

Falcon Heights, Lauderdale & St. Paul schedule budget hearings

By Julie Lehr

'Tis the season for truth-in-taxation hearings—the annual meetings when cities, counties and school districts are required by law to discuss proposed budgets and tax levies, and how they will affect property taxes in the coming year. Taxpayers, in turn, get to comment on the proposed budgets.

Last year, officials got an earful at the joint truth-in-taxation hearing held by the City of St. Paul, Ramsey County and the St. Paul Public Schools. And, proving they heard what was said, the three jurisdictions are proposing a 2.7 percent overall levy increase for 1995. Despite the modest increase, some St. Paul neighborhoods may still see double-digit tax hikes because of increases in property values.

State law directs St. Paul, Ramsey County and the St. Paul School District to meet regularly and work together on property tax issues. The joint truth-in-taxation hearing is part of this effort. In the past, each jurisdiction held separate hearings. That is still the case in other cities, including Lauderdale and Falcon Heights.

Here are the dates and times for budget hearings in Bugle-area communities:

Lauderdale:

Tuesday, November 29, 7:30 p.m., Lauderdale City Hall, 1891 Walnut. The city is proposing a zero percent levy increase and changes in property values will have a negligible effect on city taxes.

Falcon Heights:

Wednesday, December 7, 7 p.m., Falcon Heights City Hall, 2077 W. Larpentour Ave. The proposed budget would increase city property taxes by 7 percent for a single family home—about $16 more per year for the average value home. Increases in home value, expected for about 65 percent of homes, will cause greater jumps. Most of the increase in city expenses can be attributed to the higher costs associated with 24-hour police coverage the city will have in 1995.

St. Paul:

Tuesday, December 13, Roy Wilkins auditorium and ballroom of the Civic Center, on Kellogg Boulevard in downtown St. Paul. Starting at 5:30 p.m., citizens may discuss individual market values with Ramsey County appraisers. These meetings will continue throughout the evening. The public hearing begins at 6:30 p.m. Staff presentations will be made regarding the proposed budgets for city, county and school district. Public testimony will begin at 7 p.m. Public officials and staff from the city, county, school district and legislature also will be available in breakout rooms during the evening for discussion of budgets and services. Free parking will be provided in the arena parking ramp across Kellogg Boulevard from the Civic Center.

U. S. Senate candidate Ann Wynia and her husband, Gary, arrived at their polling place at Luther Seminary on election day, Nov. 8. The St. Anthony Park resident's bid for national office fell short after a hotly-contested race. She conceded her loss to Rod Grams early the next morning.

Goodwill/Easter Seal celebrates 75 years of service

By Jane McClure

Most of us have some ties to Goodwill Industries and the Easter Seal Society. We may make donations of used household items to Goodwill. Perhaps we shop at its stores. Or we buy Easter Seals when the reminders arrive in the mail every spring.

Some of us may still remember the days of filling stenciled burlap sacks or boxes with our family's Goodwill donations. "Good Willy" was the cartoon character who encouraged us to be generous.

Or maybe there's an old handmade apron tucked in a kitchen drawer or packed away in the attic. If the apron is more than 30 years old, those apron strings may be a tie to a long-ago fundraising effort on behalf of Goodwill Industries.

What is now Goodwill Industries Inc./Easter Seal Society of Minnesota has deep roots in St. Paul, and strong ties to the community of Lauderdale. Goodwill has had its headquarters at 2543 Como Ave. in Lauderdale for 25 years. Goodwill moved here in 1969, after occupying a number of sites in St. Paul. (The Lauderdale site was previously used by Honeywell as a warehouse facility.)

Goodwill's retail operations, offices and other programs of Goodwill Industries and the Easter Seal Society of Minnesota are housed here. Goodwill operates nine other retail stores and several donation trailers in the Twin Cities area, and has offices and stores in St. Cloud and Rochester.

Later this year, Goodwill/Easter Seals will hold a birthday party to mark Goodwill Industries' 75th birthday. It's a time to look at the accomplishments of the past and the challenges of the future, according to Jim Norgard, Manager of Communications for Goodwill/Easter Seals.

Goodwill Industries/Easter Seal Society headquarters in Lauderdale houses the main plant, a Goodwill store and administrative offices. It has been the organization's home since 1969 and was formerly a Honeywell plant.

St. Anthony Park Community Council News

Council Actions at a Glance

- At its November 9 meeting the Council:
- Moved to explore in committee the possibilities of a Community Development Corporation to serve our area.
 - Moved to recommend approval of the zoning variance to allow a two-car garage expansion of the home at 2416 Bourne Ave. This involves an extension into the front yard setback requirement, which, on this property, is measured from Eustis Street.
 - Moved to contact Waldorf with specific questions to be discussed at a meeting after the first of the year.
 - Moved to ratify the action of the Executive Committee at its October meeting, where the issue of the role of the St. Anthony Park Community Council in a proposed new format of a Community Council Forum was discussed. Our Council recommends continuing the Forum as a means for information sharing.
 - Moved to consider a proposal to change the date of the regular full Community Council meetings from the first Wednesday after the first Thursday of the month to the second Thursday, or some other date. This will be on the Dec. 7 agenda, and would require an amendment to the Bylaws to change.
 - Made plans for Town Meetings for January and March, 1995.

Library addition planners want remodeling ideas from community

By Kristin Cooper

A Library Planning Committee has been formed to work with city staff on plans for an addition to the historic St. Anthony Park Branch Library, Como and Carter Avenues.

The City of St. Paul proposed the addition for construction of an elevator to make the library accessible to the physically disabled. The St. Anthony Park branch is one of two in the St. Paul system that are not accessible.

The city initially earmarked $340,000 for the project through the Capital Improvement Budget process. But discussion at the Library Association and Library Planning Committee meetings has focused around other changes that could be made at the same time to keep the project from being "shortsighted," Association President Arlene West said.

West said that construction completed as recently as 1986 did not take into account some of the new technology now used at the library reception desk. She said she hopes by getting input from a number of sources, similar problems can be minimized.

The Planning Committee is made up of association members and concerned citizens, including Andy Boss, who represents the business community and the St. Anthony Park Community Council, and Sally Kaiser, the librarian from St. Anthony Park Elementary School. West said the committee is open to anyone interested in joining.

- To get additional input, St. Anthony Park architect Philip Broussard put together a survey for the association with an array of items that could be considered in the addition. These include:
- an expanded children's section,
 - outdoor storage space,
 - additional off-street parking and
 - additional meeting space.

Surveys can be picked up at the library reception desk and will be discussed at the next meeting of the committee on Monday, December 12, at 3 p.m. at the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, 2245 Como Avenue.

West said the committee is at the decision-making stage. After getting input from the community and from librarians, it will decide on priorities and pull together a budget with the help of a library facilities official. Any extra features requested will mean a higher price tag on the project.

St. Paul's Capital Improvement Budget (CIB) Committee meets in the spring and the association hopes to have its plan ready then, West said. She said the association will tell the CIB Committee that money for the addition already has been earmarked; the association wants to use it in the best possible way.

"This is the only chance we are going to get to remodel the building," West said. "We want to make it a much more usable space for the future." She said the St. Anthony Park branch has the highest circulation per square foot in the system and so deserves the investment.

If the CIB Committee turns down the request for additional funding, construction on the elevator addition will proceed, said Jerry Steenberg, St. Paul Public Library director. West added, "They might say no, but we want to try."

Campus Sports Grill liquor license delayed

City action on the liquor license for the Campus Sports Grill, 2554 Como Ave., is on hold at the request of the new owners, according to Kris Van Horn, senior license inspector for St. Paul.

The bar, located in the space that used to be Gatsby's, is operating under Gatsby's liquor license and can continue to do so until May, according to St. Anthony Park Community

Organizer Abby Struck. Campus Sports Grill co-owner Frank Gruler said the reason for the delay is a "contract dispute" with the former owner, Renee Montpetit, and her bankruptcy court. He said he expected the matter to be cleared up by the end of November.

Edward Albrecht, a member of Boy Scout Troop 17, has received the highest award in Scouting, the rank of Eagle Scout. The award was presented at a Court of Honor on Nov. 6 at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ. For his service project, Albrecht worked in the wildflower garden at Como Park.

Albrecht is the son of Joy and Dwayne Albrecht of St. Anthony Park and is a graduate of Central High School. He attends Waldorf College in Forest City, Iowa. Special guest of honor at the ceremony was Alvah Bull, Troop 17's third Eagle Scout, who received his award in 1922.

Eleanor Weber of St. Anthony Park was one of four Ramsey County women honored at a gala party at the St. Paul Hotel in November by the St. Paul League of Women Voters. She retired in 1993 after nearly 20 years of service on the St. Paul School Board. Weber was elected to the School Board in 1974, a time of controversy about how to desegregate St. Paul Schools in a way equitable to all students and at the same time expand academic opportunities. Re-elected four times, her tenure is the longest of any member. She served as Board clerk, vice chair and chair, and as a director of Minnesota School Boards Association, and chair of Metro II.

In the 1960s, Weber's League of Women Voters participation was to chair the League study of St. Paul's commission form of government. She led the League in its support of the Charter revision, which established the city's present mayor-council form. Weber was elected president of the St. Paul League of Women Voters in 1968. Before that, she served on committees studying solid waste, parks, capital improvements and the Ramsey County Welfare Board. Weber was also a director on the State League Board from 1973 to 1975.

Marcus Klemp, a Como Park resident, is featured as Wil Moreland in the cast of "The Night Before Christmas," staged by Youth Performance Company of Minneapolis. The play opens Dec. 2 and runs through Dec. 18 at the Howard Conn Fine Arts Center.

Kent Eklund was chosen Hamline University's Graduate School Teacher of the Year by students of the Master of Arts in Public Administration program. Eklund teaches organizational theory and behavior, nonprofit management and foundations of public administration.

A resident of St. Anthony Park, he is president of Cincinnati, a consulting firm offering senior management skills and leadership support services, including management mentorship and strategic planning and implementation.

Eklund is also president of the Citizen's League, chairs the Minnesota Business Network and serves on the board of Peoples Natural Gas, Corporate Benefits Administrators, the Ebenezer Society, and is president of the board of directors of Park Press, Inc., publishers of the Park Bugle.

Dennis Bagdanov, 12, of Lauderdale, has the role of Mr. Murf in Child's Play Theatre Company's production of "Beauty and the Beast." Bagdanov is a student at Brimhall School in Roseville. The play runs through Dec. 18 at the Eisenhower Community Center in Hopkins.

Bryan Christianson, a first-year student at Hamline University, is competing on the basketball team this winter. Christianson is a graduate of Central High School and is the son of David and Michelle Christianson of St. Anthony Park.

Dan Morlock of St. Anthony Park is the president of the Madrigal Dinner Club at Bemidji State University. Morlock is a freshman majoring in music. The organization, advised by Paul Brandvik, professor of vocal music, is responsible for the presentation of the annual Madrigal Dinners.

Charlotte Hansen, Molly McClure and Karl Olson are cast members in SteppingStone Theatre For Youth Development's zany holiday production, "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever." The play runs from Dec. 2 through Dec. 22 at the Weyerhaeuser Auditorium in the Landmark Center in downtown St. Paul.

Hansen and McClure live in St. Anthony Park; Olson is a resident of Como Park.

Agencies applauded

Two Twin Cities human services agencies headquartered in Bugle neighborhoods are marking significant anniversaries this year. The two—Children's Home Society and Goodwill Industries—serve distinct populations, but both have improved countless lives.

Founded in 1919, Goodwill Industries marks its 75th birthday this year. Headquartered in Lauderdale, Goodwill Industries/Easter Seal Society is dedicated to "enhancing the lives of people with disabilities or disadvantages by providing programs and services that respond to their changing needs for education, employment and independence."

Over the years, the organization hasn't lost sight of that mission. In fiscal year 1993, a record 2,266 Minnesotans were served by Goodwill/Easter Seal programs; a record 25 million pounds of reusable goods were donated by area residents and businesses to Goodwill stores; and the program services division experienced a 56 percent increase in the number of people placed into competitive jobs in the community.

The agency uses the proceeds from sales in Goodwill stores to fund job training, placement and related services. The goal is to help people become productive members of our society, not simply give them a handout. We applaud that goal and urge continuing support.

Just east of Goodwill, with offices in Lauderdale and St. Anthony Park, is the Children's Home Society, which is 105 this year. In addition to its anniversary, the agency is honoring executive director Roger Toogood for a quarter century of leadership. Children's Home Society is "committed to helping children thrive; to building and sustaining safe, loving families; and to providing opportunities for individual growth."

Under Toogood's direction, the agency has succeeded admirably in this mission. It is the largest nonprofit provider of child care services in the state; offers the largest, most comprehensive adoption program in the country for children from Minnesota, the United States, Korea, Eastern Europe, Vietnam, India, Greece, China and Latin America; operates a 24-hour crisis nursery program in Minnesota to protect children from abuse and neglect; provides a continuum of services for young people considered at risk.

The neighborhood is indeed fortunate to have these agencies as neighbors. We wish them continued success.

Letters

Would he do it again?

Dear editor,

As we all breathe a sigh of relief that the long political campaign season is finally over, I want to take an opportunity to reflect on my experience.

When I decided to run for office over a year ago, I had only a vague idea of what I was getting myself into. I'm only a year older, but I feel many years wiser. Here are a few observations:

The campaign season is too long. This is a real barrier for working people who would seek to perform public service. It tends to perpetuate full-time legislators who have plenty of time off to flatter voters with personal appearances via door knocking and attendance at every sort of community and civic event.

Barring First Amendment problems, lawn signs should be banned, or at least limited in the amount of time they could be displayed. What a blight on the landscape! I tried to make my signs attractive and my volunteers worked constantly to keep them looking neat, but it seems a shallow way to appeal to voters.

Excellent and informative forums where the issues are thoroughly discussed are attended by a handful of supporters of the candidates on display, but basically ignored by the public. Shameful.

Volunteers devote vast time and energy to deliver expensively-produced information to every residence, only to have the brochures wind up in the bushes or go straight in the wastebasket.

Incumbents have a great deal of organization and financial support which can produce slick mailings, phoning, lawn signs, etc., without the candidate having to break a sweat. Challengers, especially unknown first-timers, need to be do-it-yourselfers, learning on the job.

All that having been said, the campaign was as fair and aboveboard as such things get. The voters of 54A had a clear choice between two good candidates who happened to differ 180 degrees on many issues.

Thank you to all the volunteers who gave so generously and unselfishly of their time. I hope you found the experience as rewarding as, when all was said and done, I did!

Would I ever do it again? Ask me in a few months.

Paul Kuettel, Falcon Heights House of Representatives candidate

Goodwill asks for your support

Dear editor,

If you haven't been to a Goodwill store, you're in for a pleasant surprise.

The familiar Goodwill retail store, a landmark in Lauderdale, has been around for several years. But if you haven't been to Goodwill recently, come in and take a look around. You'll be one of thousands of people who have rediscovered that Goodwill stores offer value, quality and selection in a bright, clean atmosphere.

Goodwill shoppers include students, young and not-so-young parents and senior citizens, and cover the full range of income categories. From clothing to household appliances, notice the exceptional quality, the large quantity and the reasonable prices of the items in the stores. After you purchase your items, remember that you are supporting a retail program that has been putting people to work for more than 75 years.

Goodwill stores support job training, placement and related services for local people with disabilities or disadvantages. Surprised? Most people are, when they learn that Goodwill offers people with barriers to employment, such as illiteracy, the job training they need to get and keep a job—turning them from recipients of tax dollars to taxpayers.

We thank all of the residents of Lauderdale and surrounding areas for continuing to shop at your local Goodwill retail store. Your purchases help support people working toward an independent life.

Turn off violence

Dear editor,

On an average day in the U.S., 10 children under the age of 18 are killed with handguns. In 1993, juveniles accounted for 28 percent of the total number of arrests in Minnesota and 42 percent of the arrests for the most serious, violent crimes.

For too many people, violence is an ordinary way to be entertained, settle arguments, or release emotional steam. We can continue to pass laws dealing with violent crimes, but until the people in our communities band together and work to prevent violence, we will not reduce the crime here. We can start by participating in activities such as the recent "Turn off the Violence" day. Organizers of the event encouraged people to turn off violent television, movies and music. Families and friends planned enjoyable, non-violent alternatives for the day.

I want to commend our local units of government for their sponsorship and promotion of activities aimed at turning off the violence. The Human Rights Commission of Falcon Heights sponsored a day for city volunteers to distribute packets of information describing non-violent responses to anger. Each packet contained a sticker to be placed on TVs to remind people to "turn off the violence." Hennepin County worked on an initiative centering around the theme "Break the Chain—Stop the Pain." Ramsey County created the "Initiative for Violence-Free Families and Communities" several years ago and sponsored violence-free day in October.

There are many positive ways to deal with conflicts. Please take the time to participate in non-violent activities and community events as well as reflecting on how we can prevent violence in our society. Take one day at a time and go from there. Let's all do our part to Turn off the Violence! For more information, you can call the Citizens Council of "Turn off the Violence" at 593-8041.

All is calm?

By Warren Hanson

December. Yikes, already?! I just looked at my calendar and had an immediate panic attack. The few squiggles written in the boxes back in mid-November have been reproducing themselves at a rabbit's rate ever since. By the time Thanksgiving rolled around there was something written on almost every date. And from then on the number of celebrations and obligations has exploded exponentially through the end of the year. I'll say it again—YIKES!

This last month of the year is often referred to as the Season of Joy. And, in fact, most of those scribbles on the calendar are reminders of joyful events—parties and pageants, concerts and caroling, gatherings with friends and gift-giving with family. Individually they are all wonderful activities, meant to imbue the season with comfort and joy. Well, enough joy, already! I think it's time to dust off the line from "Silent Night" that tells us "All is calm."

Calm is a concept that is so foreign to most of us that it now sounds quaint. Everybody I know is completely out of control. Panic and stress have become a way of life. We fill our days to overflowing, running from meeting to conference to power breakfast. I ran into a friend in an elevator last week and suggested that we should get together for a movie or something. He cheerfully agreed, then whipped out his Day Runner personal planner—ten pounds of leather-bound life support—and started searching for an open evening. The elevator stopped at my floor and I got out, leaving him still searching for a little bit of open space for me on his busy calendar.

But how can I hold it against the guy? My calendar is just as bad. The only difference is that I work at home, so I don't carry mine around in a leather binder. Mine has a picture of two kittens in Santa hats and it hangs from the back of the kitchen door. But it's just as crammed. One of these days the weight of the ink alone will pull the nail out of the door and send those kittens falling in a heap on the floor.

One of the entries on my kitchen calendar is the annual Yuletide Smorgasbord at one of the neighborhood churches. You know what they're like—long tables placed end-to-end out to the horizon, creaking under the weight of enough food to have fed the five thousand for a week. There are people lined up on either side, holding plates the size of saucer sleds, staring longingly at each entree as they move slowly sideways down the endless array of Swedish meatballs, baked beans and Jell-O salads. Everything looks SO good! And those plates seem SO small!

That's exactly how I feel about the December page of my calendar. Every party, every concert, every pageant sounds SO good! And time seems SO small! But somehow I continue to heap things onto my plate, squeezing activities into every little bit of empty space.

When the time finally comes to sit down and enjoy all these wonderful events I've chosen, I know what will happen. It happens every time. I'll get way too full way too soon. I'll have had my fill of holiday fun before the Season of Joy is even half over. Then I will doggedly plow through the rest of the month, with more sense of obligation than joy, until my plate is finally empty and I am so full that all I can think about is lying down for a nap.

But this is no bah-humbug story. I really believe in this Season of Joy. I love the smells of those home-baked wonders filling the kitchen with the steam and dreams of my childhood. I love to get out those old Bing Crosby and Andy Williams and Mormon Tabernacle Choir records and fill the house with the scratchy sounds of simpler times. I look forward to decorating the house, getting the ornaments down from the attic and talking together about the memories attached to each one. I love the happy secrets, the cozy conspiracies that come with finding and hiding those perfect gifts for each other. And I love the fact that, during this Season of Joy, no one is a stranger. We greet each other with heartfelt good wishes and cheery puffs of visible breath in the crystalline December air.

Our world knows how much we love this season. And it encourages us to take more. Take more and more. Fill our plates. Heap them to the sky. Become gluttons of joy.

But let's not listen. Let's not get so wrapped up in the many gifts this season offers that we begin to see it as the Season of Stress.

This year, I want to have more fires in the fireplace. I want to sit down with my mom and look at old pictures. I want to count all the presents under the tree, shake them, and even try to peek through the wrapping when no one is around. I want to quit work early and have a big pot of soup on the stove when my kids come home from their last day of school before vacation.

I can do it, you know. I can take the reigns of my own life and pull back from a gallop to a walk. And so can you.

During this wild, hectic, stressful Season of Joy, let's each do all we can to know that, in our lives and in our hearts, all is calm.

Information on proposed Hwy. 280 improvements available at open house

By Julie Lehr

The Minnesota Department of Transportation (MnDOT) and the St. Anthony Park Community Council will host an informational open house concerning proposed improvements to Highway 280 on Tuesday, Dec. 6, from 1 to 7 p.m. The open house will be at the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, 2245 Como Ave.

Representatives from MnDOT will be on hand to answer questions and receive comments on the noise abatement project scheduled for 1995 and on future improvements planned for the roadway. MnDOT initiated the noise reduction project in response to state legislation requiring that noise barriers be constructed along Highway 280 by 1997, regardless of whether road reconstruction takes place by that time. The legislation, approved in the 1994 session, was sponsored by Rep. Alice Hausman and Sen. Ellen Anderson.

The first phase of the project—construction of noise barriers on the east side of Highway 280 from Territorial Road to "1,000 feet south of Como Avenue"—is expected to be completed next summer. According to project manager Earl VanBerkom, $1.5 million is budgeted. Phase one does not require right-of-way acquisition, so it can proceed more quickly than other parts of the project, VanBerkom said.

Phase two, from Larpenteur Avenue to I-35W, will include construction of the remaining noise walls and some road reconstruction. Right-of-way purchases and some street closings will be necessary during phase two. With a $2.5 million price tag, this phase is likely to take place in 1997-98.

As described at an August meeting, the noise barriers will be 20-foot walls, consisting of concrete posts and pressure-treated wood that resists rotting. The 20-foot walls will reduce the noise level in most areas by 10 decibels, which has the effect of cutting the noise in half, according to James Hansen, noise abatement and air quality supervisor for MnDOT.

The final phase will involve roadway reconstruction from Kasota Avenue to Larpenteur, with extensive changes at the Como and Larpenteur interchanges. This portion of the project will not be completed until 1999 or later.

All interested residents are invited to stop by the library and review plans for the Highway 280 projects on Dec. 6.

St. Paul's revised snow plowing system: It's as easy as 'Night & Day'

As decals go up on over 7,000 signs, St. Paul residents will see that the city's new snow emergency plowing system is as simple as night and day.

The newly-adopted "Night & Day" plowing system helps clarify plowing times and parking regulations during snow emergencies. With the new decals, old red-and-white Snow Emergency Route signs now say "Night Plow Route." Signs on one side of north-south residential streets now say "Night Plow Route This Side of Street." Routes with these signs will be plowed from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. during snow emergencies.

All other routes are Day Plow Routes. They are not marked with plowing signs. Day Plow Routes are plowed from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. during snow emergencies. The unmarked sides of north-south residential streets are plowed in this shift.

On-street parking is illegal during these snow emergencies. Cars parked illegally can be ticketed and towed, resulting in $25 fines, and substantial towing and storage fees. St. Paul Police will be enforcing snow emergency parking and towing regulations more stringently than ever before.

"Our plowing crews want to do the best job they can," Public Works Director Stacy Becker said. "To help them do that, residents really need to get their cars off the streets so plows can clear them from curb to curb." Becker suggested that neighbors work with each other to help find legal places to park during plowing. "Offer to let a neighbor park in your driveway," she said.

Something new for this winter is the installation of a snow plowing information line. Residents can receive a complete recorded message about snow plowing by calling 266-PLOW (266-7569). The phone line will be active 24 hours a day all winter. It will explain the new sign system and emergency plowing schedule, and will tell about Public Works' ice control, snow removal and maintenance plowing when snow emergencies aren't in effect.

Whenever it snows heavily (usually four inches or more) residents should be alert for snow emergency information. They can listen to the radio, watch TV and the newspapers, talk to neighbors, or—for the surest information—call 266-PLOW.

Environmental cleanup along Highway 280 raises health concerns for area resident

By Amy Causton

News of contaminated soil and environmental cleanups along the Highway 280 industrial corridor has caused concern for many in the neighboring communities. For some, however, today's headlines raise worries over past exposure to potentially harmful substances.

Beth Moen grew up in south-east Minneapolis, and one of the cleanup sites was a frequent hangout for her and her friends. It's called the Valentine-Clark site, named after the wood treatment facility formerly located there. The site, just north of Kasota Avenue and west of Highway 280, includes Bridal Veil Creek and pond.

In that pond, Moen and her friends used to swim. They also spent a great deal of time by the creek, fishing and eating plants in the area. There were "No Swimming" signs posted back then, but Moen and her friends ignored them.

"They didn't indicate why we shouldn't swim there," she says. "We just assumed it was because there wasn't a life-guard." She adds that there were no fences or physical barriers around the pond.

Moen recently became concerned when she read an article in the April 1993 Park Bugle about the cleanup sites and discovered that Bridal Veil Creek and pond were among them. She began to wonder about the hazards that she and her friends had been exposed to. Later, she discovered that a man in his late 30s who swam in the pond had been diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease. She also knew that many older people in the area had died of cancer and she wondered if there was any connection.

While these specific cases may not be related to the contamination, according to the data gathered so far by the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), there may be reason for Moen's concern.

The contamination does not affect the local water supply, since nearby residents get their water from the cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

The contamination was caused by chemicals used in the wood preservation process by the Valentine-Clark Corporation. These chemicals include creosote (primarily polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons, or PAHs) and pentachlorophenol (PCP). The extent of the contamination was discovered in December 1990, when the city of Minneapolis dredged Bridal Veil Creek. A duck and fish kill occurred in the pond, which is fed by the creek. This incident prompted testing at the site.

Tests of the creek sediment found high levels of PCP and PAHs. There is currently little data on the lower part of the creek and the pond, but it is presumed they would be similar to levels found in the upper creek. Tests on those areas will be completed, according to Minnesota Pollution Control Agency staff.

PAHs can cause cancer in the places where they touch the skin and in internal organs after they have been absorbed. PCP is classified by the EPA as a Group B2 carcinogen, meaning it probably causes cancer if ingested.

Overall, exposure to the pond and creek is infrequent, and does not always include contact with pond and creek sediment. Also, the contamination does not affect the local water supply, since nearby residents get their water from the cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

However, a report from the MDH, dated May 6, 1994, states that "frequent (several times per week) and prolonged (several hours per visit) exposure to the sediments may pose a potential threat to public health." The report also says "an individual who uses the area for swimming and regularly consumes fish caught from the pond ... may have a small, incremental increase in the risk of cancer."

Miriam Horneff of the MPCA says the cleanup is currently in the EPA's hands and she hopes it will be undertaken this winter. The first task will be to complete a sewer that will isolate the surface wastes on the site from the groundwater and surface water. The second stage will be to remove contaminated soil from the area. These steps will be taken now, Horneff says, as a way of "removing the immediate risk" in the area. She stresses that testing will continue on the site, and new measures will be taken if they are deemed necessary.

Those wanting more information about the Valentine-Clark site may call Lisa Pogoff at the MDH, 627-5415.

High school student works with sanitation project in Paraguay

By Padmaja Seshadri

For most 16-year-olds, traveling to Paraguay would be an adventure. For Jonathan Chein of St. Anthony Park, traveling to Paraguay was only the beginning of an eight-week experience last summer as a volunteer for a unique program, Amigos De Las Americas.

A senior at St. Thomas Academy, Chein worked with a community sanitation project in Paraguay. He first heard about the Amigos program through his Spanish class at St. Thomas. The program places students from around the United States in various community service projects in South America. Students must be 16 years old and have had two years of Spanish.

Amigos De Las Americas is headquartered in Houston with a branch in Minneapolis. Students apply for the program in fall to qualify for the following summer. Fifty eligible students are selected from around the country.

An orientation and training program is conducted in Miami or Houston before participants leave for their respective project sites. The orientation program puts participants in groups and trains and prepares them for the assigned project.

Chein is enthusiastic about his experience. "I loved it," he said of his stay in Tuyuti Guazu, his assigned site in Paraguay. He and three other participants assigned to that area stayed with host families and built approximately 74 latrines with the help of the local community. "Semasa," a local health organization, provided them with the necessary raw materials. Being all on his own in Paraguay, Chein said, enabled him to learn that he could manage on his own (while being away from his family), which in turn led to a stronger sense of independence.

According to Chein, in Tuyuti Guazu "We could look around and people were like family and we were learning to depend" on them. People in the Amigos program and the community got close to each other, so after Chein returned to St. Paul, he has continued to keep in touch with his program partners. During his senior year, Chein will be giving a presentation to his Spanish class about his recent trip. He also is looking forward to college. He says he hopes to return to Paraguay someday.

An information meeting for people interested in the Amigos program is planned for Sun., Dec. 4, from 7 to 9 p.m., at Fairview Riverside Medical Center, 2450 Riverside Ave., Minneapolis. Bernae Gunderson, recruiting coordinator for the local chapter, said volunteers pay a sizeable portion of their expenses. The organization helps with fund raising and scholarships.

In 1995, volunteers are needed in Mexico, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Honduras, Ecuador, Paraguay and Brazil.

For information on the Amigos De Las Americas program, call 644-6248.

Children's Home has prospered during Toogood's 25-year tenure

By Michelle Christianson

The Children's Home Society has received two prestigious awards this year: the Child Welfare League of America's Outstanding Management Award for the Midwest Region and KARE-TV's "Eleven Who Care" Agency of Excellence Award. Both were granted for the agency's excellence under the leadership of Roger Toogood, who has been executive director for 25 years and is only the sixth director in the agency's 105-year history.

Toogood grew up on a farm just south of Rochester, Minn., knowing that he wasn't going to be a farmer. Because of a lifelong desire to help people, he became a social worker, receiving his bachelor's degree from the University of St. Thomas in 1956 and his master of social work from the University of Minnesota in 1958. After working for Catholic Charities for nine years and the Ramsey County Department of Human Resources for two years, Toogood was recruited by the Children's Home Society to be its executive director in 1969.

Children's Home Society was founded in 1889 as part of a nationwide movement to get orphaned children out of institutions and into loving families. What is now St. Anthony Park Home on Commonwealth Avenue was originally built as a temporary residence for these children until permanent homes could be found for them. The agency's first (and still largest) office at 2230 Como Ave. is adjacent to the home and originally was the site of the orphans' playground.

In the 1940s, the society turned from this residence to individual foster homes for temporary care and in the late 1960s the scope of the agency's missions changed dramatically.

Children's Home Society had always been an advocate for children, leading the way in establishing selected intake, routine medical care, intensive home studies and thorough record-keeping in the adoption process. Under Toogood it also became a leader in pregnancy counseling, residential treatment, international adoption and post-adoption counseling and education. It also began to focus on the needs of those considered at risk—abused and neglected children, teenage mothers and their children and

During his 25-year tenure, Toogood has been active in writing key laws concerning adoption and child abuse. He served as president of the Minnesota Association of Social Service Agencies for two years with a focus on passing laws relating to children. Some of the laws he helped write or change concerned child health insurance during the adoption process, an adoption search law and a child abuse reporting law.

Toogood has seen many changes during his career. When he started at Children's Home he had a staff of 36 and worked hands-on with all the programs. Now the society employs 356 and involves 2,184 volunteers through 10 programs and 21 sites statewide. Its administrative offices now are in Lauderdale at 1605 Eustis St. This growth has necessitated more layers of management and more complex processes for planning. Adoption laws and procedures are very different now with open adoptions, and the scope of the agency's mission has broadened.

Besides adoption and related services, the Children's Home Society provides services in many other areas. It sponsors Crisis Nurseries for children of parents under stress, child care in a variety of community settings, family life education, a pregnancy prevention project in the schools, therapeutic services for older children in foster care and support groups for unmarried teenage mothers.

To honor Toogood for his 25 years of service, the Children's Home Society staff, board of directors and friends raised $25,000 to create the Roger W. Toogood Endowment Fund for Children. The interest from this endowment will be used to help at-risk children.

Toogood intends to continue as executive director. He has just finished working with the planning committee on a new five-year plan, which includes more child abuse prevention, more work with low-income families and more advocacy to strengthen the family.

Toogood also expresses satisfaction that the society has remained in the location where it first began. "Children's Home Society feels very much a partnership with the community," Toogood said. One example he cited is the agency's long-term parking arrangement with St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church, which Toogood describes as a "win-win" situation. "We are all good friends, good partners, good neighbors," he said.

"Naming Ceremony" at Job Corps

The Humphrey Job Corps will celebrate its 30th anniversary with a traditional Native American naming ceremony on Thurs., Dec. 8. The Job Corps' partnership with the American Indian Opportunities Industrialization Center has provided many young people with opportunities for their future. The naming ceremony will be hosted by a traditional medicine man and will include a pipe ceremony with drums, dancers and song.

Lyngblomsten receives grant

Lyngblomsten, a nonprofit senior health care and housing organization located on Midway Parkway, has been awarded a $1,500 grant from Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) for its Parish Nurse Program.

The grant was provided through the Aid Association for Lutherans Network Grant Program, which is designed to help Lutheran-affiliated social ministry organizations. Lyngblomsten began the Parish Nurse Program in partnership with Immanuel Lutheran Church, 104 S. Snelling Ave.

AARP meeting

The Midway-Highland Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will meet on Thurs., Dec. 15, at 1 p.m., at Lyngblomsten Senior Center, 1415 Almond Ave. Visitors are welcome.

Applicants sought for city commissions

The City of Falcon Heights is now taking applications for membership on its four commissions: planning, human rights, park and recreation and solid waste. Membership on a commission requires a time commitment of one meeting per month plus preparation time. To obtain an application form or for more information, call city hall at 644-5050. Applications received will be kept on file and used to fill vacancies through 1995.

Donors to Gibbs Schoolhouse honored on plaque

Those considering year-end contributions need look no further than a local landmark: the Gibbs Schoolhouse, located at the corner of Cleveland and Larpenteur Avenues.

Contributions toward the restoration and preservation of the building will be added to an endowment fund. This fund was established by the Gibbs Schoolhouse Committee, a local community group, and is administered by the University of Minnesota. The 1873 schoolhouse stands on property owned by the university and is the last remaining one-room schoolhouse in Ramsey County.

Donors of $50 or more ($200 for businesses) may request their names or the names of those they wish to honor be engraved on a plaque that hangs in the lobby of Falcon Heights City Hall at 2077 W. Larpenteur. The plaque was dedicated in September to honor contributions by individuals, businesses and organizations.

Checks should be made out to the Gibbs Schoolhouse Fund, c/o Falcon Heights City Hall, 2077 W. Larpenteur Ave., Falcon Heights, MN 55113.

Raptors at Science Museum

A University of Minnesota Raptor Center traveling exhibit, "Hunters of the Sky," will run at the Science Museum of Minnesota through April 16, 1995, prior to a national tour. Audiences will learn about the role these birds have played in human culture, how they have adapted to their ecological niches, where they live, what they eat—in short, everything you ever wanted to know about raptors.

Demonstrations by Raptor Center staff will give visitors a close-up view of live birds. Point-counterpoint video programs present balanced and diverse points of view on the complex and controversial ecological/environmental issues related to the survival of raptors. Computerized polling stations challenge visitors to consider and express their opinions on issues ranging from biodiversity to environmental ethics to the role of humans in the natural world.

"Hunters of the Sky" includes a science demonstration about the physics of flight and a theater piece that explores forest management, conservation and wood use, and encourages audience interaction.

Continuing education for adults will include a behind-the-scenes tour of the Raptor Center on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota on December 3.

For more information, call the Science Museum at 221-9444.

Meet your legislators

The League of Women Voters of Roseville, Maplewood and Falcon Heights will host a V.I.P. Coffee at the Roseville Activity Center, 2800 Arona St., Roseville, on Sat., Dec. 3, from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

The public is invited to bring their questions and comments, and join the group for its traditional, informal meeting with community officials and state legislators, including Mindy Greiling and Mary Jo McGuire.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization that promotes political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government.

Plowing regulations

All vehicles must be removed from city streets after two inches of snowfall, according to Falcon Heights city ordinance. Vehicles must remain off the streets until plowing is completed. Violators risk having their cars tagged and/or towed.

ST. ANTHONY PARK

St. Anthony Park Association hosts holiday events

Two well-known neighborhood residents will be the featured guests at the Dec. 13 meeting of the St. Anthony Park Association. Folksinger, composer and acoustic guitarist Adam Granger will present a mixture of original songs and holiday favorites. Writer/illustrator Warren Hanson will read from "A Cup of Christmas Tea," one of the books he has illustrated. Copies of the book, as well as Granger's tapes and CDs, will be for sale.

The evening's events begin with a 5:45 p.m. social hour, followed by dinner at 6:15. Cost for the dinner is $6 for members of St. Anthony Park Association; $7 for non-members. Call Jennifer at 653-6504 for dinner reservations. The cost for only the program, which begins at 7 p.m., is $3. The location is St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church, Como at Hillside.

Association members will continue their holiday festivities by hosting the annual "Caroling in the Park" tradition. Carolers are welcome to meet in the Community Room at St. Anthony Park Library between 5:30 and 9 p.m. on Thurs., Dec. 15, to enjoy a hot drink and holiday cookies and to meet your neighbors. Sacred music in the Christian and Jewish traditions as well as secular songs will be available. As neighbors congregate, they can select the streets where they will carol. Do as much or as little as you please.

Theatre classes for children

SteppingStone Theatre for Youth Development will offer two one-day Saturday workshops for children on Dec. 3 and 10. On Dec. 3, "Play In A Day" will give children a taste of putting on a show. Divided into age appropriate groups, the students will work with a director/instructor in creating a short play to be performed for friends and family. On Dec. 10, "Musical Theatre Extravaganza" uses a similar format to give participants a glimpse at performing Broadway musicals.

The workshops will take place at Murray Junior High, 2200 Buford Ave. For more information call Liz Geraghty, coordinator, 225-9265.

Stop smoking classes

The American Cancer Society is offering smoking cessation classes beginning Nov. 29 at 6:30 p.m., at its offices in ParkBank, 2265 Como Ave. Plan how to stop smoking and get suggestions on how to remain smoke free. For more details or to register, call Donna at 644-1224.

Grants available for clay artists

The Northern Clay Center, 2375 University Ave., has announced the 5th year of the Artists Project Grant program, funded by St. Paul's Jerome Foundation. The program will provide grants ranging from $500 to $3,000, for projects to take place between March 1 and Dec. 31, 1995.

The intent is to support clay artists at a relatively early stage in their careers, to help them explore new techniques, new forms or new ways of expressing their particular vision through clay. The program is open to artists who are neither students nor full-time teachers, and who have lived in Minnesota for at least six months immediately prior to the application deadline.

The application deadline is Jan. 23, 1995. For more information, call the Northern Clay Center, 642-1735.

Kids can vote for book award

In April 1995, children in grades 3 to 8 can vote for their favorite book to receive the 1995 Maud Hart Lovelace Award. The annual award, named for the author of the Betsy-Tacy books, was established in 1979 to honor authors of outstanding children's books.

To participate, children need to begin reading, or have read to them, at least three of the 15 nominated books. These nominated titles are available now at St. Paul Public libraries, including the St. Anthony Park Branch Library, 2245 Como Ave.

The winner—the book that receives the most votes from Minnesota children during the week of April 3—will be announced on April 25.

Development company moves

MetroPlains Development, Inc., the managing partner of Spruce Tree Centre, has purchased the center, located at the corner of University and Snelling, and will move there in December.

Currently based in St. Anthony Park on University Avenue, the company develops affordable multi-family housing, and specializes in renovating historic buildings. It has been in operation since 1978.

"We feel Spruce Tree Centre should be the centerpiece of the Midway area," said Lawrence Olson of MetroPlains. "We are going to reposition the building, particularly the main floor, to improve its image in the community. We are emphasizing office space and feel that, over the next couple of years, we can achieve the right tenant mix by directing our efforts toward the comfort and efficiency of our office tenants."

The building is currently 78 percent occupied.

Saints hire Terwilliger

Wayne Terwilliger, 69, has joined the St. Paul Saints baseball team. He will serve as first base coach and work within the Saints' Community Relations Department in 1995.

Terwilliger, whose professional baseball experience as player and coach dates back to 1948, worked for the Minnesota Twins from 1985 through 1994. There he earned two World Series rings (1987 and 1991) and served as first base coach.

Terwilliger will start work on the field when the Saints start training camp in mid-May. His Community Relations work will begin in January.

Fans who want to buy Saints' merchandise for holiday gift-giving have several options. Branch outlets have opened at Rosedale and the Mall of America. Souvenirs are also for sale at the Saints' Midway Stadium office during regular business hours, Mon.-Fri., 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Linnea Home bazaar

"The Spirit of Christmas Bazaar" will be held at the Twin City Linnea Home, 2040 Como Ave., on Sun., Dec. 4, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. This sale is an annual event offering a variety of handmade crafts, baked goods and a raffle. For your shopping enjoyment, harp music will be provided by Kathy McCarthy.

For further information, contact Mary Lou or Paula at 646-2544.

Music

The Lyra Concert's "Seasonal Secrets" will "deck the halls" with music by forgotten East European, Scandinavian and New World composers, including Sweden's greatest composer, Johann Helmich Roman, in celebration of his 300th birthday. The performance will be on Sat., Dec. 3, at Luther Seminary Campus Center, Hendon Avenue at Fulham Street.

The Lyra Concert plays 17th and 18th century music on period instruments.

Tickets are $15, or $12 for seniors and public radio members. Student rush tickets at $6 are available at the door only. For ticket reservations or additional information, call 930-7555.

The choir of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church will present its 10th annual Christmas concert on Fri., Dec. 9, at 8 p.m.

Choirmaster J Michael Compton will lead the choir, soloists and orchestra in a performance of Vivaldi's "Magnificat." The program will also include Christmas music by Bach and Handel. The finale for the evening will be a medley of traditional carols with audience participation.

Appearing for the first time will be the St. Matthew's Youth Choir, students in grades 2-6, who are being trained in the English Choral Tradition.

A champagne reception will be held in the undercroft of the church following the concert.

Tickets will be available at the door for $8. Senior and student tickets are $5. The church is located at 2136 Carter Ave. Call 645-3058 for more information.

The Twin Cities Jazz Society's series of concerts at the University of Minnesota St. Paul Campus Student Center Theatre, 2017 Buford Ave., will continue on Sat., Dec. 10, at 7:30 p.m.

"Jazz from J to Z" presents an evening of original jazz with the Larry Ankrum Quartet and the Chris Lomheim Trio.

Tickets are $5 for TCJS members, students and seniors, or $8 for others. The policy of one free admission with a new TCJS membership will continue to apply, except for the February and April concerts.

For ticket information, call Pete Cameron, 937-5216. For further information on the series, call Paul Winger, 644-6742.

Visual Art

The Midwest Media Artists Access Center (MMAAC) members' photo silent auction will run from Nov. 27 through Dec. 3 at Susan's Coffeehouse & Deli, 2399 University Ave. Final bids will be taken and the winning bidders will be announced during a reception with the artists on Sat., Dec. 3, from 6 to 10 p.m. Susan's Coffeehouse & Deli is open Mon.-Fri. from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and opens Saturday at 9 a.m.

Proceeds from the auction go to MMAAC toward maintaining and upgrading film and photo equipment. MMAAC, at 2388 University Ave., also offers classes and workshops in film making, photography, video production, sound recording and mixing.

Call 644-1912 for more information.

The Northern Clay Center's 1994 Holiday Market exhibition continues through Dec. 23. Items for sale include contemporary pottery, including teapots, bowls, pitchers, cups and saucers, platters, casseroles, vases, jewelry, sculpture and more, created by over 50 regional artists and craftspeople. Gift certificates for pottery, workshops and classes at the Northern Clay Center will also be available.

The Northern Clay Center, 2375 University Ave., will extend its regular hours (10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mon.-Sat.) to 8 p.m. on Dec. 21, 22 and 23. It will also be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sun., Dec. 18.

"Quiltedesign," an invitational and juried quilt exhibition, will be showing at the Goldstein Gallery at the University of Minnesota through Feb. 11. Distinctive quilts featuring rich color effects, spatial illusion and surface embellishment will be on display. Designers include Jan Myers-Newbury and Debra Lunn—widely recognized fabric artists.

Professor Emeritus Charlene Burningham and current surface design instructor Jean Ross, Department of Design, Housing and Apparel, curate the show. Educational programs and family-oriented events accompany the exhibition.

Goldstein Gallery is located on the 2nd floor of McNeal Hall, 1985 Buford Ave., on the St. Paul Campus. There is no admission charge. Gallery hours are Mon.-Fri., 10 a.m.-4 p.m.; Thurs., 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; Sat. & Sun, 1:30-4:30 p.m.

"Unknown Directions," an exhibit of new work by Mike Norman and Joseph Brown, is now on display at the Raymond Avenue Gallery, 761 Raymond Avenue. The exhibit continues through January 15.

Brown and Norman initially were involved with making functional pottery. They met in the '60s while studying under Warren Mackenzie. While they never have worked together, their art evolved in somewhat similar directions. They each have become known for the use of animals and human figures in sculpture and whimsical forms. They both work in clay; Brown also casts pieces in bronze.

Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, call Joseph Brown at 644-9200.

Literature

Bring your new work, old work, works-in-progress and your appetite to The Loft's free open reading series, "Wide Open," at Susan's Coffeehouse & Deli, 2399 University Ave. Or just come to sample the work of familiar and new writers on the first Monday of each month. The next session will be held on Dec. 5 at 7:30 p.m.. The reading order will be announced at the event (limit: 5 minutes).

Call The Loft at 379-8999 for more information.

The St. Anthony Park Writers' Workshop will be held on Tues., Dec. 6, at 7:30 p.m., at 861 Raymond Ave. For more information, call 645-7230.

ST. ANTHONY PARK

Langford/South St. Anthony Rec Center

The South St. Anthony Booster Club will meet on Mon., Dec. 5, at 7 p.m. There will be discussion and participants will vote on amending the bylaws. Call 298-5765 for more information.

A "Supper With Santa" event at Langford Park on Tues., Dec. 20, will feature a spaghetti dinner and a visit from Santa Claus. Dinner starts at 6:30 p.m. The cost is $6 per person or $10 per family. Register by Dec. 14.

The Langford Park/South St. Anthony local Winter Carnival event for teens will be held on Wed., Dec. 28. Activities include a free winter hay ride for participants at Diamond T Ranch. Boys and girls in grades 7 through 10 may register.

The Langford Park Booster Club elected new officers in October. They are: Julie Farnsworth, president; George Laskaris, vice president; and Greg Peterson, Barb Burk and Jon Schumacher, officers.

Registration for winter activities at Langford Park and South St. Anthony will be held Jan. 2-13. Youth activities include gym games, checkers, chess, figure skating, pastel/charcoal drawing and tumbling.

For more information about any of these activities, call 298-5765.

Recreation director Joe Germain is now in charge of both Langford Park and South St. Anthony Recreation Centers.

Former South St. Anthony Director Dean Odegaard has been transferred to Valley Recreation Center.

LAUDERDALE

Your vision for Lauderdale

A Community Forum will be held on Tues., Dec. 6, from 7 to 10 p.m., at Lauderdale City Hall, 1891 Walnut St. According to Mayor Jeff Dains, the purpose of the forum is to compile a community vision for Lauderdale so that a task force, appointed earlier this year by the City Council, may complete its update of the city's Comprehensive Plan and Zoning Code.

Winter parking restrictions

In Lauderdale, vehicles must be removed from the street as soon as two inches of snow accumulates. Vehicles must remain off the street until it is completely plowed. Any vehicle on the street when the parking ban is in effect will be ticketed and possibly towed.

In addition, there is no parking on the odd side of streets from Dec. 1 through March 15.

Sunday brunch for a cause

"Down home" all-you-can-eat Sunday brunches to benefit Goodwill/Easter Seal will be served to the public on Dec. 4 and Jan. 22, from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the organization's headquarters dining room, 2543 Como Ave. The brunches are catered by Rose Ramey.

The menu will include chicken wings, meatballs, ribs, ham, breakfast links, grits, eggs, hash browns, fresh fruit, muffins, banana bread, French toast, hot biscuits and gravy and a variety of beverages. Vegetarian selections will be available also.

Tickets, which must be purchased in advance, are $10 for adults (three for $25) and $5 for children 5 to 12. Children under 5 eat free. To order tickets, contact Kathy Weaver at 646-2591, ext. 220.

Proceeds benefit Goodwill Industries, Inc./Easter Seal Society of Minnesota, a nonprofit organization serving people with disabilities or disadvantages.

More news from Goodwill

Goodwill Industries, Inc./Easter Seal Society of Minnesota needs volunteer photographers, delivery drivers, telephone operators, store designers, mechanics, carpenters, graphic artists, fashion show models and assistants, knitters and clerical assistants. Hours are flexible. For information call the volunteer services manager at 646-2591, ext. 185.

Communications and Public Relations Manager Jim Norgard said Goodwill has improved its discount stores. "If you haven't been to a Goodwill retail store recently, you're in for a pleasant experience," he said.

Quality, brand-name merchandise is donated to Goodwill/Easter Seal by individuals, manufacturers and other retailers. As a result, the Goodwill shopper can find excellent bargains.

Goodwill/Easter Seal operates 10 stores in the Twin Cities, Rochester and St. Cloud areas.

Revenue raised from the sale of items goes directly to a variety of nonprofit services for people with disabilities or disadvantages. An average of 88 percent of all money raised directly supports these programs. The other 12 percent of revenue raised is used to meet overhead costs such as rent, utility bills, insurance and other non-program-related expenses.

School News

Chelsea Heights Elementary

The kids of Chelsea Heights School enjoyed a nine-day break from Nov. 19-27, as the first quarter of the 1994-95 school year drew to an end. That week was a busy one, with conferences going on the 21st and 22nd of November, followed by Thanksgiving. Report cards were given out at conferences and parents met one-on-one with their children's teachers for the first time this year.

Monthly awards assemblies are a tradition at Chelsea Heights. Near the end of each month, classes meet in the auditorium/cafe to receive awards and prizes from their teachers. Throughout the month red tickets are given for various reasons. These tickets are put in a box and several names are drawn to win prizes, such as books, sports posters, coupons and the famous "Lunch with the Principal."

School pictures were a success this year and will no doubt end up on relatives' dressers all over the country.

Author Arthur Doros came to Chelsea Heights on Oct. 27. He showed slides, answered questions and encouraged kids to read, write and draw. Said Arthur, "Never quit!"

Meteorologist Dave Dahl came to Chelsea in October for a lesson on weather for the 5th and 6th graders. He did experiments, answered questions, and even signed some autographs. Much was learned that day, and it will long be remembered at Chelsea Heights. Thanks Dave!

Chelsea Heights is a great school. Good luck to the students as we continue this year.

Luke Bruckner

Falcon Heights Elementary

School is COMPLETELY under way. One-fourth of the school year is already done.

This year's co-presidents of Student Council are Jason Frye and Monica Stefanson. The first thing planned for this year is the teddy bear drive. The students and staff bring in money to donate to the drive. The money will then go to the Children's Hospital. The hospital will then buy stuffed teddy bears and hand them out to kids who have to come to the hospital for longer than one day. Some kids wrote back thanking us. Each bear costs $25.

Other things we will be having this year will be a Save the Rainforest project. It is when the staff and students again bring in money. The money will go toward saving an acre of the rainforest. I think both of the ideas are cool.

Academic Adventures is a program for some of the 2nd, 3rd and 4th graders. It is a program in which you have fun while doing projects in math, legos and art. My brother Dave is in it and he enjoys it quite a lot. It is the first time it has been at our school.

The 6th graders have started guitar lessons at our school. We will give a concert after the holidays.

Eric Blomquist

St. Anthony Park Elementary

It's hard to believe winter is coming already, but we still have many enjoyable things to look forward to.

Soon the 6th grade will hold its annual "Festival of Nations." International booths will be set up for the other grades and relatives to observe and learn about each country's winter holiday traditions. Mr. McHugh, a volunteer elder mentor at our school, is teaching advanced math to the 6th grade.

The school store, run by Mrs. Polfliet's 5th grade math class, is open and ready for business. It will sell items such as pencils, pens, folders and notebooks. Also, the 5th graders are finishing up their Native American projects.

The 4th grade is visiting the Ramsey House on Dec. 7. This is part of their Minnesota History unit.

In November, the 1st and 2nd graders went to the Ordway for a performance by Cambodian dancers.

In Ms. Holoubek's gym class, students are learning how to play basketball.

The last day of classes before winter break is Dec. 23. Happy holidays from all of us at SAP!

Siri Larson and Rachel Abbott

Como Park High School

Como's fall sports did very well this season. The girls' volleyball team is the conference champ and also the Twin Cities champ. The girls' tennis team was very strong this season; it placed third in the conference. Both the girls' and the boys' soccer teams had very good seasons. The girls' swim team worked hard all season long and it showed when regions came along. A total of seven swimmers went to regions! Even though the boys' football team didn't have a very good season due to many injuries, the team members are hoping for a strong comeback next year.

Como's band will be giving a music concert on Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium. If you're looking for an evening filled with beautiful music in a fun, friendly atmosphere, this concert is for you!

Forty-eight girls from all grades at Como are participating in a Girls' Equity Group. The directors, Kathy Kahn and Carol Reitzel, are trying to show these females and everyone else at Como that women are strong and capable. It is hoped that through workshops and field trips, girls will be able to see their potential. They are learning to recognize gender bias and how to deal with it.

Carin McIntosh

Murray Junior High

First of all, I would like to congratulate the Murray girls' soccer team. It finished first in the city and was undefeated. Girls' basketball and boys' wrestling has begun.

Eighth graders will be having health screening on Dec. 6.

On Dec. 9, students will be seeing a SteppingStone Theatre performance from 9 to 11 a.m.

Starting Dec. 12, students will be having a geography bee in their social studies class. The winners from the classes will participate in a school final on Jan. 12. That winner will go on to a city-wide bee.

There is a band/orchestra assembly on Dec. 14 and the winter concert is Dec. 15 at 7 p.m.

After winter break, Mr. Laska will be organizing a ski club. Members will go skiing at Afton Alps about three times during the winter.

The last day of school before winter break is Dec. 23. Students will return to school on Jan. 9.

Megan Tracy

Holy Childhood

Hooray! Hooray! The 8th grade girls won the 1994 volleyball championship! We played hard and fair all during the season. Our coach, Jean Kranz, is greatly appreciated for all her patience, efforts and coaching skills. Another big thanks goes to our best cheering section and loyal supporters—our parents!

Our marathon this year was the best ever! Because we surpassed our goal and had 100 percent participation (grades K-8) we earned a hat and tennis shoes day, silly dress day, wacky dress day, and each classroom had a movie and popcorn day. Thanks to all who made it possible, especially Sue Quam and her marathon committee.

Our virtue for November is responsibility. It really helps our school to have everyone practicing one theme. We are still carrying over friendliness and respect, the virtues for September and October.

On Nov. 20, the Feast of Christ the King, our combined choirs sang with the Minnesota Orchestra at Mass. This was a wonderful celebration, especially because the newly-rebuilt organ was used for the first time.

Grades 1 and 2 enjoyed a field trip to the Minnesota Arboretum on Nov. 7. On Nov. 16, grades K-4 went to hear the Minnesota Orchestra play excerpts from "Peter and the Wolf" and "Little Red Riding Hood."

Officer Slemmons installed the school patrol students on Nov. 7. He stressed the importance of being punctual, prepared and responsible.

Parent-student-teacher conferences were held Nov. 9 & 10. We had 100 percent participation!

This year St. Anthony Park resident Marion MacMillan dressed 34 dolls to be sent to missions across the globe. More than 200 of her dolls have been sent overseas in the past 30 years.

Seniors

These dolls have a mission

By Sheri Booms

When Marion MacMillan was a young woman, she wanted to be a missionary. Her aunt discouraged her ambition, however, so MacMillan stayed in Minnesota. But in the past 30 years, she has learned to do mission work from her home. The results of her work have reached all corners of the earth.

"It all started in 1965," MacMillan explained. "A woman from church gave me a doll and said, 'Here, take this home and dress it.' The doll was going to be sent to a mission. I bought a new doll, too. But a missionary here on leave told me second-hand dolls go through customs easier."

Since then, MacMillan collects secondhand dolls wherever she can find them. She checks out Goodwill and garage sales. She'll even visit antique stores. Dolls of every shape, size and hue are cleaned, coiffed and given new clothing which MacMillan sews herself. In the three decades she's been dressing dolls, more than 200 have made their way overseas.

Each year MacMillan takes her dolls to a mission conference held by the Presbyterian church. "They go like hot cakes," she said. "The dolls are used as an opener, a way to help the missionary across the threshold and into the home."

Tacked up on the wall of MacMillan's room at Linnea Home is a world map. The yellow, green, red and blue flags that cover it indicate where her dolls have traveled—from Alaska to Argentina, Norway to Zambia, Russia to Australia, Afghanistan to New Guinea, and places in between.

MacMillan often receives photos and letters from these missions. "One missionary from Brazil sent me a photo of a little girl of 9 or 10 with one of the dolls," MacMillan recalled. "The girl's mother wanted to give it back; she thought her daughter had stolen it. The missionary explained that it was a gift. It was the first doll the little girl ever had."

This year a bumper crop of 34 dolls and a few stuffed animals are making their way across the globe, each one ready to be placed in some young child's eager arms.

Perhaps MacMillan was unable to become a missionary in the normal sense, "but the dolls go in my place," she happily acknowledged.

Goodwill—a long history of service ... from page 1

As this issue of the Bugle went to press, no date had been set for the party. Current and former volunteers, staff and clients are invited to attend the event. (For details, call Norgard at 646-2591, ext. 175.)

"We'd really like to thank people in the area for their support over the years," Norgard said. "It's really through a broad base of community support that we've been able to offer greater services to our clients."

Ways of serving those clients, and the client population itself, has changed over the past 75 years, Norgard noted.

Goodwill's founding

Service was the goal of a handful of business and religious leaders who gathered in 1919 at the offices of the Midland Trust Company in downtown St. Paul. The Rev. Herbert Burgstahler and Midland Trust President William Strickler organized the meeting to found Goodwill here. Dr. Frank A. Cone, a one-time St. Anthony Park and Como Park resident and former pastor of St. Anthony Park United Methodist Church, was the first board chairman of the St. Paul Goodwill chapter.

The late Dr. Cone still has family members in St. Paul. He was born in 1860 in a log cabin near Arlington, Minn. As a toddler he fled with his parents during the Dakota Conflict, when Dakota Indians clashed with white settlers in southwestern Minnesota. Cone couldn't remember the Dakota Conflict, but did have lifelong memories of Civil War days and his father's work as town postmaster in Arlington.

As a young man, Cone came to St. Paul to attend Hamline University. Originally planning to become a lawyer, he instead became a minister. After further studies in Boston, he served parishes in Redwood Falls, Winnebago, Northfield and the Fairmount Avenue United Methodist Church in the Macalester-Groveland neighborhood of St. Paul. Cone was a founder of the St. Anthony Park Methodist Church and helped organize the church's Boy Scout troop. The troop is the oldest in Ramsey County, and produced Minnesota's first Eagle Scout.

A May 1951 St. Paul Pioneer Press profile of Cone described him as "twinkly-eyed," a compassionate man with a long history of helping others. At that time, he was 91 years of age.

The years hadn't dimmed Cone's enthusiasm for his service to Goodwill. At that time, Cone was considered the dean of U.S. Goodwill Industries presidents. His years of service couldn't be matched by anyone else.

Goodwill was Cone's second career, which he began at the age of 60, just before retiring from the active ministry. "First elected to the Goodwill board when the local chapter was founded 32 years ago, Dr. Cone has often attempted to resign, but his resignations have never been accepted," the article stated. "After more than three decades, his identification with the organization is now so complete that one associate said recently, 'Dr. Cone IS the Goodwill.'"

The national program

By 1919, when Goodwill was founded locally, the organization was already a presence in other American cities. Goodwill got its start almost 100 years ago in Boston's South End neighborhood. At that time, the South End was a community of poor immigrants.

Another Methodist minister, Edgar J. Helms, started Goodwill through his efforts as a settlement worker in the South End. Seeking a way to help the disadvantaged and people with disabilities, Helms began to collect used goods from other Boston neighborhoods. Poor men and women then worked in a dilapidated chapel to restore the goods for resale. That brought in funds to pay the workers, who also were taught trades.

At that time, people considered unemployable in America had few options. Churches did their part, setting up missions in poorer neighborhoods to combine assistance with outreach. In some instances, churches teamed up to provide modest frame church that had previously served as the home of the Church of the Good Shepherd. (The church had its own unique niche in St. Paul History. Founded as an Episcopalian mission in 1867, the Church of the Good Shepherd was one of a number of religious outreach efforts in the city at that time.)

The church building at 12th and Cedar was erected in 1869 and used as a church until after the turn of the century. The simple wooden church had a peaked roof, and a large round stained glass window above the front door. During its years as a larger mission efforts. In St. Paul, evangelical churches pulled together to sponsor a city missionary. (That effort evolved into today's Union Gospel Mission.) Benevolent societies and relief associations were also founded to help provide for widows, orphans, the elderly, the sick and the disabled. Small orphanages, shelters for "fallen women" and homes for indigent elderly opened their doors throughout the city.

But much of the assistance provided was in the form of food, shelter and medical help. What was unique about Goodwill from the start was its focus on helping people help themselves. Helms' movement spread throughout the country. By 1926, he was traveling the world to tell the story of Goodwill Industries—and lay the groundwork for an international program.

St. Paul headquarters

Goodwill's long-time St. Paul headquarters was at 12th and Cedar, the organization's first home. Goodwill occupied a Goodwill facility, its exterior appearance was changed very little. Perhaps the most significant change was the addition of two storefront windows, for display of merchandise.

Goodwill began here with the same principles and practices of founder Helms. The organization collected reusable clothing and household goods from area residents. It set up programs to teach job skills and provide work to the chronically unemployed. The first Goodwill workers busied themselves with the repair of donated items for resale.

Goodwill's focus changed as the years went by. In its first decade, most of St. Paul Goodwill's workers were people who were socially and educationally disadvantaged. That changed in the 1930s and 1940s, according to a recently published organization history. The Great Depression, and the work programs of the federal government (including the Works Progress Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps) began to serve more needs of the chronically unemployed.

The Great Depression made for tight times for Goodwill. In his 1951 interview, Cone recalled that some St. Paul businessmen suggested he suspend Goodwill's operations until the economy improved. Cone refused.

"We got by," he told the newspaper. "Two things saved us—the complete loyalty of our workers and a cut in my salary."

Government-sponsored work programs and public assistance

In the 1940s, St. Paul's Goodwill program ranked among the top programs in the nation for the hours of employment it provided for the disabled.

were two changes that affected Goodwill in the 1930s and 1940s. At the same time, medical technology was advancing. More people were surviving accidents, birth defects and diseases once considered fatal. These people then faced the challenge of leading full, productive lives in a society that offered them few options.

Over time, Goodwill changed its client focus to meet the needs of adults with a wide variety of disabilities. Sheltered work programs were set up to provide Goodwill workers with dignity, self-worth and a regular paycheck.

In his popular St. Paul Dispatch "Oliver Towne" column, writer Gareth Hiebert described one visit to a Goodwill workshop in July 1955. Twenty-four workers busied themselves with tasks in a room crowded with parts of future projects and finished merchandise.

"They make inserts for tape recorders, cabinet catches, part of the latches for combination screen doors, electrical spring connections for wire splicing. Shoved over in one corner were 10,000 candy suckers, in boxes, which were to be taped to an advertising letter."

Goodwill and the St. Paul Society for the Blind had joined forces to sponsor the work program. Hiebert pointed out that the program had far more applicants than available spaces.

Not all was work. Goodwill provided the workers with a chance to meet others, make friends and enjoy activities together. Some of the workers Hiebert met that day were members of a bowling team for the blind, which was part of a league at a now-forgotten bowling alley at Oxford and Grand Avenues. (A sighted person would help by "calling the pins" to indicate which pins were left standing after bowling balls rolled down the alleys.)

Goodwill expands

Under Cone's guidance, Goodwill expanded operations to other locations downtown. Employment programs grew, as did retail outlets for donated and rehabilitated goods. In

In the new goods sorting area, today's Goodwill workers remove identifying labels on merchandise received from retail stores, including Target. The merchandise is then sold in Goodwill stores.

1941, Goodwill announced the purchase of a tax-forfeited, six-story building at 19th and Sibley. The building purchase allowed Goodwill to consolidate 25 programs in one space. Programs including a shoe repair shop, sewing, hat blocking, steam pressing, wool salvage, printing, mailing, furniture repair, wheeled toy repair, and a laundry would move to the new site. One hundred and fifteen workers made the move.

E. Richard Cone, a long-time St. Paul architect and the son of Dr. Frank Cone, designed the Cone chapel in the new facility. The chapel featured a stained glass window, depicting the Good Shepherd carrying the lost sheep. It had been removed from Goodwill's converted church facility, where it had hung above the altar.

In the 1940s, St. Paul's Goodwill program ranked among the top programs in the nation for the hours of employment it provided for the disabled. This occurred at a time when Goodwill, like the rest of the nation, was coping with the shortage of materials brought on by World War II.

Goodwill changes with times ... from page 17

Goodwill programs. For many years, Goodwill sponsored an annual fair, selling donated goods and items made by workers and the Goodwill Women's Auxiliary. News articles from the 1940s and 1950s described auxiliary members dressing dolls, sewing aprons and raising houseplants for resale. Newspaper social columns listed which women chaired which committees—kitchen items, hats and purses, jewelry, and so on.

The colorful, handmade aprons were always popular with fairgoers. In her "Good Morning to You" column in the Pioneer Press, Doris Bock would tout the volunteers' creations. "Say, girls, let's talk aprons today," Bock said to her readers in the fall of 1954.

"Time was when a yard of material was the standard amount of goods for an apron," Bock added. "But I hope you get a look at the cute little aprons that have been made out of half a yard of material."

Auxiliary members also worked hard to publicize drives for donations. In 1940, burlap bags that had held Brazilian coffee beans were distributed city-wide, and used as an incentive to donate goods. Goodwill would buy the bags for 5 to 10 cents each, according to Women's Auxiliary President Mrs. Robert Carley. She explained to a newspaper reporter what would happen next.

"In the Goodwill sewing room, a drawstring is added and the Goodwill insignia is stenciled on the side of the bag. It is then neatly wrapped and finds its way with others onto a Goodwill truck to a St. Paul home where a pickup will be made," one October 1940 St. Paul Dispatch article stated. "After several weeks, the donor has the Goodwill bag filled, telephones the Goodwill Industries, pickup is made and the bag goes to the sorting department."

Goodwill saw much growth through the 1950s and 1960s.

February 20, 1951, was an especially proud day as Goodwill paid out its two millionth dollar earned by its workers.

"Clean Sweep Week"

By the early 1950s, Goodwill was known in St. Paul for its "Clean Sweep Week," an effort to beautify the city. This annual event, co-sponsored by a number of other community organizations, provided donations for Goodwill. Many St. Paul residents may remember participating in this event as Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts, distributing bags and gathering donations as a community service project. Some years, collection bags were left at November election polling places to encourage donations.

The symbol of the "Clean Sweep Week" was an upturned broom, and newspaper publicity articles invariably featured groups of civic leaders standing around a broom and grasping the broomstick together. People today will no doubt chuckle at news accounts reminding residents what to do on Goodwill collection day:

"... Housewives will place upturned brooms near the front door to indicate to the Scouts that a Goodwill bag has been filled and is ready for pickup," local newspapers announced.

Changing times

Goodwill continued to grow as the years went by. But societal changes again made themselves felt. In the past decade, government and private sector opportunities for people with disabilities increased. That is especially true of the mentally disabled, who have found increased opportunities for workplace mainstreaming in the greater community.

At the same time, opportunities for able-bodied, disadvantaged people shrank. Once again Goodwill changed its focus to offer job training and related services for people with disabilities or disadvantages, emphasizing placement into productive jobs in the community.

The 1980s brought other changes. Community donation drives were already a thing of the past, although some pickup of items continued. Large donation centers had been set up throughout the area for people to use at any time. But abuse of the donation centers led to high costs for Goodwill, as the agency had to bear the costs of throwing away many useless items. The donation centers were dropped in favor of supervised donations at stores and trailers.

Changes in job training needs mean that Goodwill no longer repairs broken items or accepts broken items as donations. "Give us what you would pass along to a friend" is the credo for Goodwill donations today. St. Paul residents can place reusable items out for Goodwill pickup, along with their curbside recyclables.

Easter Seal joins

Yet another change for Goodwill Industries was in 1984, when the agency joined forces with the National Easter Seal Society to become the society's Minnesota affiliate. The renamed Goodwill Industries/Easter Seal Society of Minnesota allows expanded fundraising options, programs and services for clients. It also allows the local agency to draw on two distinct national organizations to help in offering job training, placement and related services to people with disabilities or disadvantages.

1994 not only marks the 75th anniversary of Goodwill in St. Paul, it also is the 75th anniversary of the National Easter Seal Society. The National Easter Seal Society got its start in 1919 in Elyria, Ohio, founded by businessman Edgar F. Allen. Allen's son died in a streetcar collision and the tragedy prompted Allen to lead a drive to build, equip and staff a new hospital.

Allen's interest and friendship with a disabled boy inspired what is now the National Easter Seal Society. The society has helped people with mental and physical disabilities since then.

Joining the ranks of the disabled is something that can happen to any of us and to our families. "It's the only minority group that anyone can become a member of at any time," said Norgard.

In recent years, Goodwill Industries/Easter Seal Society of Minnesota has joined with its national organizations to work toward passage and implementation of the federal Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). The ADA, adopted by Congress a few years ago, calls for sweeping changes in the way disabled people are provided with education, employment and access to facilities.

"Passage of the ADA was an important milestone. One challenge for us is to continue to educate the general public about the benefits of the act," Norgard said.

Father Andrew Lim arrived on Oct. 1 to be the new pastor at St. Andrew Kim Catholic Church.

New pastor at Korean Catholic church

By Ann Bulger

Missionaries from the United States often serve in Asian lands, but at the Church of St. Andrew Kim in St. Anthony Park, this practice is reversed. The pastors at the church, on Cleveland and Buford Avenues, are sent by Cardinal Stephan Kim in South Korea to Minnesota where they serve the needs of Koreans in the Twin Cities.

Father Andrew Lim arrived on Oct. 1 to be the new pastor at St. Andrew Kim. He replaces Father Louis Kim, who returns to Seoul after four and a half years in St. Anthony Park. When named by the cardinal to take this assignment, Father Lim hesitated because he felt his knowledge of English might be inadequate. Cardinal Kim told him not to worry—he could improve his English skills on the job.

Father Lim is now practicing his English on a daily basis. He carries an electronic dictionary on which he types out an English word to hear the pronunciation and see the equivalent word in Korean. He also carries a cellular phone.

The youngest in a family with five sisters and two brothers, Father Lim was raised in a Methodist home. After deciding to attend a junior seminary run by the Catholic Church, he decided to become a Catholic priest and was ordained in 1985. He has a cousin who is a Methodist minister in Korea.

Father Lim lives in the parish house on Cleveland Avenue. He says the church here is much smaller than the four different parishes he served in Seoul. There, two priests worked in a parish of 7,000 to 8,000 people, with six or eight Masses each weekend.

Here, his parish consists of 150 families, about 300 people. There are two Masses each Sunday, one a children's Mass in English, the other for adults in Korean. Father Lim pointed out that there are 7,000 Korean children adopted into Minnesota families. Some attend this church to maintain their heritage.

A summertime golfer, Father Lim is eagerly awaiting the snow season so he can engage in his other favorite sport, downhill skiing. His excitement over his new assignment is punctuated with frequent smiles.

Local flutist and Chinese pianist to perform at Music in the Park

Music in the Park Series presents St. Paul Chamber Orchestra principal flutist Julia Bogorad and young Chinese pianist Xiang-Dong Kong in recital on Sun., Dec. 4, at 4 p.m., at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2129 Commonwealth Ave. Bogorad and Kong, who is making his Twin Cities debut, met at the Grand Teton Music Festival in Wyoming. They began performing together after discovering their artistic compatibility and have since collaborated on many performances.

Their recital features the Minnesota premiere of Steve Heitzig's composition "Pipe-stone Peace Pipe" for solo flute (a work commissioned in honor of Bogorad), Liszt's "Spanish Rhapsody" for piano, "Three American Pieces" for flute and piano by Lukas Foss, the "Sonata for Flute and Piano Op. 14" by Robert Muczynski, and Rampal's arrangement of the "Sonata in D Major" by César Franck.

Bogorad has combined an orchestral career with frequent solo and chamber music performances. The New York Times calls her "a wonderful flutist: her playing is graceful, virtuosic and always full of interest." Bogorad's solo performances include the Kennedy Center, Ravinia, Marlboro and Grand Teton festivals, in addition to solo recitals nationwide and in Europe. Currently on the faculty of the University of Minnesota, Bogorad will depart December 5 for Vienna, where she will perform a recital of American music for the Austrian flute convention.

Kong, 26, has won numerous international competitions, including the 5th Sydney International Piano Competition of Australia in 1992. He first captured the hearts of audiences worldwide with his performance as an 11-year-old child prodigy in Isaac Stern's Academy Award-winning documentary film, "From Mao to Mozart." Since that time, Kong has toured internationally, and has made solo appearances with many of the world's major orchestras.

Kong has recorded for Arcadia Records and just recently began recording for RCA, with a compact disc featuring music of Tchaikovsky scheduled for release on December 10. In 1992, Kong donated his services to Project Hope, an historic joint undertaking that drew together Hong Kong, Taiwan and the People's Republic of China for the first time. Their fund-raising efforts helped impoverished Chinese villages build schools. In a 1993 history-making event, Kong was invited to perform with the Philharmonic Orchestra of China in Seoul, South Korea. The concerts marked the establishment of diplomatic relations between South Korea and the People's Republic of China.

Tickets for the concert are $10 advance purchase or $12 at the door. Advance season and single tickets can be purchased at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506), or by calling 644-4234.

My ad is in the Bugle every month because the Bugle is so well read, unlike some other publications. It reaches the people I want for customers. It's the only medium I've never questioned the value of. For the dollars spent I get more response from the Bugle than from any other ad medium.

Free bassoon concert a gift to the community

Music in the Park Series and the St. Anthony Park Home are presenting a family concert as a holiday gift to the community on Sun., Dec. 18, at 1:30 and 3 p.m. "Tinsel Tunes," free performances by the South Minneapolis Bassoon Quartet, will be presented at St. Anthony Park Home, 2237 Commonwealth Ave. Music lovers of all ages are invited to join the residents of St. Anthony Park Home for an afternoon of holiday tunes and refreshments.

Known for their offbeat concert style, South Minneapolis

Bassoon Quartet members Laine Bryce, Heather Clark, Laurie Hatcher Merz and Laura Preves will perform holiday classics including "Sleigh Ride," "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town," "Winter Wonderland" and "A Christmas Song." The audience will be involved throughout the program, which concludes with carols accompanied by this unique ensemble.

Since its founding in 1982, the quartet has performed at concert series and festivals throughout the region. Recent concert highlights include a recital at Concordia College in Moorhead, and an appearance at the International Double Reed Society convention in a special performance of music arranged and written for them called "Made in Minnesota." The group members believe in making chamber music fun for their audiences.

The Music in the Park Series family concert series is funded with a major grant from Target Stores.

For more information, call 644-4234 (Music in the Park) or 646-7486 (St. Anthony Park Home).

Jessie Dalglish

Jessie M. Dalglish, a charter member of Holy Childhood Catholic Church, died on Oct. 30, 1994. She was 100 years of age.

Dalglish had recently lived at Lyngblomsten Care Center. She was a longtime member of the St. Paul Guild of Catholic Women and a volunteer at St. Joseph's Hospital and Our Lady of Good Counsel Cancer Home.

She was preceded in death by two husbands, Thomas O'Donnell and J. Mark Dalglish. Survivors include a daughter, Geraldine O'Donnell of St. Paul; a son, James O'Donnell of Cincinnati; a stepdaughter, Ann Mattila; eight step-grandchildren; 23 step-great-grandchildren; and 17 step-great-great-grandchildren.

Julia Erickson

Julia Linn Thompson Erickson, a former resident of University Grove in Falcon Heights, died on Oct. 1, 1994, at the age of 50. She was active in the youth group at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ in her teen years.

Erickson received her bachelor's degree in social work from the University of Minnesota, then later went on to law school. She was an associate in the law firm of Arnold and Porter in Washington, D.C.

She is survived by two daughters, Sydney Aakhus and Inge Erickson; her parents, Willard and Mae Thompson of University Grove; a sister, Susan Thompson; and her grandmother, Olive Lohnes.

Marvin Johnson

Marvin W. Johnson, a graduate of Murray High School in the class of 1951, died suddenly on Oct. 18, 1994. He was 61 years old.

Johnson spent his childhood in Lauderdale and had lived recently in Forest Lake. He is survived by his wife, Diane Grove Johnson of Forest Lake; two daughters, Gayle McCann of Dellwood and Karen Reidt of Stillwater; four grandchildren, Courtney and Andrew Guy McCann, and Elizabeth and Emily Reidt; and three sisters, Irene Johnson of Palo Alto, Calif., Beverly Weiss of Minneapolis; and Phyllis Bakke of Lake Elmo.

Florence Keller

Florence I. Keller died at age 94 on November 6, 1994. She was a resident of Lyngblomsten Care Center.

Preceded in death by her husband, Paul Keller, she is survived by three sons, Roger Keller of Edina, Jerome Keller of St. Paul, and Bruce Keller of Seattle; ten grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; and nieces and nephews.

Eva Kuefler

Eva M. Kuefler, a resident of Lyngblomsten Care Center died on Nov. 3, 1994. She was 97 years of age.

Kuefler was preceded in death by her husband of 76 years,

Bernard Kuefler, and a grandson, Thomas Kuefler. She is survived by three daughters, Velma Lehto of St. Paul, Aileen Melbostad of Edina, and Dolores Barker of Bellevue, Wash.; a son, Harry Kuefler of Forest Lake; 10 grandchildren; 17 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandsons.

Frances Long

Frances B. Long died at age 94 on Oct. 30, 1994. She was a former resident of Carling Drive in Energy Park.

Long was a member of North Como Presbyterian Church and a past Matron of the St. Anthony Park Order of Eastern Star, Chapter 212.

Preceded in death by her husband, Charles Long, she is survived by cousins, Margaret Mortenson of Alden, Mich., and Jack Cheney of Traverse City, Mich.; and a stepbrother, Donald Hinkley of Miami, Fla.

Doris Low

Ruffcorn is survived by her husband, Clemens Ruffcorn of St. Anthony Park; her sister, Emily Mae Bacon of St. Anthony Park; and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Mary Stuber

Mary Jessica Stuber, a 1946 graduate of Murray High School, died on Oct. 24, 1994, after a long battle with cancer. She was 65 years old. She was the daughter of a Swiss immigrant who operated the St. Paul City Dairy from a farm in Roseville. She earned her bachelor's degree in elementary education at the College of St. Catherine and a master's in community development from the University of Southern California.

Stuber joined the Grail International women's religious service organization and for several years ran its 300-acre farm in Loveland, Ohio. She then worked for the Grail for seven years in Uganda. In the 1970s she supervised community services for the St. Paul Housing and Redevelopment Agency and then went to work for the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency.

Survivors include her sisters, Betty Waldoch of Bloomington and Sue Mattson of Pine Island; brothers, Robert Stuber and Hal Stuber, both of Boulder, Col., and George Stuber of St. Paul; and stepmother, Lucille Stuber of Little Canada.

Gordon Swanson

Gordon I. Swanson died on Nov. 4, 1994, at the age of 74. He had lived in St. Anthony Park for over 40 years during his time as a University of Minnesota professor in agriculture.

A former Marine and World War II veteran who received two Purple Hearts and a Bronze Star, Swanson finished his doctorate at the university after the war. He began teaching in the Department of Agricultural Education in 1951, officially retired in November 1992, and continued to work there until the time of his death. He traveled around the world, training others to teach agricultural techniques as part of United Nations efforts.

He was a member of the Boy Scouts of America, the American Vocational Association, the Minnesota Vocational Association, the National Rural Education Association and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He was awarded the Dunwoody Institute Prosser Award and the University of Minnesota College of Education Alumni Outstanding Educator Award. He was a past moderator of St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ and a parliamentarian of the Minnesota Conference of the UCC.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothy Swanson of St. Anthony Park; three sons, Dale Swanson of Forest Lake, Dean Swanson of Silver Spring, Maryland, and Charles Swanson of Lino Lakes; a daughter, Jan Mackenthun of Brownston; three grandchildren, Amanda and Scott Mackenthun of Brownston and T. Gordon Swanson of Lino Lakes; and two brothers, Arnold Swanson and Kenneth Swanson.

Carl Trapp

Carl F. Trapp, a resident of Como Park, died on Oct. 31, 1994. He was 81 years old.

Trapp was a member of Como Park Lutheran Church.

Survivors include his wife, Elsie, of Como Park; his children, Rosemary Johnson of Roseville, Dorothy Schomaker of Woodbury, Donald Trapp of Germany, Richard Trapp of Shoreview and David Trapp of Andover; nine grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and a sister-in-law, Marie Trapp of St. Paul.

Applications due at Capitol Hill

December 2 is the deadline for applying to Capitol Hill Magnet School for the 1995-96 school year. Applications are available at all St. Paul public elementary schools and at the Student Placement Center (293-5413).

Capitol Hill offers an accelerated program designed for academically gifted and highly motivated students in grades 1-8. To obtain more information, call 293-5918, or attend an informational meeting at the school, 560 Concordia Ave., on Tues., Nov. 29, at 6:30 p.m.

Snow reroutes for buses

Transit Operations, formerly MTC, is making available a "snow reroutes" brochure for this season's winter months. It explains how buses will be rerouted in case of extremely severe weather. The brochure is available on board buses, at Transit Stores and at other ticketing locations.

It details 56 routes in Minneapolis and 28 routes in St. Paul that will undergo temporary detours during harsh weather. Transit Operations will announce through local radio and TV stations when snow reroutes will be implemented and when buses will return to regular operations. Call 341-4BUS during reroute periods.

Assisted living program expands

Seniors and others who want to continue living on their own but need some supportive services can apply for three new Congregate Housing Services Programs (CHSP) that will be opening soon in St. Paul.

CHSP offers supportive services at a very affordable rate to current and new residents in public housing hi-rises. With the help of CHSP, residents can remain comfortably and economically in their own apartment rather than turning prematurely to more costly alternatives such as long-term care. CHSP services include meals, housekeeping, laundry, personal care and service coordination.

Applications are being taken now for programs that will be opening at the following hi-rises: 1000 Edgerton St., 1745 East Iowa Ave., and 1085 Montreal Ave. Seniors currently living in Seal Hi-rise in South St. Anthony can apply to transfer to one of the CHSP buildings.
