletter lists community calls to the Job Corps and the responsive actions taken, student termination dates, police enforcement logs, fire alarm calls and general news about the Job Corps, including its accomplishments.

"We've had a lot of good comments from the neighborhood with the three issues out," Kramer said.

The memorandum will also establish a new 24-hour voice mail phone number. Neighborhood residents can call the number to report concerns regarding the Job Corps. Calls were often directed to NAC members previously, Kramer said.

Additionally, from April 1 to October 31 an off-duty police officer will be at the Job Corps from 8 p.m.-1 a.m. every Friday and Saturday night.

All police calls related to the Job Corps and its students are reported to the NAC. Job Corps security personnel will conduct unannounced searches for weapons and contraband in the dorms, according to the memorandum.

Kramer, who has worked on the agreement for 10 months, said complications occurred between the neighborhood and Job Corps due to communication problems. The additions to the memorandum should clear up those problems, she said.

Real Estate

By Carol Weber

REALTOR

REAL ESTATE GOES HIGH-TECH

There's a high-tech approach developing in the marketing and selling of real estate today. Consumers are wanting more information, faster and more efficiently. Computers and telephones are helping to make this possible.

Services range from telephone and computer access of detailed information about properties activity on the market, current mortgage interest rates and open house schedules. Home buyers can get this information without worrying about getting a high-pressured sales pitch, and sellers love the exposure the system gives their homes.

Starting in the second-half of 1993 the Twin City area MLS system will give real estate companies the capability of showing home images on their computers. In addition, tax and property information from the seven county metro area will be available on those same computers. In the experimental stage is a hand-held MLS computer that is capable of holding around 15,000 property listings.

Edina Realty is presently the only real estate company in the Twin City area that has this telephone "Hot-Line" capability. Buyers can call 24 hours a day for real estate information on properties currently on the market with Edina Realty. These "Hot-Line" numbers can be found on individual homes on top of the for sale signs.

What Can I Do, Mom?

By Michelle Christianson

It's spring and a mother's fancy turns to the most basic of questions: What will the kids do all summer? Luckily, this area offers many great options for those long, lazy days of summer.

Art

Lena Rothman will once again be teaching summer art classes in her home, including representational drawing and painting. The classes run two weeks each from June 14 to July 23 and cost $96. She also offers group classes for all ages. Since class size is limited, call early to reserve a place. The number is 645-3062.

Rothman will also possibly be teaching two classes at South St. Anthony Rec Center. Call the center at 298-5770 for information.

Langford Recreation Center will be offering three clay camps run by the Northern Clay Center. The dates are June 14-18, June 21-25 and August 2-6, and the cost is $50 per session. Call the Northern Clay Center at 642-1735 to register.

Community Education offers an art projects class at St Anthony Park Elementary School on Wednesdays beginning June 16. Grades 1-3 meet from 9-10:15 a.m. and grades 4-6 from 10:30 -noon. They also will be offering a woodworking class. Call 293-8738.

Children's Museum offers one-day art classes using recycled materials on June 29, July 7 and July 27. There will also be classes on basic features of buildings that include a scavenger hunt and constructing your own building on July 1 and August 10. The Museum helps children discover art through the ages in a one-week class from July 12 through July 16. Call 644-5305 for information or to register.

Bible School

St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church welcomes all neighborhood children to its bible school (age 3 through 6th grade). The school runs from July 26 through July 30. Call Barbara McCauley at 645-0371 for more information.

Mt. Olive Lutheran's bible school runs from 9-11:30 a.m. on August 2-6. Call Carl Henkel at 645-2575 for details.

St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ is also holding a bible school program in August. Call 646-7173 for further information.

Dance

The St. Anthony Park School of Dance will conduct its summer session from June 22-August 12. In addition to classes in creative movement and drama, ballet, jazz, tap and t'ai chi ch'uan, it will offer dance camps for ages 3-5 (creative movement, tap, tumbling), 6-8 (ballet, musical theatre, jazz, folkdance, creative drama), 9-19 (ballet, musical theatre, jazz, Greek cymbal dance, tap), and 12-19 (ballet, musical theatre, jazz, auditioning, theory, modern music appreciation and composition). Cost of the 3-5 day camps is $50-120. Call 646-0502 for information and registration.

Gardening and Outdoors

Children's Museum is offering one-day classes (July 28, August 11, August 18, August 25,) on exploring gardens through games, crafts, cooking, water and plant experiments. This class is also offered as a week-long class for ages 6-12, August 2-6. Call 644-5305.

Children (age 4-7) will learn about nature and enjoy crafts and games that reflect on our relationship to the environment at Langford Rec Center on June 16 from 1-3 p.m. Also children ages 6-12 may learn about gardening at the Como Conservatory and build a flower garden for the Fourth of July on June 21 and 23. Call Langford at 298-5765 for information and registration.

Mathematics

Children's Museum offers children a chance to explore math in a friendly setting in their Brain Busters class offered June 30 (ages 5,6) and July 29 (ages 7-9). Call 644-5305.

Community Ed offers computer classes at the elementary school. Call 293-8738 for details.

Music

Community Education is sponsoring a creative music class on Wednesdays for children ages 3-5 at St. Anthony Park Elementary School from 10-11:00 a.m. beginning June 16. Call 293-8738.

Other Countries

Discover China in the Children's Museum class "A Walk Inside the Gateway to China." This one-week camp helps children examine the food, clothing, shelter, language and art of China. Children ages 6-8 meet July 12-16 from 12:30-4:30 p.m. Call 644-5305.

Community Ed offers Spanish and French instruction for children in grades K-6 beginning June 14 at St. Anthony Park Elementary School. Call 293-8738.

Sports & Recreation

Langford Recreation Center has a wide variety of sports and recreational programs for children of all ages, infant to teens. Space precludes listing all offerings, but mention should be made of the basketball camps for boys and girls on Mondays and Wednesdays, August 2-25. Some of the other offerings include a tennis program, teen basketball and volleyball, and various hiking and camping opportunities. For more details and registration call Langford at 298-5765.

Northwest Como Rec Center also offers sports programs for children including golf and tennis lessons. It will also hold a summer basketball camp for children ages 8-12 with Richard Coffey of the Minnesota Timberwolves and a 3-on-3 basketball camp at Macalester on July 15 for those 12-18 years of age. Contact Angela Murray at 298-5813 for specifics and registration.

Falcon Heights' summer program begins the week of June 21. Sports offered include mini-soccer, super soccer, t-ball, nearball and tennis. This is in addition to craft classes and a pre-school program. Register by mail or in person at the Falcon Heights City Hall. Call Carol Kreiger for information at 644-5050.

The St. Paul Campus of the University of Minnesota holds a series of sports camps for children 8-10 and 11-14 beginning June 14 and ending August 20. The camps cost $250 each or all 5 sessions for $1000. The camps, which run from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. each day, teach sports of all sorts, waterworks, field fun, international interests, and sailing. Call Renee Anderson at 625-6017 for specifics.

St. Anthony Park Gymnastics Club will offer classes Monday through Thursday mornings this summer at St. Anthony Park Elementary School. The program offers U.S.G.F. instruction and teams as well as a program for high school competitors. For more information, call Lynda Ockuly, 699-0600.

Stepping Stone Theater will teach an acting class for students in grades 3-5 at St. Anthony Park Elementary School Wednesdays from 1-2 p.m. beginning June 16. Call 293-8738 to register. This group offers many other theater opportunities in other parts of the city as well. Call Nancy Paul at 225-9265 for further information.

Reading

The St. Anthony Park Library will once again sponsor a summer reading program beginning June 14. Children receive a prize for every 10 books read (or read to them, for pre-schoolers). There will also be programs at the library on Thursdays at 2:30 p.m. and Fridays at 10:30 a.m.

The St. Paul Public Library Bookmobile will be at Northwest Como Rec Center every other week on Wednesdays beginning June 16. There will also be a program featuring a magician and a ventriloquist on the 16th at 3:00 p.m.

Children's Museum presents "World Stories" for children ages 3-4 (July 6) and 6-8 (August 12), using skits, crafts and musical activities to bring stories and fairy tales to life from all around the world. This class is also offered as a week-long class June 21-25 (ages 4-6) and July 19-23 (ages 6-8). Children ages 7-12 may be interested in learning about other cultures through folklore and fables from other countries, June 14-18. Call 644-5305 for information or registration.

(Next month: Field trips and family outings.)

Reiling takes reigns at ParkBank

By Vickie Gilmer

Can you recall as a child that friendly bank teller who always remembered your name and your favorite flavor of lollipop? Remember character loans? Or the grandfatherly bank president who always told you how wise it was to save your allowance? St. Anthony Park Bank is part of a movement of community-oriented banks that hopes to bring back part of that tradition while competing in today's volatile economic climate.

William S. Reiling, the new chairman of ParkBank, is introducing his concept of community banking to local businesses, individuals and non-profit organizations in the Park and metro area.

Reiling has implemented this concept in South Minneapolis, where he owns another urban bank, the Franklin National Bank. (Reiling is also chairman of Towle Real Estate Co.)

In South Minneapolis, which Reiling says is a diverse, unique community, he and his associates have worked with the community to encourage home ownership and help struggling businesses, among other objectives. "I think there is a niche for community banks in the future," he said. "In a community bank, we try to emphasize the service and that means we care. Our people who are at the bank generally stay in their positions longer, and there's a continuum of a relationship that can be built because there's a slower personnel turnover."

Reiling said the differences between smaller, locally-owned banks and large conglomerates are numerous. "For smaller businesses and non-profits and individuals, in a community bank you really get to know the presidents, you get to know the chief lending officer, you get to know your lending officer—really get to know the decision-makers. In a large bank that simply isn't possible.

New ParkBank chairman William Reiling (left) demonstrates the advantages of community banking to Bugle columnist Warren Hanson, telling him his checking account is overdrawn.

"Community banks... believe in community reinvestment. We believe in giving preference to people who live and work and have businesses within our community. So, for instance, we still make character loans. That is, a loan based on the character of the individual, and character loans are generally not made anymore by large banks.

"Our officers are active either in the community in which the bank is located or the community in which they live. And we promote that, that's important, that's part of what we believe in, to be part of the community. So they have to give of themselves and this is true of Franklin [Bank], and it's true of Park [Bank]."

Obviously, as with any business, community banks cannot be all things to all people. Large businesses, and very wealthy individuals may not find the type of financial service at a smaller bank that they may be able to get from large nationwide banks.

But Reiling maintains that St. Anthony Park Bank is, and can remain, competitive. He said benefits such as knowing your banker, a convenient location, and additional services such as insurance, complete a total service package that appeals to many people. Reiling added that ParkBank is also now a two-rated bank, which in the banking business means the institution is rated satisfactorily. Ratings are based on loan performance and capital, among other things. Nationwide, very few banks are rated at one.

Reiling sees a bright future in community banking, and sees it as a viable business venture, not just a nostalgia trip. "There's always been community banking. We just happen to believe that each bank should have a president. It should have its own identity, the officers of the bank should be active in the community. We feel we're a partner with the businesses, with the people, with the non-profits, and with the community."

FALCON HEIGHTS

Senior club welcomes new members

The Falconeer's Senior Club meets at Falcon Heights City Hall on the second and fourth Mondays of each month from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Membership is open to any retired person, 60 or over, living in or near Ramsey County. Gatherings start with a short meeting, followed by dessert and coffee, and then members play cards—500, bridge, cribbage and more. For more information call 488-3361 or 644-0055.

Women's health seminar

"A Woman's Heart: How We're Different, Why It Matters, What We Can Do About It," is the title of an all-day seminar to be presented at the Earle Brown Center, 1890 Buford Ave., on the University of Minnesota St. Paul Campus, on Wed., May 12, from 8:15 a.m.-4 p.m. Those who attend will learn why women have special needs, how to assess heart disease risk, develop a personal plan for lowering risk, and hear the latest facts about eating wisely, getting fit, reducing stress and taking estrogen.

The registration fee of $20 includes lunch, refreshment breaks and course materials. The published deadline for registering is April 30. For more information call HealthEast, the seminar's main sponsor, at 232-5401.

U attack was bogus

A St. Paul Campus University of Minnesota employee admitted she made up the story that she had been slashed when she surprised two men trying to steal computers from her office on March 11. The unidentified woman said she had cut herself.

The woman's last day on the job at the University was March 12. No charges will be filed against her.

LAUDERDALE

Scouting awards

Daniel Hange and Andrew Wallin have achieved the rank of Eagle Scout. Laverne Sherman received the Vigil Membership of the Order of the Arrow—the first woman to receive this award in the Indianhead Council.

"I Love Lauderdale"

Mugs emblazoned with "I Love Lauderdale" are for sale at City Hall for $5. All proceeds go toward Lauderdale City Park improvements.

Crime Watch getting organized

The City of Lauderdale's Neighborhood Crime Watch Program is slowly developing. On March 25 Officer Jerry Reuttimann of the Roseville Police Department held a meeting at City Hall to provide information on the procedures for organizing a group. Interested participants must obtain the written support of 50 percent of their block's residents to form a group, then contact Officer Reuttimann at 490-2262 to set a date for their first block meeting. In late April there were three blocks organized. The City's goal is to have every block in the city organize a Neighborhood Watch group.

Housing from 1

paint. While these violations may not seem problematic, a problem between tenants, landlords, owners and the city can arise, especially if the violations are numerous and not quickly corrected.

Steve Rice, a counselor with the Housing Information Office, said that neighbors frequently complain about unsightly or unsanitary conditions which could prompt inspections. "We investigate every complaint that comes through here" Fish said. "The city has a citywide complaint system where any tenant, landlord, neighborhood person, any interested party, can file a complaint, either anonymously or they can leave their name," she added.

"The vast majority of the situations are usually caused by a combination of intense landlord neglect that is sometimes aggravated by the tenants," Rice said. Rice notified tenants at these two rental properties of the seriousness of the situation and helped urge them to pressure the owners. Rice said that frequently, in such a situation, tenants aren't often aware of the severity of the code violations, and don't seem initially concerned, as they are happy to find rental units close to the University, are busy with schoolwork, and often are not aware of the operation of cooperative rental living. While Rice's job is to inform and assist renters with such dilemmas, the problem frequently grows into a more difficult situation, where tenants could end up being forced to relocate. The city does offer financial assistance, up to $150, to those living on the property for more than 90 days, but "it's sort of like we have a sledgehammer and a flyswatter. If the flyswatter doesn't kill the bug, we hit it with a sledgehammer: we don't have a tennis racket in between," Rice said.

Vacant buildings can be not only an eyesore, but also are frequently not a contributing part of the tax base. Fish said that the city always tries to resolve code violations before it orders vacation or condemnation of a building. The first step, after there has been a failure to correct violations, is to issue a tag to the responsible party. That party must then go to housing court. If that tactic fails, the certificate of occupancy can be revoked, which forces the owner or landlord into a position where they must either vacate the premises and no longer rent the property, or do the work to bring it up to code. Fish said that since they've had the housing court in St. Paul, the department does write more tags, but that's "not because of more violations, but because we have a lot more confidence that the violations are going to be taken seriously, or handled seriously by the court system, because they have the personnel there, and the ability to do that."

"We don't like to be perceived as strong-arm, we try to convince people to do the work. But the flip side of that is these are violations of housing and fire code. The reason the codes are written is because they have a direct effect on the health and safety of the occupants," Fish said.

She said she believes the city is taking a more proactive step in its inspections. "In St. Paul, both the neighborhood people, the tenants, and the landlords are all very proactive and very conscientious about the neighborhoods, about the buildings, whether they're commercial or residential, said Fish. "I think we have an outstanding group of landlords in St. Paul. You know, 90 percent of them are very conscientious. I think it's the other 10 percent that give us the problem."

Parties choose candidates for City Council races

The Fourth Ward IR and DFL parties held conventions in April to nominate candidates for the City Council seat currently held by Paula Maccabee. The IR party took two ballots to choose James Gilliland as their candidate, and Bobbi Megard defeated Carole Faricy on the fourth ballot for the DFL nomination. Any resident of the Fourth Ward may file to run in the September primary, and the top two candidates advance to the general election in November.

Fifth Ward Councilmember Janice Rettman was unopposed for the DFL nomination at that ward's convention.

St. Anthony Park Community Council

News

Danger: Shortage in South Park!

Now that I have your attention, don't stop reading. The headline is only half in jest—to get your attention—as there really is a dangerous shortage in South St. Anthony Park.

There was no need to hold an election during April for the South Park delegation as there was only one candidate! The result is that South St. Anthony Park will be seriously under-represented on this year's Council UNLESS VOLUNTEERS STEP FORWARD! Time commitment is from four to six hours per month—more by choice—and rewards are many. Important issues are considered first at the District level before going to City of St. Paul government, so representation from the neighborhood is vital!

Vacant positions will be filled by the existing South SAP delegation if any residents volunteer. In addition, members are needed for the four ad hoc committees. These are Housing/Zoning (which deals with enforcement issues of residential zoning, building codes, traffic lights, site plans, variances and short-range planning issues), Physical (overseeing light rail, Westgate, busway, land use issues, economic development, the Burlington Northern Hub, non-residential zoning and long-range planning), Human Services (dealing with Block Nurse, community residential facilities, senior day care and transportation, Chore Service, Block Worker/Crime Prevention, Parks and Recreation, children and youth and schools), and Environment (concerned with issues of pollution, waste treatment plants, community gardens, recycling, community trash collection, neighborhood cleanup, parks and open space, transportation and energy use).

To get involved—AND PLEASE DO!!—call the Community Council office at 292-7884.

Council actions at a glance

This month the Council:

- Moved to close off Cromwell Avenue at Territorial Road on a temporary basis due to increased traffic resulting from 280 construction.
- Moved to draft a letter to City Council Member Paula Maccabee recommending that all off-site infectious waste incineration be prohibited in the metro area.
- Moved to approve the establishment of a Non-Residential Landscape Award.
- Hired Julie Krahn as the Crime Prevention Coordinator from April 1 to June 1 with an option to renew on a month-to-month basis.
- Moved to amend the Council's by-laws to read that "The Treasurer shall be appointed by the Council and shall serve for one year."
- Moved to receive bi-monthly financial reports at the Executive Committee level with summary reports to the full council.
- Moved to draft a letter to City Council Member Paula Maccabee to support proposed legislation to amend zoning ordinances prohibiting the siting of firearms dealerships on commercial strips within primarily residential areas.

Council elections held

Elections held on April 13 resulted in Dr. Jan Meyer being reelected and David Skilbred being elected to two-year terms as delegates from North St. Anthony Park, Nowell Leitzke as first alternate and Clair Hruby as second alternate for one-year terms.

No formal election was held in South St. Anthony Park; the South Park delegation chose to waive the formality as John Grantham was running unopposed. Midway Chamber members are elected by the organization and will be announced at next month's meeting.
