

Miller files legal action disputing her dismissal from Lauderdale city job

By Barbara Claussen

Lauderdale is moving ahead with plans to hire a new city administrator, despite a legal challenge from the former city administrator, Kathleen Miller.

Miller has filed a Writ of Certiorari with the Minnesota Court of Appeals charging that she was illegally fired from her job. Miller was dismissed by a 3 to 2 vote at an emotional City Council meeting January 24. She claims that the decision was unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious.

Miller worked as the Lauderdale city manager from April 1, 1992, until her dismissal in January. Supporters credit her with implementing several improvements in the city during her tenure, including park improvements, and changes in the police contract and the budgeting process.

Miller maintains that false allegations were made regarding her work performance and that the actions of the City Council constitute defamation, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and gender discrimination.

At the January council meeting, Mayor Jeffrey Dains listed lack of cooperation, insubordinate attitude, failure to follow through on council directives, and resident complaints about mistreatment as some of his reasons for recommending her dismissal.

Miller's legal action "is not the same as a lawsuit," explained Dorene Saronski, Miller's attorney. "What is happening is a review. We believe the decision was not made properly. If the Court of Appeals decides that it was made improperly, she could be reinstated in her position if she chose that."

Saronski emphasized that the Writ of Certiorari is a request to review what happened at the January 24 council meeting. A panel of judges will review the transcript. Since the courts recognize the council as an executive body, the decision had to be filed with the Court of Appeals.

Miller declined to be interviewed for this article.

Ron Batty, Lauderdale's city attorney, is confident that the dismissal was legal. "The court will look at what's on the record and make a decision based on that. It may take several months before it will come up before the court."

Dains said that the League of Minnesota Cities has agreed to represent Lauderdale in this situation. "The case is under the jurisdiction of the League at the current time. The city will only have to pay the $500 deductible on our insurance. If Como Avenue exit and entrance ramps off northbound Hwy. 280 were closed April 17 as workers began storm sewer construction on Eustis Street. This section of the Como/Arona sewer separation project will extend from Valentine Avenue to the north side of Como Avenue. The Hwy. 280 ramps are expected to reopen around June 1. However, storm sewer construction will continue this summer on Buford Avenue and on Hendon Avenue at the Como/Brompton intersection. Construction east of Raymond on Como Avenue—part of the same project—will continue through August 1.

Como parking lot gets public hearing

By Nora Livesay

The fight to save a grove of trees in Como Park by stopping a proposed parking lot has now moved to the St. Paul Planning Commission. The commission will review the site plan for the proposed parking lot on Friday, April 28, at 8:30 a.m. The meeting, which is open to the public, will be held in room 40 on the lower level of City Hall.

Part of the Como Park Master Plan, the parking lot is on Beulah Lane at Midway Parkway. Its construction involves closing a section of Beulah Lane near the playground and removing a grove of trees to build the parking lot.

A group of concerned citizens and the District 10 Como Community Council have repeatedly objected to the parking lot since this part of the Como Park Master Plan was discussed at a public hearing last May. Opposition to the parking lot centers around the removal of the grove of trees. The trees represent a "wilder" part of the park and wildlife habitat that opponents of the parking lot would like to see preserved.

At its April meeting, the District 10 Como Community Council requested that the Planning Commission review the site plan for the parking lot. Site plans are normally approved by city staff, but the Planning Commission by a 10-8 vote agreed to the review because of public opposition.

The St. Paul Parks and Recreation Department already has awarded a contract for construction of the lot. However, until the site plan is approved, no permits can be issued and construction cannot proceed.

The Planning Commission is expected to make its decision at the meeting. It could approve the site plan, reject the site plan or approve the site plan with restrictions. The commission's decision may be appealed to the City Council.

Tom Beach, a landscape architect with the zoning division of the St. Paul Licensing, Inspection and Environmental Protection Department, said city staff will recommend that the site plan be approved.

Campus Sports Grill plans summer outdoor concerts

By Kristin Cooper

The owners of the Campus Sports Grill at 2554 Como Avenue are seeking an outdoor events permit to hold four outdoor concerts in their back parking lot off Como Avenue this summer.

The concerts will take place monthly from June through September with 300 to 500 people expected at each event, the grill's owners told the St. Anthony Park Community Council at its April 12 meeting.

The council voted in favor of recommending the permit with several stipulations. After concerns about noise were raised by some council members, the council narrowed the time frame for concerts to a start of 5 p.m., to finish no later than 9:30 p.m. The council also stipulated that the music not be louder than 9 decibels at the soundboard, a measure that should mean little disruption in the neighborhood, according to

St. Anthony Park Community Council News

Council actions at a glance

At its April 12 meeting, the Council:

- Heard a presentation on riverfront development. The city is seeking citizen input on "Bringing the River to the Neighborhoods."
- Heard a presentation on the work of the Police-Civilian Internal Affairs Review Commission.
- Voted to send a message to the Metropolitan Council expressing concern about the Intermodal Shipping Study. We do not feel that the process for citizen participation used for the study provided for meaningful input.
- Voted to send a hearty thanks and congratulations to Mike O'Connor for his success in taking on the issue of equal access among neighborhoods to high-speed data telephone lines needed for businesses and computers. US West will be supplying the services here sooner because of Mike's efforts.
- Voted to send a letter to Council Member Megard expressing that the Community Council favors the construction of the noise wall along T.H. 280 from Territorial Road to Como Avenue, during construction season 1995, as the only practical method of noise abatement.
- Voted to send a letter to Mayor Coleman expressing the Council's disagreement with the idea of development of a baseball stadium on the riverfront. The Council does not consider this an appropriate use of public funding, particularly if a proposal for Capital Improvement Budget funding were involved.
- Heard a presentation about possible City Charter changes; discussed and asked about the makeup of the city councils in this state and others.
- Voted to recommend approval of the permit request from the Campus Sports Grill to sponsor four outdoor concerts this summer. The Council and the business owners worked on a compromise for noise levels, parking and security.

President of St. Paul Association of Responsible Landlords to speak

The Housing and Human Services Committee of the Council will hear from Diana Wilhelmsen about the organization she started and how it works effectively with city hall. The meeting will be held on May 24, at 5:30 p.m., at the South St. Anthony Park Recreation Center, 890 Cromwell Avenue. All meetings of the Community Council are open to the public and neighbors are invited to join us for the presentation.

Falcon Heights council denies request for earlier termination of assessment agreement with Falcon Crossing

By Julie Lehr

Stating that they understand the significant tax burden being borne by the tenants of Falcon Crossing, members of the Falcon Heights City Council nevertheless denied a request from the property's owner to terminate an assessment agreement in 1999 instead of 2005. Not surprisingly, the deciding factor was money—in this case, almost $647,000.

The decision came at the April 12 council meeting after a lengthy discussion of the request made by Stephen Wellington, Jr., president of Wellington Management Inc., on behalf of the property owner, Falcon Crossing Limited Liability Co. The current owner purchased the property at Larpeur and Snelling Avenues last July, inheriting the assessment agreement established in 1984.

At that time, the city provided financial assistance in the form of a $1.4 million commercial development revenue note and a $600,000 general obligation bond to the Bullseye Golf Development Project so a new retail shopping center could be built.

Though unusual for Falcon Heights, this assistance was provided to "enhance the tax base and eliminate blight" in the central commercial district, according to City Administrator Susan Hoyt. In exchange for the public funds, the developer entered into a 20-year assessment agreement with the city.

The agreement establishes a minimum market value on the property for tax purposes for a 20-year period, from 1985 to 2005. It also guarantees that the property will generate enough tax dollars over that period to cover the city's debt associated with the development, as well as other public improvements in the area. After reviewing the agreement, the city's attorneys have concluded it is legal and enforceable.

But the result of this agreement is a "much higher rate per square foot for rentals in Falcon Crossing," said attorney Bob Long, who represented Wellington. "When relief kicks in [in the form of lower taxes], the tenants will benefit." Long, the former St. Paul City Council member, said the rental rates in Falcon Crossing are "almost three times" those of surrounding properties.

On a different note, Long argued that the assessment agreement "guarantees funds sufficient to pay the bonds not [the] public improvements" the city is planning. He said the city has other sources for funding the public improvements, which include upgrading Larpeur Avenue. Furthermore, Long contended that the assessment document allows a reduction "that will cover the principal and interest on the bonds."

But the matter involves more than paying off the city's debt. An analysis of the fiscal impact for Falcon Heights was prepared by Keith Jans of Springsted Public Finance Advisors. Jans told the council that the estimated loss in revenue to the city would be $646,953 if the assessment agreement is ended in 1999, as requested. This potential revenue loss was too much for the council.

"The promised payoff to the people of Falcon Heights is not just the payoff of the bonds," said Mayor Tom Baldwin. That alone wouldn't have made the city's involvement in the project worthwhile. Rather, the payoff "had to be that this project would enable the city to do things it couldn't do" otherwise.

By terminating the assessment agreement, Baldwin believes the city would be breaking "a covenant formed in 1984 with the people of Falcon Heights" guaranteeing the extra revenue for the public improvements. He stated he has a "bottom line of $650,000 beyond our normal revenue sources."

Wellington countered that none of his proposals "would jeopardize the citizens of Falcon Heights." And he contended that it is "not prudent for a project to lever up" revenues for public improvements. He said special assessments are "a better way to go."

But Council Member Sam Jacobs agreed with Baldwin: "The original tax increment financing was done with the intent that, at some point down the road, it would afford us some money to do things we need to do."

For Council Member Jan Gibson Talbot, the request came down to a single question: "What would be the benefit to the public [for terminating the agreement]?" And she answered the question: "I can't find one. I can see a loss to the public."

Accepting the staff recommendation, the council voted 4-0 to deny the request to terminate the assessment agreement early. Council members indicated, however, that they are open to further discussion.

"I don't want to cut off the discussion of how to relieve the burden to the property owners and tenants," Baldwin said. "I want to promote a dialogue on what can be done."

Rick Solheid was recognized as Northwest Como Recreation Center's volunteer of the year at a citywide banquet on April 19. As treasurer of the Northwest Como Booster Club, Solheid spends many hours each month managing the financial affairs of the recreation center and the booster club. He also co-chaired the recreation center's biggest fundraiser last year, parking cars for the Minnesota State Fair. In his spare time, Solheid can be found either coaching or playing with his sons, Matt and Joe.

St. Anthony Park residents Elissa Burk and Britta Hansen, members of the Minnesota Thoroughbreds, were recently honored along with their team at the Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association banquet for state champions. The Thoroughbreds took first place in the Girls' Pee Wee A Division at the March tournament in Bloomington. Burk, who led the team in assists for the season, is an 8th grader at Murray Junior High; Hansen is in the 6th grade at St. Anthony Park Elementary.

Dan Kohler, a 1993 Central graduate, scored the third ace of his golfing career on March 26 at Lowes Creek in Eau Claire, Wis. Kohler, of the Como Park neighborhood, attends the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, where he is a member of the golf team and is majoring in psychology.

Three area residents received graduate degrees from the University of St. Thomas in December. Mari Espeland of St. Anthony Park was awarded a master's degree in music education; Sandra Somdahl of St. Anthony Park received an M.B.A. in information management; and Melissa Peterson of Como Park received an M.A. in counseling psychology.

Mark Peterson of Lauderdale received a bachelor of science degree in biology from the University of Wisconsin-River Falls in commencement ceremonies last December.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Adam J. Lee-Lehner was part of the U.S. naval force that provided cover for the final withdrawal of U.N. troops in Somalia during Operation United Shield. Lee-Lehner, an electronics technician, is aboard the San Diego-based amphibious assault ship, USS Essex.

"I maintained our radar systems for long-range air support during the operation," he said.

Lee-Lehner is the son of Clifford and Doris Lehner of Lauderdale. He is a 1982 graduate of Alexander Ramsey High School.

Mark and Brenda Hansen of St. Anthony Park were recognized as the 1994 St. Anthony Park Community Education honored volunteers at a Parks and Recreation volunteer appreciation banquet at Landmark Center on April 26.

As a volunteer with the Community Resource Program, Mark has taught hundreds of students about forestry, especially with his presentation on Christmas trees.

Brenda has acted as a financial liaison between the Community Resource Program and the St. Anthony Park Association, facilitating the funding of field trips and special events. She has also acted as a volunteer chaperone on many field trips.

Norton Stillman, owner of Micawber's Bookstore in St. Anthony Park, received the Kay Sexton Award for outstanding contributions to the Minnesota community of the book at the annual Minnesota Book Awards on April 8.

Stillman is a co-founder of Bookmen, the region's largest book distributor. He also heads Nodin Press. The award was presented by last year's winner, Glenda Martin of the Minnesota Women's Press. Martin lives in Lauderdale.

W. Phillips Shively of Falcon Heights was named provost of arts, sciences and engineering for the University of Minnesota's Twin Cities campus. He was chosen for the position by President Nils Hasselmo, and narrowly voted in by the university's Board of Regents in April. He will be in charge of the College of Liberal Arts, the Institute of Technology, the College of Biological Sciences and General College. Shively, a political science professor, has been at the university for 23 years.

Carin McIntosh has been named Langford Park Recreation Center's volunteer of the year. A junior at Como Park High School, McIntosh coaches volleyball and helps at various special events at Langford Park. She will be formally recognized by the St. Paul City Council. She is the daughter of Stewart and Kathy McIntosh of St. Anthony Park.

Parting thoughts

For the past 16 months, it's been my privilege to serve as editor of the Park Bugle. My tenure is ending now because of a full-time job opportunity too good to pass up. And though I don't believe in pretentious farewell columns, I do have some parting observations I'd like to share.

Falcon Heights: I've been regularly attending and reporting on City Council meetings for approximately a year now. Beginning with the selection of a new police department last spring through the most recent deliberations concerning Falcon Crossing, council members have impressed me with their thorough, well-reasoned approach to issues. Falcon Heights residents are lucky to have such capable elected officials. Unfortunately, they are likely to soon lose Mayor Tom Baldwin, who more than once has hinted he will not seek re-election this fall. Because Baldwin is a leader among the northwest Ramsey County communities, his retirement will be felt beyond Falcon Heights.

Lauderdale: Judging from the passionate opinions expressed to the Bugle by people on both sides of the issue, Kathleen Miller's dismissal has been very divisive in the city. Besides dealing with a legal action brought by Miller, the City Council will devote considerable time to finding a new administrator. I hope they also expend some efforts toward healing the rift so the city can move forward — united — once again.

St. Anthony Park: A neighborhood that cares about its traditions, St. Anthony Park boasts residents who work hard to safeguard its resources such as the wonderful Carnegie library, the Block Nurse Program and the Fourth of July celebration. Occasionally, however, the zeal for preserving tradition comes across as a refusal to tolerate change of any kind. And occasionally, people whose families have lived in "the Park" for generations make "newcomers" — who have been around ONLY 10 or 15 years — feel like outsiders. These attitudes don't belong in a neighborhood known for its friendliness.

The Bugle: Many community papers lack even one talented opinion writer. The Bugle has three very diverse commentary writers whose work is capable of provoking, amusing, or even moving readers to tears. Read them and treasure this wealth of local talent. (Yes, even if it's a Warren Hanson April Fool's column! Lighten up a little; life's too short to be so serious.)

Paving paradise

Dear editor,

I have just received the April issue of the Park Bugle, and your article on the removal of trees in Como Park caught my attention immediately. I am very concerned about the idea of replacing a grove of trees with a parking lot. It is time we realize the immense and irreplaceable value that every piece of wildlife has for us and for the environment. We have to learn how to live in harmony with the little we have left from nature, and not further destroy it. I really do not think a parking lot should ever replace a green area.

As a citizen of Lauderdale I would like to know what I can do to avoid this error from taking place.

Rafael Andrade, M.D.,
Lauderdale

Attend hearing to save the trees in Como Park

Dear editor,

Thank you for your article on the memorial service for the trees on Beulah Lane. We are thankful for the many people who decided to attend the service on that cold day.

Those who attended the service on March 19 were about 200 neighbors from Districts 10, 6, 12 and many other regional users of Como Park. They were people concerned about Como Park because there are "some things that just don't need to be changed about Como Park."

Some of the people who had an opportunity to put a name tag on a tree realized for the first time how large a stand of trees this is. Many of them felt the futility of the efforts put forth to changing the minds of our city officials. Some went away thinking, as Bob Piram (superintendent of St. Paul Parks & Rec.) said, there's nothing we can do because "this [parking] lot is going in." Then there were some of us who said, "What more can we do?"

The St. Paul Planning Commission has agreed to hold a public hearing to listen to our concerns at city hall on April 28.

St. Paul Parks and Recreation has already hired Benshoof and Associates to conduct a study of traffic, circulation and parking in Como Park. It has also decided to create an ad hoc committee to revisit the Como Park Master Plan and its implementation. With those two considerations, it would seem appropriate to include the Beulah Lane parking lot plan in its review.

Let's hold off on the destruction of the trees. It's too easy to cut down the trees and slap the reconfigured parking lot in without considering the irreversible damage. The trees, if replaced, don't grow back instantly. But this grove of trees is not being replaced, it's being removed. The present picnic area sight line will change instantly. The picnic area has enclosure because of these trees. We will instantly lose a natural, "wilding" barrier to noise and visual activities in other parts of Como Park. Fill the potholes and repave Beulah Lane until we're sure we want to lose these trees.

Kathryn Audette,
Como Park

Consider the elderly

Dear editor,

Both the Minnesota State House and Senate are now strongly considering legislative bills that would severely cut nursing home reimbursement. These funds are the financial lifeblood of our institutions. They are critical to providing quality care for the frail elderly. We are extremely concerned with the effect these cuts could have on services to the elderly who absolutely need them.

As administrators of the non-profit nursing homes in this area, we strongly urge the House and Senate not to cut these funds.

It would seriously affect the quality of nursing home care and lead to reductions in nursing, therapy, dietary and other key support staff. We serve more than 740 elderly, many of whom are long-time residents of the St. Anthony Park and Como Park neighborhoods.

For those of you who have had or currently have family in one of our nursing homes, you know how essential these services are to your loved ones. Although it may not always be easy or convenient to acknowledge, nursing homes provide the critical need of housing and services for the dependent elderly in our society. In recent years, the average age of nursing home residents has increased to over 85, and there has also been a significant increase in the frailty of new residents.

We understand the seriousness of the high cost of nursing home services. Every state-funded program is being scrutinized for possible funding cuts; we are not alone in this scrutiny. Concerning nursing home funding, however, the increase in the frailty of our residents is the major reason for the rise in costs. Thus, by holding our funding at current levels, the net effect is a cut.

We encourage you to write letters or call your

University official explains emergency plan for St. Paul campus

The April edition of the Park Bugle published a letter from a St. Anthony Park resident asking about pesticides and other chemicals on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota. His interest had been heightened by a recent fire and explosion in the Twin Cities area, and the realization that a large fire on the St. Paul campus might necessitate evacuation of the surrounding community. He asked, "Who would give the evacuation notice? How about the people who can't walk fast enough? People in nursing homes and so on?"

I'd like to take this opportunity to talk about the hazardous materials that are used on the St. Paul campus, how they are stored and the emergency response preparations that have been made to protect both the campus and the nearby community. The University has given a lot of thought and attention to management of the hazardous materials that are an important part of our research and teaching efforts.

Because the University's College of Agriculture is located on the St. Paul campus, it is not surprising that pesticides are used there; the college has about 100 acres of research plots on the northern part of the campus. Most of these pesticides are common agricultural chemicals, used on farms, gardens and lawns throughout the state. A small amount may be experimental pesticides, which are being developed and tested for efficacy. At the beginning of the 1994 growing season, a new, highly specialized agricultural pesticide handling and storage facility, located at the edge of the research fields, was put into operation. This facility was designed with both personnel and environmental protection as primary considerations. It is well ventilated to protect personnel, has an alarm system to notify the fire department and a sprinkler system to extinguish a fire, and has holding tanks and berms to contain fire water that might be contaminated with pesticides. The design of this facility sharply limits the potential for an incident that would affect the surrounding community.

Research quantities of chemicals are used throughout the St. Paul campus in laboratories in the Colleges of Agriculture, Biological Sciences, Human Ecology, Natural Resources and Veterinary Medicine. Quantities of flammable chemicals in each laboratory are limited by University policy; the limit is dependent on the size of the laboratory and the degree of flammability of the individual material. Waste chemicals are collected weekly and removed to the University's new Integrated Waste Management Facility on the Minneapolis campus. These operational requirements, as well as design and construction of laboratories, also serve to limit the potential for serious fires.

Although most of the St. Paul campus is located in Falcon Heights, the University has for many years contracted with the St. Paul Fire Department (SPFD) for fire, hazardous material and emergency medical response services. SPFD comes to the campus frequently to inspect facilities and visit new locations. It has toured the new agricultural pesticide facility and reviewed its fire-protective design features. If a fire were to occur on the St. Paul campus, or indeed anywhere in St. Paul, the fire department is the authority in charge of the situation. It will make decisions on evacuation of surrounding communities, and it has procedures in place to carry out notification and evacuation if necessary. The University also has emergency plans for its own facilities, and stands ready to assist the fire department if needed.

The University would be glad to provide further information. Either the Department of Environmental Health and Safety (626-6002) or the Department of Emergency Management (625-8047) can be contacted.

Habitat 500

My wife Patty is riding her bike for Habitat for Humanity again this summer. (In fact, she's out on her bike right now, even as I sit here in my basement, staring into the bluish glow of my monitor screen and tapping away at my keyboard. I guess she just doesn't know what real fun is!)

Now that the weather is finally nicer, she rides her bike every day to get in shape for the Habitat ride. It's called the Habitat 500. As in 500 miles. What happened to that sensible little gal I married?

Last year she and about a hundred other bikers rode to some God-forsaken outpost in South Dakota where Jimmy Carter was helping to build 30 houses in seven days. (I will refrain from saying that building 30 houses in seven days makes one weak.) By collecting pledges from friends and relatives, our intrepid bikers raised over $100,000 for Habitat for Humanity, most of which went to projects right here in the Twin Cities.

The year before last, our local bikers raised money by riding to Winnipeg, where Jimmy Carter was building houses that summer. And again they raised many thousands of dollars for building decent homes for people who couldn't otherwise afford them.

By happy coincidence, each of the last two Jimmy Carter Work Projects have been almost exactly 500 miles from here. Which is convenient, because who would pledge money to a ride called the Habitat 467? It just doesn't have that snappy appeal that we are used to. "Naw, I ain't pledging no money to nothing with so many syllables in it."

Okay, so if you're thinking ahead at all, you are asking yourself, "Where is Jimmy Carter going to be building THIS summer?" In your mind you are scanning a circle with a radius of 500 miles around the Twin Cities. Where will it be? Where will it be?

The answer: Los Angeles.

What?! Los Angeles! But that's way outside the circle! Someone must have made a mistake.

HomeWords Warren Hanson BUGLE COLUMNIST

No. No mistake. The fact that the Carter Project has been 500 miles from here the past two summers was just a coincidence. A fortuitous one for the bikers, certainly, and one that gave a nifty celebrity to their fundraising efforts.

Now I know what your next question is, and the answer is, "No, the bikers are not going to ride all the way to Los Angeles." I don't think any of them are interested in changing the name of the ride to the Habitat-2000-Across-The-Mountains-And-Desert. Instead they have created a nice regional ride that will have them looping down through Wisconsin and back to St. Paul. Real exciting, huh? (Yawn.)

Well, in fact, the lack of the celebrity connection is making things more difficult. At this point, there are only half as many riders signed up as there were at this time last year. And the fundraising effort is proving to be more of a struggle too. Last year Tom Brokaw helped at the Carter Project, so the whole country got to see it on the NBC evening news for a whole week. People will happily give money to that kind of thing. They enjoy fame by association. But tell them that you are riding your bike through Wisconsin and coming back home, and all of a sudden they have something boiling over on the stove and can't talk to you right now.

It's too bad. Habitat for Humanity is a wonderful organization. What could be more noble than building houses? It's so basic. It appears to me, as I have stood on the fringes of the action for the past couple of years, that when Habitat goes to work, everybody wins.

And when Habitat goes to work, it really goes to work. How else could it have built nearly 40,000 homes for people around the world?

Did I say nearly 40,000? I mean, almost exactly 40,000. The 40,000th Habitat for Humanity house will be built this summer. And guess what? It will be built right here in St. Paul.

And that is what the Habitat 500 bikers will be riding into when they come to the end of their week-long 500-mile trek. No, Jimmy Carter won't be there. Neither will Tom Brokaw, nor the television news crews. But do you know who WILL be there? Volunteers. Lots of people like you and me, pounding and lifting and driving trucks. And before all the pounding and lifting and driving, there will be lots more people making phone calls, lining up supplies, organizing and calculating and worrying and praying. And all of those people—the bikers and the workers and the worriers and the prayers—will all be joined together in the joy and satisfaction of helping that 40,000th family have a home of its own.

I intend to be a part of that joy. No, I'm not going to ride 500 miles on a bike. They wouldn't want me to pound any nails, and my calculating isn't so good sometimes. I am going to join in the joy by making a pledge to those bike riders. Jimmy Carter or no Jimmy Carter. Tom Brokaw or no Tom Brokaw. Habitat for Humanity isn't important because of Jimmy Carter. Habitat for Humanity is important because it really is important.

For that matter, the 40,000th house isn't important either. No more so than the 39,999th or the 40,001st. But if all those zeroes in a row attract more attention and more pledges, then, by golly, so be it.

I know my wife Patty will enjoy every minute of her ride through Wisconsin. I sincerely hope that a few more riders sign up. And I hope you won't let the absence of some celebrity stop you from feeling the joy and satisfaction of supporting Habitat for Humanity.

If you would like to be involved in the Habitat 500, either by riding or pledging, call Patty Hanson at 646-4538, or the local Habitat for Humanity office at 331-4090.

No semi trucks on Como Avenue

Dear editor,

Despite urging from the St. Anthony Park Community Council, the St. Anthony Park Business Association and a number of concerned neighbors, the city has reneged on promises made when Energy Park Drive was in the planning stages, refusing to support the ban on through truck traffic on Como Avenue. The city's position is based on a recent survey, which essentially shows that Energy Park Drive has absorbed some automobile and through truck traffic without any regulatory intervention. The survey, however, fails to support the city's position in many respects, and fails to address neighborhood concerns.

Overwhelmingly, the trucks with which both the business and residential community expressed concerns at the public meetings held last fall were the large semi tractor trailers. These are the trucks that rattle our windows, create traffic problems, upset the ambience of the business district and create the biggest safety hazard as they speed through the neighborhood. The city survey shows that while the number of small trucks using Como has dropped, the number of 14- and 18-wheel vehicles has increased and the number of 10-wheel trucks has essentially remained constant. Yet the city points to the drop in small trucks—which may use any street they want under city law—as a reason for reneging on the promise to regulate larger trucks that have increased in number.

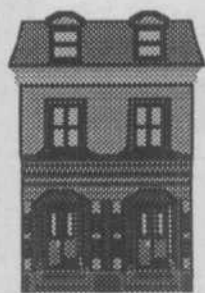

Based on the city survey and assuming constant numbers, there are 78 through trucks a day moving along Como, a significant number of which are large semi tractor trailers. Semis require greater stopping distances and greatly increase the frequency of re-surfacing and repair necessary on roads they frequent. One 18-wheeler does 11,000 times the damage of a car to the road surface. They are easily separately regulated either by number of axles or by axle weight. Yet the city refuses to consider the option of separately regulating these larger vehicles.

... As justification for inertia, the city traffic office argues that prohibiting through truck traffic on Como will increase use on side streets by trucks with local destinations, as such usage becomes legal when a through truck route is not available. They have consistently refused to address or discuss the easy and inexpensive solution to such a theoretical problem: "No Trucks" signs. ...

... The city wants to do nothing because doing nothing is easy, and facing up to the trucking industry is not. If you don't want to accept this, call or write to the St. Anthony Park Community Council and/or Council Member Bobbi Megard. We can force the city to keep its promises if we have the political will to do so.

Lauderdale City Council taking steps to fill council vacancy

By Barbara Claussen

The Lauderdale City Council was expected to interview applicants on April 25 for the council vacancy created by the resignation of Gene Ohman. The application deadline for Lauderdale residents interested in serving on the City Council was April 24, after the Bugle went to press.

The person appointed will serve through the end of this year. The remaining two years of Ohman's term will be filled through a special election this November.

At its March 28 regular meeting, the City Council accepted Ohman's resignation, which he had announced earlier. In a written statement Ohman said, "Our house is currently on the market and a move for my family is close at hand. Although legal, I perceive it as unethical to hold this office while making plans to move from the city. Hence, at the close of March, I will resign from my official duties here in Lauderdale."

Ohman added, "It has been both a pleasure and a great experience to serve the city in this position. I will miss the interactive process by which we set policy and guard the resources of this community. Also, because of this experience I look forward to future involvement in the political arena."

Ohman, who was elected in November 1993, served on the council for 15 months.

Mayor Jeffrey Dains thanked Ohman for serving. "It's been a pleasure and an honor. I will miss you," Dains stated that he had enjoyed Ohman's unique perspectives, his sense of humor and his witticisms.

Dains reported that the council would like to fill the vacancy before interviewing candidates for the city administrator's position on April 29.

In other actions at the March 28 meeting, the council unanimously approved a change in the zoning ordinance after a public hearing that lasted two minutes. The change permits the conditional use of light manufacturing in a B-1 district. Lauderdale's B-1 properties front Larpenteur Avenue east of Highway 280 and west of Eustis, and include a portion of the New Mech property on Eustis, and the northeast corner of Larpenteur and Eustis.

Council members agreed that a conditional use would allow the council to have some control. Under the conditional use stipulation, every potential use would be evaluated by the council. Members emphasized that the change in the ordinance allows light manufacturing but not heavy industrial use. "It's not industrial smoke stack type of use," pointed out Council Member Steve Froehlich.

The council passed a resolution to purchase tax-forfeited land behind the city garage for $26.15. The city currently uses this property for a driveway.

A discussion of the waterworks project scheduled to begin this spring centered on the distribution of costs. Lauderdale received a Community Development Block Grant of $60,800 to install a water main on 33rd Avenue S.E. between Como Avenue and Hennepin Avenue. The remainder of the cost for this project will be shared by Lauderdale and the city of Minneapolis.

The council approved a request by the Children's Home Society to hold a raffle. Lauderdale's Ordinance No. 77 requires the city to license raffles.

The council also approved a request to use the building at 1743B Eustis as a sign shop because it constitutes a less intense use of the property than in the past. Former businesses have included a beauty shop, insurance agency, and a dog grooming facility.

A motion to allow a ten-week session of baseball in the park on Tuesday evenings was unanimously approved. Baseball will

Roseville school board election May 16

Two seats on the Roseville Area School Board will be filled on Tuesday, May 16, when voters in communities served by District 623 go to the polls. Lauderdale and Falcon Heights residents vote at Fairview Community Center, 1910 West County Road B. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Two incumbent school board members are running unopposed. They are Brad Borsheim and Jan Silliman, both Roseville residents. The terms will be for four and a half years, beginning July 1 and expiring in January 2000.

Committee proposes three at-large seats on St. Paul City Council

By Kristin Cooper

Is the St. Paul City Council structure broken and does it need fixing again? Public hearings are scheduled during May to discuss the possibility of changing the makeup of the City Council to a mix of ward and at-large representatives.

Raeone Loscalzo and Andy Driscoll of the St. Paul Charter Commission Council Structure Committee met with the St. Anthony Park Community Council in April to discuss the history of the issues and the alternatives.

The structure committee is proposing changing the current seven-ward system to six wards and three at-large council seats. The at-large council members would be city-wide representatives, campaigning city-wide for their seats. The committee also proposes changing the terms of City Council members from two to four years and staggering the terms. Currently, members campaign every two years.

Driscoll said the move is needed to balance the mayor's power, which comes from city-wide mandate, and because of the lack of commitment to city-wide issues on the part of council members representing their wards. He said this leads to vote trading on issues critical to the home turf.

Fourth Ward City Council Member Bobbi Megard disagrees with Driscoll's assessment of the current system. "I don't see city issues being ignored," she said.

When neighborhood issues are being discussed, Megard said the views of individual council members are given more weight because they know the issues. In city-wide issues, she said, the council looks at what is best for the city.

Megard said the hearings will be an interesting sounding board to see how people feel about the effectiveness of a part-time City Council, a change that was implemented with the 1993 elections. She said the council structure has undergone a great deal of change in the past 20 years with unclear results. "The jury is still out as to whether it's better, worse or adequate," she said.

Former City Council Member Susan Kimberly said the frequent "tinkering" with the structure of the City Council is missing the point.

She said the system of who should develop policy and who should implement it has "been backwards for 20 years"—with the stronger mayor making policy and the City Council administering it. She said the City Charter of 1970, which outlines the opposite structure, has never been properly put into place and because of that, the same issues arise with calls for change.

"If tinkering with the structure were the answer," she said, "we would have a perfect council."

Kimberly, who served on the City Council in the 1970s when all members were elected at-large, said a case could be made for at-large representation because of the different perspective those members would bring to the table, but she said that is not an answer for vote-trading. She does not find fault with the current City Council or mayor, but said she would not be surprised if votes were being traded, because "that's what politicians do."

At-large council seats also have implications for equity issues. The ward system is seen as a better way to assure that minority voices are heard. In the 1980s through what Driscoll called "an unholy alliance," members of minority ethnic groups joined with Republicans to bring about the ward system.

Megard said at-large representation would "give monied interests even more power" in city politics. Citing a federal court decision, Kimberly said city-wide seats dilute the power of the disadvantaged, an issue she believes is not given enough consideration.

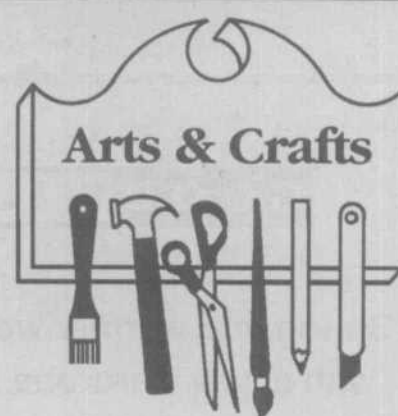

The charter commission believes that reducing the number of wards to five or six "would not severely dilute" voting strength for communities of color.

Public hearings on the proposed changes are scheduled:

- Wed., May 3, 7 p.m., at the Merriam Park Community Center, 2000 St. Anthony Ave.
- Wed., May 17, 7 p.m., at the East Side Community Center (Merrick), 1526 E. 6th Street.
- Thurs., May 25, 5 p.m., at the City Hall Council Chambers.

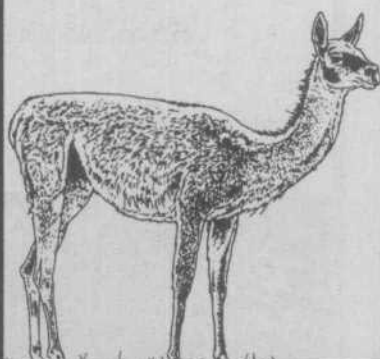

Written comments may also be submitted before June 15 to: St. Paul Charter Commission, Attn: Bill Johnson, c/o Council Research Office, 3rd Floor, City Hall, St. Paul, MN 55102.

School News

Falcon Heights Elementary

This past month only a few things have happened. During school, Mr. Hansen's 6th grade class has been busy drawing and painting panels. The students are designing 3 ft. wide by 8 ft. long panels that will be made to look like a medieval castle. All the panels will be hung in the classroom for a festival we're having. The kids in the class also got to sign up to be a medieval person. Some examples are knights, a lord, a lady, squires and pages.

On Thurs., May 18, Falcon Heights School is having a community parade. It will be to celebrate our efforts in Building Lifelong Beliefs. The parade starts at 5:30 p.m. and afterwards there will be a social time with a McDonald's supper and ice cream. There is a cost for the food. The parade will take place near school and the social will be at the school. This event is open to anybody who wants to come.

Four 6th graders from our school made it to state in Future Problem Solving. To get there, they had to make it to regionals, compete against many other kids in the district, and win that.

Eric Blomquist

St. Anthony Park Elementary

On March 11, the Odyssey of the Mind teams from our school went to Harding High School for the regional competition. Our teams did very well. One team got 11th place, one 8th, one 4th, one 3rd and we even got a 2nd place for our 5th grade team!

On March 31, our annual school talent show was held in the Murray Junior High auditorium. There were many acts, including songs, skits, piano playing and dances.

Ms. Townsend's and Ms. Thelander's 1st grade classes had a pizza party for the children who fulfilled the requirements for the "Book It" program. Ms. Thelander's class also celebrated the return of baseball. The students played arithmetic baseball, read baseball stories, saw the 1991 world series on video and shared their own baseball memorabilia.

The 5th grade is finishing up the D.A.R.E. program. D.A.R.E. stands for Drug Abuse Resistance Education. The kids learned how to say no to drugs. The D.A.R.E. classes were taught by Officer Haider. The 6th grade also had a drug education class, taught by Mr. Beck. They will also have sex education and death education.

We are starting our Tree Trust program. Our school will be planting shrubs and a variety of trees behind the school. The students will help plant and take care of the trees for years to come.

The annual spring concert is coming on May 18. The orchestra and band will perform, led by Mr. Villevik and Mr. Middleton. Ms. Grobe will be leading a small choir.

Ms. Holoubek will be leading the Presidential Fitness Program for the students. We will participate in a mile run, curl ups, pull ups and other physical activities. Ms. Holoubek is also in charge of the running club, along with Ms. Roe and Ms. Flaherty. After school, students will get ready for Get In Gear, a 2K run.

The annual school carnival will be held the night of May 5. There will be games, food, a haunted house and lots of fun!

The 3rd graders in Ms. Swartz's class will be going to Blue Earth, Minn., on May 19 to visit their pen pals.

Don't forget to buy Rainbow Foods coupons at St. Anthony Park Elementary School!

Rachel Abbott & Siri Larson

Murray Junior High

About 30 students from Mr. Sager's social studies class went to regional history day on April 6. Tim Hayes, Robert Dunleavy, Peter Wilson and Aaron Zirzow are going to state history day.

On May 3 Murray students will watch a theater presentation by students in afternoon Stepping-Stone Theatre classes.

There is a senior citizen luncheon and theater performance at noon on May 4.

The week of May 1 to 5, from 7:30 to 8 a.m., people can drop off items in the cafeteria for the annual Murray garage sale. The garage sale is on Sat., May 6, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

On May 18 there is a Fresh Force picnic. Ms. Ziernski, a school counselor, is in charge.

Physics Day at Valley Fair is May 19. Magnet I science students will participate.

There is an H.B. Fuller partnership picnic for tutors and students on May 23.

Murray band, orchestra, and chorus will have an assembly on May 24. The spring concert is the following day, May 25.

Megan Tracy

Como Park High School

May 4 is Como Park's spring band concert. It starts at 7 p.m. in the auditorium for anyone who is interested.

The Spring Fling dance is coming up on May 12. This is the students' last chance to swing their partners round and round.

Tony Avoles, a sophomore tennis player, told me his views on the tennis team for this year: "I think it's a rebuilding year. There are a couple of good seniors and a lot of promising underclassmen."

Senior Kelly Wynn feels the baseball team has a chance to "contend for the conference title this year. I think it will be a fun year, even though there are only two of us seniors and 16 juniors."

The girls' softball team is looking forward to an outstanding season, after having an awesome preseason. The track team and badminton team are also expected to do well this year.

The event will feature a morning clinic for players in grades K-4, and afternoon coed tournaments for players in grades 5-9. This year's Soccer Saturday will be directed by the Minnesota Youth Soccer Association's Director of Coaching and Player Development, Ray Poquette, and is sponsored by Jim Roehrenbach, State Farm Insurance.

Call 298-5765 for more information. Registrations will be accepted at Langford Park Recreation Center.

Plant sale

The Minnesota Food Association will sponsor a plant sale fundraiser on Sat., May 13, from 8 a.m. to noon at the MFA office, 2395 University Ave., Room 309. Choose from a wide selection of vegetables, flowers, herbs and perennials, including organic or heirloom varieties that our gardening grandparents used to grow. Garden cuttings and house plants also will be available.

MFA works to promote sustainable farming and urban-rural community. It conducts these unique plant sales to introduce gardeners to organic seeds and heirloom varieties, and to raise funds for the organization.

Celebrating age

Residents and staff of Twin City Linnea Home, 2040 Como Ave., will celebrate national Homes for the Aging Week, May 14-20. To proclaim the beginning of the celebration, a banner will wave outside Linnea beginning on May 14, Mother's Day. Plans include an evening dance, entertainment, daily parties sponsored by each of the facility's departments, a staff appreciation picnic and visits by community members.

Linnea residents will share in touching the lives of others who live in care facilities through visits with other nursing homes throughout the week. The theme, "Touching Lives With Love," will be celebrated at senior care facilities throughout the country.

Lutheran Bible School

"Awesome Adventures: God's Amazing Deeds" is the theme for Vacation Bible School at St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church, 2323 Como Ave. Stories and activities will reflect such exciting themes as Daniel in the Lion's Den and Noah's Ark. The preschool session is from June 5 to 9 from 9 to 11 a.m. and is limited to 50 students. Children who have completed grades K-6 will meet June 26-30 from 9 a.m. to noon. The registration fee is $10 per child or $20 maximum per family. Registration dates are May 8 to 22. Call the church, 645-0371, for a registration form, or stop by the church office at the Luther Place entrance.

Seminary news

Luther Seminary Friends' spring program "From Russia with Love," will be presented on Sat., April 29, at the Olson

Tim Faacks (left) and Tom Spreigl purchased Speedy Market at Como and Doswell Avenues from the Schroeder Milk Company in March. Faacks, the meat manager, has worked at the store for 12 years. Spreigl, the store manager, has been with the company for 17 years, 8 at this location. The two have renamed the store Tim and Tom's Speedy Market.

Campus Center, Hendon Avenue at Fulham Street. Featured will be the music of Russian violinists Gasan Guseyn-Zade and Diana Iskenderova, accompanied by pianist Maurine Tebow. The guest speaker will be Valeri Tchijik, a seminary student from the Ukraine. Registration and a silent auction begin at 9 a.m. The program begins at 10 a.m., followed by a luncheon at 11:30 a.m. The cost is $12.50, which includes a $5 tax deductible donation for student scholarships.

Luther Seminary professor and hymnwriter Gracia Grindal, composer John Ylvisaker and musicians from Norway and the United States will combine traditional Norwegian music, jazz and gospel to celebrate Syttende Mai (Norwegian Independence Day) on May 17. The free event will begin at 7 p.m. in the Chapel of the Incarnation at the Olson Campus Center.

That afternoon, Grindal will lead a worship service in Old Muskego Church on the seminary grounds at 3 p.m., which will be followed by "Lefse on the Lawn" outside the chapel.

The celebration will feature Norwegian professional singer Elisabeth Moberg and Ylvisaker, a well-known Lutheran composer and musician.

Langford/South St. Anthony Rec Centers

Registration for T-ball and nearball at Langford Park will continue through May 5. Boys and girls ages 5-8 are eligible to participate.

Registration for summer youth activities at Langford and South St. Anthony will be held May 30 through June 9. Activities at Langford include art adventures, chess club, clay camp, tennis lessons, ten-to-one card club and preschool tumbling. Activities at South St. Anthony include Bookstart (in its 25th year) and clay camp.

The Langford Park family camp-out will be held on Fri., May 19. The last day to register is May 5.

COMO PARK

Coaches needed

Northwest Como Recreation Center is looking for volunteers for its summer sports program. Coaches and assistant coaches are needed. Teams usually have one game and one practice per week during the summer. Leagues begin the last week of school, but registration was held in April. Call the recreation center at 298-5813 for more information.

Run for animals

The 9th annual K9-5k Walk and Run for Animals will be held on Sat., May 6, at Como Park. Sponsored by the Humane Society of Ramsey County, this fundraiser supports the programs and services benefiting homeless animals.

Runners and walkers are required to be accompanied by a canine to place in the race. Animals accompanying participants must be leashed, licensed, have up-to-date vaccinations and always be under the control of their owners.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. at the Como Park picnic pavilion shelter on Beulah Lane. The runners start at 9 a.m. and walkers follow at 9:05 a.m. The five-kilometer course loops around Lake Como and finishes at the picnic shelter. Awards and prizes will then be presented. Refreshments will also be available for all participants.

Walkers and runners are encouraged to collect pledges.

All participants raising $25 or more will receive a limited edition 9th annual K9-5k T-shirt. The top pledge raiser will receive a cash prize. Runners who place will receive awards. Anyone raising more than $200 will be eligible to win a vacation getaway for two.

For more information, call 645-7387.

Alzheimer's series at Sholom Home

Sholom Home East, 1554 Midway Parkway, will host a four-part series for those caring for someone with memory loss. The series is scheduled from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Thursdays, May 4, 11, 18 and 25. The classes are designed to help family members understand the changes in their relative and to give insight into how to best meet their own needs and those of the person with memory loss. The series is also open to health care professionals.

The sessions will cover:

May 4: Impact of dementia on the individual and family.

May 11: Communications and behavioral issues: How to handle and cope with the problems and changes that arise.

May 18: Community Resources: Exploring the maze of services to determine what fits.

May 25: Managing the stress and caring for one's self.

The cost is $20 per person for all four sessions. For more information, call 888-7653.

Since 1983, Sholom East has had a secure care unit, which cares for seniors with Alzheimer's and related disorders.

Lyngblomsten holds benefit

Spring Rhapsody, Lyngblomsten Foundation's annual benefit gala, will be held Sat., May 6, at 6 p.m., at the Sheraton Minneapolis Hotel, 1330 Industrial Blvd.

This year's event, "An Evening to Remember," includes an elegant dinner and the music of nationally known Gospel singer, Tom Tipton.

Proceeds from the gala go to the Lyngblomsten Parish Nurse Partnership to help fund parish nurse programs in St. Paul area churches. Parish nursing is a holistic approach to health care. It brings together aspects of faith and health to educate, counsel and help members of the congregation and the community.

For more information about the benefit, call 647-4689.

Job Corps has committee opening

Several St. Paul citizen committees have vacancies, including the Hubert H. Humphrey Job Corps Center Neighborhood Advisory Committee, which has one opening. This committee fosters communication between the Job Corps and the adjacent community. It reviews the operation of the Job Corps and addresses concerns raised by the neighborhood. The committee meets on the second Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Job Corps, 1480 N. Snelling.

For more information, contact Phillip Caligiuri at 228-3284, ext. 342.

Applications may be obtained from Mayor Coleman's office, 390 City Hall, or by calling 266-8526. The deadline for applying is May 24.

Como Zoo events

May 12 marks the anniversary of Casey the gorilla's brief walk around the zoo grounds last year. A special photo opportunity will be available.

Radio AAHS is planning a free AAHSrageous 5th birthday celebration at Como Zoo on Sat., May 13, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The AAHSome entertainment will feature the original "Sister Act" of Janet and Judy, The Minneapolis Music Workshop for Kids and Radio AAHS' own Amy from Avenue "A." There will be birthday cake from Wuollet Bakeries, plus AAHSrific games and prizes. Call 926-1280 for more information.

Preserving your St. Paul house

Homeowners and others interested in old houses are invited to attend a public forum, "Preserving Your St. Paul House," on Thurs., May 18, from 7 to 9 p.m., at Como Lakeside Pavilion, 1360 N. Lexington Parkway. The event will feature presentations by four preservation experts. Admission is $1 per family. Call 266-9087 for more information.

LAUDERDALE

It's time for spring cleaning in Lauderdale!

Lauderdale residents must clean up any refuse and debris which may have accumulated on their property during winter. Unscreened construction materials not currently being used, outside storage of vehicle parts and unlicensed vehicles also must be removed.

All properties will be inspected by Friday, May 5. A letter will be sent to those found in violation of city ordinance. If the violation is not corrected within a specified time, a citation will be issued.

FALCON HEIGHTS

League of Women Voters to meet

The League of Women Voters of Roseville, Maplewood and Falcon Heights will hold two meetings in May. On Thurs., May 11, after having dinner at the Lagoon Restaurant, 540 Rice St., at 5:30 p.m., the members will go to the Minnesota History Center to view the exhibit "Women in Action: Rebels and Reformers 1920-1980." On Wed., May 17, at Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 2561 N. Victoria, at 9:30 a.m., the league will present a program on light rail transit. For more information, call Sally Simundson at 483-4487.

FALCON HEIGHTS

City-wide garage sale

On Sat., May 20, Falcon Heights will hold its second city-wide garage sale. The Solid Waste Commission is promoting the "ultimate in recycling" by inviting residents to take to the alleys and driveways. Many items no longer used in homes can find new uses elsewhere. A garage sale is also a great way to get back in touch with neighbors after the long winter months.

Residents wishing to participate are encouraged to register at city hall, 2077 Larpenteur Ave., before May 12. City maps and a guidelines sheet will be available for registrants. There is no charge to participate. Maps highlighting Falcon Heights' residential neighborhoods will also be available to bargain-hunters at city hall on sale day.

Last year over 130 homes registered their sales with the city.

Model railroad sale

A model railroad and hobby sale will be held on Sat., May 13, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., in the Education Building on the Minnesota State Fairgrounds. The event will feature tables of new and used model and toy trains, miniatures, toys, models and many other hobby needs.

Admission will be $7 per family, or $3 for adults, $2 for those under 15.

This event is a fundraiser for the Twin City Model Railroad Club, a non-profit agency. Proceeds will be used to help with maintenance, construction and operating costs of the Trains at Bandana model railroad museum at Bandana Square.

For more information, call 647-9628.

Family values

Illusion Theater presents "Family," songs and scenes to explore ways to strengthen families, prevent violence and open lines of communication, on Sun., May 7, at 2 p.m. at the Student Center Theatre on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota. Admission is $5 or $3 for U of M students. For more information, call 625-8266.

Bike and camping gear swap

Bring in your used bike and camping gear to the St. Paul Campus Student Center's Northstar Ballroom on Tues., May 9, or on Wed., May 10, and shop for great deals Thurs., May 11, through Sat., May 13. Hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tues.-Fri.; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. Call 625-0251 for more information.

A bounty of trees

A $6,800 grant will be used to expand the boulevard tree planting program during 1995 in Falcon Heights. Approximately 80 trees will be planted, most of them in the Northhome neighborhood east of Snelling Avenue, although a few will be replacements for trees lost in other areas.

According to city forester Linda Treeful, varieties to be planted include linden, Norway maple and green ash. In an average year, the city might plant 15 trees, so the 80 to be planted this year is a "huge increase," Treeful said.

The grant was obtained through the UNITREE program sponsored by the University of Minnesota and Foster Wheeler Twin Cities, Inc., the company that won the contract in 1992 to operate and renovate the university steam plants. The UNITREE program is a 25-year tree planting project to benefit neighborhoods surrounding the university. Grants are administered this year by the Twin Cities Tree Trust, a non-profit group with 18 years of community-based tree planting and planning experience.

Arbor Day planting

Arbor Day will be celebrated on May 19 at Falcon Heights Elementary School, when 5th and 6th grade students will plant six to eight crabapple trees in the courtyard. The trees were obtained by the city of Falcon Heights as part of its grant from the UNITREE program (see preceding article).

Festivities, including singing and presentations by each grade level in the school, begin at 1:30 p.m. Mayor Tom Baldwin will read a special proclamation. Community members are welcome to attend.

By waiting until May, "we're hoping to get a warm day," said Principal Ellen Blank.

EMS open house set Saturday, May 20

Emergency medical services will be showcased in Falcon Heights again this year during an EMS open house at the Fire Department, Larpenteur Avenue and Prior Street, adjacent to city hall. The event will be Saturday, May 20, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and all area residents are invited.

The first EMS open house, held last May, was a huge success, and organizers are hoping for another good turnout.

The open house will feature members of the EMS team, including emergency medical technicians, firefighters and police officers, who provide life-saving care to the residents of Lauderdale and Falcon Heights. The theme for this year's celebration, observed nationally during the week of May 14-20, is "Emergency Medical Services: We're There for Life."

National EMS Week honors the services EMS providers offer nationwide, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, according to Joe Martinez of the Falcon Heights Fire Department.

The open house presents an opportunity for people to learn about first aid, injury prevention and emergency preparedness, in addition to viewing emergency equipment displays and demonstrations. A bike safety rodeo also is planned. The event is jointly sponsored by the city and the Fire Department.

Collecting: A 'personal passion'

By Tony Grundhauser

Inside the Goldstein Gallery on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota, there is a box on display that holds an array of old bunions and ingrown toenails. Could this be a political statement by an artist concerning the flaking away of the moral order in the dying society where he or she lives? A visual protest against the stinking feet of a tyrannical government determined to trample its citizens with rank social policy?

Sorry.

The display is simply an example of a collection—a small part of the current exhibit at the Goldstein, "Collecting: The Instinct for Order." Most of the collections are much more dignified than the foot waste donated to the Hennepin County History Museum by a podiatrist. There are soap bands, caddy spoons, ceramic ash trays, Vera scarves tobacco tins, buttons, consumer products portraying African American imagery, and, of course, stamps.

For Dr. Timothy Blade, curator of decorative arts and exhibit curator, collecting is a personal passion. His own collection of antique miniature chests and miniature Chinese and Japanese porcelain is one of the most complete, and aesthetically pleasing selections.

Extended walls and glass cases placed at right angles to one another protect each collection, preserving their uniqueness and visual unity. Observers are able to come in intimate contact with each group of items and attempt to understand the essence of the collector's enthusiasm.

Possibly more interesting than the collections are the collectors themselves.

"There are no universals about people who collect, but all of us have some kind of passion," Blade says. "The essence of collecting can best be found by looking at those people who collect things that are, essentially, worthless. Their collections are not necessarily beautiful, or having any historical or investment value. When someone collects license plates, tea bags, matchbooks, or magnets, then the focus is on the process of collecting.

"I think the one thing all collectors like is order," he continues. "They see a relationship and a relatedness between the objects. I think that's what collecting is; that's what gives it unity and pleasure."

Anglophile Rodney Schwartz collects silver tea pots, tea cups, tea caddy spoons, fine china and tea towels. "I think maintaining standards is about control," he says. "I don't save anything for company best. Rather, the very best is what I like for every day."

Roxanne Givens' collection is centered on her African American heritage. Her collection contrasts old cookie jars and salt and pepper shakers designed in stereotypical Aunt Jemima imagery with Caribbean art and dolls in celebratory dress. "My passion to collect is my history," she says.

The exhibition will be on display through May 21. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with hours extended until 8 p.m. on Thursdays. The gallery, in room 241 of McNeal Hall, 1985 Buford Ave., also is open Saturdays and Sundays from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Music

Pianist Thelma Hunter, her son, clarinetist John Hunter, and his wife, Karin Ursin, flutist, will perform at the season finale of the Music in the Park chamber music series at St. Anthony Park United Church of Christ, 2129 Commonwealth Ave. In celebration of Thelma and Sam Hunter's 50th wedding anniversary, the program, on Sun., April 30 at 7 p.m., will feature the world premiere of a piece commissioned by the couple by composer Paul Schoenfield.

The Hunter family will be joined by Sabina Thatcher, principal violist with the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, and Kathy Kienzie, principal harpist with the Minnesota Orchestra, for additional works by Debussy, Bruch and Weber.

Tickets are $10 advance purchase or $12 at the door ($6 student rush). They may be purchased in advance at The Bibelot Shop (646-5651) and Micawber's Bookstore (646-5506) or by calling 644-4234.

A benefit music series for Como Park Conservatory continues on Sun., April 30, at 6:45 p.m., with a jazz jam session, "A Touch of Class Under Glass," under the direction of local saxophonist Morris Wilson.

The performance will be held in the Conservatory's Sunken Garden. Admission is $5 per person or $8 per family. For more information, call 489-0868.

Folksingers Ed Trickett and Gordon Bok will present a concert at the University of Minnesota St. Paul Campus Student Center, 2017 Buford Ave., on Sun., May 7, at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $9 in advance or $10 at the door. They may be purchased by calling the New Folk Collective, 379-3951, from 3 to 6 p.m. Tickets are also available at The Podium in Dinkytown, 331-8893.

"One Enchanted Evening," a free concert featuring local musicians, will be presented at St. Anthony Park Lutheran Church, 2323 Como Avenue, on Fri., May 19, at 7:30 p.m. High school student instrumentalists April Larson, Cody Hanson and Victor Larson and St. Anthony Park vocalist Linda Steen will be among those performing classical and 20th century music.

Visual Art

Midwest Media Artists Access Center (MMAAC) will hold an exhibition of photographs created by its members from May 8-June 17 at Susan's Coffeehouse & Deli, 2399 University Ave. An opening night reception will be held on Mon., May 8, from 6 to 9 p.m. For more information, call 644-1912.

"The Marks of An Artist," an exhibition featuring work by four young ceramic artists, opens at the Northern Clay Center with a reception on Fri., May 12, from 6 to 8 p.m., and continues through June 30. Nancy Blum, Mary Carroll, Matthew Metz and Linda Sikora

Gallery hours at the Northern Clay Center, 2375 University Ave., are Mon.-Sat., 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Thurs., 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Call 642-1735 for more information.

Two exhibits featuring works by students will be held at the Paul Whitney Larson Gallery in May.

"Break the Line," running through May 12, showcases a collection of student artwork with media ranging from cut glass to basketry. A free opening reception will be held on Fri., May 5, from 6 to 8 p.m.

"Art in Action: Getting the Message Out," runs from May 15 through June 2. It is an exhibition and symposium focusing on the resolution of violence in society, focusing on the moral responsibility of how communication may help reduce rather than escalate violence. The exhibit will feature student works from colleges, universities, community colleges and technical schools in the seven-county metropolitan area. A free reception and symposium will be held on May 17 at 3:30 p.m. at the gallery in the Student Center at the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota.

ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES IN REAL ESTATE

Realtors are becoming more aware of the environmental conditions surrounding properties and how they affect the consumer.

Today's buyers want to know, and need to know, as much as possible about the property they are purchasing. Some concerns are: high-tension wires located close to the property, as well as, the possible presence of radon, asbestos and lead-based paint.

A new federal law will go into effect in November '95 regarding lead-based paint. Disclosure and opportunity for inspection will be required before a sale. Solutions? There aren't any easy ones right now.

Radon: At this time, information regarding radon is voluntarily provided by realtors. There is a strong movement within the state legislature for mandatory testing. Is radon a problem in the Twin Cities? Testing today is long (6 months+) to be accurate, but many times is done in 3 days.

High voltage power lines are more than just an aesthetics problem. Consumers are concerned with potential health risks from EMF's emitted. This can be tested for its affect on the property.

Asbestos is a concern in older homes with old furnaces, tile floors, wrapped pipes and siding. There are qualified inspectors and containment companies who can come out and look at the potential problem and solutions.

Realtors can be a good source of information and can help find qualified professionals to help solve these problems. Call for help...

Jamaican musician in concert

The Music in the Park Series Family Concerts presents Douglas R. Ewart, a master instrument maker and multi-instrumentalist, on Fri., May 5, at 6:15 and 7:30 p.m., at the St. Anthony Park Library, 2245 Como Ave. Ewart and his accompanist Steve Goldstein will demonstrate and perform on various wind and percussion instruments from Jamaica, Africa, Australia, Brazil, Japan and India.

Ewart has won national acclaim and numerous awards for his music, which combines the traditions of four continents, instruments that double as sculptures, and his masks and costumes. He is known as a maker of brightly colored "rain sticks," human-height "totem flutes," percussion instruments and panpipes. Ewart's program will introduce families to instrumental sounds rarely heard in North America.

After immigrating to the United States from Jamaica in 1963, Ewart studied theory, composition, saxophone and clarinet at the Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians (AACM) School of Music. He later became president of the AACM and an instructor for the association's school. Ewart has held workshops, lectures and exhibitions all over the United States, including the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, the Washington Performing Arts Center and the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C.

Block Nurse Program's Marjorie Jamieson honored as women's business advocate

Marjorie Jamieson, executive director of the Living at Home/Block Nurse Program, has been named Minnesota Women in Business Advocate for 1995. This award is presented annually by the U.S. Small Business Administration to individuals who have advanced the issues of women's business ownership.

The Living at Home/Block Nurse Program is a nonprofit corporation formed to assist communities in setting up in-home, elder care programs. It works to keep seniors in their homes, even though they require ongoing health care services, thereby reducing medical costs when compared with nursing homes and hospitals. The program has assisted in establishing 14 programs in Minnesota communities, including one in St. Anthony Park. A Living at Home/Block Nurse Program also is being organized in Como Park.

Jamieson started the Living at Home/Block Nurse Program in 1986, operating alone out of her St. Anthony Park home. The service now employs 20. Along the way, she shared her time and expertise with women in need of career advice. She also has published numerous articles in professional journals regarding women's issues in nursing administration and the "glass ceilings" women face in the workplace.

Jamieson was nominated for this award by Valerie Fletcher, business banking officer with First Bank. She will be honored at a breakfast on April 28.

Jamieson also was recently named by Gov. Arne Carlson as a delegate to the 1995 White House Conference on Aging, to be held May 2 to 5 in Washington, D.C. More than 2,250 delegates from all 50 states and the U.S. territories will gather to develop resolutions that will shape national policy on aging over the next decade.

"I am excited to have this opportunity to represent Minnesota at the 1995 White House Conference on Aging," Jamieson said. "Our work in Washington in May will help to define a national aging policy for our country. The follow-through to implement policy is also an extremely important part of the process; it is vital that residents in our communities commit time and energy to make this happen."

Reward fund set up to help apprehend vandals

A St. Anthony Park family discovered on Easter morning, April 16, that their garage and two vehicles had been vandalized by someone using gallons of paint.

Cari and Bill Kidd, 2300 Doswell Ave., said the vandalism did not appear to be a random act, since they were the only ones hit in the neighborhood. The vandals poured gallons of paint on both of the Kidds' vehicles, spray-painted obscenities on the garage and the cars and pelted them with eggs. The word "payback" was painted on Bill Kidd's truck.

The couple estimates that the damages will total thousands of dollars, not all of which will be covered by insurance.

St. Paul Police have recovered the paint cans used by the vandals and are investigating the incident. Though no one has been charged, a juvenile suspect has been identified. The vandalism is classified as criminal damage to property and is a gross misdemeanor, according to an officer in the juvenile division.

The destruction is deeply disturbing to the Kidds, who have lived in St. Anthony Park for eight years.

"Since Easter morning, we have barely eaten or slept," Cari Kidd said a few days after the vandalism occurred. "We feel violated and invaded. Suddenly, our home no longer feels safe."

Others are concerned as well. Neighbors were planning to set up a reward fund in the hope of gaining information that will lead to the arrest of the culprit. For more information about the fund, contact Don Razskazoff at 541-6280.

Campus Sports Grill plans four summertime concerts ... from 1

Mike Qualley, manager of Goldie's Nightclub, which adjoins the Campus Sports Grill.

In contrast, Qualley said State Fair concerts usually play music at 10 or more decibels. He said he organized outdoor concerts last summer for a bar in Bandana Square and had no complaints, even though the outdoor stage was much closer to a hotel and apartment complex than the St. Anthony Park site is to residents. He said that the surrounding buildings should also buffer the sound and that the stage would face the railroad tracks and most of the sound should travel in that direction.

Assenting council members expressed a desire to show a sign of cooperation with the nightclub owners, who changed entertainment formats and clientele after buying the building from the previous tenant, Gatsby's. Gatsby's had been the source of frequent police calls in recent years.

Campus Sports Grill owners have come before the council for other permits and have changed plans to accommodate neighborhood concerns.

They hope the outdoor concerts will maintain their clientele over the summer months when many of the college students who now come to the bars will leave town.

Exact dates for all of the concerts have not been set, because negotiations with bands are still in the works. Proposed dates include: June 3 or 10, July 15, August 12 and September 9 or 16.

Qualley said he hopes to attract bands like those played on FM radio stations 93.7 and 97.1, which he described as pop-oriented bands. The concerts will be open to people ages 18 and older, with beer served in roped off beer gardens. Fifteen to 20 security personnel will be on hand during the events and parking is being arranged with neighboring businesses.

In case of rain, the council allowed for a make-up time of 1 to 6 p.m. on the Sunday following the scheduled date.

Final approval for the outdoor entertainment permit must come from the St. Paul licensing division.

Lauderdale dispute now before the courts ... from 1

there is a settlement, the League's Insurance Trust will pay it."

The League of Minnesota Cities provides technical assistance, information and advice to 820 member cities in Minnesota.

The city of Lauderdale will be represented by Judy Langevin of Gray, Plant, Mooty, Mooty, and Bennett, a private law firm hired by the League of Minnesota Cities Insurance Trust. Langevin said she was not at liberty to comment for this article.

In the meantime, Lauderdale has advertised the position of city administrator and will be interviewing final candidates on April 29 at the city hall from 8 a.m. until noon. Minimum qualifications listed include strong interpersonal communications, one year municipal experience, and a four-year degree in Public Administration or a related field.
