

Jackson helps Job Corps celebrate 30th anniversary

By Linda Johnson

The Rev. Jesse Jackson addressed a rally of students at the Hubert H. Humphrey Job Corps Center on Sat., Feb. 12, as part of festivities at the center marking the 30th anniversary of Job Corps on the national level.

Earlier in the week, the Job Corps Center on Snelling Avenue sponsored an afternoon open house as the first event to celebrate the organization's anniversary. Featured were ice sculptures, refreshments, displays of all vocational areas and student-led tours of the Job Corps complex.

Velma Johnson, host of Black Entertainment T.V., filmed a Teen Summit program at the center as a culmination of the day's festivities. It focused on respecting others and respecting diversity.

Congressman Bruce Vento and Minneapolis Mayor Sharon Sayles-Belton joined Jackson as speakers for Saturday's events, which also featured a luncheon for 150 invited guests prepared by students in the culinary arts program.

All speakers celebrated Job Corps as a positive force in society, not just for the youth being trained there, but for all people.

In his rally speech, titled "Reclaiming Our Youth," Jackson emphasized the Job Corps role of fulfilling the 21st century challenge to re-equip people with needed skills. Jackson said youth and their parents are not getting the attention they need. We need to provide jobs for parents as well as training young people to "keep hope alive," he said.

Jackson visits Job Corps centers every week and everywhere he goes he sees a need for people with more to help those with less. In other words, those who are successful have a responsibility to help those trying to be successful, he said.

Vento, host for Saturday's rally, celebrated the Job Corps' role in education along with Jackson, and emphasized that Minnesota's Hubert Humphrey was the main supporter of Job Corps when it began. As a result, Job Corps keeps the memory of Humphrey alive, according to Vento.

Sayles-Belton set out three ingredients that have made her successful: education, supportive friends and a desire to help others. She said the Job Corps helps make our youth successful by providing such ingredients.

Job Corps is aimed at high-risk youth, ages 16 to 25, from all over the country. It provides work experience and training in painting and wallpapering, culinary arts, office professions, building maintenance and health occupations.

Students observe each program during orientation and decide which one they want to study. The two most popular programs are culinary arts and office occupations.

Students proceed at their own pace and can remain in Job Corps for three years. All take courses in health, parenting and job-hunting. Those who need to pass the G.E.D. take basic reading.

Falcon Heights taking bids for police services; community concerns listed

By Julie Lehr

Proposals to provide police services for the City of Falcon Heights will be requested by the city within the next few weeks. The City Council was expected to finalize the request at its Feb. 23 meeting.

Seeking the proposals does not reflect unhappiness with the police services currently provided Falcon Heights by the Roseville Police Department, said City Administrator Susan Hoyt. Rather, it's a routine procedure to determine if contracted services meet the city's needs and if the price is fair.

"Falcon Heights contracts for a number of services," Hoyt explained. "The police services are the most expensive, representing about 25 percent — or a quarter million dollars — of the city's general fund budget. It is prudent for us to be sure we are getting the best buy for those dollars."

The request which soon will be sent out will reflect the comments received in a survey the city mailed to businesses, residents and fire rescue personnel to ask what they want in police services. Five neighborhood meetings also were held in December and January to discuss community expectations for police services.

"I'm very pleased with the process we chose to follow in this," said Council Member Sue Gehrz. She and Council Member Sam Jacobs worked with Hoyt to develop the request for services. "We worked very hard to give people a chance, through the survey and through the forums, to express their thoughts."

Not surprisingly, "quick response to emergencies" was the top priority expressed by residents and businesses who responded. Other desired services include: teamwork with fire and rescue workers, a visible patrol on neighborhood streets and playgrounds, easily accessible and friendly police personnel, partners in crime prevention activities, a commitment to the community.

"The term 'community policing' has become something of a buzzword these days," Hoyt said. "And yet that concept is exactly what came up when we talked with residents and businesses about police services."

According to Gehrz, Falcon Heights residents expressed a willingness to work in partnership with police and value "opportunities to be involved in prevention activities." But residents expressed some concerns about police visibility and would like to see more patrols in their neighborhood, she added.

How these concerns will be addressed is what interested police departments will need to describe in proposals to Falcon Heights. Hoyt said the city hopes to send out the requests in March and begin receiving proposals four to six weeks later.

"For budgeting purposes, it would be nice to know by the end of July whom we will be contracting with and what the cost will be," Hoyt said.

The city's contract for police services with Roseville extends through the end of 1994, so no change will take place before January 1995. This is the fifth year Roseville has held the contract for police services in Fal-

Community meetings will focus on crime, non-violence

A Town Meeting focusing on crime is planned for Wed., March 9, at 7 p.m., at the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, Como Avenue at Carter. Sponsored by the St. Anthony Park Community Council, the meeting will feature a presentation from Meredith Vogland from the police department's program Graffiti Inc. Commander Mike Smith of the Northwest Team will speak in follow up to the shootings at Hampden Park Foods. Lt. Nancy DiPerna from the Vice Unit will talk about the proposed changes at Gatsby's.

Hampden Park Foods Co-op is sponsoring a workshop on non-violence at St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church, 2200 Hillside Ave. It is open to all who are interested in exploring ideas and practical ways to address personal violence. The workshop will be an interactive session examining values regarding violence and safety while learning a range of non-violent skills.

The facilitators are Betsy Raasch-Gilman of Future Now and David M. Miller of Friends for a Nonviolent World.

Reservations should be made by Feb. 28 for one of three sessions: Sat., March 5, 1-4 p.m.; Sat., March 12, 9 a.m.-noon; or Mon., March 14, 6-9 p.m. The suggested donation is $8. Call any coordinator at Hampden Park Foods, 646-6686, for more information.

St. Anthony Park Community Council News

Council elections coming up

Candidates have until Tues., March 8, to file for seats on the Community Council. Elections are scheduled for Tues., April 12. Three delegates and two alternates will be elected from North St. Anthony Park and two delegates and two alternates will be elected from South St. Anthony Park. Delegates serve two-year terms and alternates serve one-year terms.

The Community Council provides grass roots perspective citizen participation and involvement in local and city issues. The Council makes recommendations on permits, licenses and capital improvement spending. The Council sponsors events like the Neighborhood Cleanup, Community Garage Sale and Christmas Tree Recycling. Council members are involved in a variety of issues in housing, economic development, environmental issues and social services.

Currently the Community Council is addressing the Small Area Plan for the University/Franklin area, noise abatement along Highway 280 and the rash of graffiti in several different parts of the Park. More activity is expected this year in the realm of crime prevention. The Nominating Committee members for North St. Anthony Park are David Skilbred (644-5578) and Barbara Scott Murdock (647-9341). The South St. Anthony Park Nominating Committee members are Bob Arndorfer (646-2235) and Carolyn Davis (646-7788).

Business representation is coordinated through the Midway Chamber of Commerce and the St. Anthony Park Business Association. Terms for five delegates and two alternates are each a one-year commitment. The structure of the council has provided an excellent forum for positive working relationships between the business and residential communities.

Elections will be held on April 12 from 2-9 p.m. For more information call the Council office at 292-7884.

Town meeting on crime in the Park

On Wed., March 9, at 7 p.m., at the St. Anthony Park Library, the Council will hold a town meeting on crime. The meeting will feature a presentation from Meredith Vogland from the police department's program Graffiti Inc. Meredith will show an informative video about graffiti and answer questions about what's going on in our area and what we can do about it.

Commander Mike Smith of the Northwest Team will speak in follow up to the shootings at Hampden Park Foods. Commander Smith is the head of the Northwest Team and he will be able to answer questions about how officers are assigned in our part of town and what our crime rate looks like compared to other areas in St. Paul.

Lt. Nancy DiPerna from the Vice Unit will talk about the progress of the proposed changes at Gatsby's. She can give us current information about the surveillance by the city's licensing department, and the actions the police are taking to monitor the activity at Gatsby's.

The regular March meeting of the Community Council will follow the Town Meeting. All Community Council meetings are open to the public.

Choose to Reuse—Waste Reduction Fair

Come and bring your kids on Sat., March 5, from 1-5 p.m. to the Science Museum of Minnesota. Recycling displays will include a Nearly-New Fashion Show featuring surprise guests modeling hot items from the racks of Goodwill and Elite Repeat. ArtScraps Crafts will have a demonstration of how kids can make new crafts with old materials. Learn how to shop SMART (save money and reduce trash). Find out about second-hand stores, libraries, worm boxes and more. Some businesses will have merchandise for sale. There will be door prize drawings and a variety of displays and waste reduction activities.

Council-sponsored meetings are listed each month in the Bugle Community Calendar on page 17.

Everyone is welcome!

St. Paul's Northwest, Southwest Police teams to merge by Sept. 1 in department reorganization

By Jane McClure
Neighborhood News Service

What will changes in police department organizational structure mean for St. Paul neighborhoods? What will happen when the Southwest and Northwest teams become a West division?

Will neighborhoods see the same amount of police service, less or more? Will plans to have more police substations throughout the city provide more of a police presence?

St. Paul Police Chief William Finney contends that the pending reorganization won't have a major impact on area neighborhoods. That's the message he's delivering to community leaders, in the wake of controversy over a proposal to combine team police areas and possibly close the Southwest Area Team headquarters in Highland Park.

The Southwest Area Team police headquarters building will remain open, said Finney, even after a Sept. 1 merger with Northwest Area Team police. Northwest Team's facility at University and Dale also will remain in use. Both headquarters will be used for roll calls for the city's new West police division.

"This transition is basically a paper transition," Finney said.

He predicted that residents will notice few, if any, changes in service.

The Southwest area is bounded by the Mississippi River. The northern boundary is University Avenue from the western city limits to Hamline Avenue, then south to Summit Avenue, east to Ramsey Hill, down Ramsey Hill to I-35E, north along I-35E to Kellogg Boulevard and Eagle Street, and from Eagle Street to the river.

The Northwest team covers neighborhoods to the north of the Southwest area, to the northern and western city limits. It includes the St. Anthony Park and Como neighborhoods and Frogtown. The new West division would include much of the Northwest and Southwest territory, except for part of the West Seventh-Fort Road neighborhood. That area will be switched to the Central division.

News of the police department reorganization has sparked an outcry in some neighborhoods and questions in others. Fliers protesting the changes have been circulated in the Highland Village area, along with a petition against the merger. A letter-writing drive, targeting Finney and Mayor Norm Coleman, is also under way.

Highland Area Community Council Member John Gryzbek

is one of a growing number of people questioning the merger of the two teams, and the fate of the Southwest facility.

If the Southwest facility is shut down, it won't happen for two years, said Finney. But he predicts that the building will stay open, possibly as a substation.

What people may see are more police substations. Use of the current Southwest building as a substation is one idea that has been raised. Three or four police substations are proposed in each of the three new police divisions. Finney also wants each of the area colleges and universities to have some sort of police presence, such as a desk or work area.

Substation sites also will be sought in the Northwest Team area. One substation in that team area, at Selby and Dale, is seeing limited use. The first substation in the city, on Payne Avenue in the East Team area, opened last year.

Substation and college spaces would be donated. The police department's current policy on substations is that space, utilities, desk volunteers and furnishings are donated by the community, with the police officers then assigned to the substation. Police officers use the substation as a base, returning there when called by a volunteer, said Finney.

The St. Paul Police Department wants more voluntary partnerships in city neighborhoods, Finney said. That may mean expansion of such volunteer efforts as the police reserves and neighborhood assistance officers. The police chief would also like to see the substation concept succeed through use of community volunteers to staff a desk and handle questions from walk-in visitors.

Some at the January meeting were skeptical about the substation concept. "Lots of luck," said Highland Area Community Council Community Organizer Gayle Summers. "I think if people see a substation, they're going to want to come in and talk to an officer, not a volunteer."

But much of the walk-in traffic at substations isn't related to emergency situations, Finney said. Volunteers can take complaint information, or answer some questions, or arrange for an officer to meet a citizen at the substation.

"If you need a cop immediately, you call 911," Finney said.

Music in the Park's Julie Himmelstrup named "Marvelous Minnesota Woman"

By Julie Lehr

Her friends and associates have always known that Julie Himmelstrup is pretty marvelous; now the entire state will find out.

Himmelstrup, a St. Anthony Park resident and founder of the Music in the Park Series, is one of eight women from throughout the state who will be honored as "Marvelous Minnesota Women" on Feb. 28. In ceremonies at the State Capitol, Lieutenant Governor Joanell Dyrstad will present the women with their awards.

Another St. Anthony Park resident, Janet Dieterich, is co-chair of the Marvelous Minnesota Women Committee. The committee advertises for nominations for the award through the Minnesota Women's Consortium and its 128 member organizations. Individuals may submit nominations also.

"The committee then goes through the nominations and comes up with a cross section that highlights the accomplishments of Minnesota women," Dieterich said. Among the women being honored will be Sheila Wellstone, wife of U.S. Sen. Paul Wellstone.

"The committee is honoring Sheila for her own significant work in the area of domestic abuse," said Dieterich, "not because she's the wife of the senator." As a "high profile" woman, Wellstone is more the exception among the Marvelous Minnesota Women.

"We look for women who contribute quietly to the community," Dieterich said. "We thought Julie is an example of a wonderful, multi-faceted leader. She's an innovator, with great ability to take a project and make it work at the grass roots level."

But Himmelstrup protests, "I don't consider myself a leader so much as a facilitator. I've edged this along for so many years," she said of her Music in the Park Series, which is in its 15th season.

She was surprised and delighted to learn of the award. "I think it's absolutely wonderful — better than Miss America. You could have blown me over with a feather." With her Music in the Park, Himmelstrup's goal has been "to make chamber music in its many forms accessible to people."

Her selection as a Marvelous Minnesota Woman is a testimony to her success in achieving that goal.

The Marvelous Minnesota Women program began during the administration of Gov. Rudy Perpich. It is part of a day-long event known as Women Come to the Capitol Day.

Four St. Anthony Park residents were treated to lunch at Muffuletta Restaurant on Feb. 10 in honor of their 50-plus years of coverage with State Farm Insurance. Agent James Roehrenbach arranged the celebration for Marie Nodland, Daniel Jones and Ralph and Verna Wayne, noting, "In today's marketplace this type of loyalty is quite remarkable."

Also remarkable is Jones' record. His "accident-free date" is the same day he started with State Farm, more than 60 years ago.

Three St. Anthony Park third graders take center stage in the Unity Church-Unitarian's fifth annual children's musical, The Magic Violin. Lily Bevis, Emily Letourneau and Maggie O'Rourke play sister princesses in the musical based on a Separdic Jewish folk tale.

John Hawkins of Boy Scout Troop 218, sponsored by Holy Childhood Church, has passed the Board of Review for Eagle Scout rank. For his Eagle Scout service project, Hawkins organized the planting of several hundred trees in Crosby Park on Warner Road in St. Paul.

Hawkins also has been appointed to the rank of Cadet Colonel at Cretin-Derham Hall High School. Another Troop 218 Scout, Joe Jorissen, has earned the rank of Major at Cretin-Derham Hall.

Harvey Nestaval, VFW 4th District Commander from local Joseph A. Erwin Post 458, will be one of two people honored at a testimonial dinner on March 20 at Lake Elmo VFW Post 5725. A social hour will be held from 1 to 2 p.m., followed by the dinner at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 and the event is open to the public. For more information call 645-6577.

What is the Bugle's mission?

A letter mailed recently to Park Bugle Board President Dale Tennison accuses the newspaper of being a "feel good" publication.

The Bugle, the letter asserts, isn't fulfilling its mission. It did not provide adequate coverage of the sexual harassment charges leveled against former City Council Member Paula Maccabee. It also does not provide full coverage of crime in the neighborhood, reporting only the attempted robbery and subsequent shootings at the Hampden Park Co-op last fall.

The letter implies that the Bugle, in failing to report on these matters, is trying to make life appear rosier than it actually is in Falcon Heights, Lauderdale, St. Anthony Park and Northwest Como. The Bugle, it asserts, "appears to be published for the purpose of causing the readers to feel positive about the neighborhood and its government whether such feeling is warranted by reality or not."

What about these charges?

The matter of crime in the neighborhood is worth a more comprehensive look. Are we really experiencing an increase in the number and frequency of crimes, or do the sensational cases skew our viewpoint? Falcon Heights City Council Member Sue Gehrz said that while door-knocking last fall during her re-election campaign, many residents spoke of their concerns about crime. Yet Falcon Heights is not exactly experiencing a crime wave.

Is crime soaring in our neighborhoods? In our schools? I don't know the answer, but I'll make this pledge. Over the next few months, we will endeavor to find out and report the results in the Bugle.

And what about the Maccabee incident? The story with its sensational claims and counterclaims became a media soap opera. Was there anyone in the Twin Cities who had not heard on radio, seen on television or read in the dailies about the charges made against Maccabee? (My parents who live in Florida knew about the case!) Could the Bugle have added anything useful to the debate or enlightened anyone in this matter? I think not.

But I'd like to hear from readers on the issue, and also on how the Bugle can best meet your needs.

Give credit where due

Dear editor,

In the Community Profile of St. Anthony Park in the Jan. 30 issue of the Pioneer Press, the Community Council was credited with sponsoring the annual Fourth of July Celebration. In truth the event predates the Council and has been sponsored by the St. Anthony Park Association for decades. This wonderful civic and social group has been the backbone of this community, supplying volunteer power to other groups as well as sponsoring monthly meetings and several annual events.

One of the outstanding features of St. Anthony Park is the cooperation among the wide diversity of volunteer groups. The St. Anthony Park Association deserves recognition and laurels for the significant contribution it makes to the quality of life in this part of town.

Nice lights, Bob

Dear editor,

At our January board meeting, one of the topics of discussion was how nice the Park looks with all the lights up, especially in our retail area around Como and Carter. We felt it important that our neighbors know that Bob Harvey of Edelweiss Design is the person responsible for the super job on the lights in our little downtown area of North St. Anthony Park. Thanks, Bob, for your continued work to help make the Park such a special neighborhood.

Officer Timm applauded

Dear editor,

Reader Robin C. Vue-Benson in his/her February letter questioning the justifiability of the shooting of the robbers of the Hampden Park Co-op, is thinking way too hard. This is a simple situation:

We have two punks walking into a business establishment and sticking a gun in the face of the cashier. We have Officer Timm, after seeing one of them brandishing a pistol, opening fire on the punks. Officer Timm was employed by the co-op not because co-op members are paranoid gun freaks, but because they're tired of being victimized.

As to exactly what happened, frankly, who cares? If Officer Timm erred in determining his course of action in that split second, I for one am glad he erred on the side of decent law-abiding citizens and not this felonious riff-raff.

Reader Vue-Benson can study police order 246.00 all day long, but one simple fact remains: It's not a bad idea to try to educate would-be armed robbers that if they're going to endanger the lives of innocent people, they are endangering their own lives as well.

Am I glad those two youths were killed? Of course not. But until we as a society stop all of this bleeding-heart liberal nonsense, we are going to continue to be victims of random violent acts.

I applaud Officer Timm and I applaud the Hampden Park Co-op for caring enough about the protection of their customers and employees to have hired him.

Flowers by Jane will be missed

Dear editor,

I was extremely dismayed to hear that one of St. Anthony Park's businesses, namely Flowers by Jane, has been given one month's notice to vacate its location in Milton Square. In the three years that I have enjoyed the services of this charming flower shop, I have been impressed with Jane's creativity, flexibility, and willingness to serve the community and its organizations.

What a joy it has been in the early spring months to walk down Como Ave. and see Jane and her flowers brightening the corner of Carter and Como. And how convenient to stop on the way home from work and walk out with a unique bouquet or an unusual dried arrangement. Although Jane plans to continue her business, it will not be in our neighborhood. The convenience and charm offered by Flowers by Jane will no longer be a part of the St. Anthony Park scene. This is surely a great loss to all of us.

Joanne Karvonen,
St. Anthony Park

Editor's note: Joanne Karvonen sent Mary Ann Milton, president of Milton Investment Co., a copy of her letter to the Bugle. Milton responded with a lengthy letter, excerpts of which are printed below.

More on Jane

Dear editor,

In the past two weeks, rumors have been circulating in the neighborhood concerning the future of one of Milton Square's current tenants, Flowers by Jane. Ordinarily we would treat our relationship with a commercial tenant as a confidential matter and would not expect the relationship to become the subject of public discussion. But in view of the many contributions made to the community over the past three years by Jane Carlson, the owner and operator of Flowers by Jane, the intense interest shown by Jane's loyal customers in the business's future, and the letter-writing campaign currently being waged to press for continuation of her business in its present location, we feel it is necessary to share with the community some of the facts which might not otherwise be known regarding the current situation.

As Jane has been telling her customers during the past two weeks, she has been given notice that she will no longer be able to rent her current space after Feb. 28, 1994. She is not being evicted. Her month-to-month tenancy has been terminated effective at the end of February. A notice was given to her on Jan. 29, 1994, to comply with legal requirements to allow Milton Square to rent adjacent vacant space to a new tenant. The new tenant, whose name cannot be publicly revealed at this time, is a well-established Minneapolis neighborhood jewelry store. ...

Milton Square began discussions with the new tenant in November of 1993. The new tenant originally was very much looking forward to sharing our lower level with Flowers by Jane. We quickly prepared plans for improving the new tenant's space and submitted the plans to the city for review.

Unfortunately, in January we learned that new city codes would not permit both the new tenant and Flowers by Jane to share the lower level. Because of the new tenant's security requirements, fire exits could not be shared and it would be impractical to build new exits. We were faced with a very difficult situation. We wanted to keep both tenants, but we could not accommodate both tenants in the space beneath Muffuletta. If we allowed Flowers by Jane to stay in its present location, we would lose the prospective new tenant. If we wanted to finalize plans with the new tenant, we would have to ask Flowers by Jane to move. ...

During the past three years we have shown the vacant space adjacent to Flowers by Jane to a number of prospective tenants. For a variety of reasons, we did not reach

Getting involved in your neighborhood—on a first-name basis

By Abby Struck

It was early December, my older daughter Meg's birthday, and she wanted a fire in the fireplace. The logs had been laid the previous spring, and the first fire of the fall or early winter is always especially dry and quick to light.

I carefully checked the flue and proceeded to light our first blaze of the season. It started smoking—the chimney was apparently blocked. While my husband went for the fire extinguisher in the kitchen, I wrapped Meg and Fiona up in a blanket and took them to Ann and Dave next door. The girls were a little scared but, because they knew our neighbors, I was able to return to the house and help open windows and set up fans.

Cliff and I both came out of it with nasty cases of bronchitis and, we later discovered, a bit of mental confusion from the fumes. We probably should have called the Fire Department to help with larger fans to air out the house. But what would we have done if we had not been able to take the girls (early grade school ages) somewhere safe? How much more vulnerable their young bodies?

It's not just in emergencies that it's helpful to know your neighbors. We weren't home when my friend Mary came to store some of her furniture in our basement, so she let herself in. One of our neighbors sat on his front steps watching to see that nothing was amiss. Another neighbor, Willi, came over and asked Mary what she was doing. When we got home, most of the heavy work was done, and seeing how our neighbors had "kept an eye on things" was very reassuring about the neighborhood.

The immediate neighborhood is like the immediate family. The importance of a positive, functional, working relationship is pretty obvious. But many of us get a bit more bogged down when it comes to neighborliness on a little broader basis. We do what is comfortable, and leave the rest to "people who get paid to do that sort of thing."

"It takes a village to raise a child" says the African proverb. Yet how many of us get horribly uncomfortable at the prospect of setting limits for someone else's kids? I face this at Scouts or church, when the rowdiness of some kids exceeds my tolerance; but I rarely say anything—to the child or the parents. Sometimes I commiserate with other adults, but it is too "intrusive" to suggest some different parenting techniques to another mom. So, I avoid the child or children in question, and try to keep them clear of my kids so they won't be a bad influence in their rowdiness. In the meantime, I am ignoring the needs of those kids and sticking my head in the sand about the possible longer term results.

At the skating rink I see a further level of abstraction. These are kids from the neighborhood, but I don't necessarily know them, and I may not know their parents. Here the involvement is more a function of protection than discipline. I take it on myself to enforce the rule about no hockey sticks on the general rink because, at seven, Fiona and her friend du jour usually need the space and security of not having to worry about getting hit by a stick as they learn to skate.

I can't always find a staff member, so I take it on myself to keep things comfortable for my kids. I take on the potential conflict for the best interests of Meg, Fiona and their friends.

So how far can we abstract a question before we can ignore it completely, or write it off? I'm firm, you're stubborn, he's bullheaded. If you're unemployed it's a recession; if I'm unemployed it's a depression. At what point does enlightened self-interest end and we choose to stick our collective heads in the sand, refusing to deal with what is going on around us?

Volunteerism on the neighborhood level is a major way to address this concern. Exercising enlightened self-interest by volunteering may lead to the pleasure of accomplishment, increased self-esteem, altruism. The variety of opportunities is excellent. I could address the skating rink issues through the recreation center's booster club, or perhaps the Parks and Recreation Commission. I can help direct the rowdiness of others' kids through Scout activities, Neighborhood Cleanups and other physical kinds of activity that can give a positive direction for all that youthful energy.

Community Councils, block clubs and neighborhood associations all give wonderful opportunities to expand our sphere of influence and our horizons. We can learn about issues that go beyond our immediate block and flow into the city as a whole, affecting the future of our neighborhoods, parks, schools. As volunteers we can become better informed consumers of city services. We can serve on committees and provide citizen input to the public decision-making process.

In Falcon Heights, there is 100 percent coverage of Crime Watch. In St. Paul's District 10, there was excellent participation in the election of new representatives to the Community Council. There is much to be optimistic about in looking at the citizen participation process in St. Paul.

Now the St. Anthony Park Community Council is seeking candidates to run for and serve on the Council. Community Councils deal with land use, traffic problems and ecological issues. They provide city hall with the neighborhood perspective on current issues. Councils have been the starting place for Block Nurse-Living at Home Projects, Neighborhood Cleanups, drop-in and after-school child care and crime watch programs. Neighbors in St. Paul have started programs that later brought national attention to their accomplishments. St. Paul is held up as the example of how neighborhoods function successfully.

What do you gain from serving as a volunteer at the local level? Plenty! As you become better informed, your opinion is taken seriously by decision-makers at the city level. You meet and get to know staff people who can help you accomplish your neighborhood goals, or help you find alternate resources. You gain perspective as you see other parts of the city in a new light and come to appreciate a broader outlook.

Most of all, you learn grass roots democracy. This is the very basis of civilized human interaction. This is the place to exercise give and take. This is the place to give your children a solid role model, showing the personal satisfaction of volunteer work. This is where you gain the mutual respect, and even affection, of your neighbors—on a first-name basis.

Abby Struck is community organizer for the St. Anthony Park (District 12) Community Council.

agreement with any of these prospective tenants and Jane was allowed to continue using the vacant space as needed at no additional charge. During all this time, Jane was operating without a written lease on a month-to-month basis and knew she could be asked to leave on one month's notice. She had ample opportunity to secure a written lease to protect her shop, but during this time she claimed she could not afford to pay rent at the rates needed to cover the operating expenses of our complex. During this time we hoped that her business would improve so that she could pay competitive rents, and we gave her every support and encouragement to this end.

Since Jane's receipt of notice to vacate, some individuals claiming to be Jane's customers have engaged in a poison pen campaign designed to scare away the prospective new tenant and to pressure Milton Square into allowing Jane to continue renting her current space on terms favorable to her. We do not include in this characterization any of the signed letters which have been sent by honorable people to both the Bugle and the management of Milton Square. We will be responding to those letters to explain our view of what has happened. The anonymous letter writing activity, however, is very regrettable and counter-productive.

No one has been a bigger supporter of Flowers by Jane than the management of Milton Square. At some point, however, we all must face economic facts. The facts in this case are that Flowers by Jane, according to Jane, is unable to make enough money to pay market rents and still provide enough profit to make Jane's investment of time and energy worth Jane's effort.

In deciding whether Milton Square should continue subsidizing this business, I have had to consider what the prospective new tenant would mean to Milton Square and the community. A new tenant paying more than four times the rent paid by Flowers by Jane will make it possible to make more of the improvements that we would like to make at Milton Square. With the signing of a new 20-year lease by Muffuletta in the Park Restaurant and improving prospects for leasing the remaining vacant space in Milton Square, we expect to have the finances in place by spring to do the roof and stucco repairs that we feel are necessary to preserve and enhance the appearance of Milton Square for future generations. We also will be able to do the internal repairs and improvements required to keep Milton Square in compliance with building and safety codes. On balance, if we are forced to choose, we believe that this is more important than preserving Flowers by Jane in its current location. ...

Megard pledges cooperation with neighborhood groups

By Kristin Cooper

Newly-elected St. Paul City Council Member Bobbi Megard met with Ward 4 community organizers and district council members in January to discuss communication and cooperation between the part-time City Council and the neighborhoods.

Megard said one of the outcomes of the City Council retreat in January was a decision to reserve full council meetings for resolutions and budget adjustments. She said this step will bring issues out to the front for discussion, rather than promoting "horse-trading" behind the scenes.

To improve communication between the city and neighborhoods on the issues and problems that exist, Megard said one of her first goals in office is to build support for regaining the position of citizen participation coordinator, which the council cut from the 1994 budget. She sees this position as a connection for neighborhood participation groups and the city.

Megard said that after spending many years as a community organizer, she could appreciate some of the frustration community councils can have with their city counterparts, but promised a change in her term.

"I saw in the past a setting aside of guidelines for pet projects," Megard said. "As a City Council member, I won't do it that way." She said that while politics is a part of her new job, she has a respect for the process set up to get things done.

While some voices in the city claim that community councils are anti-business, Megard said the community councils in Ward 4 work hard to bring together neighborhood and business interests. She cited the cooperation that has made the University and Raymond area a success.

Block clubs and neighborhood crime prevention efforts are another area where Ward 4 has been successful, she said. Safe cities and neighborhoods have to be a priority to keep middle-class people in the city, she said, and added that it is a job the police cannot do alone.

She said her aide, Ann Cieslak, will be visiting all six district councils in Ward 4 to meet with the organizers individually about issues in their neighborhoods and to tour the areas.

Megard said she wants Cieslak, who is a former community organizer, to be shown the good and the bad, because Megard saw both when she was door knocking during her campaign. She believes it is important to address the social issues.

Megard agreed to meet quarterly with the community organizers and district council members to discuss common issues.

Curbside collection of items for Goodwill expanding to St. Anthony Park

By Lee Ann Owens

Save that old stuff. Some of it, anyway, may be recyclable in a pilot curbside program which is expanding to District 12. Eligible items include small working appliances and household goods, old clothes and clean rags.

The neighborhood soon will be officially notified with a brochure and a bag tag left in household recycling bins. Then the St. Paul Neighborhood Energy Consortium in cooperation with Goodwill Industries, Inc. will begin collecting reusable material in St. Anthony Park, along with recyclables.

"Goodwill doesn't repair things anymore. If it can't be used right off the rack, don't give it to Goodwill. Textiles can be recycled into rags, but must be clean. Household goods need to be in good condition. The guideline is if you'd give it to a friend, you can give it to Goodwill," said Martha McDonell, Saint Paul Neighborhood Energy Consortium recycling information manager.

Recyclable textiles must be clean, free of paint, grease and mildew. Scrap cloth will be cut up and recycled as stuffing or for other industrial uses. Besides the textiles and small working appliances, games, toys, books, hardware, tools and non-breakable kitchen goods also may be recycled in the program.

Items not recyclable with this program include:

- * broken items
- * carpet
- * chemicals
- * dirty cloth
- * garbage
- * hazardous waste
- * plastic bags

- * plumbing fixtures
- * scrap metal
- * things bigger than a bag

Funding for the Goodwill pickup is provided through regular recycling budget expenditures which property taxes fund. "It's not costing us any more because the drivers are already going there. We're actually not paying anything. Goodwill's doing all the sorting. They employ people learning job skills to do all the sorting," McDonell said.

"The program has been under way for a year in District 10. It's been going very well—we've had good response. A lot of people have found it to be a convenient service," McDonell said.

Because the Goodwill pickup went well in District 10, along with the other pilot program areas of Highland Park and Battle Creek, the service is being expanded to include half of St. Paul. Districts 8, 9, 11, 12, 13 and 16 will be added.

SuperCycle Inc. picks up the household goods and textiles on regular recycling days. The bags that are to go to Goodwill are specially marked. Beginning with the pilot program expansion, a new tagging system will be used to more clearly designate what is to go to Goodwill.

Contents must fit within a securely closed, water tight, tagged 30-gallon bag with a weight that haulers can pick up. On pickup days, the bags should be set out on the curb by 7 a.m. next to the blue recycling bins. After the bag is picked up, a new tag will be left in the bin.

"The great thing is everyone benefits—we're keeping all this material from ending up in landfills," said Jim Norgard, public relations manager of Goodwill Industries, Inc./Easter Seal Society of Minnesota.

Although recycling donations drop off a bit during the winter months, the ease of home pickup has made Goodwill program participation good. "On our part it is going very well. People enjoy the convenience," Norgard said.

"Goodwill's been pleased. They've been pretty happy with what's been coming in. Sometimes their dropoffs don't have very good quality. So far, we haven't been getting trash, which we're happy about," McDonell said.

Goodwill gets calls from people outside current pickup areas. "Many of the neighbors on the fringes want to be included in the program," Norgard said.

Funds collected from the resale of recyclable items go toward Goodwill's support of non-profit services for people with disabilities and the economically disadvantaged. According to Norgard, during 1993 over 2,600 people were served through Goodwill's programs including equipment loan for people who can't afford wheelchairs, information and referral services, and an agricultural program providing counseling and technical service for farmers with disabilities.

The old donated items are transferred to headquarters in Lauderdale where they are sorted and distributed to Goodwill's eight stores within the seven county metro area.

And there's a bonus for taxpayers. "The value of donated items is just as tax deductible as if you wrote us a check," Norgard said.

ing, writing and math skills classes.

Job Corps also provides two years of college for those who desire, and most students take advantage of this option at St. Paul Technical College or one of five participating community colleges and receive an Associate of Arts degree. Currently there are 260 residential students and 40 nonresidential students.

Youth are recommended for the Job Corps by school counselors or social service agencies, and outreach programs exist throughout the state. Economically and/or socially disadvantaged, these young people also receive stipends for clothing and an allowance. Counselors give weekly classes in social skills and supportive counseling in large and small groups. Job Corps boasts a high success rate—98 percent job placement, according to one of its directors, Sue Hanson.

The local Job Corps is celebrating a new connection with the Minnesota Twins, who have "adopted" the Job Corps. Student volunteers will work at Twins games by pitching balls to kids, handing out programs and passing out gifts, whether balls, hats or bats.

In addition, former Vikings Jim Marshall and Oscar Reed come to Job Corps once a week to work with small groups and discuss issues that put youth at risk—such as family, housing and racial concerns.

Holy Childhood

The Minnesota Zoo in Apple Valley conducts World Language Days. Our 8th grade students went to the German Day. At the gate they were greeted and presented with passports to be stamped after each presentation. Frau Merkle, their German teacher, was proud of her students. They understood the presentations given by the high school students and also answered their questions. The 8th graders also went to the Tropical Rain Forest, the Coral Reef, the Aquarium, the Bird Show, the Zoo Lab and the monorail. They had a wonderful time.

The students at Holy Childhood have just completed a week of classes held by the SteppingStone Theatre for Youth Development. David Whitson-Lind worked with grades 5-8 and Alisa Pritchett worked with grades K-4. Through the use of theatre games, exercises and acting they focused on the prevention of harassment and building self-esteem and self-confidence. On Feb. 11, grades 5 and 8 put on plays for the school with the help of their teacher, David.

We would like to thank Alisa Pritchett and David Whitson-Lind for all of their hard work.

Our candy sale was a huge success. We surpassed our goal of $7,000. Anna Kurkajetz, a 6th grader, was top seller. She sold 1,000 candy bars. The other high sellers were Amanda Wigfield, Sarah Nevins, Sean Whatley, Jacob and Lury Ogbozo, Jonathan Nelson, Matt Davini and Ryan Quam. Special thanks to all who helped make our sale such a successful one. The money will be used to purchase desks and other "extras."

Congratulations to Mrs. Patricia Richards, a chemistry teacher at Como Park. She has been chosen to represent Minnesota Science Teachers as the 1994 Minnesota Science Teacher of the Year! She will be honored at the MSTA spring conference on Feb. 24-26 in Duluth. Way to go, Mrs. Richards!

Competency tests will be held soon at Como Park. On four Wednesdays, different tests will be given to ninth graders and those who have not yet passed. You must pass all four tests to graduate from a St. Paul Public High School. The dates of the testing are as follows: language, Feb. 23; writing, March 2; mathematics, March 9; and reading, March 23. Good luck everyone!

The Winterfest Ball was on Feb. 11. This was Como's only semi-formal dance besides prom. The elected court for Winterfest coronation was: freshmen Lady Emily Foster and Lord Paul Banks, sophomores Duchess Daniela Retezan and Duke Anthony Barr, juniors Princess Jolene Gustafson and Prince Ray Rozales and seniors Queen Delia Morno and King Tong Lee. Hail, hail to the Winterfest Court!

Ms. Carlson, an outstanding counselor at Como Park, extends her most sincere invitation to come and tour Como Park Senior High. To contact her, call anytime at 293-8807.

Falcon Heights Elementary

Here at Falcon Heights we have started a new program called Peer Mediation. Peer Mediation is a way of solving problems on the playground, bus and classroom. In each classroom 3 mediators were elected. There are about 30 mediators all together. They take turns going out on the playground during recess about once a week. If a couple of kids are getting into a fight or have a conflict, they will go up to a peer mediator (who will be wearing a sash) and tell their problem. The peer mediators will help you think of solutions to your conflict. A peer mediator should be fair, understanding, responsible, have good verbalization skills, fast handwriting, be trusting, caring, respectful and have a good sense of humor. One of the rules is that all conflicts and arguments are to be kept confidential. This is where being trustworthy comes in handy.

Here is some commentary and opinions from staff, students and peer mediators:

Students: "I think it works. ...A great opportunity for kids to solve problems on the playground. I also think it's good that problems are confidential."

Peer Mediators: "It is a great idea but it doesn't always work." "We don't have enough problems, but it works great."

Teachers: "I haven't made up my mind yet, but I'm more interested in teaching good judgment before the accidents so that situations don't happen that require peer mediators. I also think that we have some mediators who are working very hard to help our school be a better place."

We are back once again with the National Merit scholarship finalists. These students are representing the highest placement on the P-SAT, which places them in the top one-half of one percent of U.S. high school seniors. Central is proud to have a dozen of these students up for this scholarship. From this area there are two: Claire Hruby and Daniel Larson. Congratulations to these students.

There is an upcoming seminar on March 7 & 14 from 7-9 p.m., discussing how to plan and prepare for high school and college. This meeting will cover various things, such as: class ranking, successful high school experiences, sequence of classes, credit requirements and registration information. Pre-registration is required by Fri., Feb. 25. To sign up, or to ask questions, call the Central Community Education Office at 293-8708.

This year March 4 is going to be a very important date for students in grades 8-11 because those students have to have an application in telling what high school they will be attending. If you don't fill out an application, you will not be registered for your school of choice.

Murray Junior High had the Science Fair on Feb. 7 and five students from the St. Anthony Park area will be going to the Regional Science Fair on March 11 & 12 at Augsburg College.

The Murray Junior High ski club got off to a great start. The final ski outing will be by March 4. March 4 is also the day that high school registration forms are due.

Mixed Blood Theater will give a one-man play March 23 about the great Jackie Robinson.

March 7 at 7 p.m. in the Library, Murray School Association will have a meeting to plan the garage sale scheduled for April 23.

March 5 is the State Science Olympiad. It's a contest between schools. One event is to make a protective covering from straws and tape for an egg, then see from what height you can drop it without the egg breaking.

The last day of school before Spring Vacation is March 25. School resumes April 5. March 11 there will be school in the morning only due to teacher workshops.

Valentine's Day royalty from the 4th, 5th and 6th grade classes. The King and Queen of Hearts were Jonathan Farnsworth and Aaryn Hill, the Prince and Princess were David Wellington and Johnetta Williams and the Duke and Duchess were John Barrick and Emily Salisbury.

The Science Fair was held on Wed., Feb. 23. All 5th and 6th grade students were required to do a project that was displayed and judged. Parents were invited to see the display.

We've had two acting groups come to our school. The Young Audiences program, La Comedia, did folktales from the Hopi, Scandinavia, Japan and Africa, emphasizing that women can be heroes. The Meliken Puppet theater also visited our school and this year their theme was Dragons. With "Merlin" narrating, they did three stories about dragons and ended their performance with a full, authentic Chinese Dragon.

COMO PARK

Booth Brown House renovation continues

The Salvation Army, which finished Phase I of a two-phase renovation project in October, has begun Phase II on the Booth Brown House, 1471 Como Ave.

Phase II, which is expected to be completed in July, includes the demolition of the North Wing, renovation of the historic Landmark Building and additional parking and landscaping. The project is estimated at $1 million. The two-phase project will cost a total of $2.5 million.

The Booth Brown House is a treatment and shelter program for adolescents in crisis. The renovation is needed to provide better, more up-to-date care for today's adolescents facing today's difficult problems.

Tour guides wanted for Japanese Garden

Applications are now being accepted for volunteer tour guides at the Como Ordway Memorial Japanese Garden, located next to the Como Park Conservatory.

Applicants should enjoy working with people in a serene, outdoor setting. Work shifts would be three hours per week from May to Labor Day.

The garden, which is open only when staffed by volunteers, will be open to the public daily from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., beginning May 7.

Call 489-0868 and leave your name and phone number to receive more information about this opportunity and the required training.

Kindergarten roundup

Chelsea Heights Elementary School, at the corner of Hamline and Hoyt Avenues, will hold its annual Kindergarten roundup on Tues., March 15, at 3:45 p.m. Parents of children who will be 5 years old by September 1, 1994, are encouraged to attend with their child. Call the school at 293-8790 to register for roundup.

Rain forest at Como Park

Rain forest animals from Como Zoo have joined tropical plants in Como Park's Conservatory to create a rain forest in Minnesota. The exhibit, sponsored by the Como Zoo Docent Association, is open from 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays through March 27. Several hands-on displays featuring animals, birds and products of the rain forest will be shown. Como Zoo Docents will discuss the plight of the rain forests and how to help.

Admission to the Conservatory is 50 cents, or 25 cents for students and seniors. Children under 10 are admitted free. For more information about the Como Zoo Docent Association call 488-4041.

La Leche League to meet

Breastfeeding mothers and mothers-to-be are invited to attend the next meeting of the Como-Midway La Leche League, on Tues., March 22, at 7 p.m. The topic is "The Art of Breastfeeding and Avoiding Difficulties." Experienced leaders and other nursing women will address questions and concerns to help overcome problems. For meeting location and information call Faye at 489-6356, Jeanne at 644-0302 or Kathy at 645-4953. Babies and toddlers are welcome.

Benefit for Humane Society

The Humane Society of Ramsey County will hold a "Black Tie & Tails" banquet and silent auction on Sat., March 19, beginning at 5:30 p.m., at the Bandana Square Banquet Center. While attendees dine, a "Tails on Parade" will introduce animals dressed for the occasion.

Call the development office, 646-6821, ext. 104, for more information.

The Humane Society of Ramsey County is located on Beulah Lane, adjacent to Como Park.

FALCON HEIGHTS

Plan for spring garage sale

Begin now to organize your treasures for the first annual Falcon Heights citywide garage sale, which is planned for spring. Anything usable is appropriate for the sale, including clothes, housewares, books, furniture, appliances, collectibles, toys and sporting equipment. The city will look into arranging for Goodwill to collect unsold items at curbside after the sale. There will be no charge to participate. The city will advertise the event and participating residents will display identifying signs. Further details will be available as spring approaches.

TV classes offered

CTV North Suburbs offers production classes beginning every month on how to produce television shows for Community Access Television Channels 33 and 63. Spring class offerings include basic studio production, basic field production, advanced video production, Amiga C.G. and "video toaster," an advanced special effects class.

Fees are $15 for residents of the northern suburbs of St. Paul, including Falcon Heights and Lauderdale, and $30 for non-residents. Classes are held at the CTV studios at 950 Woodhill Dr. in Roseville and at Irondale High School in New Brighton.

Class sizes are limited and pre-registration is required. Call CTV at 481-9554.

CTV North Suburbs is non-profit, non-commercial television regulated by the 10 cities in its viewing area.

Co-op child care center 20 years old

Community Child Care Center, Minnesota's oldest non-profit parent cooperative, is celebrating 20 years of service to the University and St. Anthony Park communities. Past and present families as well as local community members will attend a banquet at Bandana Square on March 26 at 6 p.m. Honored guests will include CCCC's former director of 14 years, Jackie Spies. Members of Son del Sur will provide entertainment.

Children will have a special "banquet" and be entertained at the Children's Museum. Prior to the banquet, an open house will be held at CCCC.

Former CCCC families and interested community members may call Susan Peterson at 645-8958 for more information.

Grand Canoe Rendezvous

The 1994 mid-March wilderness slidefest, the Grand Canoe Rendezvous, is scheduled for Sat., March 19, from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., at the University of Minnesota St. Paul Student Center Theater, 2017 Buford Ave.

Several adventurers will expound on their "travel by paddle" explorations. Highlighted will be the triumphant return of Judd Hoff and Steve Morgan, after their arduous five-month re-enactment of Eric Severeid and Walter Port's 1930 "Canoeing with the Cree" trip from Minneapolis to Hudson Bay.

Tickets are $10. Send reservation requests to Norm Kagan, 2378 Doswell Ave., St. Paul, MN 55108.

Theater

On Sun., March 13, Central Touring Theatre will present its play, "I Shall Not Be Moved," an original piece incorporating music and dance, created by advanced acting students from St. Paul Central High School. Performances at 2 and 7 p.m. will be presented at the St. Paul Student Center Theatre on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota.

This play confronts issues dealing with the concept of inner strength. The script was created entirely by advanced acting students. They explore the question of how they are enslaved not only by society, but by their own minds. They search for strength inside of themselves, while struggling with topics ranging from self-identity and sexuality to racism and violence.

The diverse group of more than 100 young people communicates a sometimes harsh, hopeful and honest portrayal of reality combined with hopes for the future.

Jan Mandell, artistic director of the company, is joined by a creative team of actors, playwrights and musicians including Michael Greenfield, Marvette Knight, Tyrone "Bongo" Pringle, Ahanti Young and Lacey Austin. The team assisted students with the production.

For more information or reservations, call Jan Mandell or Kimberly White at Central High School, 293-8700.

Visual Art

An exhibit entitled "Teacher as Mentor" will open March 11 and continue through April 29 at the Northern Clay Center, 2375 University Ave. The public is invited to an opening reception on Fri., March 11, from 6-8 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Showcased in this exhibit will be three ceramic educators from around the country: Aurore Chabot from the University of Arizona, Chris Gustin of the University of Massachusetts and Suze Lindsay, a resident artist at The Penland School of Crafts in Penland, North Carolina. The presentation will give insight into their programs and teaching philosophies and show work done by some of their students.

Gallery hours are Mon.-Sat., 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Ongoing programs at the Northern Clay Center include classes and workshops for children and adults at all levels of proficiency, studio space and a retail shop. For more information, call 642-1735.

Music

Music Under Glass concerts at Como Park Conservatory will present these performers on Thursdays in March:

- March 3: Los Amigos Hispanic Trio
- March 10: Avant Garde Brass
- March 17: Dakota Dave Hull singing Irish airs
- March 24: Sono Trio (strings)
- March 31: Sunita (harp and cello)

All concerts will be from noon to 1 p.m. and regular Como Park Conservatory admission prices apply: 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for those over age 62 and children age 11-16. Admission is free for children age 10 and under.

Concertgoers are encouraged to bring a lunch. Or box lunches at $5 may be purchased from the Como Park Lakeside Pavilion (488-4920) if they are ordered by noon the day before.

Call 489-1740 for more concert information.

Canada's Eileen McGann and Tom and Kris Kastle will be presented by the New Folk Collective on Sat., March 5, at 7:30 p.m., at the University of Minnesota St. Paul Campus Student Center Theater, 2017 Buford Ave. Sing Out! magazine describes McGann as "a talented, fine singer, and sensitive interpreter of traditional music all merged into one performer." The Kastes, formerly Privateer, use history and first-hand experience to tell the musical story of people who work and sail the Great Lakes.

Another Canadian, James Keelaghan, will perform on Fri., March 11, at 8 p.m. at the Student Center Theater. Opening for Keelaghan will be Peter Keane.

The Canadian Consulate General has provided special funding to present McGann and Keelaghan.

Tickets for each concert are $9 in advance or $10 at the door. Call the New Folk Collective, 379-3951, between 3 and 6 p.m., Mon.-Fri.

The Prevailing Winds Woodwind Quintet will present a recital at St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church, 2323 Como Ave., on Sun., March 6, at 4 p.m. The repertoire spans the centuries — from Sweelinck's Theme and Variations on a Folksong, to Danzi, to 20th century composers Koechlin and Victor Legley.

Three members of the quintet have ties to the community. Katherine Eklund, flute, is a St. Anthony Park resident. Neil Okerlund, horn, and Bruce Bissonett, clarinet, teach music in the Roseville/Falcon Heights school district. Wes Huisinga, oboe and English horn, and Terry Wilson, bassoon, complete the ensemble. Saxophonist Jim Romain and oboist Helen Boy will join the quintet for the Koechlin work.

The recital is free.

The Twin Cities Jazz Society will present Tal Farlow in "Great Guitarists Revisited," on Sat., March 12, 7:30 p.m., at the University of Minnesota Student Center Theater, 2017 Buford St. This world-renowned guitarist will lead a concert featuring a set in which he will be joined by several local jazz guitarists.

Ticket prices are $12 for non-members and $9 for members, students and seniors. Call Carol Simpson, 922-5487, for further information and ticket reservations.

The Lyra Concert will feature "winter" music by Antonio Vivaldi ("Winter" from The Four Seasons), Alessandro Scarlatti, Georg Muffat and Johann Werner in the third concert of its 1993-94 season. Soloists will be Lyra ensemble members Lucinda Marvin, violin; and Dick Hensold, recorder. The concert will be on Sat., March 12, at 8 p.m., at Luther Northwestern Campus Center, Hendon Avenue and Fulham St.

Tickets are $14, $12 for seniors, students and Minnesota Public Radio members. For ticket information call 930-7555.

Literature

The St. Anthony Park Writers' Workshop will meet on Tuesday, March 1 at 7:30 p.m., at 2262 Carter Ave. For further information, call 645-1135.

Minnesota Orchestra concertmaster to perform here on March 20

The Music in the Park Series presents Jorja Fleezanis, the concertmaster of the Minnesota Orchestra, in recital with Canada's much-heralded pianist Bernadene Blaha, on Sun., March 20, at 4 p.m. at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2129 Commonwealth Ave.

Fleezanis and Blaha, who met in 1991 at the Round Top Music Festival in Texas, have enjoyed playing chamber music together during the years following their meeting. The Music in the Park Series concert marks their first recital collaboration with a program including the Beethoven Sonata in C minor, Opus 30, #2; Bartok's Improvisations for solo piano; and the Bloch Sonata #1.

A special feature on the program will be the Minnesota premiere of Inscriptions for solo violin, by Pulitzer Prize-winning Israeli composer Shulamit Ran. Ran, who is currently the composer in residence for the Chicago Symphony, will be present to chat about her compositions at a 3 p.m. pre-concert talk.

Fleezanis and Blaha have had extensive careers in both the solo and chamber music realm. Fleezanis, who has been a member of the Chicago Symphony and associate concertmaster of the San Francisco Symphony prior to her post with the Minnesota Orchestra, has appeared numerous times as soloist with the Minnesota Orchestra.

In January, Fleezanis met great success in her "triumphant premiere performance" of John Adams' Violin Concerto. Her recent chamber music work includes membership in the FOG Trio with pianist Garrick Ohlsson and cellist Michael Grebanier. Blaha, who has given concerts throughout the world, has appeared as soloist with such orchestras as the Montreal, Toronto and Houston Symphonies. She earned first prize in the Masterplayers International Competition and was the top prize-winner in the 11th Annual International Piano Competition in New York City.

Music in the Park Series tickets are $11 at the door, $9 advance purchase and $5 student rush. Tickets may be purchased at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506) in St. Anthony Park. For more information call 644-4234.

Music and Dinner in the Park

The March 20 performance marks the second 1993-94 Music in the Park and Dinner in the Park collaboration to serve those in need. Just following the performance, concertgoers are invited to enjoy an international vegetarian dinner served by Dinner in the Park (St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, located just behind the site of the performance). All proceeds from the dinner will go toward outreach programs. The tax-deductible Dinner in the Park tickets are $10 each. For more information and reservations for the dinner call 645-3058.

Jazzy performers want family participation

Music in the Park Series presents "What is Jazz," the second in a three-part annual family series featuring entertaining and educational music for all ages at the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, Como at Carter Aves.

On Fri., March 4, at 6:15 and 7:30 p.m., Ruth MacKenzie, Joan Griffith and storyteller Toni Carter will use jazz to encourage people of all ages to exercise their imaginations and respect the creative potential in one another.

Audience members will experience how jazz uses imagination through improvisation and cooperation in performance. The trio will demonstrate how a dialogue, or musical conversation, is the basis of a jazz performance by giving everyone the chance to swing, scat, croon and jam.

All three women have many credits in the educational performance arena. Griffith has performed and toured with Young Audiences of Kansas City and the Oklahoma and Arkansas Artist-in-the-Schools programs. Her jazz honors include performances with Larry Coryell, Lee Konitz and Sheila Jordan. MacKenzie's performance credits include Women Who Cook, the Twin Cities Jazz Festival and the theater productions "Plain Hearts" and "Ten November." Carter has worked with the Minneapolis Public Schools, St. Paul

Schools and many others as a storyteller and workshop leader. Her performances include major roles in several Penumbra Theatre productions, many television and radio commercials as well as film and video appearances.

The Music in the Park family concert series is funded with a major grant from Target Stores. Tickets are $5 for adults and $4 for children, or $4 for adults and $3 for children if purchased in advance. Group rates are available. Tickets may be purchased at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506). For more information call 644-4234.

Sean Turner performs at musical homecoming

By Michelle Christianson

Everyone would like to return triumphantly to their home town and former St. Anthony Park area resident and pianist Sean Turner got that opportunity on Sunday, February 13, when he performed at the St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ as a part of the Music in the Park Series.

The program, entitled "For the Love of Jazz," featured the University of Minnesota Jazz Faculty Quintet as well as Turner in the third annual memorial tribute to long-time St. Anthony park resident and jazz aficionado Gus Donhowe. Turner was joined by bassist Tony Axtell, "the best kept secret in the Twin Cities" according to Turner, and by drummer Jess Wheeler. They performed two original modern jazz works by Turner, and one standard, My Romance, by Rodgers and Hart.

The homecoming was especially gratifying for Turner as the venue was the church he attended as he grew up. His family home was in the University Grove and he took piano lessons from Gladys Markley, teacher to more than one generation of area piano students. After graduation from Ramsey High School, Turner received his undergraduate degree in jazz performance from Arizona State University. He now is married, teaches at the University of St. Thomas and lives in St. Anthony Village.

Turner has performed with many local artists and especially enjoyed working with Ginger Commodore of Moore by Four and The Steeles, with whom he has recorded on the Warner Brothers label. His early music career includes credits as a vocalist. He was the featured vocal soloist with the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra and was first prize winner in the Thursday Musical vocal competition.

The connection with the Music in the Park Series began with his mother's friendship with series director Julie Himmelstrup and has ended with an opportunity for him to see old friends and to perform in a familiar place. All in all, a pleasurable homecoming.

Latch-key and summer child care program being studied for N.W. Como neighborhood

By Lee Ann Owens

A new daycare program is in the planning stages at Northwest Como Recreation Center at 1557 Huron St., next to Chelsea Heights Elementary School. The "S'More Fun" program would run as a before and after school enrichment program for children from first through sixth grade.

"We're still in the interest-planning stage. We really need to know they [the children] are out there. Otherwise, we're not going to do it," Angela Murray, Northwest Como Recreation Center director said.

A survey has been distributed in the Northwest Como Booster Club newsletter and area school newsletters to evaluate if parents would like a before and after school program provided.

The program has been under discussion for two years. A 1990 census report revealed a dramatic increase in the number of families with young children in the Como community, and a need was also revealed in an age group statistical report survey from Resources for Childcare in St. Paul, according to Murray.

The S'More Fun program gives children a number of choice-based structured activities. They can either participate in group gym activities, read-study work or creative pastimes. The activities are designed to be an educational enrichment for the children; some even feature cultural themes, according to Murray.

"We don't do any T.V. stuff. We do have a T.V. but it would only be used for educational purposes," Murray said.

Fees for S'more Fun are $80 per week for full days from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the summer; $35 per week for after school care Monday through Friday from 3:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.; $25 per week before school Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m.; or $48 a week for before and after school. Multiple-child discounts would also be available, according to Murray.

Because insurance is handled through the city and rent is not an added cost for Northwest Como and the facility already meets required codes, "we're able to keep fees lower than private daycare," Murray said.

To begin staffing and purchasing equipment, S'More Fun was given a $1,200 grant.

For five years, a similar program, which Murray designed, has been running successfully at Groveland Elementary and recreation center. The number of students participating in the program there has grown over the years, Murray said. The S'More Fun program also operates in several other St. Paul recreation centers.

"A program like this makes a school very desirable. Parents have a critical need for care. Childcare is a huge crisis in this country. Parents are using libraries and recreation centers as informal daycare. Even good parents! I still see kids every day at three. They have no place to go. They ask for food. We do what we can. It's a huge problem all over. We're trying to reach out locally and do what we can," Murray said.

For information on the S'More Fun program, call Angela Murray at 298-5813.

Is Your Home A Safe Place?

A new home and a new beginning. How safe is your home for your family and your investment?

All homes should now have hard-wired smoke detectors, located in the basement, near the furnace and in the bedroom hallways. Keep a fire-extinguisher handy in the kitchen and know how to use it. (Read the directions prior to a fire!) If you have a second story, a ladder or rope chain should be available so family members can exit. Practice a fire drill with the family.

Pay attention to the electrical wiring throughout the home. Appliances and systems that produce heat, such as: toasters, ovens, coffee makers, space heaters, water heaters and dryers, should all be on heavier amperage circuits, grounded and not overloaded. Does the bathroom have a ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI)? This is protection in an area where water and electricity might come in contact with one another.

Exterior doors should be made of steel or solid core. A good quality dead bolt lock should be standard on both the doors and patio entrances to the home. Check windows in basement and on main floor for secure locking devices.

Keep hazards to a minimum. Store paints, solvents and other ignitable fluids in areas away from open flames (furnaces, water heaters, gas dryers).

Keep the yard free of debris and sidewalk in good repair.

Apply lots of common sense, a little safety knowledge and stay alert to curious and careless children. If you leave it, they will find it!

Enjoy your home, and if you need help with real estate needs, call: Carol Weber at 636-2299.

Performances of child abuse play continue; teen troupe producing video/study guide

By Will Nobles

"It's up to you" is a multimedia production designed by a group of young people from St. Anthony Park. The group started out as a Public Achievement Team, through Project Public Life and the Humphrey Institute at the University of Minnesota. The production this group has created is a non-traditional look at child abuse through the eyes of young people. It takes the viewer through six powerful scenes, each with a different perspective.

The combination of music, dance and theatre has been called "unlikely" as an approach to such a difficult social issue, but the underlying message ("it has to stop") comes through clearly. The written evaluations from early productions included the following statements:

"The program cover is breathtaking." (Original art created by a 15-year-old St. Anthony Park resident.)

"Emotionally very effective, without violence."

"The dance was very effective ... powerful." (Choreographed by a 16-year-old St. Anthony Park resident.)

"The play was powerful and well done ... with polish and maturity. If you want to feel hope for the future, see this play."

"Excellent! You delicately yet effectively point out forms of abuse that are too often overlooked or accepted by the rest of us."

In addition to its debut at Landmark Center in St. Paul, the production was scheduled for two performances at "We are the village," a conference on child abuse sponsored by Congregations Concerned for Children. The group also performed in January at St. Martin's Table in Minneapolis. Upcoming productions are scheduled for March 23 at Union Congregational Church in St. Louis Park and April 28 at Edinborough Park, Edina, at 7:30 p.m. Other dates are being negotiated with some area public schools.

The group is using these performances to raise money to stop child abuse. (A donation of $100 from the Landmark Center performances is being forwarded to the Minnesota Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse.) Organizations wishing to schedule a performance are asked for a $75 fee to cover costs. Any amount beyond that fee will be donated by the group.

Other funds are being raised by the group to produce a video and study guide for "It's up to you." The following organizations have provided support and funding: St. Paul Youth Development Funds, St. Paul Youth Programs Fund, The St. Anthony Park Association, Community Suburban Channels, The Merriam Park Initiative for Violence-free Families, St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, The St. Anthony Park Community Council and Creative Theatre Unlimited. Creative Theatre Unlimited's Director Charles Numrich provided the leadership that allowed everything to happen.

For more information about production possibilities, contributions or use of the video/study guide, call Numrich at 642-5371.

Will Nobles is a member of the cast of "It's up to you."

Margaret Arnason

Margaret E. Arnason died on Jan. 18, 1994, just two weeks before her 98th birthday. She had lived in St. Anthony Park for over 50 years.

Arnason was the last in an Icelandic pioneer family. When her husband, Christian Arnason, died in 1941, she was left a young widow with four children. She moved to St. Anthony Park so that her children could continue their education at the University. She became an active member of St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church and was employed at the State Treasurer's office.

She is survived by two daughters; two sons; ten grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Elsie Bjorndahl

Elsie H. Bjorndahl died at age 91 on Feb. 2, 1994. She was a resident of St. Anthony Park for over 60 years. Her late husband Oscar was a long-time dentist on Como Avenue, along with his twin brother, Henry. Henry's son, Robert Bjorndahl, has continued the family tradition.

Bjorndahl was an active member of the St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ.

She is survived by three daughters; five grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Elsa Bronkala

Elsa M. Bronkala, 92, died on Jan. 26, 1994. She had lived in Lauderdale for over 60 years and was a member of Peace Lutheran Church.

Bronkala was preceded in death by her husband, William, Sr., her son, William, Jr., and a granddaughter, Barbara. She is survived by her son, Harold Bronkala; two daughters, Joyce Matheny and Ann Anderson; a daughter-in-law, Sally Bronkala; 15 grandchildren; and 22 great-grandchildren.

Joseph Brula

Joseph S. Brula, 81, died on Jan. 30, 1994. He was a resident of the Como Park neighborhood and a parishioner at Holy Childhood Catholic Church.

Brula was a teacher for 57 years; he taught math at Johnson High School. During World War II, he was a communications officer aboard the U.S.S. Cyrene in the South Pacific.

He is survived by his wife, Marjorie; six sisters; one brother; and several nieces and nephews.

Deloris Docherty

Deloris Ann (Vierling) Docherty, 78, died on Jan. 29, 1994. She had lived in the Como Park area for 46 years. She and her husband, James Docherty, were charter members of Holy Childhood Catholic Church.

Docherty was preceded in death by her husband. Survivors include three children, Bonnie Rivard of Wilson, Wis., Carol Persson of St. Paul and Gary Docherty of Wyoming, Minn.; seven grandchildren; twelve great-grandchildren; a sister, Margaret Murray of Roseville; and several nieces and nephews.

June Jackson

June H. Foss Jackson, 78, died on Jan. 27, 1994. She was a resident of Falcon Heights and a member of Olivet Congregational United Church of Christ.

Jackson is survived by her husband, Wilbur Jackson; a son, Thomas Foss; seven grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; stepsons, Kenneth Jackson and Robert Jackson; one brother; and one sister.

Greta Johnson

Greta M. Johnson died at age 95 on Jan. 30, 1994. She had lived in Lauderdale and belonged to Rose Hill Alliance Church.

Johnson was preceded in death by her husband, Gust, her son, Howard, and an infant daughter, Norma. Survivors include a daughter, Ruby Svenson; a son, Harry Johnson; eight grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Andrew Kasper

Andrew M. Kasper died on Jan. 15, 1994, at the age of 77. He had lived in the Como Park neighborhood. He was a member of the VFW Roseville Post #7555, the Construction Labor Union Local #132 and Holy Childhood Catholic Church.

Kasper is survived by his wife, Deloris; two daughters; two brothers; a sister; five grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Walter Kranz

Walter R. Kranz, 81, a longtime St. Paul educator, died on Feb. 1, 1994. Kranz was an assistant principal at several St. Paul high schools. He was a parishioner at Holy Childhood Catholic Church.

Kranz is survived by his wife,

Barbara; six daughters; one son; six grandchildren; his mother, Helen Kranz of White Bear Lake; and three brothers.

Helen McGovern

Helen M. McGovern died on Feb. 1, 1994, at the age of 99. She had lived in South St. Anthony Park and was a member of the Church of St. Cecilia.

Preceded in death by her husband, Sylvester, and son, Thomas, she is survived by two daughters; a son; twelve grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Seniors

By Sheri Booms

For taxpayers, March is a month of mixed blessings. Those who expect a refund wait impatiently for their windfall to arrive in the mail. Others bide their time, glad they have one more month before sending in their returns—and their checks. Many more spend the month wading through various forms and booklets, trying to make sense of it all. What needs to be claimed? What can be deducted? It can be confusing, especially if you're a senior living off a combination of social security, pensions, dividends and other income.

Fortunately, the Internal Revenue Service annually sets up TCE (Tax Counseling for the Elderly) sites to provide free tax assistance to older individuals in the community. There are nearly 30 sites in Ramsey County alone. In the St. Anthony Park/Como Park area, the local site is the Lyngblomsten Community Senior Center. Trained volunteers are available Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. through April 14.

Jack Lauer is the site manager at both the Lyngblomsten and North End Community Center locations. He is in charge of the volunteers—retirees recruited by AARP (American Association of Retired Persons). Lauer is a retired Honeywell employee, and no, he isn't an accountant. Volunteers don't have to have business degrees in order to work at a TCE site.

"In fact, being an accountant is the exception rather than the rule," he admitted.

This doesn't mean they're not knowledgeable about preparing returns, however. All of the volunteers must take a week-long course each year. They receive four days of training by the IRS and one day by the Minnesota Revenue Service. Armed with the latest tax information, the volunteers can tackle just about every return that comes their way.

"We can do most of the forms, about 95 percent," Lauer said. "If we can't do it, we refer them to a professional."

Last year volunteers completed 600 returns at the two locations.

What do people need to bring to a TCE site?

"We ask people to bring all of the tax forms for this year that they need to fill out, plus their 1099s," Lauer replied. "They should also bring in copies of last year's returns as well."

You can call 647-4664 to make an appointment at the Lyngblomsten site. Walk-ins are accepted on a first come, first served basis.

Lauer likes to joke that despite the hundreds of returns he's helped prepare over the years, he has to have his own done by a CPA. They're just too complicated.

Falcon Heights police from 1

"I'm hoping that Roseville will continue to be interested," Hoyt said. She said the request for proposals will be sent to police departments in Ramsey County, particularly the adjacent cities. Hoyt expects proposals may come from the county sheriff's department, the City of St. Anthony and others. St. Anthony recently won the police contract for the City of Lauderdale.

Police services provided Falcon Heights do not include either the University of Minnesota or the State Fair. The University police provide services to the campus, and the State Fair contracts with the City of St. Paul for needed services.
